اكرر اننا لا نحدد مواعيد بل فقط نشجع بعضنا بعضا بقرب مجيء المسيح

والتوبة من الان حتى لو كان سيتأخر

Major Solar Flare Erupts from the Sun (Video)

By Mirlam Kramer, Staff Writer
9 hours ago

SPACE

The sun unleashed a major solar flare on Saturday (March 29), causing a radio blackout for several minutes on Earth, space weather experts say.

The brief X1-class flare erupted from the now decaying sunspot AR2017 at 1:48 p.m. EDT (1748 GMT) on Saturday, according to a report from the NOAA-led Space Weather Prediction Center. Although AR2017 is dissipating, it may still produce more solar flares in the coming days, the report stated. NASA's Solar Dynamics Observatory caught sight of the solar blast, capturing video of the huge solar flare.

"Solar flares are powerful bursts of radiation," Karen Fox of NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center wrote in a statement. "Harmful radiation from a flare cannot pass through Earth's atmosphere to physically affect humans on the ground, however — when intense enough — they can disturb the atmosphere in the layer where GPS and communications signals travel." [\[Biggest Solar Flares of 2014: Sun Storm Photos\]](#)

According to NOAA's update, the weekend solar flare and several recent eruptions of super-hot solar plasma (called a coronal mass ejections) could trigger a minor geomagnetic storm on April 2. The storm may amplify Earth's northern lights displays, astronomer Tony Phillips wrote on Spaceweather.com. The northern and southern lights are created when charged particles from the sun come into contact with particles in Earth's atmosphere. The particles from the sun are drawn to the Earth's poles by the planet's magnetic field, creating the dancing lights in northern and southern latitudes.

A TETRAD OF LUNAR ECLIPSES

March 27, 2014: For people in the United States, an extraordinary series of lunar eclipses is about to begin.

The action starts on April 15th when the full Moon passes through the amber shadow of Earth, producing a midnight eclipse visible across North America. So begins a lunar eclipse tetrad—a series of 4 consecutive total eclipses occurring at approximately six month intervals. The total eclipse of April 15, 2014, will be followed by another on Oct. 8, 2014, and another on April 4, 2015, and another on Sept. 28 2015.

"The most unique thing about the 2014-2015 tetrad is that all of them are visible for all or parts of the USA," says longtime NASA eclipse expert Fred Espenak.

A new ScienceCast video explains the lunar eclipse tetrad of 2014-2015. Play it! →

Fish kill in Killingly a natural event

DANIELSON, CT (WFSB) - Thousands of dead fish found in a pond in Killingly happened naturally, according to environmental officials.

The Department of Energy and Environmental Protection said thousands of fish and frogs died at Colwell Pond, also known as Lions Park Pond. Many of them froze in clusters along a very popular neighborhood pond.

It was first reported by a neighbor who said she noticed it in an area off of Lewis Boulevard. She said she was concerned that chemicals may have caused it.

"We've never seen so many dead fish," said Malinda Frantz, of Killingly. "In 30 years, I've lived in the neighborhood and I've never seen dead fish. I've never seen dead fish like this."

The DEEP classified it as a winter fish kill, which meant the amount of dissolved oxygen in the pond had been depleted. It said snow or thick ice that can cover ponds blocks sunlight, and that prevents plants in the water from producing oxygen.

DEEP said fish typically die in the winter and are usually noticed after the ice melts.

Employees with the town's parks and recreation department told Eyewitness News the fish will be cleaned up when the pond thaws out a little bit more.

Algae causes fish deaths

March 25, 2014, 8 a.m.

An algal bloom near Coffin Bay has caused localised deaths of species including cockles, abalone, rock lobster and fish on the reefs around Frenchman's Bluff, and a small number of fish deaths on the shore near Farm Beach.

AN algal bloom near Coffin Bay that resulted in fish and shellfish deaths has prompted an investigation by Primary Industries and Regions SA.

Testing of the waters around Coffin Bay to Port Drummond confirmed the presence of algae Karenia mikimotoi, a naturally occurring algae known to cause fish kills around the world.

According to PIRSA, the algae does not pose issues to human health.

Hundreds of Fish Found Dead on Marunda Beach

Like 14 Tweet 5 Share 3 +1 0

BERITAJAKARTA.COM — 3/27/2014 10:09:28 PM

Hundreds of dead fish are found floating on Marunda Beach, Cilincing, North Jakarta. Such a thing is complained by local fishermen who suspect those fish died because of the wastes polluting the water. Since last Monday (3/24), those dead fish got dragged to the shore until to Marunda coastal area.

Chief of Marunda Coastal Fishermen, Al-Alam Aslik (62), suspected those fish died because of wastes from households as well as big companies around the location, which flowing from several rivers and canal that estuary to Marunda waters. "We do not know where the wastes come from, but around here there are industrial areas like KBN, Marunda Centre, et cetera," he told, Thursday (3/27).

According to Aslik, his party has reported this matter to related unit. As a matter of fact, they even had sent sample of seawater as requested by North Jakarta Fisheries, Poultry, and Maritime Sub-Department. But until now, there is no response.

Responding this matter, Head of North Jakarta Fisheries, Poultry, and Maritime Sub-Department, Liliek Litasari, admitted that she has not received information about dead fish on Marunda Beach. However, she said that there is nothing odd about alleged pollution on Marunda Beach.

"It (Marunda Beach) is estuary of rivers which water flows there. Besides, there are also big companies around there. So, if there were wastes, it's possible. We will check it to the location," she stated.

Meanwhile, North Jakarta Mayor, Heru Budi Hartono, uttered that pollution on coastal area like Marunda might be caused by waste comprehensive factor from rivers as well as contra flow from the sea. Because of that, he will conduct investigation regarding indication and allegation of factories near the location throwing wastes to the waters.

"Indeed there is allegation and we must increase surveillance. After this, I will coordinate with (North Jakarta) Fisheries, Poultry, and Maritime Sub-Department to check the matter directly," he finished.

Bird flu hits Jessore

Around 7,000 chickens infected with Avian Influenza, commonly known as bird flu, were culled at a government poultry farm in Jessore Thursday night. District Livestock Officer Abdur Razzak said they had informed the Deputy Commissioner and Superintendent of Police of Jessore after several birds at the farm died of the flu on Mar 24. Chickens, eggs, feed and medicines had been first tested in the farm laboratory. Some of the dead birds were later sent to the Central Disease Investigation Lab in Dhaka for more elaborate testing, he said. A report confirming avian influenza was received Wednesday, prompting the farm authorities to kill 6,868 chickens and destroy 1,882 eggs, 1,300 kg of feed and 19 kg of vitamins Thursday according to a news agency.

Taiwan's Coast Guard Administration (CGA) said on Tuesday that it had found a third dead dolphin in four days on a beach in northern Taiwan's Miaoli county.

CGA personnel who checked the dolphin after receiving a report from local residents, said it was a bottlenose dolphin around 2.5 meters long and weighing around 230 kilograms.

As the carcass had started to decompose, CGA officials buried it on the beach with the help of the Taiwan Cetacean Society.

The CGA discovered the other two dead dolphins in the county on March 21 and 23.

More dead fish sicken La Brea residents

By Richardson Dhalai Sunday, March 30 2014

As hundreds of dead fish continue to wash ashore along the La Brea coastline, residents of Coffee Beach have started complaining about suffering bouts of nausea and diarrhoea which they associate with the stench of rotted fish.

A La Brea resident holds up one of the many dead fish littering Coffee Beach, La Brea yesterday....

Residents say the dead fish — comprising mainly mullet, cavalli and other assorted fish — began washing ashore at the Coffee, Point Sable and Carrat Shed beaches about three weeks ago.

The problem was dramatically highlighted when environmental activist Gary Aboud and representatives from several fishing associations visited the St Clair offices of the Environmental Management Agency (EMA) bearing a quantity of dead fish and a dead pelican for testing.

The group also attempted to hand deliver a letter to EMA chairman Allan Bachan but were not allowed to enter the Authority's compound.

When Sunday Newsday visited Coffee Beach yesterday, the stench of rotting fish which littered the sandy shoreline, permeated the atmosphere. Some of the dead fish had already been picked clean by vultures leaving only the head, tail and middle bone of the fish visible in the brown sand.

According to Coffee Beach resident, Anika Goodridge, the fish kill was the latest disaster to take place along the beach which was the site of a massive oil spill on December 17, 2013.

"Fish are coming ashore every day," Goodridge said, "today I clear out a lot in my backyard, the smell is disgusting, and I have two babies so that is why I clear it out to kinda ease up de scent."

Ujjain: With the increasing pollution in holy Kshipra, its ecological system has got imbalanced. Fish which are considered the life of fresh water in rivers, lake and ponds were found dead at the banks of Kshipra on Saturday. Devotees were astonished to see hundreds of fish lying dead at the banks of Kshipra on Saturday morning.

Devotees could not take holy dip in the river as the dead fish created foul smell. Local administration needs should take necessary steps for cleanliness of holy river because its condition is worsening day by day. It was also told that in the name of alleged cleaning of the river high quantity of insecticide and disinfectants were added to the river water which may be a cause of death of fish.

A walk along the peaceful bike path off the Hennepin Canal in Milan, Illinois looks like something out of a horror film.

Thousands of dead fish have washed up on shore as of Sunday, March 30, 2014.

Believe it or not, Iowa Department of Natural Resources Conservation Officer Jeff Harrison says it's normal.

"This happens after every winter. When we have so many days with cold temperatures, the snow covers the ice on these ponds and rivers. Sunlight then can't penetrate into the water. That means oxygen is lacking for fish in the water," Harrison said.

2 more dead dolphins found in Beaufort County

The Associated Press March 31, 2014 Updated 3 hours ago

BEAUFORT, S.C. — Two more dolphins have been found dead off Beaufort County.

Five dolphins have been found dead in Beaufort County since March 17, The Beaufort Gazette (<http://bit.ly/PaoT1c>) reported.

Wayne McFee of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration said one was found this weekend on Hilton Head Island and the other at Port Royal.

Employees from the South Carolina Marine Mammal Stranding Network were retrieving the animals Monday.

A bottlenose dolphin washed ashore March 17 on Hilton Head Island and died before marine biologists could reach it. That was an older male, and had a heart condition and probable pneumonia.

The second was spotted March 20 in the May River in Bluffton.

The third was in Fripp Inlet on March 22. It washed out to sea and biologists were unable to recover it, McFee said.

McFee said it is too early to tell if the dolphins had viruses or other diseases.

TERRIFYING EBOLA OUTBREAK SPREADING FAST

Global scourge has fatality rate of up to 90%

LONDON – The Ebola virus that has killed at least 59 people of the 80 who initially contracted it in Guinea now threatens all of West Africa, as health officials in Liberia try to determine if recent deaths there are connected.

Six cases have been reported of which five have already died, including a child, Liberian Health Minister Walter Gwenigale said in a statement, according to Agence France-Presse.

There was a suspicion that Ebola had migrated to Canada, with one victim hospitalized this week with a fever and bleeding, but health officials said tests for Ebola were negative.

The World Health Organization said the case may be severe malaria.

The World Health Organization reports the Ebola virus that causes severe viral hemorrhagic fever, or VHF, can produce outbreaks with a fatality rate of up to 90 percent.

The WHO has documented the Ebola virus is transmitted from wild animals to humans, with the capability of spreading through the human population.

Fruit bats of the Pteropodidae family are considered to be the natural host of the Ebola virus, and, most alarming, there is no effective medical treatment or preventative vaccine for either animals or human beings.

Many Americans first heard about Ebola – including its terrifying symptoms, virulence and communicability – in author Richard Preston's 1995 No. 1 New York Times bestseller, "The Hot Zone."

The BBC reported Tuesday that Guinea has now banned the sale and consumption of bats to prevent the spread of the disease, according to Rene Lamah, Guinea's health minister.

Lamah explained to the BBC that people who eat the bats often boil them into a spicy pepper soup sold in village stores where people gather to drink alcohol. Other ways of preparing bats to eat include drying them over a fire.

The WHO reports Ebola first appeared in 1976 in two simultaneous outbreaks, in Nzara, Sudan, and in a village in Yambuku, Congo, situated near the Ebola River, from which the disease takes its name.

7.5 QUAKE ON CALIFORNIA FAULT COULD BE DISASTROUS

LA HABRA, Calif. (AP) -- Experts say a bigger earthquake along the lesser-known fault that gave Southern California a moderate shake could do more damage to the region than the long-dreaded "Big One" from the more famous San Andreas Fault.

The Puente Hills thrust fault, which brought Friday night's magnitude-5.1 quake centered in La Habra and well over 100 aftershocks by Sunday, stretches from northern Orange County under downtown Los Angeles into Hollywood - a heavily populated swath of the Los Angeles area.

A magnitude-7.5 earthquake along that fault could prove more catastrophic than one along the San Andreas, which runs along the outskirts of metropolitan Southern California, seismologists said.

The U.S. Geological Survey estimates that such a quake along the Puente Hills fault could kill 3,000 to 18,000 people and cause up to $250 billion in damage. In contrast, a larger magnitude 8 quake along the San Andreas would cause an estimated 1,800 deaths.

In 1987, the fault caused the Whittier Narrows earthquake. Still considered moderate at magnitude 5.9, that quake killed eight people and did more than $350 million in damage.

MAGNITUDE-4.8 EARTHQUAKE SHAKES YELLOWSTONE PARK

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (AP) -- The U.S. Geological Survey says the magnitude-4.8 earthquake that shook northern Yellowstone National Park is the strongest there since 1980.

But the Sunday quake was still considered relatively light, and its location didn't raise concerns about the park's supervolcano, which experts say has the potential to erupt with a force about 2,000 times the size of Mount St. Helens and would have worldwide effects.

The University of Utah Seismograph Stations says the earthquake occurred at 6:34 a.m. about 4 miles north-northeast of the Norris Geyser Basin. It was felt in the Montana border towns of West Yellowstone and Gardiner.

There were no immediate reports of damage. The park has few visitors and staff this time of year.

This map from the U.S. Geological Service shows the range of the volcanic ash that was deposited after the biggest of the Yellowstone National Park eruptions around 2.1 million years ago. "These eruptions left behind huge volcanic depressions called "calderas" and spread volcanic ash over large parts of North America," it said. "If another large caldera-forming eruption were to occur at Yellowstone, its effects would be worldwide. Thick ash deposits would bury vast areas of the United States, and injection of huge volumes of volcanic gases into the atmosphere could drastically affect global climate. Fortunately, the Yellowstone volcanic system shows no signs that it is headed toward such an eruption in the near future. In fact, the probability of any such event occurring at Yellowstone within the next few thousand years is exceedingly low."

Nearly 100 recent quakes on Mt. Hood not worrisome

GOVERNMENT CAMP, Ore. (KOIN) — Mount Hood has seen nearly 100 earthquakes in the past few days, but a local seismologist said they are nothing to worry about.

Geologists said most of the recent earthquakes have been small with only 30 actually being large enough to tell where they occurred.

Researchers said these earthquake swarms happen several times a year and are nothing to worry about.

"I wouldn't say be worried but maybe expect to feel an earthquake. It's always interesting to feel an earthquake next to a volcano. These swarms in the past have produced earthquakes that were felt at Government Camp," said Seth Moran, a seismologist at USGS Cascades Volcano Observatory.

According to Moran, the quakes are not being caused by magma in the volcano moving, but instead by the tectonic plates shifting.

Report: Poland Calls Up Army Reserves: "The World Stands On the Brink of Conflict"

Mac Slavo

SHTFPlan.com

March 27, 2014

Though not much is being said about the Ukraine in U.S. mainstream news circles, the tension in Europe is being stretched to a near breaking point.

A few weeks ago the country of Estonia warned that their sources indicated that the Russian Army was are preparing an invasion of the Western-supported Ukrainian government. The President of the country's provisional government has since deployed at least 40,000 troops to its Eastern front as a countermeasure should Vladimir Putin's 80,000 strong military cross its border.

Image: Polish Troops (Wiki Commons).

In Poland, which sits in a region that has been party to just about every European engagement in modern history, leaders are concerned with the possibility that a Russia/Ukraine conflict would spill over to its country.

According to a report from The Week Polish military reservists are being called up by the thousands, presumably to prepare for the possibility of not just spillover, but all out military confrontation with Russia.

At least 7,000 reservists have been recalled to the colours for immediate exercises lasting between 10 and 30 days.

They're told by the Polish authorities that the call-ups are "routine"; but the men say they haven't been asked before and they're well aware of the growing alarm in Warsaw at President Putin's aggression. Three weeks ago, their Prime Minister, Donald Tusk, called a press conference to warn that "the world stands on the brink of conflict, the consequences of which are not foreseen... Not everyone in Europe is aware of this situation."

But in the worst case scenario of a truly revanchist Russia, Poland certainly has the borders from hell. Starting from the top, it abuts Kaliningrad (the Russian exclave on the Baltic carved at the end of the war from East Prussia), Lithuania, Belarus and Ukraine.

فالأمر على حافة حرب. ان كنت اعتقد انه لن يحدث ولكن المخاوف فقط ستزيد.

China is waging political warfare against the United States as part of a strategy to drive the U.S. military out of Asia and control seas near its coasts, according to a Pentagon-sponsored study.

A defense contractor report produced for the Office of Net Assessment, the Pentagon's think tank on future warfare, describes in detail China's "Three Warfares" as psychological, media, and legal operations. They represent an asymmetric "military technology" that is a surrogate for conflict involving nuclear and conventional weapons.

The unclassified 566-page report warns that the U.S. government and the military lack effective tools for countering the non-kinetic warfare methods, and notes that U.S. military academies do not teach future military leaders about the Chinese use of unconventional warfare. It urges greater efforts to understand the threat and adopt steps to counter it.

Ukraine Leader Leaked Recording: 8 Million Russians In Ukraine “Must Be Killed With Nuclear Weapons”

Zero Hedge

March 25, 2014

While the NSA is busy justifying its spying of every American its existence thanks to famous Moscow resident Edward Snowden, its Russian counterparts have been busy intercepting even more phone Ukrainian conversations.

After a month ago a leaked phone call between US assistant secretary of state Victoria Nuland and the US envoy to the Ukraine, Geoffrey Pyatt confirmed that it was the US that was pulling the strings in what was about to be a violent coup overthrowing Ukraine’s president Yanukovich, “someone” has just leaked another phone conversation, this time between parliamentarian Nestor Shufrych and former PM and ideological leader of the Ukraine “revolution” Yulia Tymoshenko and most probable future president of West Ukraine, in which Tymoshenko is makes the following threats, “It’s going too far! Bugger! We must grab arms and go whack those damn katsaps [a Ukrainian word used to refer to the Russians in a negative tone] together with their leader”, “I’ll use all my connections, I’ll raise the whole world – as soon as I’m able to – in order to make sure.. Bugger!.. not even scorched earth won’t remain where Russia stands” although all her empty threats collapse in the last sentence of the phone conversation in which she says, regarding the Crimea annexation, that “we are going to take it to the Hague International Criminal Court.” Good luck with that.

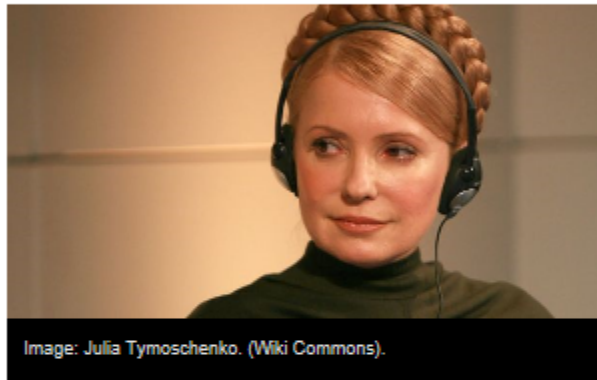

Image: Julia Tymoschenko. (Wiki Commons).

But the smoking gun, and where Putin once again shows just how masterful of a chess player he is, is the following statement by Tymoshenko, after asked, rhetorically, by her counterpart, “what should we do now with the 8 million Russians that stayed in Ukraine. They are outcasts”... to which she replies: “They must be killed with nuclear weapons.”

Needless to say, that is not how you make Russian friends, or diffuse geopolitical tensions with your superpower neighbor, who just happens to be set on recreating USSR 2.0. Because just like that Putin has his provocation carte blanche, as the second something, anything happens to any ethnic Russian in east Ukraine, Putin can point to precisely this conversation as proof of how Ukraine’s “government” feels toward the ethnic minorities in the east, and why “they deserve to be protected” the Russian bearhug. Which has been precisely Putin’s plan all along.

It is not surprising that after this recording was leaked, that Tymoshenko admitted the validity of the recording except for this part, because she knows just how greatly it can and will be used against her once Putin decides it is time to expand a little further beyond just Crimea.

The Pentagon plans to triple its cybersecurity personnel over the next several years to bolster US national security, said Defense Secretary Chuck Hagel.

Speaking at what has been considered the "first-ever live broadcast" from the National Security Agency's headquarters at Ft. Meade, Maryland, Hagel said that an ongoing campaign to both recruit civilians as well as encourage military personnel to retrain for the positions will see the number of "cyber professionals" reach 1,800 by year's end. By 2016, the Pentagon should have 6,000 cyber professionals, he said Friday.

"The Department of Defense is on its way to building a modern cyberforce. This force is enhancing our ability to deter aggression in cyberspace, deny adversaries their objectives, and defend the nation from cyberattacks that threaten our national security," AP cites Hagel as saying during a speech for outgoing Cyber Command and NSA chief Gen. Keith Alexander.

"Our nation's reliance on cyberspace outpaces our cybersecurity," he continued. "Our nation confronts the proliferation of destructive malware and a new reality of steady, ongoing and aggressive efforts to probe, access or disrupt public and private networks, and the industrial control systems that manage our water, and our energy and our food supplies."

Pastor Saeed Abedini

WASHINGTON — Spring has brought new reason to hope for the release of Christian Pastor Saeed Abedini, a U.S. citizen shackled and imprisoned in Iran.

The Persian New Year "Nowruz," which began on the first day of spring, is a 13-day celebration of the rebirth of nature, but it's also when Iranian prisoners are historically granted amnesty.

The Iran Daily Brief reported 12 prisoners were released March 20. Although there is no sign yet of clemency for Abedini, politicians and religious leaders remain hopeful.

Fox News reported a few weeks ago how the Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, Colo., removed a Bible verse from a cadet's personal whiteboard. I am personally so disappointed that the branch of service that I served in to protect our freedoms is now trying to suppress them.

When one walks the dorm halls of the Air Force Academy, one immediately notices the hundreds of whiteboards hanging on students' doors. This past week, Rep. Randy Forbes, R-Va., cited Air Force officials who explained that cadets "often use these boards to display items, quotes or other things that reflect their personality or from which they draw inspiration." I guess the Bible is the wrong type of inspiration, at least according to some Air Force leaders.

Host of "Fox News & Commentary" Todd Starnes reported that Mikey Weinstein, director of the Military Religious Freedom Foundation, said "29 cadets and four faculty and staff members contacted his organization to complain about the Christian passage." Within two hours of Weinstein calling the academy and filing a complaint, the cadet's whiteboard had been whitewashed.

Why is it that 29 cadets and four faculty members can exercise their anti-religious sentiment by communicating their grievances against the display of a Bible passage but a single cadet cannot exercise his own pro-religious sentiment by communicating his faith on his own personal whiteboard?

Of the 19 states northern states, 12 have implemented Islamic law, or Shariah, noted Buwalda.

Same-sex marriage now legal as first couples wed

COMMENTS (1721)

Peter McGrath and David Cabreza, John Coffey and Bernardo Marti, and Andrew Wale and Neil Allard were among the first gay couples to marry

The first same-sex weddings have taken place after gay marriage became legal in England and Wales at midnight.

Politicians from the main parties have hailed the change in the law.

David Cameron said the move sent a message that people were now equal "whether gay or straight", but some religious groups remain opposed.

Scotland passed a similar law in February; the first same-sex marriages are expected there in October. Northern Ireland has no plans to follow suit.

Obama's secret new tax law goes into effect July 1, 2014.

Under pressure from political correctness, authorities have allowed Muslim pedophile gangs in the United Kingdom to groom underage girls for sexual abuse for decades, victimizing as many as 10,000 schoolgirls, according to a report by an organization calling for an investigation.

"What we believe is required is a full-scale public inquiry," the Law and Freedom Foundation said in the conclusion of its 300-plus page report, "Easy Meat: Multiculturalism, Islam and Child Sex Slavery."

The group said the public inquiry "must look into the failures of national agencies, child-care charities, and academics to study this problem."

"The inquiry must look into what police forces knew and when they knew these things. Is it true that Lancashire police knew about grooming gang activities in the 1970s? How much information did they

International poverty ministry World Vision is reversing its decision just two days after announcing it would allow people in same-sex marriages to become missionaries.

The group had announced Monday in Christianity Today that its American branch would begin hiring people in same-sex unions who dedicate their lives to God.

World Vision president Richard Stearns argued that the measure was "symbolic of how we can come together even though we disagree."

But the backlash from other evangelical leaders was swift, causing World Vision to reevaluate its controversial decision on Wednesday.

"The board acknowledged it made a mistake and chose to revert to our longstanding policy requiring sexual abstinence for all single employees and faithfulness within the Biblical covenant of marriage between one man and one woman," the group said in a statement. "We are brokenhearted over the pain and confusion we have caused many of our friends, who saw this decision as a reversal of our strong commitment to Biblical authority."

How rumor sparked panic and three-day bank run in Chinese city

By John Ruwitch
10 hours ago

By John Ruwitch

YANCHENG, China (Reuters) - The rumor spread quickly. A small rural lender in eastern China had turned down a customer's request to withdraw 200,000 yuan ($32,200).

Bankers and local officials say it never happened, but true or not the rumor was all it took to spark a run on a bank as the story passed quickly from person to person, among depositors, bystanders and even bank employees.

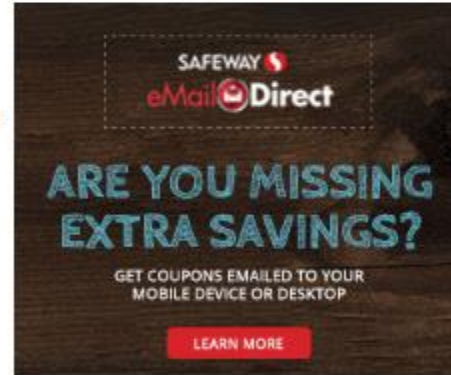

Savers feared the bank in Yancheng, a city in Sheyang county, had run out of money and soon hundreds of customers had rushed to its doors demanding the withdrawal of their money despite assurances from regulators and the central bank that their money was safe.

The panic in a corner of the coastal Jiangsu province north of Shanghai, while isolated, struck a raw nerve and won national airplay, possibly reflecting public anxiety over China's financial system after the country's first domestic bond default this month shattered assumptions the government would always step in to prevent institutions from collapsing.

Rumors also find especially fertile ground here after the failure last January of some less-regulated rural credit co-operatives.

JIM RICKARDS: CHINA IS IMPORTING GOLD SECRETLY USING MILITARY CHANNELS (EXCLUSIVE INTERVIEW!)

The Inteligencia Financiera Global blog (Global Financial Intelligence Blog) is honored to present an exclusive interview with economy world expert Jim Rickards. Jim is the author of the bestseller "Currency Wars: The Making of the Next Global Crisis" and the forthcoming, "The Death of Money: The Coming Collapse of the International Monetary System".

James Rickards

He is a portfolio manager at West Shore Group and a partner in Tangent Capital Partners, a merchant bank based in New York. He is an advisor on capital markets to the U.S. intelligence community and the Office of the Secretary of Defense.

Thanks for accepting this interview.

Jim, as you know, China is now the world's largest consumer of gold. While the WGC states that its "record" demand in 2013 was only 1,065.8 tonnes, the China Gold Association estimates "gold consumption" was 1,176 tonnes. On the other hand, several pundits like Koos Jansen say that the real China gold demand was much more than 2,000 tonnes last year. Who should we believe?

NEW YORK — After the stock market's best year since 1997, warning flags are starting to go up on Wall Street, where stock turbulence is on the rise and froth is being rubbed out.

This year's first quarter, which ends Monday, isn't nearly as bullish as last year, when the benchmark

Standard and Poor's 500 stock index soared 10% in the first three months of the year on its way to an eye-popping 29.6% gain.

The broad market is up just 0.5% in 2014 after recovering from an early-year swoon sparked by turbulence in emerging markets and uneasiness surrounding the Federal Reserve's decision to start pulling back on its bond-buying stimulus program. Russia's decision to annex Crimea has added to investor angst as geopolitical risk enters the equation.

MARKETS: Stocks slip Thursday as tech stocks stumble

But the market itself is acting poorly, amid growing signs that investors have lost their stomach for investing in many of the market's most popular and best-performing stocks and sectors.

"Some of the froth is coming off," says Russ Koesterich, chief investment strategist at BlackRock. "There's a little bit more risk-aversion, and when risk-aversion rises, it breaks the momentum trade."

A bunch of warning signs are popping up:

1. Not-so sweet IPO.

The high profile initial public offering of King Digital, the maker of the game app Candy Crush, got crushed, plunging nearly 16% in its first day of trading, vs. an average first-day IPO pop of 22%, according to Renaissance Capital. The dive sent shivers through the frothy IPO market, which has been flying high and earning comparisons with the

Russia to create national payment system to rival Visa, Mastercard

Russia is considering launching its own payment system in response Visa and Mastercard's recent blocking of the bank card operations of several US-sanctioned Russian banks. Russian officials are debating whether to base it on Sberbank's PRO100 or to cooperate with the Chinese UniPAY.

It should be noted that these sanctions were essentially that proverbial straw that broke the camel's back. Back in 1998, when the Russian economy was in dire straits, it didn't take long for both Visa and Mastercard to block all transactions carried out on cards issued by Russian banks. Both companies also stubbornly refused repeated requests by the Russian authorities to create a processing center in Russia, so that their bank card transactions could be processed locally. The proposal to create an alternative to the capricious Western credit powerhouses has now been debated by the Russian government for several years and these financial sanctions might just have provided the right incentive to make that dream come true.

EGYPTIAN WANTS TO SUE ISRAEL OVER BIBLICAL PLAGUES

Obama's secret new tax law goes into effect July 1, 2014.

A writer in Egypt is demanding that his nation sue Israel over the 10 biblical plagues.

This Device Has Grocery Stores Panicked

"We want compensation for the plagues that were inflicted upon [us] as a result of the curses that the Jews' ancient forefathers [cast] upon our ancient forefathers, who did not deserve to pay for the mistake that Egypt's ruler at the time, Pharaoh, committed," said columnist Ahmad al-Gamal, in a column in the Egyptian daily Al-Yawm Al-Sabi.

The column was spotted and cited by officials with the Middle East Media Research Institute, which monitors and comments on media in the Middle East.

The commentator also advocated suing Israel for the "precious materials" used by the Israelites to build their desert tabernacle, Turkey for damages for invading Egypt during the Ottoman empire and France for Napoleon's invasion.
