اكرر اننا لا نحدد مواعيد بل فقط نشجع بعضنا بعضا بقرب مجيء المسيح

وأيضاً أوضح أنه يوجد نبوات لم نراها بعد حدثت مثل ابن الهلاك وحرب هرمجدون وظهور

الشاهدين وحزقيال 38 وغيره ولا نعرف متى ولكن أشعر انها اقتربت.

ولكن ايضا علامات كثيرة من التي قال عنها الكتاب انها في الزمان الاخير وفي الجيل الأخير

بدأت تحدث بوضوح ويجب أن ننتبه اليها. فلا نعرف هل المسيح سيأتي في سنة ام سبع سنين ام

سبعين سنة أم أكثر فكرر لا احدد مواعيد ولكن نذكر بعضنا باننا نحتاج ان نستعد. والاستعداد

ليس فقط قبل مجيء المسيح بل ايضا قبل الظلمة التي ستسبق مجيؤه ليكون عندنا زيت في

مصابيحنا يكفي ان نعبر هذه الظلمة وتكون مصابيحنا مضيئة وقت مجيؤه. بمعنى نحتاج من

الان ان نستعد بقوة بأيمان عامل وبتنقية القلب وان نشمر بالخدمة أي نجمع زيت في مصابيحنا

لان الظلمة والضيقة اقتربت جدا ومن لن يستعد لها بزيت كافي من الان لن يجد زيت في الضيقة
لان وقتها تجميع زيت سيكون صعب جدا بل أستطيع ان أقول من مثل العذارى انه لن يكون هناك
زيت الا ما جمعته سابقا. فأكرر لا نحدد المواعيد ولكن أفضل ان اقول لنفسي ولكم استعدوا الان
لأنه اقترب فنكون مستعدين سواء جاء او نحن ان سلمنا وديعتنا عن أنى لا اقول انه اقترب لكيلا
يقال عني كاذب وانشر اشاعات ولكنه يأتي بسرعة بغته. فيجب علينا ان نذكر الكل بالاستعداد
والتوبة من الان حتى لو كان سيتأخر

بعض الاحداث التي قال عنها الرب يسوع

انجيل لوقا 21

2: 20 تتحول الشمس الى ظلمة والقمر الى دم قبل ان يجيء يوم الرب العظيم الشهير

2: 21 ويكون كل من يدعو باسم الرب يخلص

لماذا قال المسيح بعض العلامات؟

إنجيل يوحنا 14: 29

وَقُلْتُ لَكُمْ الْآنَ قَبْلَ أَنْ يَكُونَ، حَتَّى مَتَى كَانَ تُؤْمِنُونَ.

ثانيا ستحدث عدة أقمار دموية ولكن لن يتفق منها أي قمر دموي مع أعياد لمدة 600 سنة أي

الامر الذي اكتشفته من ناسا هو ان في وقت الصلب المسيح أيضا حدث أربع أقمار دموية اثنين

Mars Makes Closest Approach to Earth in 6 Years Monday Ahead of Lunar Eclipse

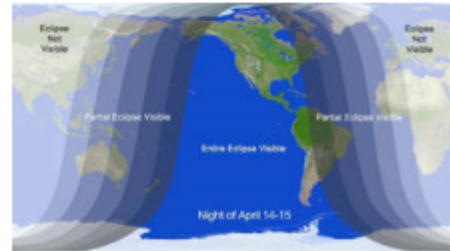

By by Joe Rao, SPACE.com Skywatching Columnist
7 hours ago

A huge night for stargazers is nearly here: On Monday evening (April 14), Mars will make its closest approach to Earth in six years, just ahead of a total eclipse of the moon.

Mars will be at its closest to Earth since 2008 when the Red Planet comes within 57.4 million miles (92.4 million km) of our planet. While that close approach occurs during the daytime, at 8:53 a.m. EDT (1253 GMT), Mars will rise later in the southeastern night sky and shine throughout Monday evening as a sort of night sky preview for the first total lunar eclipse of 2014 early Tuesday (April 15).

You can watch live webcasts of Mars and the total lunar eclipse on Space.com, courtesy of the Slooh community telescope, NASA and the Virtual Telescope project. The Slooh Mars webcast will begin at 10 p.m. EDT (0200 April 15 GMT), with several lunar eclipse webcasts following at 2 a.m. EDT (0500 GMT) on Tuesday.

PHOENIX (KSAZ) - A meteor sighting prompted many viewers to call into the FOX 10 newsroom Saturday evening.

Bill Cooke with NASA's Meteoroid Environment's Office confirmed the object was a meteor that was seen just after 9 p.m. MST.

The meteor was caught on camera by NASA's meteor camera located at New Mexico State University.

Cooke estimates the magnitude of the meteor as a -9, and the size of the rock about one foot in diameter.

The video shows the moon on the left and then a bright object streaks upwards as it passes over the camera.

Posted on April 11, 2014

April 2014 – GEOLOGY – Residents have fled villages near Peru's Ubinas volcano, which this week began spitting out white-hot chunks of rock, some as big as 30cm in diameter. Domingo Ramos, a scientist from Peru's mining institute, said the volcano reawakened several days ago. The renewed activity led the government to announce a state of emergency in the Andean region of Moquegua, some 1200km south of Lima. The region is home to some 40 volcanoes, most of which, unlike Ubinas, are dormant. Officials plan to distribute food, face masks and goggles to help those upwind of the volcano cope with airborne ash. -SMH

According to local news, a seismic crisis is under way at the volcano and the volcano observatory in Goma thinks that a new eruption in coming days or weeks is likely. "The eruption of Nyamulagira will have no impact on the famous volcano Nyiragongo, whose activity is in a normal state," said Kaco Karume, member of the Volcanic Observatory of Goma (OVG). Nicaragua rattled by 2 large earthquakes in less than 24 hours

April 2014 – NICARAGUA – Less than 24 hours after a 6.1-magnitude earthquake hit Nicaragua, a second earthquake shook the country Friday. The 6.6-magnitude quake struck near the city of Granada at 2:29 p.m. local time, the U.S. Geological Survey reports. People rushed into the streets after the latest quake, but there were no immediate reports of new casualties or damage. Earlier, the government raised the number of injured people from 23 to 200 after the Thursday evening quake. It also said that a 23-year-old woman had died of an apparent heart attack after the quake. In the capital city of Managua, 300 homes were damaged and at least 20 were destroyed by the shake, said one of the mayor's deputies, Fidel Moreno. Authorities

SANTIAGO, Chile -- Ranchers in southern Chile say a series of lightning strikes has killed more than 60 of their dairy cows, costing the cattle owners thousands of dollars.

Storms on Sunday spawned the strikes in south-central Chile. Worst hit was a ranch in Los Rios owned by Cecil Fourn, who says 54 of his cows were killed by lightning and another one was blinded. Another rancher, Claudio Toledo, says nine of his cows sheltering under a tree were struck and killed.

As many as nine blue whale carcasses are in heavy ice off Newfoundland's southwest coast, the federal Department of Fisheries and Oceans has confirmed.

Blue whales are the largest animals in the world, each measuring the length of three school buses.

DFO researcher Jack Lawson said the deaths are a serious blow to an endangered population of about 250 animals.

"It's horrible and it's so disappointing for us, because the department is working hard to develop a recovery plan for the species," he told CBC.

"We are trying to monitor man-made threats like seismic or vessel strikes and that kind of thing, and then to have a natural event like this happen,

Still appear dead fish in lagoon of Charco Azul

The Country / A new fish kill occurs for three days in the lagoon of Charco Azul, east of Cali. Hundreds of bream, those marks, tilapia and shrimp were found dead, without explanation.

"Tuesday was a critical day. Fish peered to the surface, as if looking for oxygen," says Rubén Darío Obando, security guard of the lagoon.

Meanwhile, Albeiro Murillo, Attorney environmental facilitators of the lagoon, warns that "should not be falling housing sewage lagoon, this could cause the death of fish."

The director Wastewater Emcali Jose Ceron, said "these fish did not die on Tuesday. Environmental facilitators when cleaned the filter and removed the trash that taponaba, removed these fish already dead."

Ceron added that "monthly clean the filter and the tube facing the lagoon, but obstructs the community. Lack Les environmental culture". Amanda Manrique, fisher and resident of the sector for 35 years, said that "this is going on for six months and nobody does anything."

Moreover, John Preciado, a resident of Charco Azul, says that "in the evening you can see a green cream and where it appears, no dead fish."

Given this, Camilo Velez, head of water resources of Dangma hopes "that this week the CVC deliver the results of the biopsy of the dead and the fish pond sediment, to clarify what happens in this wetland."

BP oil spill continues to take huge toll on wildlife

Kurt Nimmo

Infowars.com

April 10, 2014

The media has long since stopped covering the biggest oil spill in U.S. history, but the aftermath of the devastating Deepwater Horizon oil rig explosion is still taking a toll on wildlife four years later. The disaster spilled more than 200 million gallons of oil into the Gulf of Mexico.

A new report, dismissed by BP as political advocacy and not science, says a record number of bottlenose dolphins and sea turtles are dying as a result of the disaster. The report, issued by the National Wildlife Federation (NWF), "misrepresents the U.S. government's investigation into dolphin deaths," BP told National Geographic, "as the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's own Web site states, that inquiry is ongoing."

"The report also conveniently overlooks information available from other independent scientific reports showing that the Gulf is undergoing a strong recovery. Just this week, a study published by Auburn University researchers found no evidence that the spill impacted young red snapper populations on reefs off the Alabama coast."

Doug Inkley, senior scientist for NWF, disagrees. "The oil is not gone. There is oil on the bottom of the gulf, oil washing up on the beach and there is oil in the marshes," he told The Guardian on Wednesday.

Fish kill bedevils lake

LINCOLN CITY — A day after 8,400 trout were stocked in Devils Lake, the man that grew them shook his head and leveled his camera at a shoreline littered with dead fish.

"I've never seen anything like it," said David Welch, manager of the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife's Salmon River Hatchery. "I'm shocked, and I don't know what we can do about it. It makes you feel helpless."

Commercial beekeepers who flood California's almond orchards with nearly 2 million hives every March have lost 25 percent of their colonies to chemical sprays and they are blaming loose regulations for the injury and deaths of an estimated 17 billion bees.

The crisis, which robbed the beekeepers of at least $106 million, is expected to slam subsequent crops that need honeybee pollination from the commercial beekeepers including much of the nation's fruits and vegetables such as apples, blueberries and squash.

"The enormity of this massacre is mind-numbing, and it will be felt all season long all across the U.S.," said Kim Flottum, editor of Bee Culture magazine, the industry journal.

He told Secrets that the beekeepers are threatening to stop trucking their bees to orchards and vegetable fields, or charge a big "pesticide surcharge" to cover losses. He revealed the kill-off in his "Catch the Buzz" column.

Pacific Ring of Fire becoming increasingly more active

Posted on April 12, 2014

April 2014 – GEOLOGY – The season of hyper seismicity which I warned would unfold across the globe from March 15 to April 12 continues in earnest with a dazzling display of increased seismic events erupting along the peripheral boundaries of the Pacific Plate in the Ring of Fire. This latest burst of seismic activity reflects dramatic, intense changes occurring deep within the interior of the planet as gradient pressures become increasingly more erratic. Powerful churning forces generated from gradient fluctuations, which boil magma, awaken dormant volcanoes, perturb dormant fault systems, and incinerate massive slabs of rock continue to build deep below the planet's surface. The increased risks from some of these cataclysmic forces are seen in the latest round of large tremors striking the globe which are occurring at depths greater than what is normally observed with most recent large earthquakes. Chile's 8.2 earthquake occurred at a depth of 20 km, and the 7.7 magnitude earthquake which followed erupted much deeper at a depth of 34 km. The 7.1 magnitude earthquake which struck Papua New Guinea on April 11 occurred at a depth of 50 km and the 6.6 which struck Nicaragua on the same day was recorded at a depth of 138 km.

West Africa Ebola outbreak among 'most challenging' ever: WHO

Geneva (AFP) - West Africa's Ebola unprecedented outbreak is among the "most challenging" for health workers since the deadly disease emerged elsewhere in Africa four decades ago as the suspected death toll topped 100, the WHO said Tuesday.

Keiji Fukuda, assistant director-general of the World Health Organization (WHO), said the agency was concerned about the spread of the virus from its epicentre in the forests of southern Guinea.

2014 El Niño Warming Up to Be a Mighty One?

El Niño is a growing threat this year that could play havoc with weather patterns in the United States, forecasters say.

El Niño, named for the warm waters that occasionally occur in the Pacific Ocean near South America, brings fluctuating weather that includes droughts, flooding and heat waves.

"We have above-normal temperatures in the tropical Pacific Ocean and that often precedes an El Niño because there's a large volume of above-average water temperature below the surface of the ocean," Anthony Barnston, chief forecaster for the International Research Institute for Climate and Society, told ABC News. "Volume often tends to come up to the surface; often, but not always.

"That's the uncertainty," Barnston said. "It's more likely to rise than not."

Some of the larger El Niños in the past have resulted in flooding and landslides in southern and central California, he added.

Barnston notes a 70 percent probability of the United States' experiencing an El Niño this year. He said the official outlook will be coming Thursday from the two agencies - his research institute and the Climate Prediction Center - and will most likely give a slightly lower probability of an El Niño event.

Nova Scotia Power is warning snowmobilers in the Cape Breton Highlands to watch out for power lines and poles because snowdrifts in some areas are so high they reach overhead power lines.

Snowmobilers say the situation is worst along Route 755 going up to the Wreck Cove area.

It looks to me like the snow slid down and caused this because I've never seen it this way in this area before," said Fred Lewis, who has been snowmobiling for nearly 40 years.

"Usually when you come down here it's pretty flat but it seems like the snow, maybe a mini-avalanche came down the mountain there and just the snow came up to the wires."

High volumes of snow have increased the height of the trail so power lines are now level with the snow. They look like fence posts sticking up through

Ukraine crisis: Nato warns Russia against further intervention

Nato Secretary-General Anders Fogh Rasmussen: "I urge Russia to step back"

Nato has warned Russia that further intervention in Ukraine would be a "historic mistake" with grave consequences.

Secretary-General Anders Fogh Rasmussen said Moscow must pull back troops it has massed on the Ukrainian border.

Ukraine has regained control of one of the government buildings occupied by pro-Russian activists in the east of the country, in the city of Kharkiv.

However, armed militants are refusing to withdraw in another city, Luhansk.

Moscow has said that using force to end the protests could lead to civil war.

Obama confronts Putin in call as crisis escalates

By Stephen Collinson

Washington (AFP) - Presidents Barack Obama and Vladimir Putin confronted one another in telephone talks Monday as a standoff over Ukraine escalated after the CIA chief visited Kiev and a Russian war plane "buzzed" a US destroyer.

Washington said it was consulting European allies and hinted that more sanctions on Russia's economy could be coming, to punish what it sees as Moscow's sponsorship of pro-Russia violence in eastern Ukraine.

BEIJING — The United States and China clashed over Japan on Tuesday as the Chinese defense minister asserted that Beijing had “indisputable sovereignty” over a group of islands in the East China Sea and that his country’s military stood ready to protect its interests in territorial disputes.

The minister, Gen. Chang Wanquan, said that China would not be first to launch an attack over the territorial dispute. But he accused Japan of “confusing the right with the wrong” in its assertion of control over the disputed islands in the East China Sea, which are known as the Senkaku in Japan and as the Diaoyu in China.

“China has indisputable sovereignty over the Diaoyu Islands,” General Chang said. He added that on the issue of what he called “territorial sovereignty,” China would

U.S. Secretary of State John Kerry told Senate hearing on Tuesday that Iran has the ability to produce fissile material for a nuclear bomb in two months, if it so decided.

"I think it's public knowledge today that we're operating with a time period for a so-called 'break-out' of about two months. That's been in the public domain," Kerry said in comments carried by Reuters.

Iran's "break-out" time is defined as how long it would take it to produce fissile material for one nuclear weapon, if it decided to build such weapons of mass destruction.

Iran nuclear activities unstoppable: Leader

Leader of the Islamic Revolution Ayatollah Seyyed Ali Khamenei says Iran's nuclear research and development activities will never stop.

"Everybody should know that although negotiations [between Iran and world powers] are going on, the Islamic Republic of Iran's activities in the field of nuclear research and development will never stop and none of Iran's nuclear achievements will be shut down. Meanwhile, the International Atomic Energy Agency's relations with Iran must be conventional relations, not extraordinary," Ayatollah Khamenei told Iran's nuclear officials and experts in Tehran on Wednesday.

Boko Haram Islamists in Nigeria kill 68 in village attacks, witnesses say

Posted Mon 14 Apr 2014, 11:05am AEST

Suspected Islamist militants have killed at least 60 people in an attack on a village in north-east Nigeria, witnesses said.

Boko Haram, which wants to carve an Islamic state out of Africa's most populous country, split roughly equally between Christians and Muslims, has killed thousands since launching an uprising in the north-east over four years ago.

Witnesses said the gunmen attacked the village of Kala Balge near the Cameroon border from several different quarters, shooting sporadically as terrified residents tried to flee.

"I'm making efforts to evacuate my parents from the town," said Ibrahim Bukar, 35, after escaping the attack.

He said he counted 60 bodies scattered around after the insurgents left. Most have since been buried by the villagers, he said.

In a separate assault, insurgents killed eight people at a teacher training college in the remote village of Dikwa, witnesses said.

"They entered at night. They killed my brother Madu. The insurgents shot him in front of his wife and two sons. Then they shot them too," Yakubu Saleh said via telephone.

President Goodluck Jonathan ordered extra troops into north-east Nigeria last May to try to crush the rebels, the biggest security threat to Africa's top oil producer.

But the rebels have retreated into the remote hilly Gwoza area bordering Cameroon, from where they have stepped up their campaign, mounting deadly attacks against security forces and civilians they accuse of being pro-government.

WASHINGTON – The Turkish military is actively assisting foreign-backed Sunni Islamic militants who are routing Christian Armenians from the northwestern Syrian town of Kassab, Syrian and Lebanese sources told WND.

The Armenians are being forced to seek refuge in the Syrian city of Latakia.

While there have been numerous reports of Islamic militant groups such as the al-Qaida-affiliated Jabhat al-Nusra and the ISIS attacking Syrian Christians, the attack on Armenian Christians in Syria by Turkey has brought back memories of the Ottoman Turk attacks on Christian Armenians.

The Turkish attacks beginning in 1915 and lasting until 1923 killed more 1.5 million people and has been regarded by many experts as genocide.

As a result, many hundreds of thousands of Armenians fled to neighboring Syria and Lebanon to seek refuge and reestablish Armenian communities.

In addition to some 120,000 Armenian Christians, the government of embattled Shiite-Alawite President Bashar al-Assad has been protecting Christian Syriacs, Maronites and Eastern Orthodox believers.

Beginning last March 21, Sunni rebels have expelled some 5,000 Armenian Christians from their historic town, violently attacking the residents and desecrating their churches. Sources say the al-Qaida-affiliated terrorists then occupied the town's abandoned homes and

A science and wildlife center in San Mateo, Calif., has reportedly removed a disclaimer regarding evolution from one of its exhibit signs after receiving backlash from the online atheist community.

The CuriOdyssey center at Coyote Point recently clarified to atheist blogger Hemant Mehta that it had removed a disclaimer regarding evolution from one of its exhibit signs. Mehta contacted the museum out of concern after seeing a picture of the science museum's sign on Twitter, posted by Adam Rogers, an editor and writer at The Wire.

The science museum sign was advertising an exhibit titled "Animal Connections," where children would have the opportunity to get "up close and personal" with that day's theme animal, "reptiles." The sign also read at the bottom: "This program may discuss the topic of evolution."

Rogers' tweet of the sign prompted multiple atheist bloggers, including Mehta of the "Friendly Atheist" blog and Jerry Coyne, a professor of biology at the University of Chicago, to contact the California-based museum and question why the sign needed to include a disclaimer about evolution.

"Since when does a science museum need to warn people that a science presentation will include science?" questioned Mehta.

Coyne, who also wrote the book Why Evolution Is True, posted a letter he sent to the science center on his blog. The letter, in part, argues that it is harmful to have a disclaimer for evolution on a science exhibit's poster.

'Ground Zero Mosque' May Be Demolished to Build Larger Islamic Community Center

April 9, 2014 | Filed under: Life & Society, Top Stories | By: Heather Clark

NEW YORK — A real estate developer in New York City has filed an application to demolish Park 51, or what has become known as the 'Ground Zero mosque.' However, reports state that the developer may simply have plans to build a larger facility in its place.

The New York Department of Buildings told Reuters this week that it was reviewing an application from the developer to tear down the building and an adjacent property. The application was filed by Soho Properties, operated by Sharif El-Gamal, who owns three surrounding properties.

Park 51 became the subject of controversy in 2010 when it announced plans to open a 4,000-square foot Islamic center in the former Burlington Coat Factory building. Both protesters and counter-protesters gathered outside of the building to express their views about the matter, as the facility is located just two blocks from the site of the 2001 attacks on the World Trade Center.

"It's very insensitive to the families," retired firefighter Tim Brown, who escaped the Twin Towers, told the New York Daily News. "This is not about religious freedom. ... All we are saying is don't build this mosque here at Ground Zero on our cemetery."

▶ But others asserted that Muslims had a right to use the building as an Islamic community center because they have the same freedoms all Americans have.

"These people against it need to open their eyes and see how much hate this is bringing," tour guide Victor Hernandez told the publication. "The terrorists win when we don't allow people their freedoms."

Soho Properties described the facility prior to its opening as "a platform for multi-faith dialogue. It will strive to promote inter-community peace, tolerance and understanding locally in New York City, nationally in America, and globally."

Survey finds Americans more skeptical of the Bible

NEW YORK (AP) — A new poll finds a sharp increase in the number of Americans who consider the Bible merely the teachings of men rather than the word of God.

The fourth annual State of the Bible survey was conducted just over two months ago by the Barna Group for the American Bible Society.

It found that while about one in five Americans continue to read the Bible at least four times a week and view it as divinely inspired, an equal percentage doubt the Bible's relevance and authority. That's almost twice the percentage of those who were skeptical of the Bible in 2011.

The survey found the greatest increase in indifference toward the Bible was among Americans between the ages of 18 and 29.

Spokesman Geof Morin (jeff MOHR'-in) says the American Bible Society hopes to reach more of that generation through their cell phones with daily verses and Bible studies.

Society President Roy Peterson says he hopes more Americans will turn to the Bible to "make sense of life" and reverse what many see as the nation's "moral decline."

Sharing Christ in South Asia Means Sacrifice

Following Christ can be deadly in South Asia. According to Open Doors USA, "Pastors are frequently beaten up or killed, church buildings destroyed, and converts forced to flee their homes." However, people in this region desperately need to hear the Gospel. One country in South Asia holds the most unreached people groups in the entire world.

A Scriptures In Use worker from South Asia says despite the danger, he and others are risking it all to share the Good News. As a result, "The Gospel is penetrating regions where there has been no Gospel witness before, bringing tremendous hostility to people who are working [there], tremendous persecution for new believers."

"We are living in a very difficult time of great persecution, great hostility to the Gospel, and a great challenge to the Church."

Satanic Temple launches campaign to 'protect' children and permit them to pray to Satan

Satanists want in on the right to pray in school - as long as they can pray to the devil.

The Satanic Temple states that they are fighting for the rights of public school students to learn in a cruelty-free classroom.

In a press release, the NYC organisation declares May 15 as "Protect Children Day," and describes a goal of ending physical and mental abuse in public schools.

After students register on Satanic Temple's ProtectChildrenProject.com, "the Temple will then notify their respective school boards that their deeply held beliefs oppose physical and psychological abuses, including the use of corporal punishment, physical restraints, and isolation rooms as forms of punishment," a press release states.

The Protect Children Project's website encourages children to submit their name, email address, and the name of their school in order to receive help from the Temple. The organization maintains that submission does not make one a Temple member, and is open to all denominations.

"One of the fundamental tenets of The Satanic Temple is personal sovereignty and the inviolability of one's body and mind," Temple spokesperson Lucien Greaves said. "Hitting a child or placing them in solitary confinement goes entirely against our beliefs."

According to an Education Week article, there are no federal laws regarding corporal punishment, and the practice is legal in 19 states. The article and The Satanic Temple's press release both cite a U.S. Department of Education statistic stating that in one year, over 200,000 students were physically punished in school.

ProtectChildrenProject.com provides fact sheets on physical and psychological abuse in schools, an FAQ for students, and a Satanic activity book.

"We want children to know that they are permitted to pray to Satan in school and that they can even share their religious beliefs with others in accordance with certain guidelines," Greaves said.

ROME, April 10 (Reuters) - An Italian court has ordered a town to recognise the marriage of a gay couple who were wed in the United States, a move that advocates of gay marriage, which is not allowed in Italy, hailed as a first step toward legality.

The court in the Tuscan city of Grosseto, in a decision announced late on Wednesday, said the town hall had to transcribe the marriage into its records, giving the two men the same rights as a heterosexual married couple.

"This is a unique precedent for our country," said Sergio Lo Giudice, a senator and past president of Italy's leading gay rights group Arcigay. "It is the first time that a gay marriage has been recognised in Italy."

Russian lawmaker proposes constitutional amendment banning gay 'marriage'

MOSCOW, RUSSIA, April 8, 2014, (LifeSiteNews.com) – The leader of one of Russia's political parties has introduced an initiative to modify the country's constitution to define marriage as being between one man and one woman.

Igor Zotov, the sponsor of the measure, is the head of the Russian Pensioner's Party, in addition to being a Lower House MP. His proposal would change Article 38 of Russia's constitution, inserting the line "Motherhood and childhood, family and marriage as a voluntary union between a man and a woman are under the protection of the state." Currently, the constitution mentions the "family," but without defining it.

Zotov said that recent influence from the West and the growing prevalence of same-sex "marriage" necessitates the constitutional amendment.

The proposed change to the constitution has yet to acquire the 90 signatures necessary for it to be introduced for official hearing, though Zotov says he has received support from some Duma deputies.

Zotov told the popular Russian newspaper, Izvestia, that he "got this idea from the members of the Pensioners' Party branches in Chelyabinsk and Sverdlovsk."

"These people," Zotov continued, "were extremely concerned over the processes that are currently taking place all over the world, in particular by the fact that the laws allowing gay marriage have been passed in 15 different countries and four regions within larger nations."

Despite antagonism from homosexual rights groups, the majority of Russians oppose same-sex "marriage."

MP Vladimir Bessonov of the Communist Party stated that the government has the duty to listen to the voice of the majority and act accordingly.

The proposal would change Article 38 of Russia's constitution, inserting the line "Motherhood and childhood, family and marriage as a voluntary union between a man and a woman are under the protection of the state."

Sex With Robots: Sodom and Gomorrah Never Dreamed of This Immorality

11:00AM EDT 4/11/2014

Jennifer LeClaire

Yes, humans are having sex with robots. (Reuters/Wolfgang Rattay)

If the sexual equality wars trouble you—if you're concerned about little boys using the little girls' restrooms in elementary school or the bigger boys using the bigger girls' showers in high school or even Facebook's confusing 51 new gender options—there's yet another disturbing futuristic reality to consider.

Tauriq Moosa penned an article for United Kingdom paper The Guardian that takes all human limits off sexual identity—and even suggests sexual intercourse with nonhumans. No, I'm not talking about bestiality, another extremely disturbing trend in the immorality scene. I'm talking about sex with robots.

The article, "Robots and Sex: Creepy or Cool?" suggests that "sex with robots may currently be restricted to fiction, but with advances in technology this could eventually change. Despite how some may react, this is something that should be accepted, maybe even embraced."

Wait, what? It's about 10 days too late to be an April Fool's joke, though the notion is pure folly. Moosa suggests that books, music and other forms of media have gone digital. People work virtually and form relationships online. Refrigerators remind us to order groceries online. Considering all this, he sees no "massive leap" to sex with robots.

Children in Iraq could be legally married before the age of nine under sweeping legislation tabled on Tuesday that introduces new religious restrictions on women's rights.

As almost its last act before elections at the end of the month, the Iraqi parliament looks likely to pass new marital rules for its majority Shia community with a draft law criticised by human rights activists as "legalised inequality"

The legislation has been approved by the governing coalition in an effort to attract support from Shia Muslims in the April 30 vote.

America's next generation of youngsters should be called "Generation Rex."

If you're wondering why playgrounds around the city are so quiet and dog runs are packed, a new report has an answer: More and more US women are forgoing motherhood and getting their maternal kicks by owning handbag-size canines.

Data from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention show that a big drop in the number of babies born to women ages 15 to 29 corresponds with a huge increase in the Food Stamp Recipients Outnumber Women Who Work Full-Time.

People participating in the food stamp program outnumbered the women who worked full-time, year-round in the United States in 2012, according to data from the Department of Agriculture and the Census Bureau. In the average month of 2012, according to the Department of Agriculture, there were 46,609,000 people participating in the food stamp program (formally known as the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program). That contrasts with the 44,059,000 women who worked full-time, year-round in 2012, according to the Census Bureau's report on Income, Poverty and Health Insurance Coverage in the United States. For each woman who worked full-time, year-round in 2012, there was slightly more than 1 other person collecting food stamps.

NEW YORK – Borrowing money from stock brokers to buy stocks has now hit an all-time high, triggering fears of a downward market adjustment and a collapse of the brokerage-made loan market investors typically use to fuel continued bull market growth.

Data published by the New York Stock Exchange at the end of March shows margin debt – the loans made by stock brokers to permit investor clients to buy stocks on credit – has reached a record high of $466 billion, approaching for the first time a half-trillion dollars.

Analysis of NYSE margin debt shows previous peaks have foreshadowed severe market corrections.

NEW YORK – The stock market dive Friday that brought the Dow Jones Industrial Average to near 16,000 and the Nasdaq to below 4,000 might reflect an accelerated move by Russia away from the petrodollar in retaliation for the Obama administration's threatened economic sanctions over Russia's takeover of Crimea.

Russia's politically motivated attack on the petrodollar could trigger a major U.S. stock market collapse amid a global loss of confidence in the dollar caused by the Federal Reserve's continuing policy of buying billions of dollars monthly in U.S. Treasury debt.

The Fed hopes to stimulate the economy by artificially keeping already depressed interest rates at zero.

With the Fed having limited options to address a panic caused by a bear market that could continue into next week, the risk of heavy selling of the U.S. dollar in international markets could raise prices in the increasingly import-dependent U.S. economy.

Hyperinflation could result, pushing the struggling economic recovery into a renewed economic recession.

On Friday, the third straight day of stock market losses, the Nasdaq plunged 54.37 points, or 1.3 percent, to 3,999.73. The Dow dropped 143.47 points, or 0.9 percent to 16,026.75, and the Standard & Poor's 500 index fell 17.39 points, or 1 percent, to 1,815.69.

U.S.A. Today reported Friday that after the market selloff last week, investors remain jittery as the Nasdaq has dropped 3.1 percent, its worst plunge since November 2011, the S&P 500 has fallen 4 percent from its record high close of April 2 and is 1.8 percent lower for the year, while the Dow has retreated 3.3 percent from its Dec. 31 record close of 16,576.66.

Economist Peter Koenig, a former staff member of the World Bank, warned last week Russia is in the process of abandoning the "petro-dollar" as the trading unit for oil and gas transactions, with Russian hydrocarbon trade estimated at approximately a trillion dollars per year.

"The main supporters of this plan are Sergey Glaziev, the economic aide of the Russian president and Igor Sechin, the CEO of Rosneft, the biggest Russian oil company and a close ally of Vladimir Putin," noted Voice of Russia radio April 4. "Both have been very vocal in their quest to replace the dollar with the Russian ruble. Now, several top Russian officials are pushing the plan forward."

THESE 16 MAJOR RETAIL CHAINS CLOSING STORES ACROSS AMERICA

Posted on April 6, 2014 by PatriotsBillboard

Elections Have Consequences

Daniel Jennings for Wealthy Debates, that despite all the talk from the Obama administration and the MSM about a "recovering" economy, a retail tsunami shows the U.S. economy to be in trouble.

Recent news stories show that American retail is in dire straits. Here are 16 big retail companies that have closed or will close stores soon:

1. Office supply company Staples has announced plans to close 225 stores by 2015, which is about 15% of its chain. Staples already closed 40 stores last year.
2. Office Depot, Staples' main competitor which bought Office Max last year, isn't in good shape either. Industry analysts expect Office Depot to announce its own round of store closings soon.
3. Radio Shack has announced plans to close 20% of its stores or as many as 1,100 stores this year. The company, which operates around 4,000 stores, reported that its sales fell by 19% last year.
4. Albertsons supermarket closed 26 stores in January and February this year. Analysts expect many more Albertsons to be closed down because Albertsons' owner hedge fund Cerberus Capital Management just bought Safeway Inc. Some Safeway stores could soon shut down as well.
5. Clothing retailer Abercrombie & Fitch is planning to close 220 stores by the end of 2015. The company is also planning to shut down the Gilly Hicks chain, which has 20 stores.
6. Barnes & Nobles is planning to shut down one third of its stores or about 218 stores in the next year. The chain has already closed its iconic flagship store in New York City.

7. J.C. Penney is closing about 33 stores and laying off about 2,000 employees.
 8. Toys R Us has plans to close 100 stores.
 9. The Sweetbay Supermarket chain will close all 17 of the stores it operates in the Tampa Bay area. Many of the stores might open as Winn-Dixie Stores. Sweetbay closed 33 stores in Florida last year.
 10. The entire Loehmann's chain of discount clothing stores in the New York City area shut down. Loehmann's once operated 39 stores and was considered an institution by generations of New Yorkers.
 11. Sears Holdings, which owns both Sears and Kmart, is expected to close another 500 stores this year. Sears has already shut down its flagship store in Chicago.
 12. Quiznos has filed for bankruptcy and could close many of its 2,100 stores.
 13. Sbarro, which operates pizza and Italian restaurants in malls, is planning to close 155 locations (or 20% of its restaurants) in North America (U.S. and Canada). The chain operates around 800 outlets.
 14. Ruby Tuesday announced plans to close 30 restaurants in January after its sales fell by 7.8%. The chain currently operates around 775 steakhouses across the US.
 15. An unknown number of Red Lobster stores will be sold. The chain is in such bad shape that the parent company, Darden Restaurants Inc., had to issue a press release stating that the chain would not close. Instead Darden is planning to spin Red Lobster off into another company and sell some of its stores.
 16. Ralph's, a subsidiary of Kroger, has announced plans to close 15 supermarkets in Southern California within 60 days.
 17. Safeway closed 72 Dominick's grocery stores in the Chicago area last year.
- All those store closures mean more Americans will be unemployed, which translates into less tax revenue and more dependency on government welfare.

CEO Of Liechtenstein Bank Frick Murdered In Broad Daylight

April 8, 2014

Over the weekend the world was gripped by the drama surrounding the mysterious murder-homicide of the former CEO of Dutch bank ABN Amro and members of his family, and whether there is more foul play than meets the eye. However, that is nothing compared to what just happened in the tiny, and all too quiet Principality of Lichtenstein, where moments ago the CEO of local financial institution Bank Frick & Co. AG, Juergen Frick, was shot dead in the underground garage of the bank located in the city of Balzers.

Based on preliminary reports, the murder is the result of a disgruntled fund manager, Juergen Hermann, who had previously been embroiled in a "bitter dispute" with the government and the bank. Bloomberg has more:

A 48-year-old man was shot dead in the underground garage of a financial institution in Balzers at 7:30 a.m. local time, the principality's police said on its website. The suspect, Juergen Hermann, fled the scene in a Smart car with Liechtenstein number plates, according to police. Neither the victim nor the institution were identified in the statement.

The deceased was Juergen Frick, CEO of Bank Frick & Co. AG, Switzerland's Radio 1 said in an e-mailed statement, citing employees of the bank. Calls to Bank Frick were answered by a voice-mail message saying the company is closed because of "a death." It gave no further details.

U.S. warns China over currency depreciation

REUTERS April 7, 2014 5:52 PM

WASHINGTON (Reuters) - The United States warned Beijing on Monday that the recent depreciation of the Chinese currency could raise "serious concerns" if it signaled a policy shift away from allowing market-determined exchange rates.

Washington has been pressing China for years to allow its currency to trade at stronger values. A weak yuan makes Chinese exports cheaper for U.S. consumers at the expense of U.S. producers. A weaker yuan also makes Chinese consumers less able to buy foreign goods.

Nothing is going right for Hangzhou at this moment. Walmart will be closing its Zhaohui store in that city on April 23 as a part of its overall plan to dump marginal locations—about 9% of the total—in China.

Thanks to the world's largest retailer, another large block of space in Hangzhou, the capital of Zhejiang province, will go on the market at a time when there is generally too much supply. The problem is especially pronounced in the city's premium office market. The real weakness, however, is Hangzhou's residential sector. The cause is simple: massive overbuilding. Sara Hsu of the State University of New York at New Paltz writes that Hangzhou faces "burgeoning swaths of empty apartment units."

China could be holding even more gold than previously realised, according to Alasdair Macleod, a researcher at online precious metals trader, GoldMoney.

Official figures from China Gold Association (CGA) show that the Asian superpower consumed 1,176 tonnes of gold in 2013, 41pc higher than in 2012.

However, about 500 tonnes of gold from Chinese mines and scrap is unaccounted for by the CGA.

Credere, a Catholic weekly, reports that the Vatican has decided to employ a hawk to protect the Pope's doves, after two doves were killed by a crow and seagull on January 26th.

The doves were promptly killed by the birds when two children released them from a window above St. Peter's Square.

At various times of the year, the doves are set free to fly as visual icons of peace.

"Sylvia," the Harris Hawk that was trained in northern Italy, will reportedly be used by the Swiss Guards. The bird's four-foot wingspan is expected to frighten possible predators threatening the doves.

It is not uncommon in Italy for birds of prey to be used to deal with the threat of pigeons, whether at airports, football stadiums, or the Colosseum to guard against pigeon droppings.

Some train journeys feel like they take forever - especially when there are numerous transfers and waits in between flights and trains. But what if you could board a train in Madras, India and travel to Boston with no changes?

One man has imagined the world as a giant London Underground map where people can travel freely between countries and traverse vast bodies of water from the comfort of their seat while vehicles speed through vast tunnels.

While his dream is currently 'impossible', engineers are constantly trying to develop new ways to connect countries.

LONDON — In a north London hospital, scientists are growing noses, ears and blood vessels in the laboratory in a bold attempt to make body parts using stem cells.

It is among several labs around the world, including in the US, that are working on the futuristic idea of growing custom-made organs in the lab.

While only a handful of patients have received the British lab-made organs so far — including tear ducts, blood vessels and windpipes — researchers hope they will soon be able to transplant more types of body parts into patients, including what would be the world's first nose made partly from stem cells.
