اكرر اننا لا نحدد مواعيد بل فقط نشجع بعضنا بعضا بقرب مجيء المسيح

وأيضاً أوضح أنه يوجد نبوات لم نراها بعد حدثت مثل ابن الهلاك وحرب هرمجدون وظهور

الشاهدين وحزقيال 38 وغيره ولا نعرف متى ولكن أشعر انها اقتربت.

ولكن ايضا علامات كثيرة من التي قال عنها الكتاب انها في الزمان الاخير وفي الجيل الأخير

بدأت تحدث بوضوح ويجب أن ننتبه اليها. فلا نعرف هل المسيح سيأتي في سنة ام سبع سنين ام

سبعين سنة أم أكثر فكرر لا احدد مواعيد وارفض من يحددون ولكن نذكر بعضنا باننا نحتاج ان

نستعد. والاستعداد ليس فقط قبل مجيء المسيح بل ايضا قبل الظلمة التي ستسبق مجيؤه ليكون

عندنا زيت في مصابيحنا يكفي ان نعبر هذه الظلمة وتكون مصابيحنا مضيئة وقت مجيؤه. بمعنى

نحتاج من الان ان نستعد بقوة بأيمان عامل وبتنقية القلب وان نشمر بالخدمة أي نجمع زيت في

مصايحنا لان الظلمة والضيقة اقتربت جدا ومن لن يستعد لها بزيت كافي من الان لن يجد زيت في الضيقة لان وقتها تجميع زيت سيكون صعب جدا بل أستطيع ان أقول من مثل العذاري انه لن يكون هناك زيت الا ما جمعه سابقا. فأكرر لا نحدد المواعيد ولكن أفضل ان اقول لنفسي ولكم استعدوا الان لأنه اقترب فنكون مستعدين سواء جاء او نحن ان سلمنا وديعتنا عن أنى لا اقول انه اقترب لكيلا يقال عني كاذب وانشر اشاعات ولكنه يأتي بسرعة بغته. لا اعتقد اي احد ندم لانه كان مستعد ومنتظر مجيء المسيح ولم ياتي المسيح في زمنه ولكنه انتقل وهو مستعد ولكن كثيرين جدا ندموا على عدم الاستعداد عندما انتقلوا

فيجب علينا ان نذكر الكل بالاستعداد والتوبة من الان حتى لو كان سيتأخر فقد نسلم وديعتنا في اي وقت

بعض الاحداث التي قال عنها الرب يسوع

انجيل لوقا 21

21: 25 وتكون علامات في الشمس والقمر والنجوم وعلى الارض كرب امم بحيرة البحر والامواج

سفر اعمال الرسل 2

2: 20 تتحول الشمس الى ظلمة والقمر الى دم قبل ان يجيء يوم الرب العظيم الشهير

2: 21 ويكون كل من يدعو باسم الرب يخلص

لماذا قال المسيح بعض العلامات؟

إنجيل يوحنا 14: 29

وَقُلْتُ لَكُمْ الْآنَ قَبْلَ أَنْ يَكُونَ، حَتَّى مَتَى كَانَ تُؤْمِنُونَ.

A new major meteor shower in late May 2014?

Meteor, by Ed Grzyb

On the night of May 23-24, 2014 – if predictions hold true – Earth might be sandblasted with debris from Comet 209P/LINEAR, resulting in a fine new meteor shower!

The Eta Aquarid meteor shower in early May has passed, and, by all reports, it was a slow year for these meteors. But don't worry. In 2014, an exciting new meteor shower – the May Camelopardalids – might come on the scene. And it's coming up soon! It's predicted for the night of May 23-24. This possible shower stems from Comet 209P/LINEAR, discovered in 2004. If the predictions hold true, Earth might be sandblasted with debris from this comet, resulting in a fine display of meteors, or shooting stars on the evening of May 23, and the morning of May 24. Mid-northern North American latitudes are favored. Follow the links below to learn more about the possible 2014 meteor shower of Comet 209P/LINEAR.

Yellowstone eruption: Report claims that US has contingency deal with Brazil, Australia to move millions of Americans

Posted on May 8, 2014

May 2014 – WYOMING - If the Yellowstone supervolcano erupts then millions of U.S. citizens could end up in Brazil, Australia, or Argentina. That's according to the South African news website Praag, which said that the African National Congress was offered $10 billion a year for 10 years if it would build temporary housing for Americans in case of an eruption. The potential eruption of the supervolcano, one of the biggest in the world, has been a hot topic ever since videos of animals allegedly fleeing the area before an earthquake were posted online. Although the veracity of the claims haven't been backed up, dozens of bloggers and others have been trying to figure out what, if anything, is going on. One of the latest theories is that the U.S. Geological Service and its partners, which keep an eye on the caldera, are hiding data from the public. The Praag article says that the South African government fears that placing so many Americans in South Africa could dramatically change the country.

"South Africa will not be part of the plan, because there is a risk that millions of white Americans could be sent to South Africa in an emergency situation and that this would pose a risk to black national culture identity," Dr. Siph Matwetwe, spokesman for the Department of Foreign Affairs, is quoted as saying. Any number of dash-cam videos will attest that driving in Russia can be quite an adventure. But what to do when the road just opens up underneath you?

Drive around it, obviously.

Motorists in the city of Tyumen, Siberia -- about 1,600 miles east of Moscow -- begin steering around quickly widening cracks in the pavement in this video, posted to YouTube May 8. Its description seems to indicate that the video was shot during the morning commute.

Jalopnik isolated the most interesting part of the video, when the road finally gives out and collapses into a sinkhole that's easily big enough to swallow a car.

Misterio por aparición de gran cantidad de peces muertos

La aparición se dio el último fin de semana en la zona de Punta Verde.

San Antonio Oeste. Una enorme cantidad de peces muertos apareció durante el último fin de semana en la zona de Punta Verde, un balneario ubicado en el acceso a la ría de esta localidad.

Los ejemplares, todos de la especie jurel -también conocida como caballa o magrú-, se encontraron de a cientos en un sector de la playa, lo que provocó una imagen de total desolación que alarmó a los vecinos que suelen visitar el lugar.

Integrantes del Instituto de Biología Marina y Pesquera Almirante Storni concurren al sitio, alertados por testigos del hallazgo, que generó un mayúsculo misterio y distintas hipótesis sobre el motivo de la muerte de los peces y su presencia allí.

Una docente relató que observó al cardumen cuando estaba cerca de la orilla, donde los individuos eran picoteados por una numerosa bandada de gaviotas.

Las primeras suposiciones arriesgaban que la mortandad era consecuencia de un desastre ambiental. Pero casi de inmediato tal posibilidad fue descartada, ya que no había evidencias para sostenerla.

Alarma en Roatán por muerte de peces

10:15PM - Redacción: Diana Mejía. Redacción La Prensa diana.mejia@laprensa.hn
Grupos marinos y ecológicos de la isla esperan que sea un ciclo natural de las especies

Roatán. En las costas de West End y West Bay fueron encontrados muertos el fin de semana miles de peces globo y ojos saltones. Esto mantiene preocupados a los isleños, que no hallan explicación para el extraño suceso.

René Betancourt, jefe de la Dirección General de Pesca y Acuicultura (Digepesca) en Roatán, manifestó que el motivo de las muertes repentinas de los pescados aún es un misterio.

Aunque manejan muchas hipótesis, el encargado dijo que han considerado el hecho como algo natural. "Podría ser el ciclo de vida de los organismos que quizá ocasionó los decesos", dijo. El dato particular del suceso es que la muerte de los peces se reportó en zonas donde no es permitido pescar. Betancourt aseveró que los peces son pequeños y generalmente difíciles de encontrar o capturar.

Otra conjetura provino de un grupo de buzos que le habrían expresado que la causa fue una marea roja producida por los cambios en las fases de la Luna.

Tim Liefeld, biólogo marino, indicó que las mareas rojas son una causa común de muerte de peces en masa. "Las floraciones ocasionan que los peces busquen la orilla para acumularse en las playas o en pequeñas calas tranquilas cerca de los hogares residenciales", dijo.

Indicó que estos peces presentan un peligro para la salud, ya que se pudren y su consumo podría resultar tóxico para aves como pelícanos, gaviotas, cormoranes, mamíferos marinos y, por supuesto, personas. "Se recomienda no llevárselos a la casa".

LID has hauled off 12 tons of dead fish from area lakes

The Lake Improvement District has hauled away almost 13 tons of dead fish so far-- collected off area lakes, especially from North Center Lake-- where a large fish die off was observed this winter in the lake. The LID provided two roll-offs for fish disposal, one at Hillcrest RV Park and one at the public landing near Chisago Lakes Middle School. The fish disposal service continues this weekend only.

Purdue: Bees Dying by the Thousands

By Jon Swaner

Published: Thursday, May 8, 2014, 6:55 pm

VIGO COUNTY, Ind. (WTHI) – A silent killer is wiping out our area's honey bee population, and beekeepers hope something is done soon before it's too late.

Perry and Beverly Riley have been beekeepers for 9 years. Since last summer, Perry has lost about 80-percent of his bees. He says last year's drought hurt, and then this past winter did in a number more.

"They're already weak, and that just put the hammer to them," said Perry.

As if bad weather weren't enough, beekeepers like the Riley's will tell you there's an even more dangerous bee killer out there: pesticides farmers use in their fields.

"They don't kill them all at once. It's a slow kill. They'll go in in the winter, and by spring they're dead," said Perry.

Purdue University says bees are dying by the thousands. A dry spring means the pesticides can be wind blown onto plants like dandelions. When bees come to pollinate, they're in essence covered in poison, which they take back to their hives.

Lethal water pollution leaves thousands of fish dead

10 May, Rangpo : The incident of water contamination is not a new thing in the state of Sikkim bearing several major industries which are also lying close to river or spring water.

In the latest report which has left public and authority in confusion, the drinking water source which is a small spring water running at Khani Khola under Rangpo jurisdiction was witnessed with thousands of fishes dead and scattered. The probable reason of contamination is suspected by the intellectuals and public of the area, who blames Madhya Bharat Hydel project spilling of arsenic or byproducts. Now, the public has asked the authority to check the reason behind contamination of water and most dreadful which would be for civilians since the water is used for drinking purpose.

Northwest Pa. beekeepers devastated by long, cold winter

May 11, 2014 12:00 AM

By Gerry Weiss / Erie Times-News

EDINBORO, Pa. -- The beekeepers who gathered recently inside the social hall of Our Lady of the Lake Church in Edinboro shared a common story.

One by one, the 65 beekeepers talked about the harsh toll the frigid winter took on their bee colonies, and how a late start to spring has delayed the blooming of dandelions -- depriving bees of one of their first sources of nectar and starving them to death.

The consensus at the meeting of the Northwestern Pennsylvania Beekeepers Association was about 50 percent of everyone's honeybees died during the colder-than-usual winter. Normally, the winter die-off would be about 20 percent.

"I've never seen a winter like this one in regards to bee losses," said Charlie Vorisek, president of the Pennsylvania State Beekeepers Association. He told the group that he lost 67 of his 135 hives -- resulting in the death of 530,000 honeybees.

The above-average bee die-off means locally produced honey is scarce and more expensive. Mr. Vorisek, for instance, has raised prices about 50 cents a pound.

‘Melting’ Sea Star Epidemic Reaches Oregon Coast

First known sighting in Oregon “baffles” scientists

Mikael Thalen

Infowars.com

May 7, 2014

Scientists announced the discovery of “melting” sea stars off the coast of Oregon this week, the state’s first known sighting of the mysterious condition that began appearing throughout West Coast waters last year.

According to Jim Burke, Oregon Coast Aquarium’s director of animal husbandry and dive operations, several species of sea star in Yaquina Bay were recently found in the advanced wasting stage.

“One could speculate that it’s just beginning and will continue to be detrimental to the sea star population,” Burke told the Statesman Journal.

Oregon now joins California, Washington state and Western Canada, where disintegrating sea stars continue to baffle scientists.

Others such as Kristen Milligan, program coordinator for the Partnership for Interdisciplinary Studies of Coastal Oceans, noted the severity of the situation as well.

“The current outbreak along the West Coast is ‘true’ wasting disease, meaning that sea stars have these extreme symptoms while in suitable ‘healthy’ habitat,” Milligan said.

Oregon Coast Aquarium divers will be joined by experts at the University of California at Santa Cruz to begin weekly surveys of two effected dive sites. Although samples from other states have been sent to several labs for analysis, a conclusive cause has yet to be determined according to researchers.

Last November, Infowars spoke with veteran videographer and underwater explorer Laura James, who discovered more than 100 melting sea stars in the waters of West Seattle.

“We don’t know what is causing it,” James said. “The sea stars that are dying are apex predators of the seafloor and a keystone species. What will be interesting is what will happen to the biodiversity now in the aftermath.”

Fish rain down on Sri Lanka village

Many of the fish that rained down were still alive when villagers collected them

Villagers in west Sri Lanka have said they have been surprised and delighted by an unusual rainfall of small fish.

The edible fish fell during a storm and are believed to have been lifted out of a river during a strong wind.

Villagers in the district of Chilaw said they heard something heavy falling and found scores of fish with a total weight of 50kg (110lbs).

It is not the first such incident in Sri Lanka - in 2012, a case of "prawn rain" was recorded in the south.

World is unprepared for major El Niño later this year

07 May 2014 by Michael Slezak
Magazine issue 2988. Subscribe and save
For similar stories, visit the Climate Change Topic Guide

Wild weather is coming in 2014, with floods, storms and droughts expected around the Pacific, but little is being done to protect the people on the front line

THE weather is preparing to go wild, and will wreak havoc and death around the globe later this year. An El Niño, a surge of warm water in the Pacific Ocean, is coming. It will unleash floods in the Americas, while South-East Asia and Australia face drought. Yet little is being done to address these consequences.

"The tropical climate system is primed for a big El Niño," says Axel Timmermann of the University of Hawaii in Honolulu (see diagram).

An El Niño begins when warm water near Indonesia spreads eastwards and rises to the surface of the Pacific. The warm water carries rain with it, so El Niño takes rain from Asia and Australia and dumps it on the Americas (see "Rising waters").

The effects can be deadly. A big El Niño in 1997-98 killed 20,000 people and caused almost $97 billion of damage.

Meteorologists contacted by New Scientist all expect an El Niño at the end of this year. And it looks like a big one, says Wenju Cai of CSIRO, Australia's national research agency, in Melbourne. The more heat in the Pacific, the bigger the El Niño, and right now, 150 metres below the surface, a ball of warm water is crossing that ocean. "It's huge," says Cai.

Now a 'Pollen Vortex'? Wild Weather May Mean Allergy Nightmare

BY HAYLEY GOLDBACH

If the constant cold weren't enough, a brutal winter has many speculating that the polar vortex will be replaced by a "pollen vortex," leaving allergy sufferers sniffing and miserable.

Alesia Kotek is ready for the worst. She and her 13-year-old daughter Caitlin share allergies to grass and trees — and Caitlin started getting itchy, watery eyes this spring while snow was still on the ground outside their Cleveland, Ohio, home. "I'm very nervous about this year with our allergies," Alesia Kotek said.

The long, cold, winter felt by much of the U.S. may indeed have an effect on this year's spring allergy season. But is this shaping up to be the worst allergy season on record?

That depends on what you mean by worst. Experts say that for much of the country, winter's extended cold could lead to a shorter, but more intense allergy season.

Mid-May storm buries Colorado flower beds under 3 feet of snow

(Reuters) - A mid-May snowstorm dumped as much as 3 feet (91 cm) of snow on Colorado's Rocky Mountains on Monday while the U.S. Midwest braced for hail and other severe weather, forecasters said.

Snowplows cleared the way for the Monday morning rush hour after the storm, which is expected to taper off by midday, blanketed Denver with more than 4 inches (10 cm) and the mountains northeast of Steamboat Springs with 36 inches (91 cm) of snow, said Jim Kalina, a meteorologist with the National Weather Service in Boulder, Colorado.

No significant delays or cancellations were reported at Denver International Airport, and no records were broken in a state used to late spring snowstorms like the one that dumped 10.7 inches of snow on May 26, 1950.

"That's Colorado for you," said Kalina.

Snow has been falling and accumulating over the past four days in Colorado, said Pat Slattery, weather service spokesman. Deep snow measuring 27 inches (68 cm) also was reported in the Uinta Mountains in northeastern Utah, said NWS

Lavrov Urges Kiev to Cease Military Force Against Civilians

VIENNA, May 6 (RIA Novosti) – The Ukrainian authorities must rescind their order to use the army and national guard against civilians in the country's southeast in order to de-escalate the crisis in the country, Russian Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov said Tuesday.

“In regard to the de-escalation, I have already said, that the first and obvious step must be changing the order to use the army and National Guard to quash protests. I quoted to you the statement of the NATO defense ministers, who in February of this year demanded that the army not be used in the political process and demanded that the army observed neutrality. That's the way it was when the legitimate current president was Viktor Yanukovich,” Lavrov said.

Meanwhile, Western officials including in the EU are making statements that Kiev “has every right to use the army for carrying out the so-called counterterrorism operation and that all this is justified because a state has monopoly on the use of force,” Lavrov said.

These two statements are completely opposed, he said.

President Vladimir Putin said on Wednesday that Moscow had pulled back its forces from the Ukrainian border amid Western fears of an imminent military invasion of Russia's crisis-hit Western neighbour.

"We were told constantly about concerns over our troops near the Ukrainian border. We have pulled them back. Today they are not at the Ukrainian border but in places of regular exercises, at training grounds," he said after meeting with Swiss president and current OSCE chief Didier

Russian Aggression Prompts Finnish-Swedish Military Pact

By Kasper Viita | May 7, 2014 7:24 AM MT - Comments Email Print

Finland and Sweden are looking into pooling their defense resources as the crisis in Ukraine shifts the Nordic states' military-policy focus to protecting their home turf from participating in international peacekeeping.

The countries yesterday agreed to conduct a study by October to find ways to ensure that money spent on arms will stretch a longer way. Cooperation will begin next year with a focus on 2016 and beyond, according to Finnish Defense Minister Carl Haglund and his Swedish counterpart Karin Enstroem.

Finland and Sweden aren't members of the North Atlantic Treaty Alliance, though they joined the European Union in 1995. Finland shares a 1,340-kilometer (830-mile) border with Russia -- more than the other 27 EU members combined -- and fought two wars against the Soviet Union during World War II. Popular opposition has stopped the two countries from joining NATO.

"We have a neighbor who has demonstrated a couple of times in the past six years that military power and the threat of using it are simply instruments in the political toolbox," Charly Salenius-Pasternak, security policy researcher at the Finnish Institute of International Affairs, said by phone yesterday. "For a small nation, this is a terrifying idea."

Strategic Blow

Popular opposition to joining NATO has centered on the belief that Russia is becoming slowly more democratic and that economic ties will keep conflicts from escalating, Salenius-Pasternak said. That argument has now "received a strategic blow."

According to NATO, Russia has amassed about 40,000 troops along the Ukrainian border since annexing Crimea in March, prompting the worst standoff with the U.S. and the EU since the Cold War.

"The 15,000-strong grouping of Ukrainian forces has been deployed in the border areas. Military conscription has resumed [in Ukraine]," Russian Deputy Defense Minister Anatoly Antonov said in a statement on Thursday. "At the same time NATO amasses its grouping of forces in Eastern Europe," he stressed, adding that such actions are not contributing to the efforts to de-escalate tensions in Ukraine.

Antonov said Russia has pulled all its forces from its borders with its crisis-torn neighbor. He echoed President Vladimir Putin's statement on Wednesday, when the Russian President assured OSCE Chairperson-in-Office and Swiss President Didier Burkhalter that Russian troops were relocated to ranges where they conduct regular drills.

However, NATO Secretary General Anders Fogh Rasmussen insisted on Thursday that there is no sign that Russian troops have actually been withdrawn from the Ukrainian border.

Japan, worried about China, strengthens ties with NATO

BRUSSELS (Reuters) - Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe, concerned about China's rising military spending and disputes with Beijing over islands in the East China Sea, signed a new partnership agreement with NATO on Tuesday.

The accord, signed by Abe and NATO Secretary General Anders Fogh Rasmussen during Abe's visit to NATO's Brussels headquarters, will deepen Japan's cooperation with the Western military alliance in areas such as counter-piracy, disaster relief and humanitarian assistance.

After addressing ambassadors from the 28 NATO nations, Abe drew a parallel between the situation in Ukraine, where Russia has occupied and annexed Crimea, and Asia, in an apparent allusion to a standoff between Beijing and Tokyo over tiny uninhabited islands in the East China Sea known as the Senkaku in Japan and the Diaoyu in China.

"We will not tolerate any change of status quo through intimidation or coercion or force. This is not only applicable to Europe or Ukraine. This is applicable to East Asia and it is applicable to the whole world," Abe said at a joint press conference with Rasmussen.

HANOI/BEIJING (Reuters) - Vietnam said on Wednesday a Chinese vessel intentionally rammed two of its ships in a part of the disputed South China Sea where Beijing has deployed a giant oil rig, sending tensions spiraling in the region.

The Foreign Ministry in Hanoi said the collisions took place on Sunday and caused considerable damage to the Vietnamese ships. Six people suffered minor injuries, it said.

US, Philippines hold joint drill to confront Chinese expansion

With China increasingly assertive concerning its territorial claims in the disputed South China Sea, the United States and the Philippines launched Exercise Balikatan 2014 on May 5, according to the GMA Network based in Manila. The exercise will continue until May 16.

Albert del Rosario, the Philippines' foreign minister, said on May 5 that Manila and Washington need to work together to confront a neighboring state with the ambition to change the status quo in the South China Sea, a reference to an unnamed China that no one will have missed. About 3,000 Philippine soldiers and 2,500 American troops are taking part in the drill.

Hua Chunying, spokesperson for the Chinese foreign ministry, rejected at a press conference on May 5 the claim that Beijing has ambitions to project its power into Southeast Asia. She told the state-run China News Service that China is keen to work with both the United States and the WASHINGTON — American and Israeli officials have been off script all year on a wide range of issues, caught in public disputes over the wisdom of peace talks with the Palestinians, the fate of Syria and even support for a besieged Ukraine. But perhaps none is more pressing — no single slight or quip against the other more consequential — than recent alarm bells from Jerusalem over the prospect of a nuclear deal between Iran and the rest of the world.

To the surprise of many, negotiations under way in Vienna are on pace: diplomats will begin drafting the final agreement next week, and all sides publicly express optimism that a deal can be forged by the self-imposed deadline of July 20.

Israel Worried Obama Will Cave to Iran Before Midterm Election

Official says Israel is concerned that Obama will sign a bad deal with Iran fearing Republican gains in midterm elections.

Israel is concerned that U.S. President Barack Obama will reach a bad nuclear deal with Iran ahead of the midterm elections in November, an Israeli official told Reuters on Wednesday.

"We would be happy to see July 20 pass without a deal," an Israeli government adviser told the news agency, referring to the deadline by which Iran and the West are aiming to reach a permanent deal on Iran's disputed nuclear program.

The official added that there was worry in Israel that Obama, facing possible gains by Republican rivals in the midterm elections, might be tempted to accommodate Iran now.

The official, who spoke as National Security Adviser Susan Rice visited Israel and met local leaders, said that Israel insists Iran be denied uranium enrichment capabilities under the potential deal.

"Are we going to agree on enrichment? No," the adviser told Reuters.

Under a six-month interim deal which was reached in November and went into effect in January, Iran agreed to freeze its uranium enrichment program in return for sanctions relief worth some \$6-7 billion, including the transfer of some $4.2 billion in frozen overseas funds.

That interim agreement is meant to lead to a final accord that minimizes any potential Iranian nuclear weapons threat in return for a full lifting of sanctions.

Israel has openly criticized the deal that was reached between Iran and Western powers in talks in Geneva, explaining that it allows Iran to continue its nuclear program while getting sanctions relief. That position has put Israel at odds with Washington, to the point that reports indicated that Obama had told Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyahu "not to be so vocal" with his criticism of the deal.

The Iranian and Chinese defense ministers held high-level talks Monday in a bid to expand the military relationship between Tehran and Beijing, according to reports in China and Iran's state-run media organs.

Iranian Defense Minister Hussein Dehghan met with his Chinese counterpart, Chang Wanquan, in Beijing on Monday to increase "cooperation between the two countries in military and defensive fields," according to Iran's state-run Fars News Agency.

Dehghan emphasized the mutual benefits of increased "military cooperation" between Beijing and Tehran in public comments and stated that the two militaries could work at "disarming the Zionist regime of its nuclear arsenals."

"A powerful China is a guarantee for international security and peace. A powerful Iran is a guarantee for peace, stability and durable security in the strategic region of the Persian Gulf and the Middle East," Dehghan said.

SEOUL, SOUTH KOREA — North Korea is making final preparations to conduct its fourth nuclear test, South Korea's defense minister said Thursday, but he added that it could be a bluff.

Defense Minister Kim Kwan-jin told South Korean journalists that North Korea is able to detonate a nuclear device at any moment, though he didn't elaborate on what the final step of its preparations would be, according to ministry officials.

Kim also said that although North Korea is ready to conduct a nuclear test, it may not intend to set off the device soon, and instead is trying to trick outside observers into believing a test is imminent, the officials said, requesting anonymity under department rules.

North Korea has threatened in recent weeks to conduct a nuclear test to protest what it calls U.S. and South Korean hostility and international condemnation over its rocket and missile tests earlier this year. South Korea has warned North Korea would face serious consequences if the test is made.

Pyongyang has called for the resumption of long-dormant international aid-for-disarmament talks, but Washington and Seoul say the North must first move toward disarmament. North Korea says it needs nuclear weapons as a deterrent against U.S. military threats.

Many North Korea watchers had suspected a nuclear test would occur when President Barack Obama visited Seoul last month, but nothing happened. Analysts remain divided over whether North Korea will go ahead with a test soon.

North Korea has developed advanced nuclear weapons that can be delivered with its ballistic missile forces, a startling fact that the White House has worked to downplay, according to a report from former Pentagon strategic analyst Mark Schneider.

The report, which was published in the journal Comparative Strategy, said that the nuclear warheads could be used to strike Hawaii, Alaska and parts of the West Coast.

The Defense Intelligence Agency confirmed in a separate assessment in 2013 that the "North [Korean government] currently has nuclear weapons capable of delivery by ballistic missiles," according to Schneider's 16-page report.

"This is disturbing news," Schneider wrote. "The North Korean regime is one of the most fanatic, paranoid, and militaristic dictatorships on the planet. ... While North Korea has long made occasional nuclear attack threats, the scope, magnitude, and frequency of these threats have PHOENIX (KSAZ) - There is a controversy over prayer at a high school graduation ceremony in the town of Pima.

Students have prayed at that school's graduation for decades, but this year it's been banned.

Students had already voted on the senior to lead them in the prayer, but yesterday school officials called it off.

The superintendent has been with the district for two years now and says he made this change when he found out it could set the school up for a lawsuit.

The school is located in the town of Pima near Safford Arizona. A few thousand people live there, and the high school graduating class is about 40 students, so it's not a very large school but it is at the center of a very big controversy.

When seniors gather on the football field to graduate from Pima High School on May 21st there will be caps, gowns, and speeches but one thing there won't be is a prayer.

Virginia proposal would limit size of gatherings at private homes

By Kenric Ward • Published May 05, 2014 • watchdog.org  27960  1546  317

A plan to ban "frequent and large gatherings at neighborhood homes" is a lawsuit waiting to happen, a Fairfax County supervisor predicts.

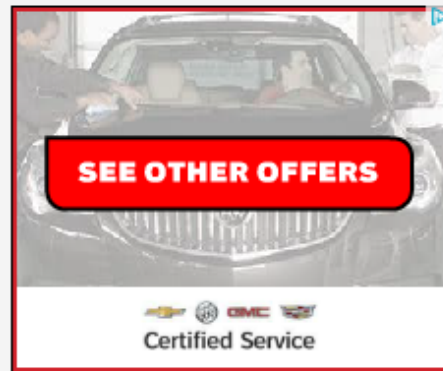

Officials will get an idea Wednesday when public-comment hearings begin in Virginia's most populous county.

"I believe the county is risking a lawsuit and/or a Constitution challenge by interfering with peoples' right to assemble," Supervisor Pat Herry said in a statement.

The proposed zoning ordinance limits "group assembly" at residences to 49 people a day. Such gatherings "shall not occur more frequently than three times in any 40-day period."

County officials say they have received complaints about group meetings at homes. But Herry said "they haven't even reached 1 percent of the thousands of complaints our Department of Code Compliance investigates a year."

"This is yet another instance where we appear to be punishing the many for the actions of the few," said Herry, who reported a total of six complaints were received last year.

- All options are on the table to gain release of abducted girls, official says
- The comments come after Boko Haram video claims to show some of the girls

(CNN) -- The girls sit quietly on the ground, dressed in traditional Islamic garb, barely moving, clearly scared.

"Praise be to Allah, the lord of the world," they chant.

The video, released by French news agency Agence France-Presse, purports to show about 100 of the 276 girls kidnapped by Boko Haram fighters nearly a month ago. It's the first time they've been seen since their abduction April 14.

It may seem absurd - or given the moral state of the nation, appropriate -- but the grounds committee for the Oklahoma State Capitol, the Preservation Commission, has been asked by The Satanic Temple, a group from New York, to place a privately funded statue of Satan, complete with pentagram and two fawning children at Lucifer's knee, on the Capitol grounds near a monument of the Ten Commandments.

In the statue, which is to be cast in bronze and is near completion, Satan is depicted as "Baphomet" with a goat's head and horns, and there is a boy on his left and a girl on his right.

"We decided to go with that because it is a fairly traditional character," Lucien Greaves, spokesman for The Satanic Temple, told KFOR-TV in Oklahoma City. "It also offers a lap that visitors can come to sit on, have their picture taken with."

A new report from the United States Commission on International Religious Freedom, a bipartisan group, asserts that the Obama administration is turning a blind eye to persecution of Christians by Muslims in Iran, Saudi Arabia, and Pakistan, as well as persecution of Christians in North Korea.

Dwight Bashir, the commission's deputy director of policy and research, told FoxNews.com:

While the Obama administration should continue to shine a spotlight on abuses through public statements, it also should impose targeted sanctions to demonstrate that there are consequences, too. By not utilizing an existing legislative tool, the United States risks sending the message that it prefers a nuclear deal to standing up for the rights of the Iranian people. The United States should not be confronting such a scenario in the first place.

The worst 16 countries that violated religious freedom were listed in the report. Iran, the report stated, had gotten even less tolerant after "purportedly moderate President Hassan Rouhani" ascended to the presidency last year. Of Iran, the report added, "As of February 2014, at least 40 Christians were either in prison, detained or awaiting trial because of their religious beliefs and activities."

North Korea Blames Its Human Rights Problems on Christian Missionaries

North Korea responded to the United Nations Human Rights Council this week regarding alleged human rights abuses by blaming Christian discipleship bases reaching North Koreans in northeast China.

So Se Pyong, North Korea's ambassador, said in a debate before the council in Geneva, "There are in the northeastern area of China so-called churches and priests exclusively engaged in hostile acts against the DPRK [Democratic People's Republic of Korea]. They indoctrinate the illegal border-crossers with anti-DPRK ideology and send them back to the DPRK with assignments of subversion, destruction, human trafficking and even terrorist acts."

The Rev. Eric Foley is CEO of Seoul USA, a U.S./Korean nongovernmental organization that operates a number of discipleship bases reaching North Koreans across Asia. Foley says, "The significance of North Korea's comments cannot be overstated. North Korea is choosing to publicly blame Christian missionaries for its human rights problems and internal difficulties."

Foley notes that the situation facing North Korean missionaries in northeast China is tight and getting tighter. But he adds that the challenge is not only from North Korea.

ROME — The decline of religious belief in the West and the growth of secularism has "opened the window" to black magic, Satanism and belief in the occult, the organizers of a conference on exorcism said Thursday.

The six-day meeting in Rome aims to train about 200 Roman Catholic priests from more than 30 countries in how to cast evil out from people who believe themselves to be in thrall to the Devil.

The conference, "Exorcism and Prayers of Liberation", has also attracted psychiatrists, sociologists, doctors and criminologists in what the Church called a "multi-disciplinary" approach to exorcisms.

"There's a glut of religious TV programming out there, from televangelists to Christmas specials," spokesman Dave Muscato told The News. "But there's no atheist channel. We wanted to fill that void."

Iowa Newspaper Editor Fired for Criticizing 'Queen James Bible' on Personal Blog

DES MOINES, Iowa – A newspaper editor in Iowa has been fired for opining on his personal blog that the Queen James Bible is an attempt by homosexuals “to make their sinful nature ‘right with God.’”

Bob Eschliman has worked as the editor of the Newton Daily News since 2012, and has served as the publisher of the Clarinda Herald-Journal. But he found himself out of a job this past week when he spoke his mind about the Queen James Bible on his personal blog.

“It’s pretty easy to brush off a nonsensical contrived version of the Bible, but that’s not the deceivers’ end goal,” Eschliman wrote. “No, they want all Christendom to abandon their faith. They do that by ‘proselytizing’ to church leaders to change their view on homosexuality.”

“[Jesus] said there would be deceivers. He said those deceivers would cause Christians who remain true to His teachings to become reviled. He said false prophets would follow to deceive even more, and that lawlessness will abound,” he continued. “If you ask me, it sounds like the Gaystapo is well on its way. We must fight back against the enemy.”

However, journalist and commentator Jim Romenesko then picked up on Eschliman’s post and wrote about it in an online article entitled Iowa Newspaper Blasts the ‘Enemy Gaystapo’ and the ‘LGBTQXYZ’ Crowd.

Romenesko outlined in his brief report that he emailed Eschliman and inquired if he could write about homosexuality objectively because of his published views. Eschliman ignored Romenesko’s correspondence, but removed the post from his blog.

The Newton Daily News reported on Tuesday that management learned of Eschliman’s comments last week and placed him on suspension. On Monday, Eschliman was officially fired.

Lesbian Houston Mayor Promotes Ordinance to Allow Men in Women's Restrooms

HOUSTON – The Houston City Council is currently considering an 'equal rights' ordinance which would allow men and women to use restrooms and shower rooms designated for the opposite sex, as long as they identify with the opposite gender.

Houston Mayor Annise Parker, an open lesbian, is promoting an "Equal Rights Ordinance" designed to quell any discrimination in America's fourth largest city—including any discrimination on the basis of "gender identity."

"Gender identity means an individual's innate identification, appearance, expression or behavior as either male or female," the most recent ordinance draft states, "although the same may not correspond to the individual's body or gender as assigned at birth."

Many people are especially concerned by the "Public Accommodations" section of the ordinance, which would allow men to use women's restrooms, and vice versa, if they identify with the opposite sex.

"It shall be unlawful for any place of public accommodation or any employee or agent thereof to intentionally deny any person entry to any restroom, shower room, or similar facility if that facility is consistent with and appropriate to that person's expression of gender identity," the ordinance states.

The only stipulation, according to the ordinance, is that people who use the opposite sex's facilities must dress, behave, and clothe themselves in a way that is "consistent with the gender designation of the facility the person attempt[s] to access."

The controversial ordinance was debated at length during a Houston City Council meeting last Tuesday. According to local affiliate KHOU, over 100 people lined up to publicly weigh in on the issue in front of the mayor and the council. The public session dragged on for nearly four hours, as dozens of individuals voiced either support or opposition to the measure.

As previously reported, a similar "bathroom bill" was passed in California last year. The bill mandates that schools allow boys who identify as girls to use girls' restrooms, and vice versa.

The National Center for Law and Policy is taking their fight over the Ashtanga yoga teachings of Encinitas Union School District to the Fourth District Court of Appeal in California after a district judge said the school program is religious, but officials can teach it anyway.

SAO PAULO (AP) — Gay rights advocates called for a Brazilian law against discrimination as they gathered by the hundreds of thousands in Sao Paulo on Sunday for one of the world's largest gay pride parades.

The city blocked its main central avenue to allow room for colorful floats and exuberant crowds of people dressed as drag queens with stilettos and wigs, the Statue of Liberty, flamenco and cabaret dancers.

"As long as there is this prejudice, we are going to be in the streets," said actor Valder Bastos, who is well known as drag queen Tchaka. "We are fighting against different types of prejudice: racism, homophobia. We are here together to show there are plenty of us."

Hallmark is expanding its greeting card line to keep up with evolving social structures, rolling out new Mother's Day messages specifically written for lesbian moms.

One of the cards addresses "two moms" and the other is intended for partners to give to one another, according to Hallmark spokeswoman Kristi Ernsting.

"Moms do it all and they do it with ease, from helping with homework to bandaging knees. They're coaches and confidantes, role models, too...whatever it takes they'll do," reads one of the cards. "When it comes to big hearts, moms are second to none."

While the outside of the greeting card seems fairly general, the inside gets more specific: "Does anyone ever get by with just one?"

MESA, Ariz. - Videogame maker Nintendo says no to same sex couples in its newest release and now a Mesa man is launching a campaign to get the company to change its mind.

23-year-old Tye Marini is a huge fan of Nintendo video games, so he was looking forward to next month's release of Tomodachi Life, a virtual life game where your characters are called Miis.

The characters can shop, go to amusement parks, dates, get married and have children, but the game only allows for male and female Miis to get married.

"You know, it's limiting the number of people who can fully enjoy the game since it's a game that is based so heavily on relationships," said Marini.

Marini, who is gay, started an online campaign for Miiquality, allowing same-sex Miis to get virtually married.

"I wasn't sure what to expect when I started the movement, but I've got a lot of support and it really makes me happy seeing so many people come out in support of this."

Over 2,000 people were quizzed on their attitudes toward androids—with less than favorable results. Forty-six percent of participants said they felt that technology was progressing too quickly, while a third expressed fears that automatons posed a serious threat to humanity. The same number also believed that robots may soon replace key jobs, including those of soldiers, cops and teachers.

Middlesex University's Professor Martin Smith, who oversaw the study, said, "While many of us worry about the role of technology and machines in modern society, robots are increasingly being developed for important roles that will help protect and improve our lives." Protecting and improving is one thing, but replacing significant others in the bedroom does seem like a bit of a jump. Sure, a robot may perform all the necessary...functions, but just how much intimacy can be created between a human and a piece of erratically moving machinery?

(CNSNews.com) – A Satanic Black Mass reenactment is scheduled to take place at the Queen's Head Pub in Memorial Hall at Harvard University on May 12, with the Mass performed by The Satanic Temple, which is being hosted for the event by the Harvard Extension Cultural Studies Club.

A non-consecrated communion host will be used in the reenactment, according to Lucien Greaves, spokesman for The Satanic Temple.

"While Black Masses are supposed to utilize a consecrated host, ours is merely representative of a consecrated host," Greaves told CNSNews.com. "It is not consecrated. We neither believe in nor invoke the supernatural."

NSA whistleblower Edward Snowden told lawyers he met during his sojourn in Hong Kong to put their cell phones in his fridge to thwart any eavesdroppers.

But new research suggests he should have been worried about nearby TVs, too.

Smart tellies with built-in microphones and storage can be turned into bugging devices by malware and used to record conversations, security experts at NCC Group said. And they demonstrated exactly that just down the road from the Infosec Europe conference, held in London.

"Installing the bugging software requires physical access to the device, which is how we did it, or by installing a malicious app," said Felix Ingram, principal consultant at NCC Group.

"Malicious apps could be downloaded from the manufacturer's app store. The TV does have the option for auto-updating, so releasing a legitimate app, then releasing a malicious update, is another attack vector."

In other words, Ingram's research shows smart TVs can be abused in much the same way that dodgy apps on Android software stores hijack smartphones and tablets.

In the NCC demo, the internal storage of a smart TV was used to hold 30 seconds of audio, but a far longer buffer could be set up. The main limitation of the attack is getting malicious code onto vulnerable devices in the first place, as Ingram noted.

The Dollar And Euro Are Doomed. These 3 Currencies Will Take Over.

Financial Times sent shock waves through the U.S. business community last week when headlines announced that China will overtake the United States as the "world's leading economic power this year," a title we've held since we passed England in 1872. The previous date for this anticipated event was 2019.

The grim announcement was based on figures compiled by the International Comparison Program, which is hosted by the World Bank. The awesome part of this fact, however, is that the Chinese are spending this big money to build their growing military arsenal.

While Obama has presided over hundreds of billions of dollars in budget cuts to our military, Communist China has been building dramatic new strategic military capabilities in every field of modern warfare. And it's all been paid for with U.S. money that has flowed to China through the racket mislabeled "free trade."

One of the world's best national-security analysts, Bill Gertz, reported that the 2014 U.S. Quadrennial Defense Review includes a warning on page 80 of an 88-page document from Joint Chiefs of Staff Chairman Martin Dempsey that the risk of a conflict in Asia is dangerously increasing. The worst part of that prediction is that he says our coming conflict with China will probably be waged on United States territory because distance and the Pacific Ocean will no longer protect us against China's new weapons.

Communist China is working hard to develop new niche weapons systems designed to attack us in space and in the so-called "cyber domain." The speed of technology development and the building of increasingly sophisticated systems, Gertz reported, make our estimates unreliable about how and where we would fight a war or militarily intervene.

Medical Drug-Pumping Microchip Plan to be Carried out by 2017

Christina Sarich

May 7, 2014

Implanted medical microchips that can be expected to be mainstream by 2017 will be able to deliver drugs, including routine birth control – all through wireless communications. Currently, drug reservoir chips can be implanted right under the skin, delivering pharmaceuticals of all kinds, but here is the troubling part of this – they won't be controlled by you – but rather by 'medical professionals'. Imagine someone with the same level of morality as a Monsanto CEO, or a stock owner in Pfizer, or Bill Gates, deciding who gets which meds and how much. Scary, huh?

What's more – these implanted drug-reservoir chips will be controlled remotely. You'll be dosed day after day, perpetually, until a 'professional' decided to stop doping you up. Talk about a dream come true for the pharmaceutical industry!

The micro-chipped reservoir-technology was first developed by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) in the nineties. It was designed to be controlled through a wireless signal, just like your phone. The technology now powers the company called microCHIPS. As part of their corporate agenda, presented on their site, they say they intend to develop, 'long-term implantable drug delivery technologies with wireless communications.'

Also, progesterin and estrogen can be released into a woman's body to act as a method of birth control.

Now, here's where it gets creepy. If a woman could turn her own microchip birth control on or off of her own accord, that would be...better, but within Obamacare, there are new laws which require to offer contraceptive services via microchip, and there are rumors that say eventually we will all be required to be micro-chipped.

These new technologies could conceivably deliver drugs automatically for up to 16 years straight, based on preliminary clinical trials. Furthermore, hospitals and doctors would know exactly which drugs you took and when, down to the second, with no privacy whatsoever.

This is not a new idea – Dr. Jose M.R. Delgado, Director of Neuropsychiatry Yale University Medical School Congressional Record, No. 26, Vol. 118 February 24, 1974 discusses it extensively in a paper in which he states, "Man does not have the right to develop his own mind. This kind of liberal orientation has great appeal. We must electrically control the brain. Some day armies and generals will be controlled by electric stimulation of the brain."

لاحظت ان كثير جدا من الوعاظ المسيحيين يتكلمون عن اقتراب النهاية

ففكرت ان هذا يحتمل شيئين

الاول بالفعل اقترابها وهذا ما اقتنع به رغم اني لا اعرف متى ولا يستطيع احد ان يحدد ولكن الرب

ارشد معظم الوعاظ ان ينبهوا الشعب ليستعدوا وهذا مهم

الثاني ان الرب سيتاخر مجيؤه قليلا والبعض بسبب هذا سيرفض تصديقهم ولا يهتمون بهذا الامر

بل يبدؤا يقولوا انه لن ياتي والرب يسمح بهذا للغلبة

وقد يكون الاثنين معا

الغريب اني سمعت تصريح من احد الرتب الكنسية في كنيسة معينة بدون ذكر اسماء وايضا هذا

ما نشر فالتاب على الناشر وليس ضعفي. ان المسيح غالبا لن ياتي مع ملائكته القديسين كما

يفهم البعض وانتظار المسيحيين لمجيء الثاني للمسيح خطأ. لان كل ما وعد به في متى 24 و

مرقس 13 و لوقا 21 و سفر الرؤيا هو تم في سنة 70 م فهو جاء للخلاص وايضا جاء ثانية

للدنونة وانتهي والعالم سيستمر.

لا اعرف ما اقول لان هذا بالطبع يخالف الكتاب بوضوح ولك هذا اكد لي اكثر ان المسيح اقترب

ميعاد مجيئه لان واضح ان فترت محبة الكثيرين وقل الايمان جدا

المسيح اقترب فاصنعوا ثمار تليق بالتوبة واستعدوا لاستقبال العريس ولا تفقدوا رجاؤكم.
