اكرر اننا لا نحدد مواعيد بل فقط نشجع بعضنا بعضا بقرب مجيء المسيح

وأيضاً أوضح أنه يوجد نبوات لم نراها بعد مثل ابن الهلاك وهرمجدون

ولكن أيضاً علامات كثيرة من التي قال عنها الكتاب انها في الزمان الاخير بدأت تحدث بوضوح

ويجب أن ننتبه اليها. ونذكر بعضنا باننا نحتاج ان نستعد. والاستعداد ليس فقط قبل مجيء

المسيح بل أيضاً قبل الظلمة التي ستسبق مجيؤه ليكون عندنا زيت في مصابيحنا يكفي ان نعبر

هذه الظلمة وتكون مصابيحنا مضيئة وقت مجيؤه. بمعنى نحتاج من الان ان نستعد بقوة بأيمان

عامل وبتنقية القلب وان نثمر بالخدمة أي نجمع زيت في مصابيحنا لان الظلمة والضيقه اقتربت

جدا ومن لن يستعد لها بزيت كافي من الان لن يجد زيت في الضيقه لان وقتها تجميع زيت

سيكون صعب جدا بل أستطيع ان أقول من مثل العذارى انه لن يكون هناك زيت الا ما جمعه

سابقا. أفضل ان اقول لنفسي ولكم استعدوا الان لأنه اقترب فنكون مستعدين سواء جاء او نحن ان سلمنا وديعتنا عن أنى لا اقول انه اقترب لكيلا يقال عني كاذب وانشتر اشاعات ولكنه يأتي بسرعة بغته. لا اعتقد اي أحد ندم لانه كان مستعد ومنتظر مجيء المسيح ولم ياتي المسيح في زمنه ولكنه انتقل وهو مستعد ولكن كثيرين جدا ندموا على عدم الاستعداد عندما انتقلوا

المسيح قال بعض العلامات مثل

انجيل لوقا 21

21: 10 ثم قال لهم تقوم امة على امة ومملكة على مملكة

21: 11 وتكون زلازل عظيمة في اماكن ومجاعات واوبئة وتكون مخاوف وعلامات عظيمة من

السماء

21: 25 وتكون علامات في الشمس والقمر والنجوم وعلى الارض كرب امم بحيرة البحر والامواج

تضج

21: 26 والناس يغطى عليهم من خوف وانتظار ما يأتي على المسكونة لان قوات السماوات

تزعزع

21: 27 وحينئذ يبصرون ابن الانسان اتيا في سحابة بقوة و مجد كثير

سفر اعمال الرسل 2

2: 19 واعطي عجائب في السماء من فوق وآيات على الارض من أسفل دما ونارا وبخار دخان

2: 20 تتحول الشمس الى ظلمة والقمر الى دم قبل ان يجيء يوم الرب العظيم الشهير

2: 21 ويكون كل من يدعو باسم الرب يخلص

لماذا قال المسيح بعض العلامات؟

أولا لكيلا نرتاع

انجيل متى 24

مت 24: 6 وسوف تسمعون بحروب واخبار حروب لا ترتاعوا لأنه لا بد ان تكون هذه

كلها ولكن ليس المنتهى بعد

ثانيا لنؤمن

إنجيل يوحنا 14: 29

وَقُلْتُ لَكُمْ الْآنَ قَبْلَ أَنْ يَكُونَ، حَتَّى مَتَى كَأَن تُوْمِنُونَ.

ثالثا لننتبه ونستعد

انجيل لوقا 21

28 وَمَتَى ابْتَدَأَتْ هَذِهِ تَكُونُ، فَاَنْتَصِبُوا وَاَرْفَعُوا رُؤُوسَكُمْ لِأَنَّ نَجَاتَكُمْ تَقْتَرِبُ».

US Sees Space as Next Potential Battlefield With China

by Staff Writers
Washington DC (Sputnik) Aug 20, 2015

The United States must take a defensive posture in space to counter threats posed by Chinese anti-satellite capabilities, Booz Allen Hamilton Executive Vice President Henry Obering said on Wednesday.

"We must treat space for what it is, it is a domain in which we must be prepared to fight and win," Obering stated at a Hudson Institute conference on advanced military threats from China.

Over the past decade, China has demonstrated increasing capabilities to counter advanced space assets. It tested last year an anti-satellite interceptor missile capable of destroying a satellite in low-earth-orbit.

US Department of Defense officials have expressed further concerns that China also has developed missiles capable of reaching satellites in high-earth orbit, which could jeopardize the full spectrum of US satellites.

Obering argued that the United States should revisit its historic reluctance to militarize space, and integrate a space-based layer of defense into traditional defense architecture.

"We should dramatically expand our investment in the battlespace [that] is growing into space," Obering said.

Much of the US concern over Chinese anti-satellite weapons is heightened by China's extensive development of a range of ballistic missile capabilities. The United States currently relies heavily on a wide network of protected satellites to operate its missile defense platforms.

The nominee to become Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, General Joseph Dunford, testified in July that he would dedicate Defense Department resources to address Chinese threats to the United States in space.

Henry Obering argued that the United States should revisit its historic reluctance to militarize space, and integrate a space-based layer of defense into traditional defense architecture.

Russia to Engage US in Space Wars With New Electronic Warfare Technology

by Staff Writers
Moscow (Sputnik) Aug 18, 2015

The Russian Defense Ministry has developed new technology to counter US battle stations in space, said Igor Nasenkov, the first deputy head of Russia's Radio-Electronic Technologies Concern (RETC), according to Russian media sources.

"If the United States starts developing and launching its battle stations into space, Russia will have to respond in kind - namely with the development of high-performance Electronic Warfare (EW) tools on different types of bases; the use of these tools will be a distinct advantage [for Russia]," Nasenkov said, as quoted by Rossiyskaya Gazeta.

File image.

Defense industry enterprises already have the necessary scientific and technological foundation, including layout models for future EW tools, the high-ranking RETC official said.

All Russia needs right now is a political decision and appropriate funding to kick start the project, Nasenkov said.

Last week, US media reported about Washington's plans to militarize space, as in future conflicts between major superpowers Earth's orbit will become a new battlefield.

Laser-armed satellites, long-range anti-aircraft missiles and other deadly weapons of destruction would attack and destroy enemy orbital forces.

What Would Happen if a Massive Solar Storm Hit the Earth?

We all know that major storms can wreak havoc, flooding cities and decimating infrastructure. But there's an even bigger worry than wind and rain: space weather. If a massive solar storm hit us, our technology would be wiped out. The entire planet could go dark.

"We're much more reliant on technology these days that is vulnerable to space weather than we were in the past," said Thomas Berger, director of the Space Weather Prediction Center at the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. He told Gizmodo, "If we were hit by an extreme event today, it'd be very difficult to respond."

"Solar storm" is a generic term used to describe a bunch of stuff the Sun hurls our way, including x-rays, charged particles, and magnetized plasma. A massive solar storm hasn't hit the Earth since the mid-19th century, but space weather scientists are very worried about the possibility of another.

Twin Typhoons Take Aim For Taiwan, Japan, Korean Peninsula

Tropical Storm Atsani strengthened into a typhoon early on Monday morning, soon followed by Goni which became a super typhoon several hours later.

Goni continue to batter the Mariana islands, and is taking aim to hit Taiwan to the Korean Peninsula around the 21st of August.

Atsani on the other hand will remain over open water this week with a possible impact on Japan around August the 25th.

TROPICAL STORM DANNY HEADS SLOWLY WESTWARD OVER THE ATLANTIC

MIAMI (AP) -- Tropical Storm Danny is moving slowly westward, far out over the Atlantic, and could still become a hurricane.

Danny has top sustained winds of 50 mph (85 kph). The U.S. National Hurricane Center says the storm could strengthen in the next few days and possibly become a hurricane by Friday.

The storm is centered about 1,325 miles (2130 kilometers) east of the Lesser Antilles and is moving westward at 10 mph (17 kph). A slightly slower forward speed is expected during the next 48 hours.

The Hurricane Center reports tropical storm force winds extend up to 70 miles (110 kilometers) from the center.

The storm does not currently pose a threat to any land.

"This sucker was shooting flames 100ft (30m) in the air before it passed right in front of the line," Idaho firefighter Craig Fluer wrote on Instagram, "all while dropping hot dirt and ash on our helmets."

1,000 firefighters battle 500-acre fire as it comes within a half mile of Santa Margarita

BY DAVID SNEED, MATT FOUNTAIN, MICHELLE ZALUDEK

dsneed@thetribunenews.com August 16, 2015 Updated 3 minutes ago

Update, 11 p.m.

Firefighters are working to prevent the Cuesta Fire from reaching Santa Margarita after it jumped containment lines on its eastern borders, according to Cal Fire Engineer Bennet Milloy.

At about 9 p.m. Cal Fire announced that the fire had come within about a half- to a quarter-mile of the town.

"We're actively engaged in structure protection and defense," said Milloy, stating that firefighters are optimistic about pushing the fire back from Santa Margarita. He then explained that fuel was being used to lead the fire away from town.

There are about 1,000 firefighters assigned to the 500-acre fire, which is 10 percent contained, according to Milloy.

Western wildfires force callup of 200 active duty troops

Active-duty soldiers have been called in to fight dozens of wildfires raging across the Western United States, the first time in nine years that such a step has been taken.

The National Interagency Fire Center announced Monday that 200 active-duty military troops are being called in to help. A spokesman for Fort Lewis (Wash.) confirmed that 10 crews of 20 soldiers from the 17th Field Artillery Brigade of the 7th Infantry Division would be sent. The spokesman said the crews would train on Aug. 19 and would likely ship out the next day.

(NaturalNews) As California's drought worsens and the availability of potable water continues to decline quickly, regulators in the state have become increasingly strict in imposing rules and fines in order to conserve what water remains.

To do so, state drought regulators have gone to the extreme in recent days, proposing a first-of-its-kind fine of $1.5 million on a group of farmers they insist took water illegally.

For planet Earth, no other month was as hot as this past July in records that date back to the late 1800s, NOAA says. And the globe is well on its way to having its hottest year on record.

NOAA, NASA and the Japan Meteorological Agency (JMA) have published data that show that it was the hottest July on record. Since July is on average the planet's hottest month, temperatures this past month likely* reached their highest point in the history of instrumental records. NOAA calculates that July's average global temperature of 61.86 degrees was 0.14 degrees warmer than the previous warmest month on record, July 1988.

NASA's map of July temperatures shows the planet lit up in orange and red, signifying vast areas covered by above-normal

California's Latest Nightmare: San Joaquin Valley is Sinking

By Eric Pianin 15 hours ago

It's bad enough that California is being battered by one of its worst droughts on record and that thousands of wildfires are consuming over 100,000 acres of woods amid fears that global warming may be making matters even worse.

Now comes a report that huge chunks of the state are literally sinking into the ground – posing serious threats to homes, businesses and roads in the affected areas.

Ecuadorian volcano Cotopaxi's activity is threatening 325,000 lives.

August 2015 – ECUADOR – It may have been more than 100 years since Cotopaxi's last major eruption, but it's Ecuador's most active volcano and second tallest, at 19,347 feet. Cotopaxi's most recent activity was when it shot ash a few kilometers in the air Saturday according to CBC reports. This spit of activity started Friday when the volcano shot ash seven miles high. Top disaster official Maria del Pilar Cornejo told reporters that the effects of ash shooting from the volcano is dependent on winds in the area. Cornejo added that the biggest threat to those around the volcano is the potential for fast-moving mud and rock current.

After the initial rumbling, hundreds of people were evacuated from Cotopaxi's slopes and Correa placed a prohibition on journalists from reporting information that wasn't from official sources. Correa claimed this prior restraint to be necessary to guarantee the safety of citizen's around the volcano. According to Decree 755 signed by Correa Saturday, information reporters use must come from the security ministry's official bulletins. This was done to rumors and misinformation according to the government. "The most important thing is not to create unnecessary panic in the population, and not to create excessive tranquility either," Fernando Alvarado, Ecuador's communication minister, said. – US News and World Report

Sinkhole That Fatally Swallowed Man Reopens in Seffner, Florida

A sinkhole in Seffner, Florida, that killed a man more than two years ago reopened Wednesday. The new hole is 17 feet wide and 20 feet deep the Tampa Tribune reports. Neighbors told WTSP in Tampa they heard a loud noise minutes in the morning, then saw the hole had reopened. The hole originally opened below the home where Jeffrey Bush was sleeping in March 2013. He fell into the hole and died; his body was never recovered, according to the Orlando Sentinel.

DALLAS — The City of Dallas reported Friday that hundreds of fish have been found dead at two different locations as a result of "naturally occurring" conditions.

As many as 400 fish — primarily large carp — were found dead Thursday at the Pavaho Sump, near Winnetka Avenue and Canada Drive in West Dallas. Workers with Trinity Watershed Management removed most of the fish, but some could not be accessed "due to staff safety concerns."

In a written statement, Assistant City Manager Mark McDaniel said water quality in the pond and the adjacent Delta Channel was "generally normal with the exceptions of warm temperatures and low dissolved oxygen." He said the prolonged summer heat and a low water flow rate contributed to the fish kill.

McDaniel also said more than 150 dead fish were identified in the Trinity River near Scyene Road and Dixon Avenue in Southeast Dallas. "This incident remains under investigation, and water quality data are being collected and reviewed," his statement said.

Both incidents have been reported to the Texas Commission on Environmental Quality and to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

The city urges anyone with questions or concerns about water quality in neighborhood creeks and ponds to call 311.

The carnage - which took place as 500 locals cheered - left Sandavagur Beach on the island of Vagur awash with gallons of whale blood.

It is the fifth slaughter of the season on the Faroes, which has seen 490 pilot whales killed on the archipelago since June.

Five members of Sea Shepherd conservation society - including British campaigner Lawrie Thomson - were arrested as they tried to stop the gruesome spectacle yesterday.

➤ Richly filled treasure found on North Sea beach

Message issued by Stichting ANEMOON on Sunday, August 16th, 2015

Saturday, July 25, 2015, many people stayed while in the Netherlands have long remember. A heavy storm with strong winds passed over our country and especially the coastal provinces were before this storm the target. Lots of storm damage, and there were several injuries and even regrettable one fatality. Yet this storm produced for beachcombers with an interest in marine biodiversity on a goldmine. The day after the storm the North Sea beach was littered with innumerable washed up shells and other marine animals.

The day after the exceptionally heavy summer storm on Saturday, July 25th attracted members of the Dutch Malacological Society \(NMV\) to the North Sea beach of Hoek van Holland. Here they went searching for stranded shellfish and other sea creatures that were deposited by the storm on the beach. This beach and especially the area immediately adjacent to the breakwater always delivers great finds. And after a heavy storm you can expect that the number will only be larger than normal.

Beachcombers and seagulls enjoyed the huge numbers of shellfish that had fled the summer storm of July 25 on the North Sea beach (photo: Gab Mulder)

What they found, however, exceeded all expectations. It was a huge treasure of unimaginable numbers of washed up shells and other marine animals. As they neared the beach, they immediately saw that there hundreds or possibly thousands of seagulls on the beach foraged. On the beach arrived they were surprised by the mountains in some places even 20 to 30 centimeters high stacked shellfish and other marine life. Many of the shells were fresh copies with the meat remains still inside. The inspection of the Roeselare The fire service and civil protection have been concerned all day Saturday of the death of thousands of fish in the canal Roeselare. Heavy rainfall in recent days could explain the phenomenon.

It rained heavily especially Thursday night in Roeselare, and large amounts of water were spilled ditches to channel. This sudden arrival would have created a lack of oxygen for the fish.

Civil protection will continue to remove the dead fish on Sunday.

LAKE ELSINORE: Fish die-off resumes

High temperatures, low oxygen in lake causing small fish to perish

BY MICHAEL J. WILLIAMS / STAFF WRITER
Published: Aug. 18, 2018 Updated: 10:54 p.m.

More dead fish appeared on Lake Elsinore's surface and shoreline Tuesday afternoon, Aug. 18, after a major die-off ended there over a week ago.

The phenomenon, caused by reduced oxygen levels, was mostly confined to the northwest side around the city-owned La Laguna Resort and Boat Launch, where the carcasses were being carried by the current, officials said.

City administrators declared a Stage 1 High Alert in their Lake Watch 2015 Action Plan, in which various agencies and volunteer groups are notified and asked to cooperate in the cleanup.

Hot days and warm nights, combined with an overabundance of threadfin shad minnows and algae, are lowering oxygen levels in the shallow lake to the point where many fish are unable to survive.

In the initial die-off from Aug. 4 to Aug. 10, 17 tons of lifeless fish were removed.

The Universe Is Steadily Deteriorating And So Is The Human Race – Why Is This Happening?

By Michael Snyder, on August 11th, 2015

Did you know that scientists have come to the conclusion that "the universe is slowly dying"? In fact, they have found that the universe is only producing about half as much energy as it once did, and they have also found that the level of energy is continuing to fade. Not only that, our sun also appears to be dying. Solar activity has slowed down to a level not seen for about 100 years, and scientists are not quite sure what to make of it. Pretty much all scientists agree that the sun will die "one day", but could it be possible that it is happening faster than any of them ever imagined? In addition, in this article I will include information about how the human race itself is deteriorating. There is a common misconception that humanity has been constantly improving and getting better, but scientists have discovered that the exact opposite is actually true. So why is this happening? Why is everything steadily decaying and deteriorating?

Venomous jellyfish 'size of 5 London buses' invading Britain

Deadly Portuguese man o' war jellyfish, with tentacles as long as five London buses, have been sighted around the English coastline, prompting fears of invasion among conservationists.

The species usually lives far out in the ocean, but experts from the Marine Conservation Society (MCS) say that the Society's survey team has received many more reports of them near the shoreline this year.

The venomous jellyfish, which can reach 160 feet in length, can be deadly. Surfers and swimmers are not always able to spot the creatures before they are stung.

Last month, there were 30 reports from locals in the southern English counties of Devon and Cornwall of the jellyfish drifting near the coast.

MCS Biodiversity and Fisheries program manager Dr. Peter Richardson said: "Our National Jellyfish Survey suggests significant recent rises in the numbers of some jellyfish species in UK seas, most notably the barrel jelly fish."

"Avoid ALL Contact" With Rain, American Embassy In Beijing Warns

First in "China Sends In Chemical Warfare Troops, Orders Tianjin Blast Site Evacuation After Toxic Sodium Cyanide Found" and subsequently in "Poison Rain Feared In Tianjin As Death Toll Rumored At 1,400", we documented China's frantic attempts to reassure an increasingly agitated and frightened public that the air and water are safe after last Wednesday's deadly chemical explosion at Tianjin.

Although the full environmental implications of the blast likely won't be known for quite some time, the immediate concern is that rain could react with water soluble sodium cyanide, transforming the chemical into potentially fatal hydrogen cyanide gas.

And while Beijing has already begun the censorship (some 400 Weibo and WeChat accounts have reportedly been shut down), the American Embassy isn't mincing words.

Rain on China blast city raises pollution and contamination fears – ground water poisoned from massive blast crater?

Posted on August 19, 2015

August 2015 – CHINA – Heavy rain fell Tuesday on the remains of a Chinese industrial site devastated by giant explosions, complicating clean-up efforts and heightening fears about toxic contamination as ceremonies were held to mark the disaster's 114 deaths. Around 700 tons of highly toxic sodium cyanide were at the site in the northern port of Tianjin, officials say, and water could spread it more widely. Rainwater could also disperse chemical residues on the ground into the air when it evaporates, and some of the many substances on the scene could react with it. Amid public anger over the disaster more details about the site operator were reported and a senior work safety official was put under investigation. Officials have insisted the city's air and water are safe, but locals and victims' relatives have voiced skepticism, while international environment group Greenpeace has also urged transparency. "I'm worried because we don't know what's in the rain," said a taxi driver as he made his way through the morning deluge. "It could be full of poison."

Out of 40 water testing points, eight showed excess levels of cyanide on Monday, all within a cordoned-off area surrounding the site of the blasts. The highest reading was 28.4 times official standards, said Bao Jingling, chief engineer at the Tianjin environmental protection bureau. The chemical had been detected at another 21 points and cyanide traces were detected at four other seawater testing points, he added. Authorities have built a dam of sand and earth around the blasts' central 100,000-square-metre (120,000-square-yard) "core area" to prevent pollutant leakage, Bao said, and drained water from pits and pipelines to

How smog is killing thousands daily in China

A new US study found that air pollution kills about 4,000 Chinese people a day. But what are the main contributors and is Beijing doing enough to tackle the issue? DW spoke to the authors of the study.

Bad air contributes to 1.6 million deaths a year or roughly 17 percent of all deaths in China, according to a scientific paper recently published by independent research group Berkeley Earth. "For 38 percent of the population, the average air they breathe is 'unhealthy' by US standards," said the authors of the paper, Richard Muller and Robert Rohde. Moreover, some 92 percent of China's population experienced at least 120 hours of unhealthy air between April 5, 2014 and August 5, 2015, said the scientists.

China's national safety standard for daily exposure to harmful PM_{2.5} pollution - particulate matter 2.5 microns and smaller - is 35 micrograms per cubic meter, making Chinese air quality limit four times higher than those recommended by the World Health Organization.

Russia's Mysterious New Submarine

It looks like the Moscow vs. the USS Jimmy Carter. But can the Kremlin afford the ship's new technology?

On August 11 at the port of Severodvinsk in northern Russia, a huge and imposing black shape emerged from a dry dock, observed by ranks of uniformed dignitaries. The Russian navy's latest submarine is 574 feet long, displaces no fewer than 18,000 tons of water and packs two nuclear reactors.

Named Moscow, she's actually a refurbished, 1980s-vintage ballistic-missile sub that once prowled underneath the Arctic ice, cradling nuclear-tipped ballistic missiles, awaiting Armageddon.

Today, as best as any outside observer can tell, the Moscow has a new mission. She appears to be part science vessel, part spy ship, part commando transport,

New photo of China's newest ICBM, the DF-41

China conducted a flight test this month of its newest long-range missile that U.S. intelligence agencies say lofted two independently-targeted simulated nuclear warheads, according to defense officials.

The launch of the DF-41 road-mobile missile Aug. 6 was the fourth time the new intercontinental ballistic missile (ICBM) has been test-fired in three years, and indicates that the weapon capable of hitting U.S. cities with nuclear warheads is nearing deployment.

The DF-41, with a range of between 6,835 miles and 7,456 miles, is viewed by the Pentagon as Beijing's most potent nuclear missile and one of several new long-range missiles in development or being deployed.

As with earlier DF-41 flight tests, Pentagon spokesmen had no direct comment. A defense official, however, told the Washington Free Beacon: "We do not comment on PRC weapons tests but we do monitor Chinese military modernization carefully."

The Pentagon has said it expects the new missile to become operational as early as this year.

Deployment of the DF-41 also could coincide with China's first patrols, slated to begin this year, of submarines armed with nuclear-tipped JL-2 missiles.

The Aug. 6 test is viewed as significant by U.S. intelligence agencies because it confirmed the DF-41's multiple-warhead capability, said defense officials familiar with analyses of the test.

Obama can do Iran nuclear deal even if Congress disapproves

Aug 16, 8:12 AM (ET)

By DEB RIECHMANN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The September vote on the Iran nuclear deal is billed as a titanic standoff between President Barack Obama and Congress. Yet even if lawmakers reject the agreement, it's not game-over for the White House.

A congressional vote of disapproval would not prevent Obama from acting on his own to start putting the accord in place. While he probably would take some heavy criticism, this course would let him add the foreign policy breakthrough to his second-term list of accomplishments.

Obama doesn't need a congressional OK to give Iran most of the billions of dollars in relief from economic sanctions that it would get under the agreement, as long as Tehran honors its commitments to curb its nuclear program — at least for now.

"A resolution to disapprove the Iran agreement may have substantial political reverberations, but limited practical impact," says Robert Satloff, executive director of the Washington Institute for Near East Policy. "It would not override President Obama's authority to enter into the agreement."

Lawmakers on their summer break are deciding how to vote. A look at the current state of play:

WHAT WILL HAPPEN IN SEPTEMBER?

With Republicans controlling both chambers of Congress, the House and Senate are expected to turn down the deal.

Obama has pledged to veto such a resolution of disapproval, so the question has turned to whether Congress could muster the votes to override him, in what would be a stinging, bipartisan vote of no-confidence against the president. And Obama would forfeit the authority he now enjoys to waive sanctions that Congress has imposed.

But Democrats and Republicans have predicted that his expected veto will be sustained — that opponents lack the votes to one-up Obama. More than half of the Senate Democrats and Independents of the 34 needed to sustain a veto are backing the deal. There is one notable defection so far — New York's Chuck Schumer, the No. 3 Democrat in the Senate and the party leader-in-waiting.

In the House, more than 45 Democrats have expressed support. Democratic leader Nancy Pelosi of California has spoken confidently about rounding up the votes to save the deal. Ten House Democrats have announced their opposition.

Speaking to reporters in Iowa on Saturday, Trump accused the president of selling out Israel by negotiating with Iran. "Israel was sold out by Kerry and Obama," he stated.

AP EXCLUSIVE: UN TO LET IRAN INSPECT ALLEGED NUKE WORK SITE

BY GEORGE JAHN
ASSOCIATED PRESS

VIENNA (AP) -- Iran will be allowed to use its own inspectors to investigate a site it has been accused of using to develop nuclear arms, operating under a secret agreement with the U.N. agency that normally carries out such work, according to a document seen by The Associated Press.

The revelation on Wednesday newly riled Republican lawmakers in the U.S. who have been severely critical of a broader agreement to limit Iran's future nuclear programs, signed by the Obama administration, Iran and five world powers in July. Those critics have complained that the wider deal is unwisely built on trust of the Iranians, while the administration has insisted it depends on reliable inspections.

A skeptical House Speaker John Boehner said, "President Obama boasts his deal includes 'unprecedented verification.' He claims it's not built on trust. But the administration's briefings on these side deals have been totally insufficient - and it still isn't clear whether anyone at the White House has seen the final documents."

Said House Foreign Affairs Committee Chairman Ed Royce: "International inspections should be done by international inspectors. Period."

WASHINGTON — Iran's development of a nuclear weapon that complies with Islamic law should be grounds enough for Congress to kill the agreement between Iran and the West, since just "Shariah-compliant" bomb could "threaten the existence of the United States," according to two experts.

The agreement would not prevent Iran from obtaining a nuclear device that it could detonate at high altitude over the U.S. to create an electromagnetic pulse, or EMP, that would destroy the nation's critical infrastructure, write James Woolsey, former director of the Central Intelligence Agency, and Peter Vincent Pry, executive director of the EMP task Force on National and Homeland Security, in the Washington Times.

Iran to arm West Bank Palestinians for new Eastern Front to “efface” Israel

DEBKAfile Exclusive Report August 17, 2015, 10:52 PM (IDT)

Tags: Iran, Al Qods commander, Ayatollah Ali Khamenei, Israel, West Bank

Al Qods chief Gen. Qassem Soleimani

Al Qods commander Gen. Qassem Soleimani, acting on the orders of Iran's supreme leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei, this week set up a new Iranian command to fight Israel, DEBKAfile reports exclusively from its military and intelligence sources. It has been dubbed the Eastern Command of the Iranian Revolutionary Guards. The Al Qods Brigades, which are the external terrorist arm of the Guards, are organized according to sectors, with commands for Hizballah, the Palestinians, Syria, Iraq and the Gulf.

Their newest sector is the Eastern Command which, our sources report has been assigned as its first task to start handing out weapons, including missiles, to any Palestinian West Bank group willing to receive them. Tehran's object is to transform the West Bank into a territory hostile to Israel on the model of southern Lebanon which is ruled by the armed Hizballah and the Gaza Strip under the Hamas and Islamic Jihad terrorists.

In the first week of August, Tehran published a book of 416 pages written by Ali Khamenei entitled “Palestine.” The cover image was labeled “The flagbearer of Jihad to liberate Jerusalem.”

The volume was released to Western sources, who reported that the most constantly recurring phrases in the text in relation to Israel are “nabudi” – meaning annihilation; inha – meaning disappearing or fading out; and “zaval” meaning effacement. Khamenei asserts that Israel must be destroyed because it captured Islam's third most sacred city and is the foremost ally of “Big Satan” – America.

The Iranian leader goes into detail about exactly how Israel should be annihilated – not by “classical wars” or “massacres of the Jews” but by means of a “long period of low-intensity warfare designed to make life impossible for a majority of Israeli Jews.”

When he visited Beirut on Aug. 12, Iran's Foreign Minister Mohammed Zavad Zarif said it was necessary after the nuclear deal, to “confront the challenges of the region, the most important of which is the Zionist and extremist regime.”

Members of the Obama administration wave away these disclosures of Iranian intent as no more than letting off steam to pacify the hard-line opponents of the nuclear deal - US Secretary of State John Kerry said on July 24: “I also told them that their chants of Death to American and so forth are neither helpful and they're pretty stupid.”

But in Iran, the supreme leader's words are treated as decrees demanding obedience. Indeed, at the first conference of the new Eastern Command, Gen. Soleimani read out passages from Khamenei's book and told the officers that they were under orders to carry those decrees out to the letter.

Four rockets hit Israel Thursday afternoon in the Upper Galilee region in the north near the Lebanese border after "color red" warning sirens were sounded in the area - in an attack that comes even as the IDF is preparing for rocket attacks from Gaza.

The rockets were fired from Syria. It remains unclear who fired them; back in April Iranian officials reportedly told the Syrian regime to strike Israel and open a war front on the Golan, although it is possible Islamist rebel forces conducted the strikes as well.

No injuries were reported, and the IDF released a statement saying it is investigating the incident.

"Four rockets were launched from the Syrian Golan Heights, landing in the Upper Galilee and the Israeli Golan Heights," the IDF said in a statement. "No injuries have been reported."

Israel Army Preparing for Possible Limited Ground Invasion of Syria (VIDEO)

AUGUST 16, 2015 9:30 PM

The IDF has been carrying out training exercises that include the possibility of a limited ground incursion into Syria. PHOTO: IDF Spokesperson.

The Israel Defense Forces is preparing for the possibility of a limited ground incursion into Syria in the case of massive rocket fire from the country falling on Israeli territory, Israel's Channel 2 reported on Sunday.

The IDF carried out a large division-scale exercise this past week in the Golan Heights which included the scenario, according to the report. The preparations are being made in response to the rise in power of radical Islamists in Syria and an understanding that the current calm on Israel's northern front is more fluid than it appears to be and could change at any moment.

According to recent reports, some extremist elements in Syria may have gained control of chemical weapons stockpiles, and the IDF exercise included preparations for this possibility as well. However, Israel's defense establishment has estimated that the chances of such a scenario materializing are very low.

Israel is also continuing its preparations for a possible wide-scale confrontation with Hezbollah. In recent years, the Iranian terror proxy's plans have centered on carrying a future war into Israeli territory, and in response the IDF has practiced the evacuation of citizens and communities located near Israel's borders with Syria and Lebanon.

South Korean sources claim there is evidence that North Korea is about to test-fire short and medium-range missiles, a source said. It comes a day after the two rival nations exchanged artillery fire across the border.

"The North is showing signs of deploying a Scud missile near Wonsan and a Rodong missile in the North Pyeongan Province," a government source told the Yonhap news agency, citing data from a radar system that South Korean and US military operate jointly.

"It seems that (the North) is weighing the timing of the firing under its strategic intention to increase military tension on the Korean Peninsula to the highest level," the source noted.

WASHINGTON – Communist North Korea is threatening a military response to South Korea's psychological warfare broadcasts across the Demilitarized Zone as the U.S. military conducts joint exercises with its ally.

A Defense Department source who requested anonymity told WND that preparations are being made to evacuate non-combat U.S. military personnel and other citizens from South Korea. About 28,500 American soldiers, sailors, airmen and Marines are stationed in South Korea. The South Korean capital, Seoul, is less than 30 miles from the heavily fortified DMZ.

North Korean leader Kim Jong-un has ordered his frontline troops to be ready for war, against a backdrop of rising military tensions between his country and South Korea.

The announcement follows an exchange of artillery shells across the two countries' heavily fortified border.

The Demilitarised Zone (DMZ) is a legacy of the 1950-53 Korean War, which ended with an armistice, not a peace treaty, leaving the Korean Peninsula still technically in a state of war.

The United States has put its forces in South Korea on a heightened state of alert – known as “enhanced status” – as war between Seoul and Pyongyang looms.

“If South Korea does not respond to our ultimatum,” North Korea’s deputy UN ambassador, An Myong-hun, told reporters in New York, “our military counteraction will be inevitable and that counteraction will be very strong.”

Islamic State militants behead 82-year-old archaeologist in Palmyra

Islamic State (IS) militants beheaded an antiquities scholar in the ancient Syrian city of Palmyra and hung his body on a column in a main square of the historic site, Syria's antiquities chief said on Tuesday.

IS, whose insurgents control swathes of Syria and Iraq, captured Palmyra in central Syria from government forces in May, but are not known to have damaged its monumental Roman-era ruins despite their reputation for destroying artefacts they view as idolatrous.

Syrian state antiquities chief Maamoun Abdulkarim said the family of Khaled Asaad had informed him that the 82-year-old scholar who worked for over 50 years as head of antiquities in Palmyra was executed by Islamic State on Tuesday.

Asaad had been detained and interrogated for over a month by the ultra-radical Sunni Muslim militants, he told Reuters.

"Just imagine that such a scholar who gave such memorable services to the place and to history would be beheaded ... and his corpse still hanging from one of the ancient columns in the centre of a square in Palmyra," Abdulkarim said.

"The continued presence of these criminals in this city is a curse and bad omen on [Palmyra] and every column and every archaeological piece in it."

The Russian Media Is Talking About What Is Coming In September

Why does the Russian media seem to be far more on the ball than the mainstream media in the United States much of the time?

Could it be possible that Russian reporters have more freedom to talk about important issues than reporters that work for the major corporate conglomerates in the United States do? Of course the Russian media is far from perfect. They put out pro-Russian propaganda just like the U.S. media puts out pro-American propaganda. But I must admit that I often find that Russian news sources are willing to tackle controversial issues that the mainstream media in the United States would not touch with a ten foot pole. This includes the critical events that are coming up this September.

Tsipras resigns, paving way for snap Greek elect

ATHENS | BY RENEE MALTEZOU AND MICHELE KAMBAS

Prime Minister Alexis Tsipras resigned on Thursday, hoping to strengthen his hold on power in snap elections after seven months in office in which he fought Greece's creditors for a better bailout deal but had to cave in.

Tsipras submitted his resignation to President Prokopis Pavlopoulos and asked for the earliest possible election date.

Government officials said the aim was to hold the election on Sept. 20, with Tsipras seeking to crush a rebellion in his leftist Syriza party and seal public support for the bailout program, Greece's third since 2010, that he negotiated.

"I will go the president of the republic shortly to submit my resignation, as well as the resignation of my government," Tsipras said in a televised address before he met Pavlopoulos.

Faced with a near collapse of the Greek financial system which threatened the country's future in the euro, Tsipras was forced to accept the creditors' demands for yet more austerity and economic reform - the very policies he had promised to scrap when he was elected in January.

"I want to be honest with you. We did not achieve the agreement we expected before the January elections," he told the Greek people.

Cultural differences and leaving family behind can make immigrating to Israel difficult. But more and more Jewish Americans are making Israel their permanent home.

Seeing Jewish people return to Israel is like watching Bible prophecy unfold before your eyes. Isaiah, Jeremiah, and Ezekiel all speak of the Jewish return to the land.

It's an exciting day. Immigrants from North America landed at Tel Aviv's Ben Gurion International Airport to make Israel their home.

Months after representatives of American Airlines visited Israel and claimed that their route between Tel Aviv and Philadelphia is one of the company's most promising, the company's management announced on Thursday that it had decided to discontinue flights to Israel.

• Follow Ynetnews on Facebook and Twitter

The company explained that the cessation is due to financial considerations, but this does not correspond to data company executives gave during their visit to Israel. The company said its last flights to Israel will be on January 4 from Philadelphia to Tel Aviv and January 5 for the return flight.

American Airlines has a less than spectacular history with Israel. Many years ago it bought TWA, which went bankrupt, and American entered legal proceedings concerning compensation for company employees, a process that lasted many years.

Six years ago US Airways began flying from Philadelphia to Tel Aviv and carried out a daily flight between those cities. Last year US Airways and American Airlines merged and kept the American moniker.

We Have Already Witnessed The First 1300 Points Of The Stock Market Crash Of 2015

By Michael Snyder, on August 20th, 2015

What has been happening on Wall Street the past few days has been nothing short of stunning. On Thursday, the Dow Jones Industrial Average plummeted 358 points. It was the largest single day decline in a year and a half, and investors are starting to panic. Overall, the Dow is now down more than 1300 points from the peak of the market. Just yesterday, I wrote about all of the experts that are warning about a stock market crash in 2015, and after today I am sure that a lot more people will start jumping on the bandwagon. In particular, tech stocks are getting absolutely hammered lately. The Nasdaq has fallen close to 3.5% over the past two days alone, and it has dropped below its 200-day moving average. The Russell 2000 (a small-cap stock market index) is also now trading below its 200-day moving average. What all of this means is that the stock market crash of 2015 has already begun. The only question left to answer at this point is how bad it will ultimately turn out to be.

This 2 Day Stock Market Crash Was Larger Than Any 1 Day Stock Market Crash In U.S. History

By Michael Snyder, on August 21st, 2015

We witnessed something truly historic happen on Friday. The Dow Jones Industrial Average plummeted 530 points, and that followed a 358 point crash on Thursday. When you add those two days together, the total two day stock market crash that we just witnessed comes to a grand total of 888 points, which is larger than any one day stock market crash in U.S. history. It is also interesting to note that this 888 point crash comes in the 8th month of our calendar. Perhaps that is just a coincidence, and perhaps it is not. It just struck me as being noteworthy. This is the first time that the Dow has dropped by more than 300 points on two consecutive days since November 2008, and we all remember what was happening back then. Overall, this was the worst week for the Dow in four years, and there have only been five other months throughout history when the Dow has fallen by more than a thousand points (the most recent being October 2008). Of course we still have six more trading days left in August, so there is plenty of time remaining for even more carnage.

By itself, the 530 point plunge on Friday was the ninth worst stock market crash in all of U.S. history. The following list of the top eight comes from Wikipedia...

PANIC ON WALL STREET AS STOCK MARKET DROPS 500 POINTS IN WILD SLIDE DOWN

Geoffrey Grider | August 21, 2015 | 13 Comments

U.S. STOCKS CLOSED DEEP IN THE RED ON FRIDAY AS GLOBAL GROWTH CONCERNS ACCELERATED SELLING PRESSURE TO PUSH THE DOW AND NASDAQ INTO CORRECTION TERRITORY.

"Men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth: for the powers of heaven shall be shaken." Luke 21:26 (KJV)

The major averages had their biggest trade volume day of the year and posted their worst week in four years. The Dow Jones industrial average closed at session lows, off nearly 531 points and in correction territory for the first time since 2011 as all blue chips declined. The last time the index closed more than 500 points lower was on Aug. 10, 2011. In the last five years, the index has only had four instances with closing losses of more than 400 points.

Did You Know That The U.S. No Longer Has Any Strategic Grain Reserves At All?

By Michael Snyder, on August 16th, 2015

Once upon a time, it was popular to say that the U.S. government only had enough wheat stored up to provide everyone in America with half a loaf of bread. But that is not true anymore. Recently, I discovered that the U.S. does not have any strategic grain reserves left at all. Zero. Nada. Zilch. As you will see below, the USDA liquidated the remaining reserves back in 2008. So if a major food crisis hit this country, our government would have nothing to give us. Of course the federal government could always go out and try to buy or seize food to feed the population during a major emergency, but that wouldn't actually increase the total amount of food that was available. Instead, it would just give the government more power over who gets it.

The U.S. strategic grain reserve was initially created during the days of the Great Depression. Back then, the wisdom of storing up food for hard times was self-evident. Unfortunately, over time interest in this program faded, and at this point there is no strategic grain reserve in the United States at all. The following comes from the Los Angeles Times...

An image is going round that sums up just how ridiculous Venezuela's economy has become.

A Reddit user uploaded a picture on Monday of a man using a 2 bolivar note to hold an empanada.

According to Venezuela's official bolivar-dollar exchange rate, the man using his money as a napkin is wasting about $0.31 (£0.20).

But on the black market, the reality is completely different. You can get 676.88 bolivars to the dollar, according to dolartoday.com. That means

China Did Something Last Week That Glenn Beck Says Should 'Send a Chill Down Your Spine'

Glenn Beck said Wednesday that the recent devaluation of China's currency should "send a chill down your spine" and could mean China has begun "all-out economic warfare" against the west.

Beck brought on his chief researcher Jason Buttrill, who said "no one has the stomach to admit the truth" about what China has done.

"They've launched all-out economic warfare," Buttrill said. "China devalued their currency, kicking off the biggest fall in over two decades. Why would a country do that to themselves? Sounds like a mistake, right? But China makes most of their money off exports, so they need a lower currency value in order to keep pumping out those cheap, plastic, 'Made in China' toys our kids have."

Buttrill said the move could create a "tsunami of deflation" in western economies, leading to skyrocketing unemployment.

Is the collapse imminent, and our very way of life under threat of total global meltdown?

Perhaps the signs and warnings are there, at every level, for those who want to see it.

An outright panic has taken hold over many who see September 2015 as a convergence of ominous events – including the Pope's visit to America, the United Nations summit on Agenda 21-like development, expectations for a stunning policy change at the Federal Reserve, unprecedented experiments at CERN and the end of the seven year business cycle, a date that has already seen the tragic events of 9/11 and the 2008 economic collapse in this century.

For many economic experts, it is a dangerous and capricious time for global finance, with many warning that a massive global collapse is imminent.

23 Nations Around The World Where Stock Market Crashes Are Already Happening

By Michael Snyder, on August 17th, 2015

You can stop waiting for a global financial crisis to happen. The truth is that one is happening right now. All over the world, stock markets are already crashing. Most of these stock market crashes are occurring in nations that are known as "emerging markets". In recent years, developing countries in Asia, South America and Africa loaded up on lots of cheap loans that were denominated in U.S. dollars. But now that the U.S. dollar has been surging, those borrowers are finding that it takes much more of their own local currencies to service those loans. At the same time, prices are crashing for many of the commodities that those countries export. The exact same kind of double whammy caused the Latin American debt crisis of the 1980s and the Asian financial crisis of the 1990s.

As you read this article, almost every single stock market in the world is down significantly from a record high that was set either earlier this year or late in 2014. But even though stocks have been sliding in the western world, they haven't completely collapsed just yet.

Sinking currencies point to jitters about emerging economies

Aug 21, 3:18 PM (ET)

By PAUL WISEMAN and JOSHUA GOODMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The damage spans the globe.

Thailand's baht. Kazakhstan's tenge. South Africa's rand. Peru's nuevo sol.

In emerging markets worldwide, currencies are plunging over fears that developing economies are on the verge of a crippling fall. Success stories until recently, emerging economies are seen as casualties now — of slower growth in China, plunging prices for commodities like oil and iron ore, the prospect of higher U.S. interest rates and homegrown threats.

The damage has spilled across oceans, with the turmoil jolting investors in New York, Tokyo and Europe. Investors there worry that China and other major emerging economies will reduce their imports. They also fear a trade-disrupting currency war as some countries desperately lower their currencies' value to gain a competitive edge. A lower-priced currency makes a country's goods cheaper for foreigners.

The Dow Jones industrials plunged 400 points, or 2.4 percent, in afternoon trading Friday on top of a 358-point drop Thursday. It's down more than 6.5 percent in the past month. Tokyo's Nikkei index shed 3 percent Friday.

For all the markets' jitters, many economists say they remain confident that the U.S. economy is resilient enough to withstand a slowdown in the developing world. And Europe's economy appears to be emerging from its long slump.

Even so, the trouble in emerging markets is a surprising and unsettling reversal.

"It's remarkable just how things turned around so quickly," says Neil Shearing, an economist at Capital Economics and a former British Treasury official.

Consider Peru. Three years ago, its capital, Lima, was chosen to host an International Monetary Fund's meeting of global finance officials in what was seen as a celebration of Latin America's arrival in the economic big leagues.

But with the event six weeks away, Latin America's outlook has descended from boom to gloom. Peru's economy has steadily slowed, and its currency, the nuevo sol, has plunged 2.5 percent against the U.S. dollar in the past month.

LAS CRUCES, N.M. — Police are searching for clues after bombs were found planted this month outside of three houses of worship in New Mexico.

On August 2, police responded to a call about an explosion at Calvary Baptist Church in Las Cruces, where reportedly a bomb had been wrapped in newspapers and placed into a mailbox that had been bolted to the wall. The force of the explosion ripped the mailbox from the building, throwing it approximately 150 feet.

“A house of worship should be a place of peace; making the act of violence especially troubling for us all,” wrote newly-installed pastor Kevin Glenn on Facebook following the incident. “Only our Lord is able to provide ultimate security to each of us through Jesus Christ. However, in our daily lives we must be wise and vigilant to do everything possible to provide an environment within which all can feel both welcome and secure.”

Earlier that morning, a bomb had also been detonated while a Roman Catholic congregation was in the middle of its 8 a.m. service. It had been placed in a garbage can near the front door of the facility. One witness told reporters that he heard a bang followed by the sound of shattering glass.

“I didn’t know if it was a shotgun blast; I didn’t know what. But it was very loud,” said John Anderson of Holy Cross Catholic Church.

Last week, a third bomb, which had not exploded, was discovered outside of the First Presbyterian Church by a groundskeeper. The device had been inserted inside the sprinkler box by the front door. Minister Norman Story told the Las Cruces Sun that he was informed by the groundskeeper that the device was in the shape of a pipe and a timing mechanism was attached.

CA councilman purged for views on marriage

🕒 Wednesday, August 19, 2015 | Charlie Butts (OneNewsNow.com)

A California city councilman targeted for his biblical defense of natural marriage should send a message that a "purge" is under way, says an attorney who fights for religious liberty.

"Where we're at now," says Pacific Justice Institute attorney Brad Dacus, "is an agenda to purge people from expressing their Christian worldview, who are in public service or heads of corporations."

Newport Beach City Councilman Scott Peotter, a committed Christian, sent an email to constituents critical of the U.S. Supreme Court decision legalizing unnatural marriage. That sent homosexual activists into an uproar.

"Of course if he'd uttered his support for same-sex marriage," says Dacus, "that would have been acceptable and he would not have been censured."

In the email, Poetter wrote:

I do find it interesting that the homosexual movement adopted the rainbow as their symbol, as it was God's symbol that he wouldn't destroy the world by flood again. Maybe they are wishful thinking.

Newport Beach is a seaside city of approximately 85,000 in Orange County, California.

The Los Angeles Times reported the Newport city council did not technically censure Peotter but "disassociated City Hall and the council" from his comments. The council voted 4 to 3 on August 11 for a "softened" version of an original resolution that censured

Marriage equality is not the end game for gay activists. (Reuters)

It's never fun to be proven right when warning of some impending wrong. Many in the pro-family movement have long stressed that the cultural Marxist left's belligerent push for the judicial fiction that is "gay marriage" was never about gaining "equal access" to this biologically exclusive male-female institution, as they profess, but, rather, is, and has always been, about control.

While there are many layers to unfold, the almost instant explosion in government-sanctioned, anti-Christian extremism on display post Obergefell v. Hodges, confirms the poisonous three-fold agenda that underlies the "social justice" mob's flowery "marriage equality" propaganda. That is: First, the ultimate destruction of marriage; second, forced affirmation of sexual deviancy under penalty of law; and third, the eventual criminalization of Christianity.

The Destruction of Marriage

Here's the bottom line: Homosexual activists don't want the white picket fence; they want to burn down the white picket fence. The endgame is not to achieve so-called "marriage equality" but, rather, to render marriage reality meaningless.

Four Ways To Make a Classroom Gender-Inclusive

August 13, 2015 by HRC staff

Share 356 Tweet 34

Post submitted by Charles Girard, Welcoming Schools Coordinator

I always loved the first day of school. I'll never forget the smell of freshly sharpened pencils, decorating my notebooks and the excitement I felt as I entered my new classroom each year.

I remember one August in elementary school, when I walked into my new classroom, I saw that my teacher placed folders on each desk with our names on them.

I eagerly found my name, but my expression quickly turned from excitement to devastation.

My name was written in careful cursive on a pink folder and was decorated with flowers and hearts. The boys had blue folders covered in footballs and soccer balls.

My first day of school that year, I cried. How could someone have made this choice for me? Did my teacher care about me at all?

My teacher had no way of knowing that I would come to identify as male after learning the word "transgender" when I was a teenager, but I'm sure I wasn't the only student that would have preferred a color that wasn't so gendered, like green or yellow.

Getting a classroom ready for the new year can be overwhelming and hectic. Who has time to think about gender stereotypes when there is lesson planning to do and bulletin boards to create?

A British city council member has told street preachers that he supports their right to speak on public streets, as long as they avoid one particular topic.

The institute, which long has worked to support the rights of street preachers, told Karney in a letter it even "has funded several legal cases where local authorities or the police have unlawfully interfered with" the rights of the preachers.

وَقُلْتُ لَكُمْ الْآنَ قَبْلَ أَنْ يَكُونَ، حَتَّى مَتَى كَانَ تُؤْمِنُونَ.

ثالثا لنتنبه ونستعد

انجيل لوقا 21

28 وَمَتَى ابْتَدَأَتْ هَذِهِ تَكُونُ، فَاَنْتَصِبُوا وَارْفَعُوا رُؤُوسَكُمْ لِأَنَّ نَجَاتَكُمْ تَقْتَرِبُ.»

افرحوا لان عريسنا قد اقترب مجيؤه. وانتبهوا الشيطان يريد أن نفقد سلامنا ولا ننال أكاليل.

وأيضا استعدوا فقد تسلموا وديعتكم في أي وقت فهناك 150 ألف شخص يموتوا في اليوم الواحد

انت لا تعرف متى ستكون منهم

المسيح اقترب فاصنعوا ثمار تليق بالتوبة واستعدوا لاستقبال العريس.

والمجد لله دائما
