والعلامات حتى 12 مايو 2020

Holy_bible_1

اكرر هدفي فقط من هذه الخدمة أن نذكر بعضنا باننا نحتاج ان نستعد أي حياة اليقظة الروحية.
والاستعداد ليس فقط قبل مجيء المسيح بل ايضا قبل الظلمة التي ستسبق مجيؤه لأننا نور العالم
الذي أصبح مظلّم وليكون عندنا زيت في مصابيحنا يكفي ان نعبر هذه الظلمة وتكون مصابيحنا
مضيئة وقت مجيؤه او من منا سيسلم وديعته في أي وقت. بمعنى نحتاج من الان ان نستعد بقوة
بأيمان عامل بالمحبة والتبشير وبتنقية القلب وان نثمر بالخدمة أي نجمع زيت في مصابيحنا لان
الظلمة والضيقة اقتربت جدا ومن لن يستعد لها بزيت كافي من الان لن يجد زيت في الضيقة لان
وقتها تجميع زيت سيكون صعب جدا بل أستطيع ان أقول من مثل العذاري انه لن يكون هناك
زيت الا ما جمعته سابقا.

أفضل ان اقول لنفسي ولكم استعدوا الان لأنه اقترب فنكون مستعدين سواء جاء او نحن ان
سلمنا وديعتنا عن أنى لا اقول انه اقترب لكيلا يقال عني كاذب وانشر اشاعات او اخيف البعض
ولكنه يأتي بسرعة بغته. لا اعتقد اي أحد ندم لأنه كان مستعد ومنتظر مجيء المسيح ولم يأتي
المسيح في زمنه ولكنه انتقل وهو مستعد ولكن كثيرين جدا ندموا على عدم الاستعداد عندما انتقلوا

المسيح قال بعض العلامات مثل

انجيل لوقا 21

21: 10 ثم قال لهم تقوم امة على امة ومملكة على مملكة

21: 11 وتكون زلازل عظيمة في اماكن ومجاعات واوبئة وتكون مخاوف وعلامات عظيمة من

السماء

21: 25 وتكون علامات في الشمس والقمر والنجوم وعلى الارض كرب امم بحيرة البحر والامواج

تضج

21: 26 والناس يغطى عليهم من خوف وانتظار ما يأتي على المسكونة لان قوات السماوات

تتزعزع

21: 27 وحينئذ يبصرون ابن الانسان اتيا في سحابة بقوة و مجد كثير

سفر اعمال الرسل 2

2: 19 واعطي عجائب في السماء من فوق وآيات على الارض من أسفل دما ونارا وبخار دخان

2: 20 تتحول الشمس الى ظلمة والقمر الى دم قبل ان يجيء يوم الرب العظيم الشهير

2: 21 ويكون كل من يدعو باسم الرب يخلص

لماذا قال المسيح بعض العلامات؟

أولا لكيلا نرتاع

انجيل متى 24

مت 24: 6 وسوف تسمعون بحروب واخبار حروب لا ترتاعوا لأنه لا بد ان تكون هذه

كلها ولكن ليس المنتهى بعد

ثانيا لنؤمن

إنجيل يوحنا 14: 29

وَقُلْتُ لَكُمْ الْآنَ قَبْلَ أَنْ يَكُونَ، حَتَّى مَتَى كَانَ تُمْنُونَ.

ثالثا لنتنبه ونستعد

28 وَمَتَى ابْتَدَأَتْ هَذِهِ تَكُونُ، فَأَنْتَصِبُوا وَارْفَعُوا رُؤُوسَكُمْ لِأَنَّ نَجَاتَكُمْ تَقْتَرِبُ.».

IT'S RAINING PLASMA ON THE SUN: A massive prominence is jutting out over the sun's southeastern limb today—and it's leaking plasma. Sylvain Chapeland filmed the gigantic structure from his backyard observatory in Gex, France:

"I tracked it for 2 hours using my 100mm refractor with an H-alpha filter (tuned to the red glow of solar hydrogen)," explains Chapeland. "It was wonderful to discover in the resulting video so many fine patches of gas falling downward along the magnetic field lines. I measured some of them speeding at around 100,000 mph!"

Prominences like these are the subject of cutting edge research. Inside the structures, solar magnetic fields lift planet-sized clouds of hydrogen above the surface of the sun. Sometimes, hydrogen-rich plasma leaks out, producing a type of glowing hot rain.

WHAT JUST HAPPENED TO COMET SWAN? This week, an unexpected outburst from Comet SWAN (C/2020 F8) amazed observers in the southern hemisphere, who could actually see the comet brighten with their unaided eyes.

What happened? It might have fragmented, exposing bright clouds of dusty gas to the sun. Certainly the comet's tail looks like debris from an explosion:

Above: Comet SWAN photographed by Gerald Rhemann of Farm Tivoli, Namibia on May 1st. [\[more\]](#)

But Karl Battams of the Naval Research Lab in Washington, DC, doesn't think so. "Outbursts do not necessarily imply fragmentation, and ground-based images are not yet showing evidence of a breakup," he says. "This could just be a particularly feisty and volatile comet."

Russia Probes Explosion of One of Its Used Boosters in Orbit

by Staff Writers
Moscow (Sputnik) May 11, 2020

Earlier, the US Air Force 18th Space Control Squadron, which monitors objects in Earth orbit, reported that an explosion took place on 8 May, releasing 65 pieces of debris. The squadron said that the blast was not caused by any type of collision.

Russia's Roscosmos state corporation, responsible for the country's space programme, has confirmed that part of a Fregat-SB booster block, which was used back in 2011 and was orbiting Earth, exploded on 8 May. The exact cause of the explosion, which happened between 08:00 and 09:00 Moscow time (between 05:00 and 06:00 GMT), remains unknown.

Currently, Roscosmos is gathering additional information on the incident and is monitoring the orbits of the debris of the booster block.

stock illustration

The exploded block was part of a carrier missile used to deliver the Spectrum-R astrophysical observatory into orbit. Such boosters are often used to take cargo to orbit or to stabilise the main carrier block in different stages of flight. After their fuel is depleted, these blocks separate from the carrier and remain in orbit until they finally decay.

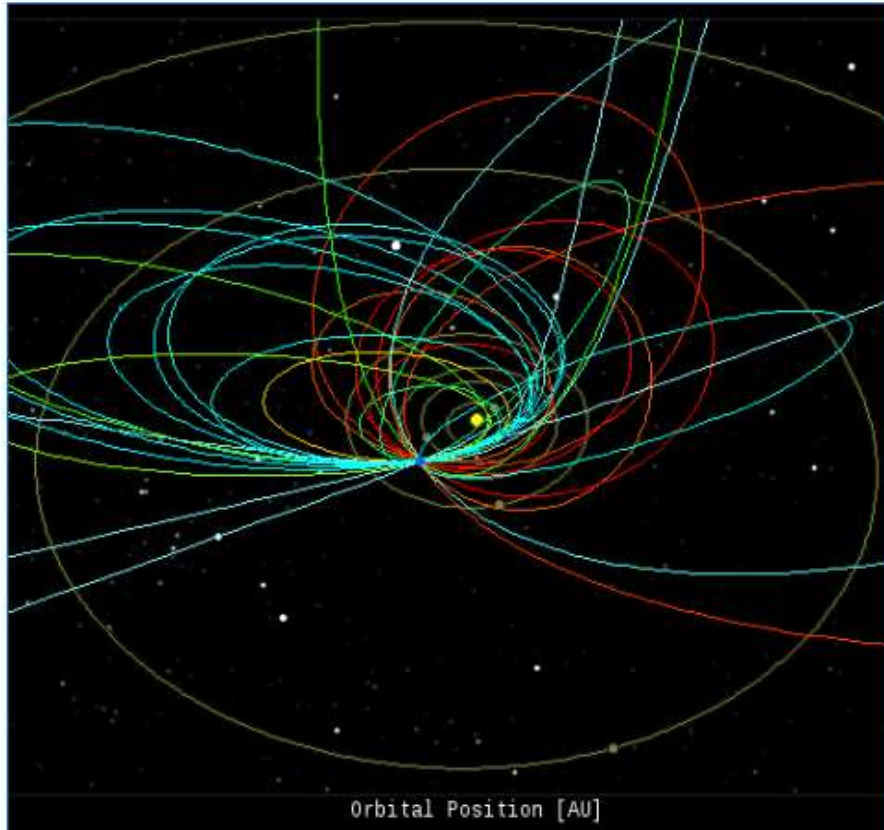

The incident was first reported on 9 May by the US Air Force 18th Space Control Squadron, which is tasked with monitoring satellites and other objects in Earth orbit. The squadron said that the explosion was not caused by a collision of any kind.

As The World Is Distracted By COVID-19, A Series Of Large Earthquakes Is Rocking “The Ring Of Fire”

Within the past several days, large earthquakes have been striking all along the outer rim of the Pacific Ocean, and many are wondering if all of this activity could potentially be building up to something really big. Those that follow my work on a regular basis know that I have been deeply concerned about seismic activity on the west coast for a long time, and scientists assure us that it is just a matter of time before “the Big One” hits us. According to Wikipedia, approximately 81 percent of all large earthquakes take place along the Ring of Fire, and of course the west coast of North America accounts for a large stretch of it. As you can see from this map, the California and Alaska coastlines have been absolutely peppered by quakes in recent days, but nobody is really talking about these quakes because everyone is so focused on COVID-19 right now.

Why are bees important?

There are nearly 20,000 known bee species in the world, and 4,000 of them are native to the United States (an estimated 400 additional native bee species remain to be identified in the U.S.). From the tiny and solitary Perdita minima, known as the world's smallest bee, to the large carpenter bee, to the brilliant blue of the mason bee; native bees come in a variety of shapes, sizes and colors.

Native bees pollinate native plants like cherries, blueberries, and cranberries, and were here long before European honeybees were brought to the country by settlers (honeybees are not native to North America). Honeybees, of course, are well known for pollinating almond and lemon trees, okra, papaya and watermelon plants. But native bees like the blue orchard bees are better and more efficient pollinators of native crops. Native bees are estimated to pollinate 80 percent of flowering plants around the world.

According to the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA), bees of all sorts pollinate approximately 75 percent of the fruits, nuts and vegetables grown in the United States, and one out of every four bites of food people take is courtesy of bee pollination. In sum, bee pollination is responsible for more than $15 billion in increased crop value each year.

Bible Warns of Famines in the Last Days—Are We Setting the Stage?

8:00AM EDT 5/8/2020 | MICHAEL SNYDER

(Pixabay/MattHPhotos)

Could it be possible that the stage is being set for horrific famines that the Bible has been warning us about for nearly 2,000 years? A few years ago, any talk of "coming famines" would have seemed absolutely ludicrous to most people in the Western world, but the events of the last several months have changed everything. Now, the U.N. is openly warning that famines of "biblical proportions" could be on the way, and the head of the U.N. World Food Program is telling us that we could soon see 300,000 people literally starve to death every single day. Nightmarish droughts, African Swine Fever, COVID-19 and armies of locusts in Africa the size of major cities have combined to create a "perfect storm," and global food supplies are becoming tighter with each passing month.

'I feel sick': Disturbing theory investigated after creek turns pink

Yahoo News Staff

Yahoo News Australia 9 May 2020

Mystery surrounds what is causing a creek in Melbourne's north to turn bright pink over the weekend.

Edgars Creek, at Coburg North, turned an almost fluorescent pink on Saturday, but authorities aren't sure what's behind the worrying phenomenon.

Victoria's Environmental Protection Authority wrote on Facebook Saturday that it's investigating the bizarre occurrence.

"EPA officers are investigating the cause of the strange discolouration which happened near Adnette Court," the department said.

Melbourne woman Tara DeGraft-Hayford told The Age she first thought it was a plastic sheet placed over the creek.

"It looked quite thick and so bright, almost like some kind of soap - but not. It was weird," she told the publication.

Summary

We have developed an analysis pipeline to facilitate real-time mutation tracking in SARS-CoV-2, focusing initially on the Spike (S) protein because it mediates infection of human cells and is the target of most vaccine strategies and antibody-based therapeutics. To date we have identified fourteen mutations in Spike that are accumulating. Mutations are considered in a broader phylogenetic context, geographically, and over time, to provide an early warning system to reveal mutations that may confer selective advantages in transmission or resistance to interventions. Each one is evaluated for evidence of positive selection, and the implications of the mutation are explored through structural modeling. The mutation Spike D614G is of urgent concern; it began spreading in Europe

Men's blood contains greater concentrations of enzyme that helps COVID-19 infect cells

Finding may explain why men with heart failure suffer more from the coronavirus than women

EUROPEAN SOCIETY OF CARDIOLOGY

PRINT E-MAIL

Evidence from a large study of several thousand patients shows that men have higher concentrations of angiotensin-converting enzyme 2 (ACE2) in their blood than women. Since ACE2 enables the coronavirus to infect healthy cells, this may help to explain why men are more vulnerable to COVID-19 than women.

The study, published in the European Heart Journal [1] today (Monday), also found that heart failure patients taking drugs targeting the renin-angiotensin-aldosterone system (RAAS), such as angiotensin-converting enzyme (ACE) inhibitors or angiotensin receptor blockers (ARBs), did not have higher concentrations of ACE2 in their blood.

Double-Edged Spike: Are SARS-CoV-2 Serologic Tests Safe Right Now?

“Validation of new immunologic tests ain’t easy,” it’s been said; validation of new tests for human antibodies to the severe acute respiratory syndrome coronavirus 2 (SARS-CoV-2) is a particularly daunting task. While we endure months of disruption to daily life prompted by the ongoing pandemic, serologic testing for antibodies to SARS-CoV-2 has now come to the limelight. SARS-CoV-2 is a highly contagious and acute severe respiratory pathogen that has produced an enormous strain on health care resources. In the United States and many other countries, specific social behavior restrictions have been enacted to moderate the impact of rapid propagation of this contagion (ie, “flatten the curve”). Scientific experts, governmental officials, and other professionals have publicly advocated for SARS-CoV-2 antibody testing to identify individuals who have developed immunity and therefore could potentially reenter the workplace safely despite ongoing high prevalence of the virus. A test for detecting “immune” individuals who will not be reinfected and who will not infect others is an appealing concept, but is it realistic?

The temporary easing of Food and Drug Administration (FDA) marketing/use regulations has enabled the rapid expansion of accurate, fast, and reliable nucleic acid tests to identify acute infection with SARS-CoV-2. Laboratory professionals, diagnostic companies, suppliers, investigators, and hospital administrators have all stepped up to manage acute supply shortages for critical testing components including instruments, test-compatible swabs, and nucleic acid extraction kits, ensuring

China slams US after Trump virus 'attack' claim

by Staff Writers
Beijing (AFP) May 7, 2020

China accused the United States on Thursday of trying to shift blame over the coronavirus, after President Donald Trump said the pandemic was a worse "attack" than Pearl Harbor or 9/11.

Tension between the world's two biggest economies has reached fever pitch in recent days as they have exchanged barbed comments on each other's handling of the virus.

"We urge the US side to stop shifting the blame to China and turn to facts," said foreign ministry spokeswoman Hua Chunying at a press briefing.

On Wednesday Trump drew analogies with the virus, which emerged in the Chinese city of Wuhan last year, and infamous military and terrorist attacks on the United States.

"This is really the worst attack we've ever had," Trump told reporters. "This is worse than Pearl Harbor. This is worse than the World Trade Center."

The Japanese assault on the Pearl Harbor naval base in Hawaii drew the United States into World War II.

The September 11, 2001 jihadist attacks killed about 3,000 people and triggered two decades of war.

However, this is not stopping some local businesses from opening anyway. What was supposed to be a "peaceful" demonstration quickly took a wrong turn at Big Daddy Zane's, a local bar in West Odessa.

Owner, Gabrielle Ellison, opened up her doors despite Abbott's latest order. A risk she says she understands all too well, but it boils down to feeding her family.

State health department gives names, addresses of Tennesseans with COVID-19 to law enforcement

May 8th, 2020 | by Anita Wadhvani / Tennessee Lookout

This story was updated at 7:46 p.m. on Friday, May 8, with more information.

The Tennessee Department of Health is providing the names and addresses of residents who test positive for COVID-19 to sheriffs and chiefs of police across the state on a daily basis — a practice raising concerns about privacy.

The offer to share the otherwise protected health information with law enforcement came at the request of Gov. Bill Lee, according to two letters obtained by the Tennessee Lookout.

"Health has a list of names and addresses of people in Tennessee who have tested positive or are receiving treatment for COVID-19," a letter dated April 20 to state police chiefs said.

The letter was sent by Valerie Nagoshiner, chief of state for the Tennessee Department of Health.

"Health will make that list available to you and send you an updated version of the list each day, provided that your office has entered into a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) with health."

A letter with the same offer was sent to the state's sheriffs on April 9.

The letters and memorandum make clear that the names of all individuals who have tested positive, even those with no past or present interaction with law enforcement, will be disclosed to police departments and sheriffs' offices. As of Thursday, 14,906 Tennesseans have tested positive for the virus, among them nursing home residents, meat processing plant workers, health care providers and children.

So far, 32 county sheriff's offices and 35 police departments have entered into agreements with the state to receive the information, said Shelley Walker, a department spokeswoman. Those include Collegedale and East Ridge police and the Chattanooga Housing police in Southeast Tennessee, Walker said.

US accuses China, Russia of coordinating on virus conspiracies

By Francesco FONTEMAGGI
Washington (AFP) May 8, 2020

The United States on Friday accused China and Russia of stepping up cooperation to spread false narratives over the coronavirus pandemic, saying Beijing was increasingly adopting techniques honed by Moscow.

"Even before the COVID-19 crisis we assessed a certain level of coordination between Russia and the PRC in the realm of propaganda," said Lea Gabrielle, coordinator of the State Department's Global Engagement Center, which tracks foreign propaganda.

"But with this pandemic the cooperation has accelerated rapidly," she told reporters.

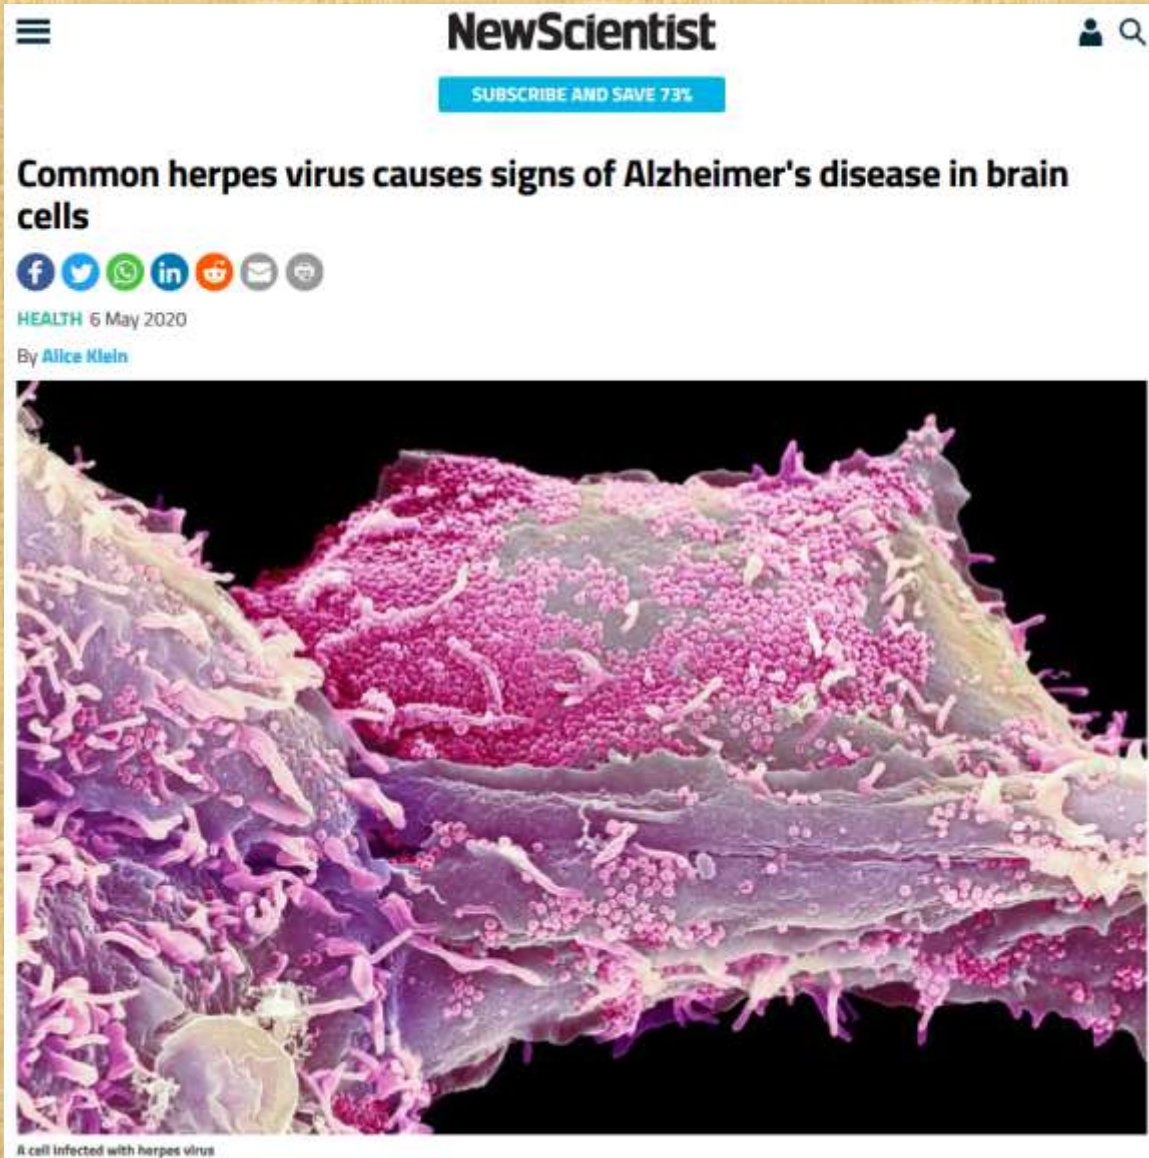

"We see this convergence as a result of what we consider to be pragmatism between the two actors who want to shape public understanding of the COVID pandemic for their own purposes," she said.

The Global Engagement Center earlier said thousands of Russian-linked social media accounts were spreading conspiracies about the pandemic, including charging that the virus first detected last year in the Chinese metropolis of Wuhan was created by the United States.

China outraged the United States when a foreign ministry spokesman tweeted a conspiracy that the US military brought the virus to Wuhan, but the two countries reached an informal rhetorical truce in late March after telephone talks between President Donald Trump and his counterpart Xi Jinping.

"Syria is paying growing prices because of the Iranian presence in its territory, for a war which is not its own. Iran has become a burden to Syria," the officials said.

In the near future, Israel is expected to step up pressure on Iran until it leaves Syria.

According to foreign publications in the past year, a significant increase has been recorded in the number of attacks in Syria attributed to Israel. The attacks attributed to Israel are conducted targeted at the Iranian presence on the ground and against Iranian headquarters, and not only by countering weapons smuggling.

US says Chinese hacking vaccine research: reports

by Staff Writers
Washington (AFP) May 11, 2020

The US Federal Bureau of Investigation and cybersecurity experts believe Chinese hackers are trying to steal research on developing a vaccine against coronavirus, two newspapers reported Monday.

The FBI and Department of Homeland Security are planning to release a warning about the Chinese hacking as governments and private firms race to develop a vaccine for COVID-19, the Wall Street Journal and New York Times reported.

The hackers are also targeting information and intellectual property on treatments and testing for COVID-19.

US officials alleged that the hackers are linked to the Chinese government, the reports say.

The official warning could come within days.

In Beijing Foreign Affairs ministry spokesman Zhao Lijian rejected the allegation, saying China firmly opposes all cyber attacks.

(WHAM) – A plan to "reimagine" how the education system in K-12 schools and colleges in New York can better use technology is drawing both interest and skepticism. Governor Andrew Cuomo announced Tuesday that the state will partner with the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation to "develop a blueprint to reimagine education."

The agreement focuses on convening a group of leaders from state, national, and international backgrounds to explore how technology is currently used and could be used in the future for students. According to Cuomo, the role of giving students more opportunities to learn inside and outside of school buildings,

Former top White House trade negotiator warns a new "Cold War" has begun with US and China

May 5, 2020 | 0 | ★★★★★

(ETH) – A former top White House trade negotiator just came out and warned that the rising tensions between the U.S. and China have been made increasingly worse by the coronavirus pandemic and is the beginning of a new Cold War.

"The reality is that tensions between the United States and China are rising considerably at the moment," Willems, a former deputy director of the National Economic Council, Clete Willems told CNBC's "Squawk Box Asia," on Tuesday morning.

"I know people get uncomfortable with the terminology, but I do think we have to be honest and call this what it is and this is the start of a new Cold War and if we're not careful, things could get much, much worse," he warned.

New York (CNN Business) — Tyson warned Monday that it expects more meat plant closures this year.

The company also said it will continue producing less meat than usual, as workers refrain from coming to work during the coronavirus pandemic.

"We have and expect to continue to face slowdowns and temporary idling of production facilities from team member shortages or choices we make to ensure operational safety," the company said in a statement discussing

J.P. Morgan Chief Investment Officer Bob Michele predicted it will take 10-12 years after the pandemic for U.S. employment to get back to its pre-coronavirus level, insisting it won't be as simple as turning the economy back on.

"No, it's not that simple ... it's going to take years, or longer to get back to where we are, or where we were," Michele said on Bloomberg when asked if reopening would be as simple as "turning on the lights."

'Ridiculous': States Tell Supreme Court to Force Nuns to Violate Their 'God-Given Right of Conscience'

05-06-2020 - Paul Strand

More than 10 years after it became law, the Affordable Care Act is back before the US Supreme Court, pitting birth control funding against religious liberty. Wednesday's hearing at the high court was all about forcing nuns to violate their religious beliefs.

The coronavirus may have forced the US Supreme Court to hold its hearings by phone, but that meant this critical religious liberty case could be attended by Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg from her hospital bed.
