Turkish cold snap literally freezes animals where they stand

Posted on December 23, 2013

It appears that Turkey is one of the few parts of the world that gets so cold it's not an exaggeration to say, "It's freezing out here." The video below depicts some donkeys found in a small village that have cartoonishly frozen in place due to the extreme cold weather and snow – a phenomena we thought only possible in Christmas-time claymation films, and the closest thing we know of to the exact opposite of China's hellish summer heatwave that caused cars to explode. ## Mystery of Maasai Cattle Deaths

Drought May Not Be the Only Cause of the Maasai Cattle Die-Off

Drought can be a devastating economic blow to anyone engaged in agriculture. But for the Maasai people of East Africa, it can threaten a centuries-old way of life. Cattle mean more than just food to this primitive tribe that still lives life in much the same way as their distant ancestors. Cows represent status, act as currency, provide a means of social interaction and are even necessary for marriage.

On a recent visit to the Maasai Mara National Reserve in Kenya, East Africa, wildlife abounded. But for every giraffe, elephant and zebra I saw I also saw a dead Maasai cow. Dozens of dying, dead and decaying Maasai cattle littered the landscape, not only of the Maasai villages and surrounding lands, but inside the boundaries of the Reserve as well.

Utah officials suspect bald eagle deaths linked to die-off of shore birds

By Laura Zuckerman

(Reuters) - The tally of unexplained bald eagle deaths in Utah this month rose to 20 on Thursday as state wildlife officials looked for possible links to diseases suspected in a coinciding die-off of thousands of shore birds around the Great Salt Lake.

Since December 1, state wildlife specialists have documented a growing number of bald eagles of varying ages succumbing to an unexplained ailment that crippled them with leg paralysis and tremors before they died.

The eagle deaths have been concentrated in the northern and central parts of Utah at a time when the federally protected raptors have migrated to their wintering

Dead Starfish Washing up on Local Beaches

Posted: Dec 28, 2013 5:48 PM MST
Updated: Dec 28, 2013 5:54 PM MST

CORPUS CHRISTI (Kiii News) - An unusual sight out at the Packery Channel Saturday morning has some beach goers wondering what's going on. Hundreds of dead star fish have washed up on shore. It a was quite a sight. We talked to a local expert at the Harte Research Institute.

He believes that the reason behind it, is the cold weather. Larry McKinney with the Harte Research Institute said, "we have had this sustained situation of cold weather they probably reached their tolerance level and couldn't survive and couldn't escape before they died." Experts say that the starfish will re-populate when it warms up. By the way if you try to take one home, hold your nose. They're said to be pretty smelly.

60 meter-long sinkhole in Sichuan province buries 12 buildings

Posted on December 16, 2013

A massive sinkhole in the Pingxi village of Guangyuan city opened up around 12:40 a.m. on Friday morning and had expanded into a crater measuring 60 by 40 meters around and 30 meters-deep within hours. The sinkhole has swallowed at least 12 buildings as of 6:30 p.m. and it is expected to keep growing in size. It is terrifying. Fortunately, nobody was killed or seriously injured when the ground collapsed. A resident whose house was situated on top of the sinkhole said that he had felt the earth shaking for around 20 days prior to the hole opening. Shanghaiist

Army warns not to say “Christmas”

Posted on December 25, 2013

Don't say Christmas. That's the message that was conveyed to a group of soldiers at Camp Shelby by an equal opportunity officer from the Defense Equal Opportunity Management Institute, according to a soldier who attended a recent briefing. "It's unbelievable that the Army would ban 'Christmas' like it's a bad word," said Michael Berry, an attorney with the Liberty Institute, a legal firm representing the unidentified soldier. Two weeks ago, a routine meeting was held at the Mississippi base with various leaders of the 158th Infantry Brigade. During the meeting, they discussed an upcoming Christmas football tournament. The equal opportunity officer immediately objected to the usage of the word "Christmas." More

Disney Christmas Show Too Religious?

Posted on December 24, 2013

Disney's removal of "One Solitary Life," a powerful essay about Jesus' life, from its annual "Candlelight Processional" Christmas show at both Epcot and Disneyland, has raised some eyebrows. While the company told TheBlaze that operational needs and concerns over timing drove the decision to cut the essay, two sources with knowledge of the show said they doubt the authenticity of the claim. One singer who has participated for years in the "Candlelight Processional" told TheBlaze that the cast choir was shocked in November when show producer Thomas Tryon announced at rehearsal that "One Solitary Life" was being cut. "He implied that it was for show flow reasons — to make the show go more smoothly and for timing reasons," said the singer, who spoke on the condition of anonymity.

Atheist Posts Vulgar Video, Threatens to Sue over Nativity Scene in Florida

Posted on December 25, 2013

An atheist activist has posted a video to YouTube after the city of Deerfield Beach, Florida displayed a nativity scene near a firehouse. In the video, Chaz Stevens threatens to sue the city as he uses vulgar terminology to describe the images of Jesus, Mary, and Joseph. According to Circa, Stevens decided to sue Deerfield Beach over the nativity scene after it denied him permission to erect a "Festivus" pole made of beer cans. The city reportedly had permitted Stevens' Festivus display in the past, next to nativity scenes and menorahs, but this year decided that only displays reflecting the holidays could be erected. Gov. Rick Scott, says Circa, allowed Stevens to place a Festivus pole inside the Florida state capitol, and Stevens posted a video of his six-foot tall construction. More

The Obama administration's emphasis on enrolling the LGBT community in Obamacare strongly suggests it has an unspoken agenda of shifting to healthy citizens the extraordinary financial burden of providing services to the unique demographic, which is afflicted disproportionately by AIDS and other health issues. "The Affordable Care Act has the potential to transform the lives of countless LGBT people and improve the health and well-being of our community – for generations to come,” proclaims the White House Blog in a Dec. 17 posting. The White House Blog posting noted that since taking office, President Obama and his administration “have taken significant steps to advance equality for the lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender (LGBT) community.” More

84: El Salvador's San Miguel volcano erupts with powerful explosion

Posted on December 30, 2013

December 30, 2013 – EL SALVADOR – Thousands of people in eastern El Salvador are leaving their homes after a volcano erupted on Sunday morning. Residents in the coffee-producing region said they had heard a powerful explosion before the Chaparrastique volcano began spewing hot ash and smoke into the air. The eruption came with little or no warning. No one has been hurt, say the authorities. Anyone living in a 3km (2 mile) radius will be evacuated. Temporary shelters are being set up in the area. Civil protection authorities say that some 5,000 people live in the area, in San Miguel province. The eruption began at 10:30

يري صعوبة ان الاحداث تتوقف أو تتباطأ بل اعتقد انها
