اكرر اننا لا نحدد مواعيد بل فقط نشجع بعضنا بعضا بقرب مجيء المسيح

وأيضاً أوضح أنه يوجد نبوات لم نراها بعد حدثت مثل ابن الهلاك وحرب هرمجدون وظهور

الشاهدين وحزقيال 38 وغيره ولا نعرف متى ولكن أشعر انها اقتربت.

ولكن ايضا علامات كثيرة من التي قال عنها الكتاب انها في الزمان الاخير وفي الجيل الأخير

بدأت تحدث بوضوح ويجب أن ننتبه اليها. فلا نعرف هل المسيح سيأتي في سنة ام سبع سنين ام

سبعين سنة أم أكثر فكرر لا احدد مواعيد ولكن نذكر بعضنا باننا نحتاج ان نستعد. والاستعداد

ليس فقط قبل مجيء المسيح بل ايضا قبل الظلمة التي ستسبق مجيؤه ليكون عندنا زيت في

مصابيحنا يكفي ان نعبر هذه الظلمة وتكون مصابيحنا مضيئة وقت مجيؤه. بمعنى نحتاج من

الان ان نستعد بقوة بأيمان عامل وبتنقية القلب وان نشمر بالخدمة أي نجمع زيت في مصابيحنا

لان الظلمة والضيقه اقتربت جدا ومن لن يستعد لها بزيت كافي من الان لن يجد زيت في الضيقه
لان وقتها جميع زيت سيكون صعب جدا بل أستطيع ان أقول من مثل العذارى انه لن يكون هناك
زيت الا ما جمعتة سابقا. فأكرر لا نحدد المواعيد ولكن أفضل ان اقول لنفسي ولكم استعدوا الان
لأنه اقترب فنكون مستعدين سواء جاء او نحن ان سلمنا وديعتنا عن أنى لا اقول انه اقترب لكيلا
يقال عني كاذب وانشر اشاعات ولكنه يأتي بسرعة بغته. فيجب علينا ان نذكر الكل بالاستعداد
والتوبة من الان حتى لو كان سيتأخر

Total Lunar Eclipse and Solar 'Ring of Fire' Top April's Stargazing Events

Stargazers have a lot to look forward to this month.

The best celestial events in April include eclipses of the sun and moon, a meteor shower and good opportunities to see Vesta and Ceres, the two biggest space rocks in the main asteroid belt between Mars and Jupiter.

Here's a brief rundown of April's most exciting skywatching events, which folks in the Northern Hemisphere may be able to enjoy without too much shivering now that spring has sprung. [\[Skywatching Highlights of April 2014 \(Video\)\]](#)

Two eclipses

The first of April's two eclipses comes in the early morning hours of April 15, when Earth's shadow will darken the moon in a total lunar eclipse visible throughout North and South America, Australia, New Zealand and other parts of the Pacific region.

Rare Sight: Mars, Earth and Sun Will Align Next Week

By by Geoff Gaherty, Starry Night Education
April 5, 2014 7:45 AM

Mars will be exactly opposite the sun in the sky in a rare cosmic alignment set to take place Tuesday (April 8).

Called an opposition, this happens with Mars from Earth's perspective every 778 days, or 2 years, 1 month and 18 days. Think of Earth and Mars as two cars racing on circular tracks. Because Earth is closer to the sun, it travels faster, completing a circuit in 365 days. Mars is farther from the sun and takes longer, 687 days. By the time Mars has completed one circuit, Earth has a lot of catching up to do to get to a point between the Red Planet and the sun.

This is complicated by the fact that the two racetracks are not exact circles. As Johannes Kepler discovered in the 16th century, the planets follow slightly elliptical paths around the sun, sometimes closer to the Sun (perihelion), sometimes farther away (aphelion). Over 9,000 Pounds Of Fish Dead, Washing Up To Shore At Citizen's Lake In Monmouth, IL

Over 9,000 Pounds Of Fish Dead, Washing Up To Shore At Citizen's Lake In Monmouth, IL

It's a fish kill so massive that Citizen's Lake hasn't seen something like this in over 35 years. You can already see and smell the decay and as temperatures start warming up they say it's about to get a lot worse.

Over 9,000 pounds of fish suffocated underneath thick ice after this harsh winter. Ken Russell is a fisheries biologist with the Illinois Department of Natural Resources who's been taking care of this lake for over 50 years.

He said this is a tragic year for the fish and anglers, but what you see now is only a fraction of the amount of fish that'll be rising to the surface, belly up.

"As the water warms the fish carcasses that are on the bottom will gradually bloat," said Russell. "Some of them will never come to the surface. But it'll be several week and it won't be a pleasant sight, which it obviously isn't a pleasant sight now."

Russell said logistically it'll be very difficult to remove the tons upon tons of rotting fish.

But city officials are worried about the stench because a campground sits right across from the lake. For now, they're not sure if they'll have the manpower to remove all the fish carcasses and they may have to let most of the decompose

"The word was 'wow'. I can't believe this," said Monmouth City Clerk Susan Trevor. "It's amazing to see and it's also very sad."

Susan Trevor said she hopes citizens and campers will be patient as they're trying to figure out a clean-up plan.

Ken Russell said there isn't a health hazard with the dead fish because the lake isn't used for swimming or drinking water. He said by summertime all the dead fish should be gone and they'll be busy restocking.

"You just let the carcasses decompose and the nutrients then go back into the food chain," said Russell. "Hopefully this won't happen again for many, many years."

IL-DNR said it'll take about 2 years to repopulate Citizen's Lake, meaning fisherman and anglers alike won't be able to fish here for quite a while.

IL-DNR said fish kills are normal on lakes and ponds this time of the year. It happens when light cannot go through the ice. This slows the growth of algae and plants that produce the oxygen. This is more likely to happen in shallow ponds compared to deeper ones. That's because deeper ponds have a greater volume of oxygen and are more likely to sustain fish.

Gizzard Shad Die Off in Presque Isle Bay

Posted: Apr 01, 2014 2:10 PM MDT

Updated: Apr 01, 2014 2:10 PM MDT

By Paul Wagner - email

A lot of dead fish are starting to wash up along Presque Isle bay. But biologists say there is no reason to be alarmed.

It is a die off of gizzard shad, a fish very sensitive to cold weather. And often, large numbers of the fish die over the winter, then are pushed on shore when the ice melts on the bay.

Last year's kill was huge. Experts doubt there will be a repeat this spring. But they do expect more shad to be washing ashore in the coming days. They say the best advice is to stay away from the fish.

Great Lakes Biologist Nate Irwin said, "I mean they are rotting fish. So obviously you don't want to be near them, touching them, or letting your dog play with them. So just avoid them. They are just a natural part of the system."

The biggest problem created by the annual die off is the foul smell, especially when the weather warms up.

GULF SHORES, AL (CBSMiami) — Beaches across the Gulf coast, including the Florida Panhandle, are getting the star treatment as thousands of starfish drift ashore.

Most of them, dead or dying, are washing up on beaches from Perdido Key, Florida in Pensacola to Alabama.

The majority are brittle stars, also called spider starfish, and they are very common in waters around the world. "This is very rare, I have lived here all my life and I have never seen them like this," said beachgoer Charlotte Phillips.

Listen: Fish dying at Tempe Town Lake

Thousands of carp have died in Tempe Town Lake

TEMPE, Ariz. -- A bacterial or viral disease is killing off fish by the thousands in Tempe Town Lake.

The disease is isolated to the lake's carp population and city officials said the lake is safe for humans to be near.

"These [diseases] are isolated to fish, in this case they're isolated only to the carp species," said Rick Amalfi, vice president of Aquatic Consulting, a Phoenix environmental services company.

Recent tests done by the company found no inherent dangers to humans near the lake.

"The water quality is fine. We have plenty of oxygen in the lake," Amalfi said. "We always check for golden algae because that's been responsible for a lot of fish kills because of the toxin it produces and we don't find any of that in there."

But some lake visitors are unhappy with the sight and smell of rotting carp carcasses around the lake.

"For the average person going by the lake it is pretty stinky," Amalfi said. "When you really get the odors is when you get a windy day and a large number go down in a corner and you happen to walk by that corner, it's going to be smelly. There's no getting around it."

The carp started to die off two weeks ago when the lake temperature rose. The bacteria thrives at certain degrees, which is the current temperatures.

"There are various bacterial and viral diseases that the fish get and the carp are susceptible to them when the water temperature is where it's at right now," said Amanda Nelson, a spokeswoman for the city of Tempe.

Nelson expected the fish to stop dying in a few weeks when water temperatures warm up further and Amalfi agreed.

"Our best guess is when the water starts warming up a little bit the disease usually dies out," Amalfi said.

Contaminated water kills thousands of fish in the Lagoa neighborhood Igaras

Robson Ribeiro / CO

04/03/2014 17:06:00

An unusual event in the region occurred in the Santa Rita, near the neighborhood of Igaras Otacílio Coast. Several fish were found floating over a pond on the property of Mr. Luis Claudio de Souza.

The foreman of the ranch, Valdo Lemos de Andrade, observes that seven years ago takes care of the property and had never found anything like that.

Valdo account that fish began showing up dead on Thursday, 20. He estimates that approximately 5,000 fish have died. "In my opinion, this water can only be poisoned. I do not know if someone threw some poison, or where did this contamination," he said, arguing that even in some regions of the lagoon appear strange spots.

According to still Valdo, his boss took samples of water and some fish, to make an analysis, aiming to realize where the contamination originated from the pond. "It is an unfortunate fact, I can not believe, we expect the analysis to see what really happened," lamented the worker.

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Birds were seen falling dead out of the sky in Norman, alarming some residents, though state wildlife officials say there's no cause for concern.

According to Oklahoma City television station KWTU (<http://bit.ly/1gtCRUw>), a homeowner near Highway 9 and Interstate 35 found more than a dozen birds in her yard Thursday.

Becki Miller of Norman said she heard a thump and noticed a bird had just fallen. Over the course of 24 hours, she observed at least a dozen birds drop dead in her yard, and worried the birds had been poisoned or were diseased.

According to KWTU, another 20 birds were found Thursday within a square mile of Miller's home.

Micah Holmes, information supervisor with the Department of Wildlife, said this is not a rare phenomenon this time of year and homeowners should not be concerned.

"It's certainly not common, but it's not rare either," Holmes said. "It's a time of year that's stressful for these birds because they're migrating long distances."

Holmes said the birds are also in the process of mating, which causes them to fight one another, and although the weather seems nice enough to humans, there are not a lot of seeds or other things for the birds to eat as they travel.

The food scarcity makes this a vulnerable time of year for them," Holmes said. "It makes them susceptible to illness, and since they're migrating there are a lot more birds close together, so illness passes among the birds a lot more quickly."

Although only around 30 birds were found in Norman Thursday, Holmes said they are likely part of a much larger flock of 10-20,000 birds of different varieties.

"When people see these birds they're tempted to just call them all blackbirds because they are black, but the flock usually consists of primarily red wing blackbirds, common grackles and brown headed cowbirds," Holmes said. "We as wildlife management try to keep it in perspective: these are large flocks of birds, so it does not have a large effect on bird populations."

Oil containment boom to control the spread of oil on water surface

Oil spill latest weekend concerns 30 dolphins dead

Just as it seemed the clean-up efforts from last months oil spill under control, there's new evidence washing ashore that proves to the public just how much nearly 168,000 gallons of oil affects wildlife.

The U.S. Coast Guard confirms that 30 dead dolphins have been found in the Galveston area since the wreck, 48 total in March. That's well above average, and very well above last years recovery of only 15.

A high number of dead dolphins is typical during what is called the stranding season from January through March, but so far, 2 have been confirmed to have oil on their bodies and two more are being tested for possible oil exposure.

Though it's not proven that oil is the definite cause of the increase in stranding yet, it's definitely a concern, and until the murky waters are all cleared up, we won't know exactly how much our wildlife will be impacted.

YELLOWSTONE

First it was bison running from Yellowstone, now its elk, and soon probably people. We see the signs. The writing is on the wall. Earthquakes from the West Coast are a sign of pressure movement in the Earth heading North and towards a very touchy area for the USA. California and Alaska both sit on a very dangerous fault line if there is a big quake in that region then be assured that Yellowstone will probably go off as well. It is simply a matter of time before she erupts. Experts claim Yellowstone is dormant, however it is not. It is in fact very active. Watching the footage of Old Faithful is like nothing anyone has ever seen before, smoke going off all day as well as a few hard camera shakes. Something is up! See below for our report, and below that is the original video of the Elk now running away from Yellowstone.

This is such a big situation, that not only did the herd of Bison running away make it to mainstream news, but around that time the American based news agencies came out and said that Yellowstone has gone extinct. Just as they always tell us, nothing to worry about. Move a long sheeple nothing to see here. Wake up! When they have to come out and cover up a simple video of Bison running you know something is up. At the very bottom of this page is the video of Bison running away.

Island off Japan Coast Swallows its Neighbor, Volcano Island Niijima

Niijima is Japan's newest island located in the Philippine Sea that has consistently grown in size since its inception in November. A NASA satellite image from March 30 found that Niijima merged with nearby island Nishino-shima.

Niijima resulted from a seafloor volcano that sprouted in the western Pacific Ocean this past November. It is located 600 miles south of Tokyo in the Pacific "Ring of Fire, which spans from the coast Chile to Alaska and Siberia and then south to New Zealand. The volcanic island has not stopped erupting since November.

DAKAR, Senegal — The rising death toll in West Africa's Ebola outbreak has sparked fear across the region with at least 80 already having died from the nearly always fatal virus.

"Every day we're reading about it in the newspaper, hearing about it on the radio, and wondering when it's going to come here," said 32-year-old Mossa Bau, who lives in Dakar, Senegal. "Everyone is very scared because, really, it's a dangerous disease and no one has the means to stop it."

The World Health Organization says that as many as 125 people across three countries are now believed to have contracted the highly contagious disease. Senegal shut its border with Guinea, where the outbreak is believed to have originated, in the hopes of keeping the disease from spreading its way.

The outbreak was initially contained in four remote towns in south Guinea and health officials had hopes it could be contained there. But the country's Ministry of Health confirmed last week that eight cases arose in the capital, Conakry.

Conakry has a population of almost 2 million people, many of whom live in slums without proper water or sanitation — creating an opportune breeding ground for the highly contagious virus.

Two people, including one person who died, tested positive for Ebola in neighboring Liberia. The Ministry of Health there says at least six more people are suspected of contracting the virus, five of whom died. Health officials are also investigating whether five people died from the virus in Sierra Leone.

It's official – Chicago experienced the coldest four months ever on record

Posted on April 1, 2014 by Anthony Watts

An over a century-old record falls.

The average temperature for December 2013 to March 2014 period in Chicago was only 22.0°F, 10 degrees below freezing, beating the old record set in the winter of 1903-04. It even beat the harsh winters of 1977/78 which were some of the worst ever.

While stories rage in the media about how global warming is a threat to mankind and nobody will be left untouched by it, the National Weather Service in Chicago issued this statement today.

No, it isn't an April fools joke.

Here is the statement:

As this terrifying map from the Met Office shows, huge swathes of the UK will suffer extraordinarily high levels of air pollution in the next 12 hours - hitting highest possible level 10 on the official warning scale.

"How I Wrote Off My Debt"

The Environmental Protection Agency has been conducting dangerous experiments on humans over the past few years in order to justify more onerous clean air regulations.

The agency conducted tests on people with health issues and the elderly, exposing them to high levels of potentially lethal pollutants, without disclosing the risks of cancer and death, according to a newly released government report.

These experiments exposed people, including those with asthma and heart problems, to dangerously high levels of toxic pollutants, including diesel fumes, reads a EPA inspector general report obtained by The Daily Caller News Foundation. The EPA also exposed people with health issues to levels of pollutants up to 50 times greater than the agency says is safe for humans.

In a new report, the United Nations' Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change, or IPCC, warns the catastrophic risks posed by man-made climate change not only threaten the world with ecological disaster, but will soon be an even greater factor in the proliferation of disease, economic chaos and even wars.

However, scientists who believe the most threatening hot air is coming from the IPCC and not human activity say the report raises climate-change hysteria to a new level.

Participants in the latest report and other figures sounding the alarm on climate change say we're very close to the point where devastating events will be unavoidable.

"We're now in an era where climate change isn't some kind of future hypothetical," said the report's lead author, Chris Field of the Carnegie Institution for Science in California, to the Associated Press.

(NaturalNews) Cancer rates in many areas of Japan are on the rise following the global catastrophe at the Fukushima Daiichi nuclear power facility back in March 2011. And some Japanese doctors now caring for all those radiation refugees who were shipped out from areas surrounding the nuclear plant after it exploded say fallout from the disaster is likely to blame for this massive uptick in disease.

The German media group Deutsche Welle (DW) reports that many radiation refugees are having to watch as their family members and pets suffer gruesome fates at the hands of what appears to be radiation poisoning. One elderly woman told reporters that her dog lost all the hair around his neck, his skin turned black, and he eventually died, all signs that suggest a link to radiation.

WASHINGTON – There is growing concern in the West that Russia's next move following its annexation of Ukraine's Crimean Peninsula will be Transnistria, a split-away province of the former Soviet province of Moldova, according to a report in Joseph Farah's G2 Bulletin.

Transnistria, an autonomous region within Moldova, seeks independence from the country but, given that the majority of the population there is of Russian ethnicity, some 2,000 Russian peace keepers are in the region. They've been there since 1992.

New Cold War with Russia Heating Up in Syria

Chriss Street

As President Obama was his teleprompter on March 20th to announce sanctions against Russia, Syrian rebel forces led by al Qaeda-linked Islamic Front and Jabhat al-Nusra launched a surprise offensive in northwestern Syria near the Turkish border. The offensive, known as “The Martyrs Mothers,” captured the three area border crossings into Turkey and killed Hilal al Assad, Syrian President Bashar al Assad's cousin and head of the militia known as the National Defense Force. With the U.S. secretly arming the rebels and President Obama in Saudi Arabia, the new Cold War with Russia is heating up in Syria.

The objective of the Martyrs Mother's offensive appears to be opening up new supply lines for the Syrian rebels from Turkey. Recently Syrian government forces supplied by Russia and its allies had cut all supply rebel supply lines from Lebanon by launching a series of largely successful offensives across western Syria. Stratfor Global Intelligence reported the Syrian army “currently has the strategic initiative, in large part thanks to Iranian, Russian and Hezbollah aid.” But successfully attacking the Latakia province has high symbolism since it is Syrian President Bashar al Assad's hometown.

Rebels had been focused on a vicious fight between various rebel groups and their former ally, the Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant. But in recent weeks, rebels from the Islamic Front, Free Syrian Army, and Jabhat al-Nusra Islamic State ejected the Islamic State out of the Latakia and Aleppo areas. The United States and Great Britain had both suspended “lethal” aid to northern Syria in last summer after reports of Islamist fighters seizing Western-backed rebel weapons warehouses. But Reuters News reported nonlethal aid was resumed to civilian groups in that region in late December.

US arms Syrian rebels with first heavy weapons, anti-tank BGM-71 TOW missiles - raising war stakes

Two Syrian rebel militias judged moderate in Washington have in the last few days taken delivery and begun using – mostly in the Idlib region - the first advanced US weapon to be deployed in more than three years of civil war, DEBKAfile's military sources reveal. It is the heavy anti-tank, optically-tracked, wire-guided BGM-71 TOW, which is capable of piercing 50mm thickness of Syrian tank armor and Syrian fortifications at a range of 4 kilometers. Armed with this weapon now are Brig-Gen. Abdul-Hila al Bashir, the new commander of the rebel Free Syrian Army, which is headquartered at the Golan town of Quneitra, and Jamal Maarouf, head of the rebel Syrian Revolutionary Front fighting in the north.

The appearance of this advanced missile radically alters the balance of strength on the Syrian battlefield. It also denotes a striking change in Obama administration policy, which hitherto flatly resisted every demand to provide Syrian rebel groups with the heavy arms essential for them to have any chance of standing up to Bashar Assad's superior military strength.

Our sources report that in the last few days, the new weapons are being airlifted in through two routes: the southeastern Turkish town of Diyarbakir on the Tigris, and the giant northern Saudi King Faisal Air Base at Tabuk near the Jordanian border. US Gen. Martin Dempsey, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs, arranged during his visit to Israel last week for the Netanyahu government to waive a standing agreement between the US, Saudi Arabia and Israel, whereby Saudi Air Force F-15 fighters are not stationed in Tabuk given its proximity to Israeli air space.

Dempsey explained that they were needed as air cover for the American transports flying the new weapons in via Saudi, and the convoys ferrying them onward from the Saudi base to their destination in southern Syria through Jordan. Stationed at the Tabuk air base too is a squadron of French fighter jets.

The route from Turkey to Syria runs through the "Kilis Corridor", which is a narrow rebel-controlled strip 40 kilometers long from the southern Turkish town of Gaziantep up to the big Syrian town of Aleppo.

From his headquarters at Quneitra, opposite IDF positions on the Golan, Gen. al Bashir commands most of the Syrian forces fighting Bashar Assad's army in the south.

Maarouf and his Syrian Revolutionary Front operate from a base in the southern Turkish town of Antakya.

In the last of his recent press interviews on April 2, Maarouf disclosed that some of the Front's operations against the Syrian army were carried out in conjunction with al Qaeda's Jabhat al Nusra.

Iran, Russia working to seal $20b oil-for-goods deal

Iran and Russia have made progress towards an oil-for-goods deal sources said would be worth up to $20 billion, which would enable Tehran to boost vital energy exports in defiance of Western sanctions, people familiar with the negotiations told Reuters.

In January Reuters reported Moscow and Tehran were discussing a barter deal that would see Moscow buy up to 500,000 barrels a day of Iranian oil in exchange for Russian equipment and goods.

The White House has said such a deal would raise "serious concerns" and would be inconsistent with the nuclear talks between world powers and Iran.

Russia to back Iran in nuclear talks - Moscow's "April surprise" for Western sanctions over Ukraine

As the Six Power group and Iran prepared for their third round of nuclear talks in Vienna next week (Tuesday-Wednesday, April 8-9) Tehran frankly admitted to exploiting the holes in the six-month interim deal they forged in Geneva last November. And Moscow looks like making good on its threat to back the Iranian case, in retaliation for Western penalties for its annexation of Crimea. In a closed meeting in Tehran Wednesday, April 3, Ali Akbar Salehi, head of Iran's Nuclear Energy Commission said: "We have 19,000 centrifuges of which 9,000 are in operation [for enriching uranium]. Our advice is not to discuss the number of centrifuges, rather to discuss the unit's isolation power." He explained there are different types of centrifuge.

This was a candid admission that Iran had found a way to get around its commitment under the interim deal - which US Secretary of State John Kerry held up as his greatest diplomatic achievement - not to build or activate its most advanced centrifuges for speeding up enrichment.

Salehi had no qualms about pointing to the holes in that deal, as the six foreign ministers prepared to face Iran in Vienna for the next round of negotiations on a comprehensive agreement for Iran's nuclear program.

That forum will provide Moscow with its first opportunity to confront the West over Iran (and likely Syria too) for the sanctions and bans NATO meted out over Russia's Ukraine policy.

The architect of Russian policy on both issues, Deputy Foreign Minister Sergey Ryabkov, gave due warning last week, when he said: "Russia wouldn't like to use their [nuclear] talks as an element of the game of raising the stakes between Moscow and the West," he said. "But if Russia feels forced, it would take retaliatory measures here as well."

Japan to intercept any North Korea missile deemed a threat

TOKYO (Reuters) - Japan will strike any North Korean ballistic missile that threatens to hit Japan in the coming weeks after Pyongyang recently fired medium-range missiles, a government source said on Saturday.

Defense Minister Itsunori Onodera issued the order, which took effect on Thursday and runs through April 25, the day that marks the founding of North Korea's army, the source told Reuters on condition of anonymity.

Following the order, meant "to prepare for any additional missile launches," a destroyer was dispatched to the Sea of Japan and will fire if North Korea launches a missile that Tokyo deems in danger of striking or falling on Japanese territory, the source said.

Tensions have been building between North Korea and its neighbors since Pyongyang - in an apparent show of defiance - fired two Rodong missiles on March 26, just as the leaders of Japan, South Korea and the United States were sitting down to discuss containing the North Korean nuclear threat.

North Korea tells world 'wait and see' on new nuclear test

UNITED NATIONS (Reuters) - North Korea said on Friday that the world would have to "wait and see" when asked for details of "a new form" of nuclear test it threatened to carry out after the United Nations Security Council condemned Pyongyang's recent ballistic missile launch.

North Korea fired two medium-range Rodong ballistic missiles into the sea on March 26. Its first firing in four years of mid-range missiles that can hit Japan followed a series of short-range rocket launches over the past two months.

Members of the Security Council on March 27 condemned the move as a violation of U.N. resolutions and that it would continue discussions on an "appropriate response."

North Korea (DPRK) reacted on Sunday with a threat to conduct what it called "a new form of nuclear test."

"The DPRK made it very clear, we will carry out a new form of nuclear test. But I recommend you to wait and see what it is," North Korea's Deputy U.N. Ambassador Ri Tong Il said on Friday during the normally reclusive state's third U.N. news conference this year.

He is one of up to 11 senior party officials with close ties to Jang Song-taek — Kim Jong-un's recently purged uncle — who have been apparently executed or sent to political prison camps.

S. Korea test-fires ballistic missile capable of striking North

2014-04-04 09:05

Normal FontLarge Font

South Korea successfully test-fired its new ballistic missile capable of striking all parts of North Korea last month and plans to deploy it starting next year to bolster its defense, a military source said Friday.

The state-funded Agency for Defense Development (ADD) on March 23 tested the ballistic missile with a range of 500 kilometers and a payload of 1 ton at a firing range in Taean, South Chungcheong Province, which was observed by senior military officials.

"The missiles accurately hit the intended target," the official said, asking for anonymity.

South Korea currently operates 300-km Hyunmoo ballistic missiles, and has been developing longer range missiles to beef up its defense against Pyongyang under a new missile deal with the United States.

The guideline revised in October 2012 allows Seoul to extend the maximum range of its ballistic missiles from 300 km to 800 km.

It limits the maximum payload to 500 kg for 800-km range missiles, while allowing heavier payloads for missiles with shorter ranges.

Following the deployment of the 500-km range missile, the military plans to develop an 800-km missile with a payload of 500 kg and test-fire it next year, the official said.

The latest move comes in response to rising risks from the communist rival, which has fired short-range rockets and missiles as well as mid-range missiles in the past few weeks in response to the ongoing joint military exercise between Seoul and Washington.

US defence chief warns China, drawing parallel with Crimea

Tokyo (AFP) - Pentagon chief Chuck Hagel on Sunday warned China against unilateral action to resolve territorial disputes with its neighbours, drawing a parallel with Russia's incursion in Ukraine as he announced two more warships would be sent to Japan.

Seeking to reassure Washington's longtime ally Japan, Hagel's remarks and promise of more missile defence ships came as Tokyo faces a tense row with Beijing over islands in the East China Sea.

China has warned the US not to interfere in Hong Kong's affairs, following a meeting between US Vice President Joe Biden and anti-Beijing activists.

A Chinese Foreign Ministry spokesman on Sunday urged Washington to "proceed discreetly" regarding the affairs of Hong Kong to avoid damage to China-US ties, Xinhua news agency reported.

The Chinese spokesman also said that Hong Kong is going through a critical time of political reform and that Beijing is opposed to interference by any country in its internal affairs.

The United State has not given up on the Israeli-Palestinian negotiating process, although talks seem to have derailed.

Deputy US State Department spokeswoman Marie Harf said Friday that the sides were still at the negotiating table, and stressed that Washington was still committed to the process despite the current lack of foresight as to where the diplomatic efforts were leading.

A Christian couple in Pakistan have become the latest to be sentenced to death for blasphemy, after they were accused of sending a text message deemed insulting to the Prophet Mohammed.

Shafqat Emmanuel and Shagufta Kausar, from the eastern town of Gojra, were sentenced after what the couple's lawyer said was a case motivated by a personal grudge.

Maulvi Mohammed Hussain, a Muslim leader from a mosque in Gojra, lodged the complaint last year, claiming that Mr Emmanuel had used his wife's mobile phone to send the offending message. Nadeem Hassan, the

CHRISTIAN COUNSELORS FORCED TO CHOOSE FAITH OR JOB

New 'bill of rights' seeks protection from 'gay' political agenda

When master's counseling program student Julea Ward, citing her Christian beliefs, refused to accept a client whose issue concerned a lesbian relationship, Ward referred the woman to another counselor.

 TOMORROW starts here

More powerful meetings start with Cisco WebEx.

Her supervisor at Eastern Michigan

University permitted the referral, but Ward was expelled from the program after she declined to go through "remediation."

Forcing counselors to choose between their faith and a degree or their vocation is the kind of decision Liberty Counsel and the American Association of Christian Counselors hope to eliminate in a new proposal they want lawmakers to adopt.

The Counselors' Bill of Rights would offer such protections as allowing counselors to identify themselves as "Christian" when advertising their services and to incorporate religious principles in their counseling should the clients desire it.

Several court cases in recent years, including one that could soon be headed to the U.S. Supreme Court, have underscored the need to protect the rights of counselors.

Liberty Counsel's founder and chairman, Mat Staver, said his organization will soon lobby lawmakers to adopt the Counselors' Bill of Rights as law.

Will Lawmakers Be Fined $10,000 Per Prayer After Defying Judge's Order and Invoking Jesus?

An atheist legal group has filed a motion accusing commissioners in Maryland of repeatedly defying a judge's order prohibiting them from praying during public meetings.

The American Humanist Association is accusing Carroll County, Md., commissioners of again violating a preliminary injunction after the board apparently invited Bruce Holstein, a campaign manager for one of the commissioners, to speak at Monday's meeting.

Holstein reportedly read a statement that criticized the judge's order and uttered a prayer explicitly invoking Jesus Christ's name.

Since none of the commissioners stepped in to stop the speech, the association is now taking action.

"We regret this action had to be taken, but the commissioners have now broken the law twice," attorney Monica Miller said in a statement.

The move comes after commissioner Robin Bartlett Frazier also ignored the order and opened last Thursday's budget meeting with an invocation referencing Jesus Christ, saying she was willing to go to jail over her religious views.

"We thought Commissioner Frazier's recitation of a sectarian prayer was a one-time incident," Miller continued. "It's now clear that she and the other Carroll County commissioners insist on continuing the practice of sectarian prayers at board meeting regardless of the court order."

CARROLL COUNTY, Md. – A Washington-based humanist group has petitioned the federal court to find county commissioners in Maryland in contempt and fine them $10,000 per prayer for continuing to allow prayers in Jesus' name despite a court order.

As previously reported, U.S. District Court Judge William D. Quarles, Jr., who was appointed to the bench by then-President George W. Bush issued a preliminary injunction last week against sectarian prayers by Carroll County Commissioners in response to a lawsuit filed by the American Humanist Association (AHA). The group had asserted that the Christian invocations violated the Establishment Clause of the U.S. Constitution, which declares that "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion."

"[Commissioners must not invoke] the name of a specific deity associated with any specific faith or belief," Quarles ruled.

But Commissioner Robin Bartlett Frazier said during the county meeting last Thursday that the judge's order is "an infringement on [her] First Amendment rights of free speech and religion," and refused to stop using the name of Jesus even if it means being placed behind bars.

"I'm willing to go to jail over it," Frazier declared. "[I]f we cease to believe that our rights come from God, we cease to be America. We've been told to be careful. But we're going to be careful all the way to communism if we don't start standing up and saying 'no.'"

She then read a prayer that she stated had been written by George Washington.

The AHA then threatened to seek contempt charges if Frazier or others with the commission continued to defy the order by delivering sectarian invocations.

In the face of an official campaign to curb the rapid spread of Christianity, thousands of Chinese Christians have camped in and around a church in the eastern part of the country in order to prevent its demolition, the Washington Post reported.

Local officials in the province of Zhejiang embarked on a campaign in February to demolish any church buildings that violated local regulations, according to a government Web site, given their concern that Christianity was growing too fast and in an “unsustainable” manner.

When leaders of Sanjiang Church in Wenzhou refused to remove small spires on the rooftop, officials threatened to tear down the entire building, according to Zheng Leguo, an evangelical church leader from Wenzhou.

A local Christian leader who requested anonymity for fear of retaliation told the Post he’s been staying in the church since Thursday with about 3,000 other Christians — some of whom are from neighboring churches and are helping to guard the building.

The American Civil Liberties Union is claiming victory in the case of a young boy who was reportedly banned from reading his Bible during an after school program in Tennessee. And in the wake of the resolution, the child's mother has said she's proud that her son defended his religious rights.

As TheBlaze previously reported, the civil rights group recently wrote a letter to Tennessee's Cannon County REACH after-school program, defending the child and attempting to clarify First Amendment protections.

According to the American Civil Liberties Union of Tennessee, REACH, a publicly funded organization, subsequently educated staff members on students' constitutional rights in public schools and circulated the letter with its staff.

"We are pleased that the REACH program has trained their staff on their obligation under the law to safeguard their students' religious liberties without imposing religion on them," Thomas H. Castelli, American Civil Liberties Union of Tennessee legal director, said in a statement. "We will continue monitoring the program to ensure that students' religious freedom is protected."

Muslims Object to Easter Eggs

By Todd Starnes

Muslim moms and dads in Dearborn, Mich. are upset after students received flyers promoting an Easter Egg hunt at a local Presbyterian church. The parents say the egg hunt violates the U.S. Constitution.

The Muslims told the Detroit Free-Press that they were concerned about the religious implications of Cherry Hill Presbyterian Church's "Eggstravaganza!" They were also troubled by images of a bunny rabbit.

"It really bothered my two kids," parent Majed Moughni, told the newspaper. "My son was like, 'Dad, I really don't feel comfortable getting these flyers, telling me to go to church. I thought churches are not supposed to mix with schools.'"

The school district did not comment and the pastor of the church said there's nothing remotely religious about the event.

Islamofascism: With an eye toward the 2016 election, the radical Muslim Brotherhood has built the framework for a political party in America that seeks to turn Muslims into an Islamist voting bloc.

"Muslim voters have the potential to be swing voters in 2016," said Nihad Awad in launching the benign-sounding U.S. Council of Muslim Organizations, whose membership reads like a Who's Who of Brotherhood front groups.

"We are aiming to bring more participation from the Muslim community."

USCMO also aims to elect Islamists in Washington, with the ultimate objective of "institutionalizing policies" favorable to Islamists — that is, Shariah law.

This development bears careful monitoring in light of the U.S. Brotherhood's recently exposed goal to wage a "civilization jihad" against America that explicitly calls for infiltrating the U.S. political system and "destroying (it) from within."

The subversive plan was spelled out in hundreds of pages of founding archives that the FBI confiscated from a Brotherhood leader's home in the Washington suburbs after 9/11.

Translated from Arabic, the secret documents listed a number of Brotherhood front organizations — some of which just happen to make up the newly formed USCMO.

Front and center is the Washington-based Council on American-Islamic Relations, the catalyst behind this Trojan horse jihadist political party.

CAIR is linked in federal criminal court documents to the terrorist group Hamas, the Brotherhood's Palestinian branch. CAIR's chief Awad, who announced the USCMO at the National Press Club, is so radioactive, the FBI refuses to do outreach with him and his so-called Muslim-rights group until it can "resolve whether there continues to be a connection between its executives and Hamas."

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — A city board on Thursday gave a Muslim group the go-ahead to remove six crosses from the roof and spires of a century-old former Catholic church so the now-vacant Gothic structure can be used as a mosque.

More than 200 people had signed an online petition calling on the Syracuse Landmark Preservation Board to deny an application by North Side Learning Center, the church's new owner, to remove the crosses and build a six-foot chain-link fence.

- The LGBTQ seminar at USCU is a one-hour performance that follows Butchy McDyke, an expert lesbian.
- The symposium is funded by outside grants and university funds.
- Earlier this month, the South Carolina House of Representatives voted to cut almost $17,142 from USCU, over literature containing gay themes.

An upcoming LGBTQ seminar at the University of South Carolina Upstate (USCU) will teach students How to Be a Lesbian in 10 Days or Less and will focus on LGBTQ cultural mores.

According to the school's website, theater artist Leigh Hendrix will perform her one-woman show, How to Be a Lesbian in 10 Days or Less, to kick off the sixth Bodies of Knowledge Symposium and Conference.

The show is a one-hour performance that follows Butchy McDyke, a motivational speaker and expert lesbian, as she "deftly guides her captive audience in an exploration of self-discovery and first love, coming out, lesbian sex, queer politics, and a really important Reba McEntire song."

Hendrix encourages her audience to shout "I'm a big 'ol dyke!" in a show that is "one part instructional seminar, one part personal story, and one party wacky performance art."

The symposium is funded by outside grants as well as university funds according to Dr. Lisa Johnson, the Director of the Center for Women's & Gender Studies at USCU.

Las Vegas Republicans Remove Marriage, Life from Party Platform

LAS VEGAS – The Republican Party of one county in Nevada recently voted to remove its definition of marriage from its party platform, as well as its position on abortion.

Members of the Clark County Republican Party largely agreed to the changes on Saturday, editing out language in the party platform that outlined their belief in marriage being only between a man and a woman. A statement affirming the party's opposition to abortion and its commitment to life was also removed from the document.

Director Nick Phillips told reporters that the adjustments came as a result of discussions during the party's committee meeting this weekend in Las Vegas. He said that black and white statements on social issues run contrary to the group's belief in personal freedom.

"We're supposed to be a party that believes in the right to make personal decisions," he told the Las Vegas Review-Journal. "This is a huge first step."

Is Your Family
Breathing Clean and Safe Air?

We'll Make Sure
of it.

While removing language from the party platform referencing marriage and the right to life, the Clark County Republican Party decided to add language to its preamble regarding "sexual orientation."

"We the people of the Clark County Republican Party affirm that this Nation and this State were founded upon the principle that all people are created equal; that the powers of government are derived from the people for the purpose of protecting the people's God given right to be free and to choose their own pursuit of life, liberty, and happiness; without regard to race, gender, religion, country of origin, or sexual orientation," it now reads.

Some reports state that the changes to the platform could be due to recent leadership's support of former presidential candidate Ron Paul, a libertarian who emphasizes his belief in personal liberty and smaller government.

"There's a benefit to having a bigger tent and welcoming everybody—whether you're gay or you're straight, or pro-life or pro-choice," Phillips told KSNV-TV. "The world changes and time changes, right?"

While the Clark County Republican Party is reportedly the first in the nation to eradicate marriage and life from its platform, some have been urging Christians for some time not to look to the Republican Party, or any specific party, as the savior.

A World Vision board member has resigned in protest of the humanitarian organization's reversal of the decision to hire employees in same-sex marriages.

Jacquelline Fuller, director of corporate giving for Google Inc., said in a statement to the Associated Press that she remained supportive of the organization, but she would not stay on its board.

"I am a huge fan of the work World Vision does around the world to help the poorest of the poor. However, I resigned as a board member ... as I disagreed with the decision to exclude gay employees who marry," she said.

Fuller has worked at Google.org for seven years and has served on World Vision's board since 2012.

World Vision President Richard Stearns released a statement thanking Fuller for her service.

"The board has benefited from her perspective and her passion to serve the poor. We wish her well as she continues to address global issues of poverty and justice," he said.

According to the AP, Steve Panton, a World Vision spokesman, said the board of directors met Wednesday and will meet within the next few days "to assess [its] past and future actions." He said no other board members have resigned.

Mozilla CEO Brendan Eich has stepped down amid a controversy over his views on gay marriage.

Mozilla Chief Executive Brendan Eich has stepped down, the company said on Thursday, after an online dating service urged a boycott of the company's Web browser because of a donation Eich made to opponents of gay marriage.

The software company came under fire for appointing Eich as CEO last month. In 2008, he gave money to oppose the legalization of gay marriage in California, a hot-button issue especially at a company that boasts about its policy of inclusiveness and diversity.

"We didn't act like you'd expect Mozilla to act," wrote Mozilla Executive Chairwoman Mitchell Baker in a blog post. "We didn't move fast enough to engage with people once the controversy started. We're sorry."

The next step for Mozilla's leadership "is still being discussed," she added, with more information to come next week.

While gay activists applauded the move, many in the technology community lamented the departure of Eich, who invented the programming language Javascript and co-founded Mozilla.

"Brendan Eich is a good friend of 20 years, and has made a profound contribution to the Web and to the entire world," venture capitalist Marc Andreessen tweeted.

Shocking Facts About The Deindustrialization Of America That Everyone Should Know

How long can America continue to burn up wealth? How long can this nation continue to consume far more wealth than it produces? The trade deficit is one of the biggest reasons for the steady decline of the U.S. economy, but many Americans don't even understand what it is. Basically, we are buying far more stuff from the rest of the world than they are buying from us. That means that far more money is constantly leaving the country than is coming into the country. In order to keep the game going, we have to go to the people that we bought all of that stuff from and ask them to lend our money back to us. Or lately, we just have the Federal Reserve create new money out of thin air. This is called "quantitative easing". Our current debt-fueled lifestyle is dependent on this cycle continuing. In order to live like we do, we must consume far more wealth than we produce. If someday we are forced to only live on the wealth that we create, it will require a massive adjustment in our standard of living. We have become great at consuming wealth but not so great at creating it. But as a result of running gigantic trade deficits year after year, we have lost tens of thousands of businesses, millions upon millions of jobs, and America is being deindustrialized at a staggering pace.

Most Americans won't even notice, but the latest monthly trade deficit increased to 42.3 billion dollars...

A mere two weeks since former JPMorgan banker, Kenneth Bellando jumped to his death, Bloomberg reports that the former CEO of Dutch Bank ABN Amro (and his wife and daughter) were found dead at their home after a possible "family tragedy." This expands the dismal list of senior financial services executive deaths to 12 in the last few months. The 57-year-old Jan Peter Schmittmann, was reportedly discovered by his other daughter when she arrived home that morning. Police declined to comment on the circumstances of his (and his wife and daughter's) death. This is not the first C-level ABN Amro banker to be found dead. In 2009, former CFO Huibert Boumeester was discovered with (assumed self-inflicted) shotgun wounds.

Former ABN Amro Group NV Netherlands Chief Executive Officer Jan Peter Schmittmann, his wife and a daughter were found dead at their home today after a possible "family tragedy," Dutch police said.

"The bodies of a father and mother and their daughter were found at the property" in the town of Laren, 32 kilometers (20 miles) southeast of Amsterdam, Dutch police said in a statement on their website today. Leonie Bosselaar, a police spokeswoman, said in a telephone call with Bloomberg News that the deceased were Schmittmann and two family members.

The police received a call around 10:30 a.m. local time from a family acquaintance who said something may be wrong at the property, according to the statement. Bosselaar declined to comment further on what may have happened.

The Dutch newspaper AD reported, without citing anyone, that the family was discovered by Schmittmann's second daughter when she arrived home this morning. She was scheduled to travel to India with her parents, where she had an internship lined up, the newspaper said.

Schmittmann, 57, joined ABN Amro in 1983 as assistant relationship manager and was named head of the lender's Dutch unit in 2003. He stepped down from the Amsterdam-based bank in December 2008, after the company was nationalized earlier that year.

Sadly, given recent trends, the default assumption is that it is suicide until proven otherwise which is just as disturbing from a sociological perspective. (on the bright side, at least as far as we know, we was not involved in HFT) but further to that, this is not the first ABN Amro senior executive to be found dead. Three of the world's largest banks have warned that the flood of "hot money" into China is at risk of sudden reversal as the yuan weakens and the US Federal Reserve brings forward plans to raise interest rates, with major implications for global finance.

A new report by Citigroup told clients to brace for a second phase of the "taper tantrum" that rocked emerging markets last year, but this time with

THE CHINESE ARE ACQUIRING LARGE CHUNKS OF LAND IN COMMUNITIES ALL OVER AMERICA

~~Has the United States ever experienced a time when a foreign nation has attempted to buy up so much of our land all at once? As you will read about in this article, the Chinese are on a real estate buying spree all over America. In fact, in some cases large chunks of land are actually being given to them. Yes, you read that correctly. China is on the way to becoming the dominant land owner in the entire country, and that is starting to alarm a lot of people. Do we really want a foreign superpower to physically own so much of our territory?

There are some that are playing down this threat by making a distinction between the Chinese government and Chinese corporations, but things work differently over in China than they do here. In China, the government is involved in everything. In fact, 43 percent of all corporate profits in China are produced by companies that the Chinese government controls. And all of the rest of the companies are very careful to follow the lead and direction of the Chinese government.

That is why what is going on in places such as Thomasville, Alabama is so alarming. Small communities such as Thomasville are so starved for jobs that they are willing to give land away for free to Chinese companies in order to entice them to build factories...

Gov. Robert Bentley said Friday that he will announce an economic development project in Thomasville, Ala., Monday morning.

That project is likely a copper tube plant to be built by Golden Dragon Precise Copper Tube Group. A legal notice published Thursday indicates that the city of Thomasville and others intend to give land and other incentives to GD Copper USA, which state corporation records identify as a Florida-based subsidiary of Golden Dragon.

And in this particular case, we are not just talking about a small plot of land. We are talking about a 40 acre chunk of land worth 1.5 million dollars...

The legal notice indicated the city plans to give Golden Dragon a 40-acre site. Thomasville Mayor Sheldon Day has said that land is in a city industrial park south of Thomasville High School. It includes a $1.5 million, 50,000-square-foot building that the city constructed in 2009 to attract businesses.

Is a 1987-type market crash 37 days away?

Investors marveling at the striking similarities of the bull market today to the one that ended in 1987 are hoping history doesn't repeat itself.

If it does, the market could be in some serious trouble in 37 trading days. In 37 trading days, the ongoing bull market would be 1,311 trading days old, says Jim Paulsen of Wells Capital Management. That is a scary date because it was on the 1,311 trading day after the start of the 1982 bull market that the Standard & Poor's 500 suffered its biggest one-day crash in history on Oct. 19, 1987. That crash snuffed out what had been a powerful market rally starting in 1982.

فلهذا أقول المسيح اقترب ميعاد مجيؤه لا احدد مواعيد بل ارفض من يحدد مواعيد ولكن اطلب

الأول نصلي ونستعد ونعد زيت لمصاييحنا لاستقبال العريس بالصلاة والصوم وخدمة أبناء الله وتنقية القلب والاستعداد بلبس العرس.

أفسس 6: 15 وَحَازِينَ أَرْجُلَكُمْ بِاسْتِعْدَادٍ إِنِّجِيلِ السَّلَامِ .

رسالة بولس الرسول الي أهل رومية 13

13: 11 هذا وأنكم عارفون الوقت انها الان ساعة لنستيقظ من النوم فان خلاصنا الان أقرب مما

كان حين امنا

13: 12 قد تناهى الليل وتقارب النهار فلنخلع اعمال الظلمة ونلبس اسلحة النور

13: 13 لنسلك بلياقة كما في النهار لا بالبطر والسكر لا بالمضاجع والعهر لا بالخصام والحسد

13: 14 بل البسوا الرب يسوع المسيح ولا تصنعوا تدبيرا للجسد لأجل الشهوات

احترس ان لم تتمسك بالمسيح من الان قد لا تستطيع في المستقبل القريب بسبب الظلام.

الثاني لا نخاف

بطرس الأولى 3: 14

وَلَكِنْ وَإِنْ تَأَلَّمْتُمْ مِنْ أَجْلِ الْبِرِّ، فَطُوبَاكُمْ. وَأَمَّا خَوْفُهُمْ فَلَا تَخَافُوهُ وَلَا تَضْطَرُّوْا،

بل نفرح

رسالة بولس الرسول إلى أهل فيلبي 4: 4

إَفْرَحُوا فِي الرَّبِّ كُلَّ حِينٍ، وَأَقُولُ أَيْضًا: اَفْرَحُوا.

افرحوا لان عريسنا قد اقترب مجيؤه. وانتبهوا الشيطان يريد أن نفقد سلامنا ولا ننال أكاليل.

وأيضاً استعدوا فقد تسلموا وديعتكم في أي وقت فهناك 150 ألف شخص يموتوا في اليوم الواحد

انت لا تعرف متى ستكون منهم

المسيح اقترب فاصنعوا ثمار تليق بالتوبة واستعدوا لاستقبال العريس.

والمجد لله دائما
