اكرر اننا لا نحدد مواعيد بل فقط نشجع بعضنا بعضا بقرب مجيء المسيح وأيضا أوضح أنه يوجد نبوات لم نراها بعد حدثت مثل ابن الهلاك وحرب هرمجدون وظهور

الشاهدين وحزقيال 38 وغيره ولا نعرف متى ولكن أشعر انها اقتربت.

ولكن ايضا علامات كثيرة من التي قال عنها الكتاب انها في الزمان الاخير وفي الجيل الأخير بدأت تحدث بوضوح ويجب أن ننتبه اليها. فلا نعرف هل المسيح سياتي في سنة ام سبع سنين ام سبعين سنة أم أكثر فكرر لا احدد مواعيد وارفض من يحددون ولكن نذكر بعضنا باننا نحتاج ان نستعد. والاستعداد ليس فقط قبل مجيء المسيح بل ايضا قبل الظلمة التي ستسبق مجيؤه ليكون عندنا زيت في مصابيحنا يكفي ان نعبر هذه الظلمة وتكون مصابيحنا مضيئة وقت مجيؤه. بمعنى نحتاج من الان ان نستعد بقوة بأيمان عامل وبتنقية القلب وإن نثمر بالخدمة أي نجمع زيت في

مصابيحنا لان الظلمة والضيقة اقتربت جدا ومن لن يستعد لها بزيت كافي من الان لن يجد زيت في الضيقة لان وقتها تجميع زيت سيكون صعب جدا بل أستطيع ان أقول من مثل العذارى انه لن يكون هناك زيت الا ما جمعته سابقا. فأكرر لا نحدد المواعيد ولكن أفضل ان اقول لنفسي ولكم استعدوا الان لأنه اقترب فنكون مستعدين سواء جاء او نحن ان سلمنا وديعتنا عن أنى لا اقول انه اقترب لكيلا يقال عني كاذب وانشر اشاعات ولكنه يأتي بسرعة بغته. لا اعتقد اي احد ندم لانه كان مستعد ومنتظر مجيء المسيح ولم ياتي المسيح في زمنه ولكنه انتقل وهو مستعد ولكن كثيرين جدا ندموا على عدم الاستعداد عندما انتقلوا

بعض الاحداث التي قال عنها الرب يسوع

21: 25 وتكون علامات في الشمس والقمر والنجوم وعلى الارض كرب امم بحيرة البحر والامواج تضج

21: 26 والناس يغشى عليهم من خوف وانتظار ما يأتي على المسكونة لان قوات السماوات تتزعزع

2: 19 واعطي عجائب في السماء من فوق وآيات على الارض من أسفل دما ونارا وبخار دخان

2: 20 تتحول الشمس الى ظلمة والقمر الى دم قبل ان يجيء يوم الرب العظيم الشهير

2: 21 ويكون كل من يدعو باسم الرب يخلص

لماذا قال المسيح بعض العلامات؟

إنجيل يوحنا 14: 29

انجيل لوقا 21

Will it or won't it? Find out why scientists think we could be in for an amazing meteor shower -- or not

MAY 22, 2014, 12:55 PM

S morning. kywatchers in North America may be in for a once-in-alifetime meteor shower this weekend if the May Camelopardalids light up the night sky early Saturday

It's been 10 years since astronmer Peter Jenniskens predicted the event, which could produce as many as 200 meteors per hour. Or not.

Raoul Ranoa / Los Angeles Times

As my colleage Deborah Netburn explained, the May Camelopardalids could happen as Earth moves into a debris field left by a small comet named 209P/LINEAR. But nothing is certain. The cloud of comet dust may turn out to be too small, or too sparse, to put on a show.

"That is the big mystery," Jenniskens told the Los Angeles Times.

Even if all goes well, the meteor shower isn't likely to be repeated. That's because Jupiter's gravity will have pulled the debris out of our way by the time Earth reaches this spot next year.

For more on the possible meteor shower -- including the best way to see it between midnight and dawn on Saturday -- check out our full infographic about the Camelopardalids.

MAY CAMELOPARDALID METEOR UPDATE: Note to sky watchers: That's not what a meteor storm looks like. On May 24th, as predicted, Earth passed through a stream of debris from Comet 209P/LINEAR, and the encounter did produce a number of fine meteors. However, contrary to some forecasts, there was no intense outburst. Typical naked-eye meteor rates were no more than 5 or 10 per hour, a far cry from the "meteor storm" some headlines anticipated.

"Even though the meteor shower was less than spectacular, it was still nice to spend the night camping out under dark skies," says Kevin Palmer of Illinois. " I captured this fireball over the Green River State Wildlife Area at 2:24 am."

El Salvador evacuates 1,000 people near stirring volcano

Posted on May 22, 2014

May 2014 – EL SALVADOR - At least 1,000 people living near the Chaparrastique volcano have been evacuated as a precautionary measure after seismic activity increased at the volcano, Salvadoran civil protection authorities said Monday. There was an explosion early Monday and the volcano then spewed reddish ash, officials said. The Civil Protection Department said in a statement that an alert had been declared for the municipality of San Miguel, where the volcano is located. The city of San Miguel itself is 50 kilometers from the volcano. It is one of the largest cities in the Central American country. The 2,129-metre volcano is about 145 kilometers east of San Salvador, the capital of El Salvador. The volcano's last significant eruption was in 1976. —CBC News

A magnitude 6.9 earthquake struck off the coast of Greece on Saturday, about 69 km (43 mi) southsouthwest of Alexandroupolis, at a depth of 10.0km (6.2mi) in the Aegean sea between the Greek islands of Limnos and Samothraki, the U.S. Geological Survey said.

The quake at 12.27pm was felt in Athens and Istanbul and scared Greek islanders, while two aftershocks 0f magnitude 4.7 at 12.31pm and 5.0 at 12.34pm followed the main quake. The U.S Geological Survey noted the possibility of strong waves as a result of the earthquake.

Huge fish die-offs in California and Minnesota. What's happening?

A lack oxygen in the water brought on by the recent Southern California heat wave is one of the reasons experts are suggesting for a huge fish die-off in the waters of Marina Del Rey. California Fish and Wildlife workers are still scooping dead sea life from the surface of the harbor Monday after thousands of dead anchovies, stingrays and even an octopus died and floated up over the weekend. The silvery blanket of fish on the water's surface created a pungent smell and set off a feeding frenzy of harbor seals, pelicans and seagulls. Marine biologists were working Monday to determine the cause, with some suggesting the recent heat wave was to blame. Similar fish die-offs occurred in Redondo Beach and the Ventura Harbor in 2011. Meanwhile, in Minnesota, researchers say that last winter's heavy snowfall is partly to blame for a fish kill that took out tens of thousands of walleye, bass, northern pike and other species on Grand Lake near Duluth. Eco Mangystau, a non-governmental agency, reported a mass fish die-off in Kazakhstan's section of the Caspian sea, Tengrinews reports.

According to Lada the incident occurred in Karazhanbas region, 214 km away from Aktau in western Kazakhstan.

"A local resident reported that on the weekend he found several hundreds of dead fish floating on the surface and on the bottom of the sea. We filed a report to the environmental prosecutor's office," Kirill Osin of Eco Mangystau said.

The prosecutor's office said that the die-off of fish in the sea was not connected to any production induced accident. "On the photos published in the media there are only dead carps. So the question arises why only carps died? It is more than likely that is has something to do with poachers activities, not some technology-related accident," the prosecutor's office said.

The Fish Inspection Department, Department of Ecology and local Sanitary and Epidemiology Station will investigate the causes for the massive die-off of fish in the Caspian Sea.

The prosecutor's office has requested water, soil and fish corpses tests. The prosecutor's office said that the results would be released after May 23rd.

CAMARINES SUR, Philippines-A two-week old fishkill has hit 70 percent of 18,770 tilapia fish cages in Lake Bato, affecting an estimated P52.5 million worth of tilapia stock Ø, the Municipal Agriculture Office said Wednesday.

Alejandro Pili, agriculture officer, in an interview, said the fishkill, which started May 7, was triggered by a sudden downpour that pushed down the mass of decaying planktons to the bottom of the lake.

A fishcage has a minimum of 40 kilos to a maximum of 100 kilos of mature tilapia stock, according to Pili, but he could not give exact figures on the value Ø of the losses since the fishkill started.

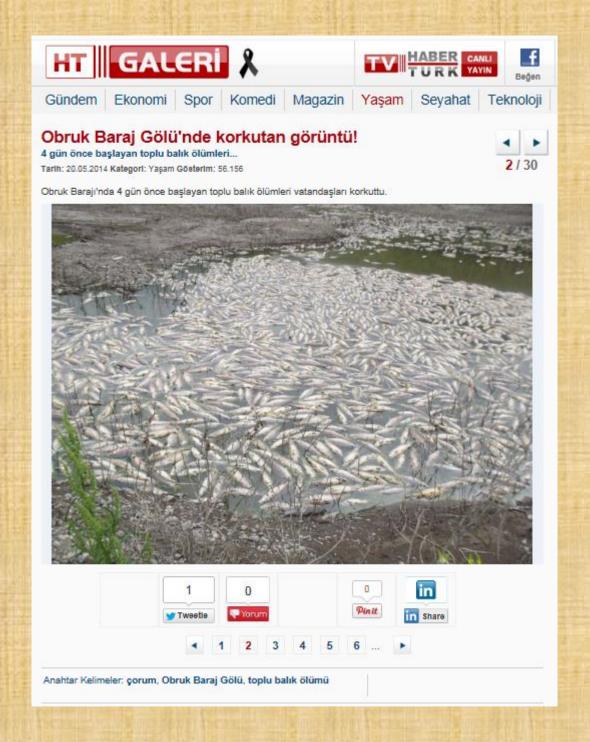

"Only three personnel are monitoring the fishkill," said Pili.

The cost of affected tilapia stocks of, however, could be estimated at P52.5 million considering the minimum of 40 kilos per fishcage affected, which could fetch a minimum price of P100 per kilo prevailing in the public

The 2,810-hectare Lake Bato is surrounded by three villages in Libon, Albay and 16 villages in Bato, Camarines Sur, based on information @ provided by Pili. There are 205 fish cage owners registered in the municipal agriculture office

Oleaje en lago Titicaca mata a 40 toneladas de trucha

Escribe: Fredy Bruno Calloapaza Canaza | Sociedad - 24 may 2014

Partimos a las 4 de la mañana de aver de Puno hacia el distrito de Juli. Después de una hora y media de viaje, la jefa del Proyecto Truchas de la Coordinadora Rural de Fondoempleo, Nancy Montesinos Condo, nos presentó un desolador panorama a orillas del Lago Navegable más Alto del Mundo, miles de peces muertos y cientos de productores de trucha como en un día de entierro.

Cerca de las 7 de la mañana, junto a los rayos del sol que resplandecía el bello paisaje, llegamos al sector Sihuayro, donde encontramos a Denis Huamán recogiendo truchas muertas, quien entre sollozos nos comentó que perdió 30 mil soles de capital, luego que murieran 3 toneladas de truchas que iban a ser comercializadas.

Luego de permanecer 15 minutos, nos fuimos rumbo al distrito de Pomata, donde constatamos jaulas de trucha arrastradas a las orillas del lago, botes destrozados, mallas rotas, pobladores aymaras en el lago que recogían las truchas muertas y otros verificando sus jaulas a unos 300 metros del lago. Similar situación se verificó en el sector del Faro en el mismo distrito.

Castelsarrasin. Des centaines de poissons morts dans l'affluent de la Garonne

Depuis jeudi soir, le ruisseau le Merdalliou est poliué, des cental ns morts ont été retrouvés par des rievrains./Photo DDM.

Des épuisettes de poissons morts dans le Merdaillou

Alerté par des riverains du quartier de Notre-Dame-d'Alem, le sang de Patrick Domingon n'a fait qu'un tour en découvrant l'état du ruisseau. «Vu la quantité de poissons morts retrouvés, il s'agit d'une pollution en profondeur du ruisseau, qui doit-on le rappeler coule dans la Garonne,» Une analyse partagée par un riverain qui ramassait, hier après-midi encore, de pleines épuisettes de poissons morts sur sa propriété. «En fait, j'ai vu les premiers cadavres jeudi soir et cela s'est amplifié tout hier, assurait ce pêcheur averti qui ne pouvait qu'être navré par cette macabre découverte. Ce qui est le plus inquiétant, c'est que même les poissons dits de fonds tels que les goujons sont morts... C'est dire si cette pollution est profonde.»

La police de l'eau à la recherche du pollueur

Informés de la situation par le patron de la Gaule Sarrazine, les agents de l'office national de l'eau et des milieux aquatiques (ONEMA) qui ont entre autre mission la police de l'eau et des milieux aquatiques, se sont rendus, hier, sur place pour tenter de retrouver l'origine de cette pollution. «Ces derniers ont bien constaté la présence d'une importante quantité de poissons morts, nous indiquait le service de communication de la préfecture. Si au départ la piste d'un rejet provenant d'une usine de peinture sur Castelsarrasin était privilégiée, les agents de l'ONEMA qui ont remonté le cours d'eau, ont eu la certitude que la pollution était bien en amont de la sous-préfecture et serait d'origine agricole.»

Les prélèvements sur les cadavres de poissons confirmaient, par ailleurs, aux enquêteurs que ces derniers seraient morts depuis déjà deux jours. Un élément qui rendrait la mission des agents de l'ONEMA d'autant plus difficile que le polluant à l'origine de cette mortalité a eu le temps de se dissiper. «Il y a peu de chance de retrouver l'origine de cette pollution agricole, les poissons étant morts depuis trop longtemps» certifiait le service de la préfecture. Une fiche de contrôle devrait désormais être produite par l'ONEMA et transmise au procureur de la République de Montauban, Alix Cabot-Chaumeton. Sans auteur visé par cette pollution, il est toutefois probable que la patronne du parquet classe cette affaire sans suite... Un constat qui faisait pousser un cri de colère au président de la société de pêche Patrick Domingon. «C'est la troisième pollution de ce cours d'eau en trois ans, et rien n'est fait. C'est inadmissible ! Tout le

MASS FISH DEATHS: MILLIONS HAVE BEEN FOUND DEAD ALL OVER THE WORLD IN THE PAST MONTH

Millions of fish are suddenly dying all over the planet

by MICHAEL SNYDER | THE AMERICAN DREAM | MAY 21, 2014

Millions of fish are suddenly dying all over the planet. In fact, there have been dozens of mass fish death events reported in the past month alone. So why is this happening? Why are fish dying in unprecedented numbers all over the world? When more than six tons of fish died in Marina Del Rayover the weekend, it made headlines all over the United States.

But the truth is that what just happened off the southern California coast is just the tip of the iceberg. In 2014, mass fish die-offs have pretty much become a daily event globally. Individually, each event could perhaps be dismissed as an anomaly, but as you will see below when they are all put together into one list it truly is rather stunning, So is there a reason why so many fish are dying? Is there something that connects these mass fish death events? Has something about our environment changed? The following are just a few examples of the mass fish death reports that have been coming in day after day from all over the globe...

*In April, 500,000 carp were found "floating belly-up in Kentucky's Cumberland

Creatures from the deep signal major Earth Changes: Is anyone paying attention?

Anna Martin Sott.net Thu, 22 May 2014 16:29 CDT

When we pay attention to what is happening with the animals of the world, they can tell us a lot about our environment and predict changes that we, as mere humans, would normally not pick up on as quickly (or at all). Like the canaries that were once used to detect toxic gas in coal mines, animals are sensitive to things that humans are often oblivious to (before it's too late), and noticing those 'things' can sometimes mean the difference between life or death for large numbers of people. Besides having senses that humans lack, animals also inhabit places that we don't, like the oceans and the skies, places that border our living space and eventually impact it. So, what happens to them often happens to us a little later.

Recently, I've noticed what seems to be a significant increase in odd animal behavior - particularly, very recently. I'll only talk about marine life here, though similar weirdness is affecting other animals and insects of the world. Let's begin with a few reports from the start of this month.

Rare and unknown fish popping up everywhere. What in the world is going on with that?

On May 1st, there was a report of a rare, nearly 7-foot-long, 100-pound Atlantic sturgeon found along the Connecticut River.

Gulf of Mexico. These strange creatures are so rarely seen that this was only the second known sighting in the area. The first ever sighting was 10 years earlier.

Goblin shark

A very strange-looking creature for sure.

Stranger still (maybe strangest of all) was a report on May 4th of an unidentified fish-like creature with huge teeth found on a South African beach. There is speculation that the creature may be some kind of mutated species. Whatever it is, it's certainly bizarre.

Public health experts have warned that controversial experiments on mutant viruses could put human lives in danger by unleashing an accidental pandemic.

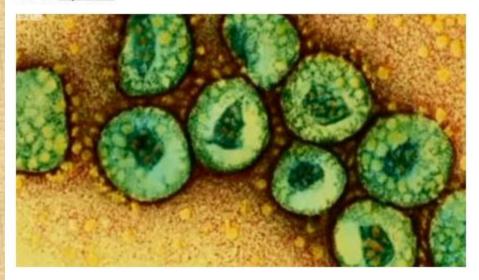

Several groups of scientists around the world are creating and altering viruses to understand how natural strains might evolve into more lethal forms that spread easily among humans.

But in a report published on Tuesday, researchers at Harvard and Yale universities in the US argue that the benefits of the work are outweighed by the risk of pathogenic strains escaping from laboratories and spreading around the world.

Two more Filipino healthcare workers die of MERS in Saudi Arabia

Posted on May 23, 2014

May 2014 - SAUDI ARABIA - The Philippines said Thursday that two of its citizens working in Saudi Arabia have died from the MERS coronavirus. Foreign Department spokesman Charles Jose said their relatives have been informed and efforts were being made to bring the bodies home. "Our consul general in Jeddah confirmed that there were two Filipinos who died of MERS," he told AFP. "The consulate is helping to repatriate their remains," he said, adding that the deaths were recorded on May 12 and 18. The identities of the two, as well as other details, were not revealed to protect their relatives' privacy. This brings the current death toll to 177 worldwide with about 652 reported infections. #### Saudi Arabia, UAE report 6 more MERS cases

May 2014 - SAUDI ARABIA - Six more MERS-CoV cases were reported today, three each in Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates (UAE), as the springtime surge of illnesses continued, though at a more modest pace than it showed through most of April and early May. Also today, the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) appealed for an urgent increase in research on MERS-CoV (Middle East respiratory syndrome coronavirus) in animals, including a systematic hunt for animal and environmental sources of human infections. The new cases in the UAE were reported today by the World Health Organization (WHO), following its receipt of a report from UAE officials 2 days ago. All three cases were in Abu Dhabi. One case in a 71-year-old man who has several preexisting illnesses and has been hospitalized since Feb 11, the WHO reported. He got sick with a fever on May 4 and tested positive for MERS-CoV 3 days later. He had had contact with another MERS case-patient, a 39-year-old female healthcare worker whose case was reported to the WHO on May 11. The second case involved a 26-year-old man whose infection was detected on May 8 through general screening at his (unnamed) workplace, though he had had no exposure to other MERS patients and no symptoms on the day of screening. He had contact with cows and sheep but not camels, nor had he consumed any raw camel products, the WHO said. For isolation purposes, he was hospitalized from May 8 to 14.

In the third case, a 36-year-old man got sick on May 2 and was hospitalized 5 days later, the WHO said. He tested positive on May 9 and then recovered and was released May 12. He had preexisting illnesses, but he had no exposure to other MERS patients, animals, or raw camel products. The three infections raise the WHO's MERS count to 635 cases with 193 deaths. The number includes 17 cases that Saudi Arabia reported from May 16 to 18. Meanwhile, the European Centre for Disease Prevention and Control (ECDC) today put its own MERS count at 658 cases and 204 deaths. The numbers are listed in the agency's weekly Communicable Disease Threats Report. Many camels in the Middle East carry the virus or have antibodies that suggest past

NORTH KOREA MAY BE ON THE VERGE OF DEVELOPING A NUCLEAR MISSILE CAPABLE OF HITTING JAPAN

No one outside the inner circle of North Korea's nuclear program likely knows what advances the country has made.

by JACK KIM | BUSINESS INSIDER | MAY 20, 2014

North Korea, which this month threatened to carry out a fourth nuclear test, may be closer than previously thought to putting a nuclear warhead on a missile, some experts say, making a mockery of years of U.N. sanctions aimed at curbing such a

North Korea has long boasted of making strides in acquiring a "nuclear deterrent", but there had been general skepticism that it could master the step of miniaturizing a nuclear warhead to mount on a ballistic missile.

No one outside the inner circle of North Korea's nuclear program likely knows what advances the country has made. But there has been a shift in thinking by some who study North Korea full time since it conducted a nuclear test in February last year and amid on-off indications it is preparing another.

WASHINGTON — The United States' top naval officer said the Navy's growing presence in the Asia-Pacific region is beginning to show results and shape events, but acknowledges it will be 'a long-term effort.' Admiral Jonathan Greenert, the Chief of Naval Operations, said he hopes the U.S. Navy will be able to expand cooperation with India once its new government takes its place.

In the world of defense spending, and defense investing, everything old is becoming new again — aircraft carriers especially.

Over the past several months, defense news headlines have been dominated by reports that everyone from India to Singapore to Japan seems to be busily building aircraft carriers. China, in particular, is said to be in the process of building multiple carriers simultaneously. Now, could the Islamic Republic of Iran be next in line to join the aircraft carrier-owning club?

According to multiple sources, Iran recently completed work on a two-thirds scale model boat resembling the American Nimitz-class nuclear-powered aircraft carrier. Curiously, the new vessel appears to come complete with airplanes on deck, and even has the "68" navy designation for the USS Nimitz (CVN-68) painted on its deck. Why?

The IRGC (Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps), the branch of Iran's military whose role is to protect Tehran's Islamic system, has published on Twitter an interesting drawing showing how they imagine an attack on an enemy warship entering the Persian Gulf.

The plan is to use several different weapons systems in a coordinated attack, opened by high speed boats to create a diversion.

Iran's Supreme Leader: Jihad Will Continue Until America is No More

Iran's supreme leader, Ayatollah Ali Khamenei, all but said on Sunday that negotiations over the country's illicit nuclear program are over and that the Islamic Republic's ideals include destroying America.

"Those (Iranians) who want to promote negotiation and surrender to the oppressors and blame the Islamic Republic as a warmonger in reality commit treason," Khamenei told a meeting of members of parliament, according to the regime's Fars News Agency.

Khamenei emphasized that without a combative mindset, the regime cannot reach its higher Islamic role against the "oppressors' front."

"The reason for continuation of this battle is not the warmongering of the Islamic Republic. Logic and reason command that for Iran, in order to pass through a region full of pirates, needs to arm itself and must have the capability to defend itself," he said.

South Korea's navy has fired warning shots after three North Korean patrol boats crossed the maritime border into its territory, it was revealed today.

The North Korean boats crossed into the South Korean waters at the Yellow Sea boundary, known as Northern Limit Line, at around 4pm local time on Tuesday.

The ships returned to the northern side after a South Korean naval vessel fired ten warning shots, an official with the South Korean Defense Ministry said.

MAIDUGURI, Nigeria, May 21 - Suspected Nigerian Islamist militants killed 26 people in two attacks on remote northeastern villages this week, demonstrating their ability to target civilians hours after a bomb killed 118 people in the central city of Jos, police said on Wednesday.

In one raid, militants opened fire on Alagarno village and razed several houses to the ground, killing 17 people overnight, a source at police headquarters told Reuters. The attack was barely 30 km (20 miles) from Chibok, from where Boko Haram Islamists abducted more than 200 schoolgirls last month.

Fifty Christians Burned Alive in Pastor's Home in Nigeria

☑ 🗇 📮 Comments 234

Security officials assess the scene of a bomb blast in Nigeria's northern city of Kaduna April 8, 2012. Suspected members of Nigerian Islamist sect Boko Haram have killed four people and a large undetonated bomb was found in Kano on Monday, authorities said, a day after at least 36 people were killed in a car bomb near a church in northern Kaduna. Picture taken April 8, 2012.

As the attacks on Nigeria's Christians continued in full force this past week, a particularly grisly attack saw fifty believers burned to death at their pastor's home, where they had fled for refuge from a terrorist attack.

Reports disclosed that over 100 people were killed by armed terrorists this past week, who went on a 12-village killing spree in Nigeria's Plateau state. Islamic extremist group Boko Haram has once again taken responsibility for the assaults.

Different sources have shared various reports of the number of lost lives from last week's assault on Christians, which have been occurring on a weekly basis for many months in Nigeria. But a story last week by the Baptist Press confirmed that about 50 members of the Church of Christ in Nigeria in the village of Maseh were burned alive after they took refuge in their pastor's house following a terrorist raid.

"Fifty of our church members were killed in the church building where they had fled to take refuge. They were killed alongside the wife of the pastor and children," said the Rev. Dachollom Datiri, vice president of the Church of Christ in Nigeria, in a July 11 interview.

Officials from the church confirmed that over 100 members were killed through various villages in Nigeria, which included Maseh, Ninchah, Kakkuruk, Kuzen, Negon, Pwabiduk, Kai, Ngyo, Kura Falls, Dogo, Kufang, and Ruk.

"Nigeria is truly becoming the new killing field for Christians. Hundreds of Christians have already been brutally murdered - including women and children - by the Boko Haram," said Open Doors, USA spokesman Jerry Dykst. "The Boko Haram earlier this week said that all Christians need to turn to Islam or 'they would never know peace again.' Their goal is make all of Nigeria a country run and dominated by Shariah law."

Can you legislate morality? (ACLJ)

You have heard people say, "You cannot legislate morality." This has been the mantra of those clamoring for the separation of church and state—meaning, to them, "Keep the church, the Bible and all forms of morality out of the public arena."

The truth, though, is laws are the legislation of morality. The confusion people have is their misunderstanding of morality. Morality is simply the divine laws that determine positive or negative results of one's actions. The fact we have a moral universe presupposes a God who demands right behavior.

Morality, therefore, is good deeds that benefits both the doer of the deed and those affected by the deed. Immorality, conversely, is simply bad deeds that hurt either the doer of the deed or those affected by the deed, and sometimes both. In other words, morality is a win-win for everyone, while immorality hurts society.

Let's take stealing, for example. "Thou shall not steal" is a written commandment from God. Simply because stealing is wrong from the Bible's standpoint, including the three major monotheistic religions, that does not mean we should refuse to implement the law because it is religious. It is no doubt religious, but it is moral as well. Stealing is wrong because, though it may temporally help the thief, it hurts the victim.

Communist officials force 1,000 Christians out of 'disturbingly eye-catching' church in China

One thousand Christians have been forced from their place of worship in a city in eastern China after Communist Party officials decided their 10-storey mega-church was an eyesore that needed to be destroyed.

A wave of church demolitions in Zhejiang province has raised fears that Beijing is reining in China's rapidly growing Christian community, which some leaders believe could pose a political threat.

Members of the Xiaying Holy Love congregation in Ningbo, a port city about 225 kilometres south of Shanghai, say local officials ordered them to vacate their church last month after a visiting politician was appalled by the size of the cross on its roof.

Their last service was held on May 11 and in recent days Christians have removed church property from the building including air conditioning units, tables, chairs, sound equipment and even the altar. Sunday services are being held in the canteen of a local school.

At an emotional final service, church leaders told hundreds of congregants of the government's decision to force them from the building, which opened last September and cost around 25 million yuan ($4.3-million) to build.

The Daily Telegraph was refused access to the church on Monday by a man who refused to identify himself and demanded a photographer stop taking pictures of the building.

'Young Atheist's Handbook': Coming to a School Near You?

11:30AM EDT 5/21/2014 lennifer LeClaire

Are we as committed to spreading our gospel as atheists are to spreading their false gospel?

What do you think would happen if Christians sent every secondary school in America a copy of a book filled with testimonies of the power of God? I reckon it would wind up in a circular file, meet with lawsuits from secularists, humanists and atheists, and otherwise set off anti-Christ fireworks.

But it seems fine and good for the British Humanist Association to send their own handbook to every secondary school in England and Wales. Indeed, these handbooks of disbelief were distributed to students in the name of free thinking.

Can you spell double standard?

The Young Atheist's Handbook, which is subtitled Lessons for Living a Good Life Without God, tells the story of Alom Shaha. Now a science teacher, Shaha was raised as a Muslim in London. When his mother died, he rejected Islam and accepted atheism wholeheartedly. Now he wants others to reconsider what they believe.

Washington's High Court Swears In First Openly Gay Justice

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — Mary Yu was sworn in as the newest member of the Washington state Supreme Court on Tuesday, marking the first time the high court has had an openly gay justice.

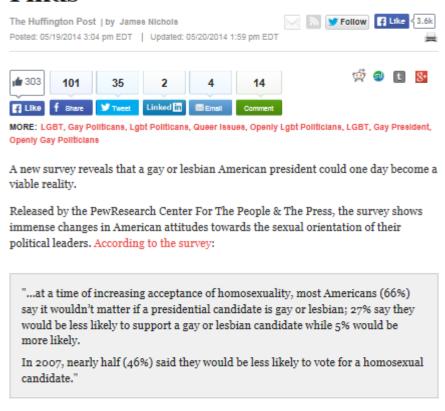

The former King County Superior Court judge was sworn in by Chief Justice Barbara Madsen following a symposium on juvenile justice that was presented at the Temple of Justice by the Washington State Minority & Justice Commission, on which Yu is a co-chairwoman.

"It means everything," Yu said following the event, noting that it was a good experience for the young attendees at the symposium to witness her taking her oath. "This is just a symbol for those young people on the panel. They can come here too, and they could be a justice some day on this court."

Yu, whose mother is from Mexico and father is from China, is also the first Asian American and first female Hispanic member of the court. She is the sixth woman on the current nine-member court and the second ethnic minority, joining Justice Steven Gonzalez.

Atheists are still the most mistrusted group in the U.S., and a godless politician is still the least likely candidate to win votes in a presidential election.

True, 53 percent of Americans said they are least likely to choose a candidate who doesn't believe in God, according to a survey conducted in April. But in 2007, that number was 63 percent.

And those who said a candidate's lack of belief didn't matter to their vote rose, from 32 percent in 2007 to 41 percent today.

Only two other categories of candidates showed a sharper shift toward more favorable views: gay or lesbian candidates, and candidates over age 70.

A 2006 study by University of Minnesota sociologist Penny Edgell found atheists were the most mistrusted minority in the U.S. Edgell said Tuesday that an updated study based on a 2014 online survey would be released soon. Preliminary results show the mistrust meter hasn't budged.

SEX CHANGE DRUGS 'TO BE OFFERED TO NINE-YEAR-OLDS'

Nine-year-olds could be given puberty-blocking drugs on the NHS as a first step towards sex change surgery, doctors say.

by NICK COLLINS | THE TELEGRAPH | MAY 19, 2014

Children as young as nine are to be prescribed drugs which delay the onset of puberty as the first step towards a sex change operation, according to reports.

The treatment will be offered by one NHS trust to children who are so troubled by their gender that they may wish to undergo drastic surgery after adolescence, according to the Mail on Sunday.

But the decision was attacked by critics who described the decision to offer the treatment at such a young age as "horrifying" and called for an immediate investigation.

Monthly injections of the drugs, known as hypothalamic blockers, are used to slow the development of the children's sexual organs by blocking the production of the hormones testosterone and oestrogen.

School Shows Children Same-Sex Marriage Propaganda Video

Δ-

4:30PM EDT 5/23/2014

Janesville School District apologized for a video shown at Craig High School that promotes same-sex marriage and condemns supporters of marriage between one man and one woman.

Alliance Defending Freedom (ADF) sent Janesville School District in Wisconsin a letter Wednesday applauding its apology for showing students a one-sided video that promotes same-sex marriage and attacks religious views to the contrary.

"Schoolchildren should receive an education that is free from ideological or political bias and that does not disparage any of their beliefs," says ADF senior legal counsel Jeremy Tedesco. "Student indoctrination is inappropriate, especially on an issue as important as marriage. Students and parents deserve better. The district recognized its mistake and deserves to be commended."

In April, students at Craig High School were shown a video that promotes same-sex marriage and condemns supporters of marriage between one man and one woman. The video shows students saying it is "insane" and "outrageous" that "only" 14 states (at the time the video was created) allow same-sex marriage. The video also shows students responding to Christian objections to same-sex marriage. Responses included, "Cry me a river, build me a bridge and get over it," "You guys are basic and nobody likes you" and "No one cares what you think."

The letter explains that Janesville School District "rightly determined that showing the video contravened its Academic Freedom and Controversial Issues in the Classroom policies" and that the video's "disparagement of religious beliefs opposing same-sex marriage likely violated the Establishment Clause."

Professor Brendan Bain is a practicing Christian who serves to treat AIDS patients.

He's a pioneer in the realm of clinical infectious diseases in the Caribbean. And now he's under fire for testifying that homosexual intercourse is dangerous to those who practice it—and to public health in general.

Professor Brendan Bain, a practicing Christian who serves to treat AIDS patients, was the director of the regional coordinating unit of the Caribbean HIV/AIDS Regional Training Network (CHART) at the University of the West Indies in Jamaica, until his anti-gay sex comments caught up with him.

Bain was fired in the wake of fallout related to his testimony on behalf of a group of churches working to keep Belize's sodomy law in place in 2012. It took two years, but now he's paying the price for his beliefs.

Bain's testimony was based on his research, which shows the relative risk of contracting HIV is significantly higher among men who have sex with other men (MSM) in Belize than in the general population. His research concludes the same truth in several other countries for which data is available, including countries that have repealed the law that criminalizes anal sex and countries where the law still applies.

Christian Concern has warned the British government of the serious health, social and ethical dangers posed by its plans to introduce a new IVF technique that will result in the creation of children with three parents.

In its response to a public consultation, which closed on Thursday, the campaign group said the proposals could lead to "lasting emotional damage" to children and submit them to serious, irreversible health risks, which would pass from generation to generation.

Ministers published draft regulations to allow the technique—known as "mitochondrial donation"—in February, saying the procedure will prevent mothers from passing mitochondrial diseases to their children. The technique involves transferring the nucleus of an egg from one woman who carries the disease to the egg of another woman with healthy mitochondria.

But Christian Concern warns that scientists have not yet shown that the technique is sufficiently safe for clinical use and could lead to health defects worse than mitochondrial disease itself.

Andrea Williams, CEO of Christian Concern, says, "The HFEA [Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority] itself has recommended that further research should be undertaken before proceeding with these proposals. The government should have waited for the conclusion of these further tests before publishing the Draft Regulations."

The Gov Says 2%... But That's A Lie Full Story And Real Number Are Here

In an interview with Greg Hunter's USA Watchdog, Williams explains that it all boils down to one critical factor. Credit lending has tightened up since the crash of 2008 and without it U.S. consumers don't have enough money to continue fueling the economy through consumption, the single most important element of economic growth.

We're turning down anew. The first quarter should revise into negative territory... and I believe the second quarter will report negative as well.

That will all happen by July 30 when you have the annual revisions to the GDP. In reality the economy is much weaker than that. Economic growth is overstated with the GDP because they understate inflation, which is used in deflating the number...

What we're seeing now is just... we've been barely stagnant and bottomed out... but we're turning down again.

The reason for this is that the consumer is strapped... doesn't have the liquidity to fuel the growth in consumption.

Income... the median household income, net of inflation, is as low as it was in 1967. The average guy is not staying ahead of inflation...

This has been a problem now for decades... You were able to buy consumption from the future by borrowing more money, expanding your debt. Greenspan saw the problem was income, so he encouraged debt

Russian President Vladimir Putin told Chinese media that the strength of Russia-China relations is at an all-time high as the two countries are reportedly finalizing a 30-year gas-supply deal.

"Now Russia-China cooperation is advancing to a new stage of comprehensive partnership and strategic interaction," Putin said. "It would not be wrong to say that it has reached the highest level in all its centuries-long history."

SHANGHAI, May 20 (RIA Novosti) — Russia and China are planning to increase the volume of direct payments in mutual trade in their national currencies, according to a joint statement on a new stage of comprehensive partnership and strategic cooperation signed during high-level talks in Shanghai on Tuesday.

"The sides intend to take new steps to increase the level and expansion of spheres of Russian-Chinese practical cooperation, in particular to establish close cooperation in the financial sphere, including an increase in direct payments in the Russian and Chinese national currencies in trade, investments and loan services," the statement said.

The two countries are also set to deepen dialogue on macroeconomic policy issues, as well as boost growth in mutual investment, including in transportation infrastructure, the development of mineral deposits, and the construction of budget housing within Russia.

Russian President Vladimir Putin arrived in China on Tuesday for high-level talks with President of the People's Republic of China Xi Jinping. A large package of documents, including bilateral, intergovernmental, inter-departmental and corporate agreements are expected to be signed during the two-day visit, aimed at cementing Russian-Chinese relations.

The decision to switch to the national currencies, thus reducing dependence on the US dollar was first announced in 2010 by then-Russian Prime Minister Vladimir Putin and Chinese Premier Wen Jiabao. The announcement was followed by a deal struck by the central banks of the two countries that allowed bilateral trade in the ruble and renminbi, as well as in freely convertible currency.

Who Needs The United States? Not Russia And China

By Michael Snyder, on May 21st, 2014

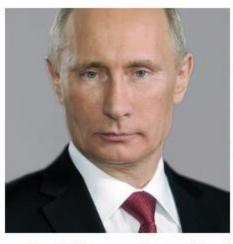

Russia and China have just signed what is being called "the gas deal of the century", and the two countries are discussing moving away from the U.S. dollar and using their own currencies to trade with one another. This has huge implications for the future of the U.S. economy, but the mainstream media in the United States is being strangely quiet about all of this. For example, I searched CNN's website to see if I could find something about this gas deal between Russia and China and I did not find anything. But I did find links to "top stories" entitled "Celebs who went faux red" and "Adorable kid tugs on Obama's ear". Is it any wonder why the mainstream media is dying? If a particular story does not fit their agenda, they will simply ignore it. But the truth is that this new agreement between Russia and China is huge. It could end up fundamentally changing the global financial system, and not in a way that would be beneficial for the United States.

re Russia and China had been negotiating this natural gas deal for ten years, and now it is finally done. Russia is the largest exporter of natural gas on the entire planet, and China is poised to become the world's largest economy in just a few years. This new $400 billion agreement means that these two superpowers could potentially enjoy a mutually beneficial relationship for the next 30 years...

> Russia reached a $400 billion deal to supply natural gas to China through a new pipeline over 30 years, a milestone in relations between the world's largest energy producer and the biggest consumer.

Putin on Obama: 'Who Made Him a Judge?'

By KIrit Radia

MOSCOW - A defiant Vladimir Putin declared today that the U.S.-led world order "has failed." Speaking to business leaders a at a forum in St Petersburg, the Russian president railed against U.S. sanctions and dismissed allegations that Russia is meddling in Ukraine, which he said was in the midst of "civil war" thanks to the West. He also rejected accusations by President Obama in unusually pointed terms.

The Russian president was addressing the St. Petersburg International Economic Forum, Russia's answer to World Economic Forum in Davos. This year fewer Western executives were in attendance after the White House leaned on them not to attend as the Obama administration seeks to isolate Russia over its policy in Ukraine and Crimea.

He urged investors "not to give in to pressure and blackmail" as the West tries to isolate Russia.

Russia Buys 900,000 Ounces Of Gold Worth $1.17 Billion In April

Published In Market Update Precious Metals on 21 May 2014 By Mark O'Byrne

Today's AM fix was USD 1,292.00, EUR 942.65 and GBP 764.81 per ounce. Yesterday's AM fix was USD 1,291.50, EUR 943.46 and GBP 767.56 per ounce.

Gold climbed $1.10 or 0.08% yesterday to $1,294.70/oz. Silver rose $0.03 or 0.15% to $19.42/oz.

Gold is marginally lower today at $1,293.50/oz and remains in lock down in an unusually tight range between $1,287/oz and $1,308/oz this week. Gold in Singapore, which often sets the price trend in Asia, traded at $1,292.23/oz prior to a bounce to just over $1,295/oz.

President Putin holds a London Gold Delivery Bar

Gold has been in a very narrow range between $1,283/oz and $1,310/oz for a month now. There are a lot of things going on underneath the surface of the calm gold market this month. That superficial calm is likely to give way in the coming days as we appear on the verge of a sharp move to the upside or downside once gold breaks out of the recent range.

A break below $1,283/oz is possible and this could see gold quickly fall to test longer term support at $1,200/oz. This is likely if the technical traders and computer manipulations continue to dominate. However, should physical demand pick up on rising geopolitical tensions and the return of Indian demand with the easing of import duties, gold should quickly challenge resistance at $1,385/oz and $1,418/oz.

Russia Buys 900,000 Ounces Of Gold Worth $1.17 Billion In April
The Russian central bank has again increased its gold reserves by another 900,000 ounces worth $1.17 billion in April.

Russia's gold reserves rose to 34.4 million troy ounces in April, from 33.5 million troy ounces in March, the Russian central bank announced on its website yesterday. The value of its gold holdings rose to $44.30 billion as of May 1, compared with $43.36

Facebook had two big announcements this week that show the company's wildly divergent takes on the nature of privacy. One announcement is that the company is encouraging new users to initially share only with their "friends" rather than with the general public, the previous default. And for existing users, the company plans to break out the old "privacy dinosaur" to do a "check-up" to remind people of how they're sharing. Facebook employees say that using an extinct creature as a symbol for privacy isn't subtle messaging, but simply an icon to which their users respond well.

Meanwhile, Facebook's second announcement indicated just how comfortable they think their users are in sharing every little thing happening in their lives. Facebook is rolling outa new feature for its smartphone app that can turn on users' microphones and listen to what's happening around them to identify songs playing or television being watched. The pay-off for users in allowing Facebook to eavesdrop is that the social giant will be able to add a little tag to their status update that says they're watching an episode of Games of Thrones as they sound off on their happiness (or despair) about the rise in background sex on TV these days. Happy to be back home

A group of 40 Bnei Menashe made Aliyah today from India, the first batch out of a total of 250 immigrants from the Lost Tribe that are slated to arrive over the coming month.

The immigrants, who hail from the northeastern Indian state of Manipur, were brought to Israel by Shavei Israel, which received permission from the Israeli government last October to bring 900 Bnei Menashe to the Jewish state by 2015.

Earlier this year, Shavei Israel brought 160 Bnei Menashe on Aliyah from the Indian state of Mizoram.

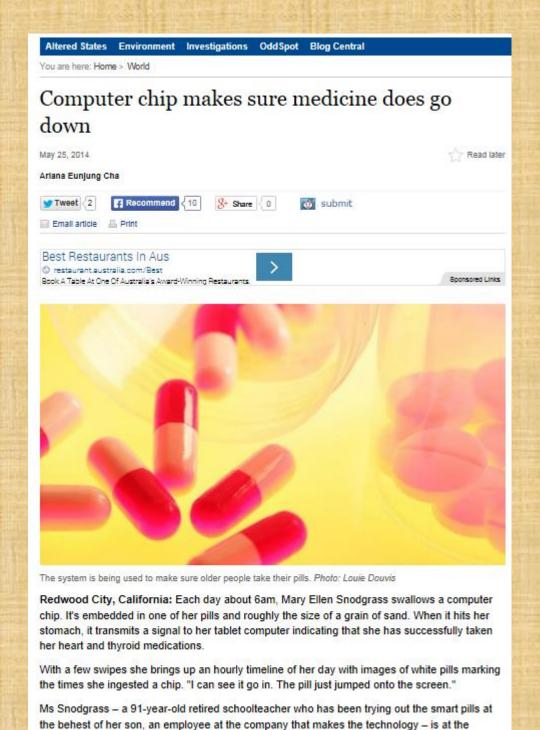

The Bnei Menashe are descendants of the tribe of Menashe (or Manasseh), one of the Ten Lost Tribes of Israel which were exiled by the Assyrian empire after the death of King Solomon more than 2,700 years ago.

The immigrants were greeted this morning at Ben-Gurion Airport by Shavei Israel Chairman Michael Freund, who led them in the recitation of the traditional Shehecheyanu blessing that is recited to give thanks to G-d on special occasions.

"Your arrival is part of the miracle, the miracle of Israel's return to its Land," Freund told the immigrants, while counseling them that "being an immigrant is not easy and you will face many challenges along the way. But always

COMPANY DESIGNS SURVEILLANCE JEWELRY THAT ALERTS POLICE IN CASE OF ASSAULT

Devices once reserved for restraining order violators track you "for your safety."

When someone thinks of GPS tracking bracelets, court mandated devices or criminals under house arrest typically come to mind, but one company is aiming to break that stigma and bring ubiquitous location monitoring into fashion.

Under the guise of providing a convenient, stylish way to "stay safe," a San Franciscobased company has produced bracelets, key chains, necklaces and hair clips with embeddable GPS sensors targeting women as the primary market, just the latest Orwellian gadget in the campaign to make Big Brother appear fashionable and trendy.

Soon to be sold under the brand name "Cuff" (not a far cry from "handcuff"), the line of jewelery, designed by former Restoration Hardware VP of Product Development, Deepa Sood, synchs with your "smart phone" to send alerts, receive notifications or track your fitness routines.

"At one press of a button, an SOS goes out to the people you designate as your protective circle when you need help," Sood explained in an interview with Elle Magazine. "Your first-responders will get an alert; will receive your location; and you can even trigger a microphone so that they can hear you in real time. In the more
