والعلامات حتى 3 يونيه 2014

اكرر اننا لا نحدد مواعيد بل فقط نشجع بعضنا بعضا بقرب مجيء المسيح

وأيضاً أوضح أنه يوجد نبوات لم نراها بعد حدثت مثل ابن الهلاك وحرب هرمجدون وظهور

الشاهدين وحزقيال 38 وغيره ولا نعرف متى ولكن أشعر انها اقتربت.

ولكن ايضا علامات كثيرة من التي قال عنها الكتاب انها في الزمان الاخير وفي الجيل الأخير

بدأت تحدث بوضوح ويجب أن ننتبه اليها. فلا نعرف هل المسيح سيأتي في سنة ام سبع سنين ام

سبعين سنة أم أكثر فكرر لا احدد مواعيد وارفض من يحددون ولكن نذكر بعضنا باننا نحتاج ان

نستعد. والاستعداد ليس فقط قبل مجيء المسيح بل ايضا قبل الظلمة التي ستسبق مجيؤه ليكون

عندنا زيت في مصابيحنا يكفي ان نعبر هذه الظلمة وتكون مصابيحنا مضيئة وقت مجيؤه. بمعنى

نحتاج من الان ان نستعد بقوة بأيمان عامل وبتنقية القلب وان نشمر بالخدمة أي نجمع زيت في

مصايحنا لان الظلمة والضيقة اقتربت جدا ومن لن يستعد لها بزيت كافي من الان لن يجد زيت في الضيقة لان وقتها تجميع زيت سيكون صعب جدا بل أستطيع ان أقول من مثل العذاري انه لن يكون هناك زيت الا ما جمعته سابقا. فأكرر لا نحدد المواعيد ولكن أفضل ان اقول لنفسي ولكم استعدوا الان لأنه اقترب فنكون مستعدين سواء جاء او نحن ان سلمنا وديعتنا عن أنى لا اقول انه اقترب لكيلا يقال عني كاذب وانشر اشاعات ولكنه يأتي بسرعة بغته. لا اعتقد اي احد ندم لانه كان مستعد ومنتظر مجيء المسيح ولم ياتي المسيح في زمنه ولكنه انتقل وهو مستعد ولكن كثيرين جدا ندموا على عدم الاستعداد عندما انتقلوا

فيجب علينا ان نذكر الكل بالاستعداد والتوبة من الان حتى لو كان سيتأخر فقد نسلم وديعتنا في اي وقت

بعض الاحداث التي قال عنها الرب يسوع

انجيل لوقا 21

21: 25 وتكون علامات في الشمس والقمر والنجوم وعلى الارض كرب امم بحيرة البحر والامواج

تضج

21: 26 والناس يغطى عليهم من خوف وانتظار ما يأتي على المسكونة لان قوات السماوات

تتزعزع

سفر اعمال الرسل 2

2: 19 واعطي عجائب في السماء من فوق وآيات على الارض من أسفل دما ونارا وبخار دخان

2: 20 تتحول الشمس الى ظلمة والقمر الى دم قبل ان يجيء يوم الرب العظيم الشهير

2: 21 ويكون كل من يدعو باسم الرب يخلص

لماذا قال المسيح بعض العلامات؟

إنجيل يوحنا 14: 29

وَقُلْتُ لَكُمْ الْآنَ قَبْلَ أَنْ يَكُونَ، حَتَّى مَتَى كَانَ تُؤْمِنُونَ.

وايضا لنتنبه ونستعد

انجيل لوقا 21

28 وَمَتَى ابْتَدَأَتْ هَذِهِ تَكُونُ، فَأَنْتَصِبُوا وَارْفَعُوا رُؤُوسَكُمْ لِأَنَّ نَجَاتَكُمْ تَقْتَرِبُ.»

Low Level Eruption at the Pavlof Volcano

The Pavlof Volcano on the Alaska Peninsula has started erupting but it's considered a low level eruption.

The Alaska Volcano Observatory raised the volcano alert level to "Watch" on Saturday after detecting a thermal anomaly at the summit of the volcano Saturday morning.

AVO issued an update Sunday afternoon confirming that the elevated surface temperatures persist at the summit of the volcano and weak incandescent glowing at the summit was observed Saturday night in the FAA web cam in Cold Bay. AVO confirms that no ash clouds have been detected in satellite images.

Some weak seismic activity is being detected on the network set up on the Pavlov Volcano and AVO confirms that some small explosion signals were detected by a distant infrasound sensor.

The National Weather Service issued a special statement Saturday afternoon about the eruption of the Pavlof Volcano. The Weather Service is warning that very light ash fall is possible in the vicinity of the volcano.

35: Ethiopian volcano spews stunning, deadly blue gas

Posted on May 31, 2014

May 2014 – AFRICA – New Scientist interviewed French photographer Olivier Grunewald, who captures striking images of nature like the Dallol volcano, located in the Danakil Depression of Ethiopia's Afar region. Grunewald's work uses no filters or digital enhancement, and the results are stunning. To capture the Ethiopian volcano, Grunewald waited until after dusk, when the blue flames were more visible against the night sky.

Wondering where the blue effect comes from? The Dallol volcano's lava is still red, like other volcanoes — the blue color appears when the flames mix with deadly sulphuric gases. Grunewald must wear a gas mask while working, but he says it's worth the risk to experience nature's wonders. "The phenomenon is so uncommon," he told New Scientist. "We really feel like we are on another planet." —The Week

Winter Haven, Florida – Winter Haven police say a possible sinkhole has opened up on Cypress Gardens Blvd, in the parking lot of a Publix shopping center. This is right across the street from Legoland.

Police say the hole is about 30 feet wide and 5 feet deep. The parking lot continues to buckle in areas out from the hole. The property owners have contacted geologists to come out and evaluate the hole.

No structures are threatened at this time. The main concern is that if its near Cypress Gardens Blvd, that could pose a problem to traffic and roadway.

In addition to the Publix grocery store, the shopping center houses a Kmart and a host of smaller businesses.

Thousands of Fish Found Dead

May. 27, 2014. 07:00 PM EDT [2:08]

00:00

PIERCE CITY, MO.— Thousands of fish are showing up dead along Clear Creek from Monett to Pierce City. Along the creek, there are fish of all sizes that are dead and there's a thick odor in the air.

"Without knowing what's there 100%, it's hard to say if it's safe to be in the water," said Teresa Boman, Aquatic Ecologist.

Aquatic Ecologist Teresa Boman first noticed dead fish in Pierce City along Clear Creek this weekend.

"If the fish are dying off, clearly that's a sign that something is happening to the water that is potentially harmful to us as a citizen," she said.

The Cattle Raisers Federation in the northeastern Bolivian province of Beni reported Thursday that at least 60,000 head of livestock have died due to the cold wave that has beset the Andean nation for a week.

Federation director Carmelo Arteaga said that the situation "is desperate" and added that the sector needs $1 billion to repurchase the cattle that have been lost and to create the conditions to face natural disasters, radio Erbol reported.

Beni, Bolivia's main beef-producing province, was one of those most affected by serious flooding registered in the country between October and March, when thousands of head of cattle also perished.

Arteaga said that the ranchers were still recovering from the damage caused by the rains, when they were surprised by the low temperatures, which worsened their situation even more.

The cold wave, which has brought low temperatures of minus 16 C (3 F) in some parts of the country, last week resulted in five fatalities due to hypothermia in Bolivia, two of them in the eastern province of Santa Cruz and three in the Andean regions of La Paz and Potosi. EFE

No concern over mass wash up of spider crab shells

ABC May 27, 2014, 10:11 am

Share

Scientists say spider crabs shed their shells before mating and can often wash up en masse.

ABC

Scientists are not concerned about a large number of spider crab shells washed up on Tasmania's east coast.

Local residents have reported the orange crabs, around the size of a human hand, have washed up on Raspins Beach at Orford in recent days.

Recreational Fishing Tasmania's Don Paton says he would like to get to the bottom of the event.

"Whether there's some viral infection that might have caught in the ocean or whether it's a natural phenomenon they actually do at certain times of the year," he said.

"It's amazing to me to think that over the last 30 or 40 years, or longer, that I've been around looking at the beaches up here most of my life, I've never seen a phenomenon like it."

Fish kill at Red River under investigation

LOVE COUNTY, OK — A popular Love County fishing spot along the Red River has recently become a fish graveyard and is being investigated.

"It's a sad sight," says Chad McMillan.

He says he's been fishing at Tucks Ferry along the Red River for close to 20 years, but this past weekend he saw something he's never seen before - hundreds of dead fish. He thinks the drought could be to blame.

"Lack of rain. We get a little water, goes into the lake, try to fill the lake back up," said Mcmillan.

Thousands of dead fish wash up on Port Credit shoreline

DurhamRegion.com

By David Paterson

MISSISSAUGA — Thousands of dead fish have washed up on the shores of Port Credit over the last three days, alarming some nearby residents.

The small, silvery fish, which are about 15 centimetres long, have been spotted all along the shoreline and at the mouth of rivers.

But though the scene may look like a sure sign of an unfolding ecological disaster, conservationists say it is a natural phenomenon caused by nothing more dangerous than fluctuations in the temperature of Lake Ontario.

The fish is believed to be the alewife, a species that is not native to Lake Ontario.

According to the University of Wisconsin's Sea Grant Institute website, it is a Atlantic Coast saltwater fish that made its way into the Great Lakes in the late 1940s.

Because the alewife is not well adapted to the freshwater environment in the lakes, it is well known among aquatic biologists for dying off in large numbers, particularly in spring when it moves to shallow waters to mate and is vulnerable to changes in the water temperature.

Jon Clayton, an aquatic biologist with CVC, speculates that high winds over the last few days could have driven colder water from the middle of Lake Ontario to the shore, and the fish couldn't cope with the rapid cooling.

He believes that people may have noticed the die-off more this year than in the past as a result of the rapidly growing numbers of alewife fish in the lake. Data from the Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources suggest that there are 681 million alewife in Lake Ontario, a number that has more than doubled since 2012.

Dead fish at Elks Lake caused by lack of oxygen

Many fish were found dead in Santa Fe lake this weekend.

Groundskeeper Bill Leeper said the cause is a spontaneous lack of oxygen in the water, something he was told can happen in some lakes by the Kansas Department of Wildlife, Parks and Tourism.

Leeper said he did not know if this would lead to a need to restock the lake.

DELAWARE COUNTY, Okla. - The Oklahoma State Department of Health has confirmed the state's first case and death of Heartland virus. A Delaware County resident died recently from complications of the virus. The virus is found in the Lone Star tick and is likely spread through tick bites.

Heartland virus was first identified in Missouri in 2009. The Oklahoma case is only the tenth person confirmed with the virus and the second person to die from it. Other cases have occurred in Missouri and Tennessee. All of the patients diagnosed with Heartland virus reported spending several hours per day in outside activities or occupations.

Symptoms can include fever, fatigue, headaches, muscle aches, loss of appetite, nausea, bruising easily and diarrhea. There is no routine testing available for Heartland virus.

There is no vaccine or drug to prevent or treat the disease. Preventing bites from ticks and mosquitoes may prevent this and other infections. The Oklahoma State Department of Health recommends the following:

- Use insect repellents, following package instructions.
- Wear long sleeves and pants when outdoors so that ticks are easily seen and removed.
- Avoid bushy and wooded areas where ticks can be transferred onto you.
- Perform thorough tick checks soon and daily after spending time outdoors.

The 53-year-old woman was one of two sisters the health ministry said on Wednesday had tested positive for the illness.

The biggest threat to human health today isn't global warming, says a group of eminent scientists, it is resistance to antibiotics.

“GLOBAL WARMING:” LAKE SUPERIOR EXPERIENCES RECORD ICE IN MAY

Ice coverage, likely the highest since at least 1897, may last into June - but Al Gore still wants carbon taxes

In complete contrast to the claims of “global warming,” Lake Superior has experienced the highest concentration of ice in late May since modern satellite records began in 1980 and the ice coverage may even be the highest since at least 1897.

In comparison, reconstructed past records on the largest of the Great Lakes of North America show that ice coverage for May is typically far, far less and ice is almost unheard of for June, which is fast approaching.

The records also indicate that average April ice coverage for Lake Superior is usually 17%, but the lake was covered nearly 60% in ice last month.

None of these facts, of course, fit into the “global warming” rhetoric promoted by the White House, which has since rebranded “global warming” as “climate disruption” in an attempt to spin this year’s record cold weather into its carbon tax agenda.

Hundreds of people have been evacuated and tens of thousands left without power after heavy floods struck southern Siberia. A state of emergency has been introduced in three regions.

Those areas are the Altai region, Khakassia Republic, and Altai Republic, said Russian Emergencies Minister Vladimir Puchkov, who added that a "high alert" has been issued for two other regions - Tuva Republic and Buryatia Republic.

Meanwhile, Puchkov also noted that other regions are at risk from the flooding - such as Sakha (Yakutia) Republic and the Amur region - due to the fact that rivers in southern Siberia have responded quickly to the heavy rains.

In the Altai Republic alone, the flooding has already destroyed 230 kilometers of roads and 1.5 kilometers of a federal highway which links Russia with Mongolia. Fifteen bridges were washed away.

Heavy floods swallowed up nearly 1,000 houses in Altai Republic, where up to 3,500 people - including 927 children - live. Hundreds are now homeless and have been forced to seek shelter in temporary accommodation centers.

Israel is to deploy three submarines equipped with nuclear cruise missiles in the Persian Gulf, the Sunday Times reported on Sunday.

According to the Times report, one submarine had been sent over Israeli fears that ballistic missiles developed by Iran, and in the possession of Syria and Hezbollah, could be used to hit strategic sites within Israel, such as air bases and missile launchers.

Over the past two months, as China's maritime disputes with Japan, the Philippines, and Vietnam have escalated, most foreign observers and American officials, though worried, have shown little concern that the conflicts would explode into a full-scale war. After all, for more than three decades China has profited enormously from being part of the global economic system. Its military, though growing, remains far less technologically advanced than American armed forces. And for 30 years, predictions that China one day would try to dominate its region by force have always been proven wrong.

Chinese Maj. Gen. Zhu Chenghu told The Wall Street Journal this week that he believes the United States is making "very, very important mistakes" with regard to territorial disputes in the South China Sea and that continuing the approach preferred by the Obama Administration will force China to become a "qualified enemy" of the U.S.

Zhu was speaking in particular about comments Defense Secretary Chuck Hagel made at the Shangri-La Dialogue, an international security forum. The United States, Hagel asserted, "will not look the other way when fundamental principles of the international order are being challenged." "The Americans are making very, very important strategic mistakes right now," Zhu told the paper, adding that the aggressive language used against China may prompt the government to begin treating the United States as a confirmed enemy, rather than merely using cautious language and pursuing relations with it:

However, China's official Xinhua news agency gave a conflicting account of the incident.

China starts building new cross-border bridge to N. Korea: report

2014/05/28 09:14

BEIJING, May 28 (Yonhap) -- China has begun building a new cross-border bridge to North Korea over the Tumen River, according to China's state media Wednesday, in the latest sign that economic relations between the two nations remain stable despite the North's nuclear ambitions.

The 804-meter-long bridge linking the Chinese border town of Tumen to North Korea is expected to open in 2015 or 2016 "as a new route for bilateral trade," Xinhua news agency reported, citing local authorities.

New cold war looms as China and Russia join forces

The US-Russia conflict arising from the Ukraine crisis has not ended but the United States has fallen into another dispute with China over the sovereignty issue in the South China Sea and the internet security problem. But a new cold war seems to be looming as China and Russia have teamed up to counter the United States.

The relations between Russia and China entered a rare honeymoon stage after Russian president Vladimir Putin visited China and Beijing hosted the Summit of Conference on Interaction and Confidence Building Measures in Asia (CICA). Additionally, China and Russia have signed a natural-gas deal worth US$456 billion and have held a joint military exercise in the East China Sea.

What did Jesus really preach? The answer may surprise you.

A depiction of first-century Jerusalem

If the Jewish Temple is ever to be rebuilt in Jerusalem, the massive curtain – 66 feet high by 33 feet wide and 2 inches thick – that once hung in the Second Temple and was consumed by fire in A.D. 70, will need to be recreated.

That task is already underway in the Jewish community of Shiloh, located in biblical Samaria about 40 minutes north of Jerusalem, reports Israel Today.

The site of Israel's Temple may be the most disputed site on earth. WND' Superstore offers a wealth of information on this amazing place.

For more than two years women from the community have been working to assemble the materials and learn the techniques needed to weave the veil that will hang between, and separate, the Holy Place and the Holy of Holies.

An atheist group is demanding the state of Iowa rescind a grant for a Christian-themed park in Sioux City, arguing that its religious nature violates the First Amendment.

The Freedom From Religion Foundation sent a letter to the state earlier in May, demanding that the state's Vision Iowa Board, which is part of the Iowa Economic Development Authority, rescind a $140,000 grant that had been awarded to The Shepherd's Garden, a Christian-themed park set to be completed in Sioux City's downtown area by September.

The park, also described by Siouxland News as a "Peace Garden," is being created from an open lot near Jackson Street and 6th Street in the city's downtown area, near the Missouri River. Although the park will include Christian themes, such as a stone path with Bible verses and prayer stations, Vision Iowa authorities argue that their funding is only going towards the project's green space development, such as the planting of trees and flowers, and not its religious content.

Tina Hoffman, Communications Director for the Iowa Economic Development Authority, told the Siouxland News that Vision Iowa is planning on paying for the non-religious aspects of the park that totals an $800,000 project. Although a grant has been awarded, a contract has yet to be drafted and signed, and the Vision Iowa board of directors is meeting in June to discuss the FFRF request.

"The board was aware that this project, it was really described as a meditation park, they knew that it had some elements to it that were religious in nature and they were clear, obviously, that state funds could not be particularly expended for those areas. The intent of the board is to make sure that the contract is explicit and clear about that component," Hoffman said in a statement.

Garrett Smith, a member of the Shepherd's Garden board of directors, told The Associated Press that the nondenominational Christian garden intentionally avoided a request for state funding of its religious elements to avoid a First Amendment controversy.

NC School District Condemns Christian Prayers at Vet Event as Violation of Policy

ASHEVILLE, N.C. — Officials for a North Carolina school district are condemning Christian prayers at a recent event honoring war veterans a violation of district policy.

The North Buncombe High School Band Boosters hosted the ceremony this past weekend as a kick-off to its "Field of Honor" flag display in honor of those who have served in the U.S. military. According to reports, the event also served as a fundraiser for the band's goal to travel to Hawaii to perform at the Pearl Harbor Memorial Parade.

The event, which was held off school property, was organized by the band boosters and attendance was voluntary. However, because the event included prayers that referenced the name of Jesus, some students and at least one parent lodged a complaint to school officials. Local Pastor Jim Dykes presented both an invocation and a benediction at the ceremony.

North Buncombe Principal Jack Evans stated that he heard a complaint from one student, as well as a mother who identifies as a pagan.

“Basically she felt like it was inclusive of only one religion,” he told the Citizen-Times. “With it being a school event, even though it was off campus and on private property, unfortunately they are probably right. That is against the policy.”

The district holds to a religion policy that requires schools to “neither advance nor inhibit any religion or religious belief, viewpoint, expression, or practice.”

Evans stated that he believes the ceremony should have more diverse to reflect a variety of faiths or no faith.

“As a school event, we should be following the expectations of our school system, and therefore it should have been more inclusive,” he said. “But it’s a learning opportunity for us.”

The district has agreed, stating that because the ceremony solely presented prayers in the name of Jesus, the invocations were a violation of the religion policy.

“The event, while not on campus, included all members of the [North Buncombe High School] marching band, so it is against the policy as it’s a school-related function,” spokesman Jason Rhodes told the Citizen-Times.

New Bible Version Puts a Modern Spin on Scripture

Christian publisher Charisma House recently unveiled a new Bible translation — one intended to hold onto scriptural tradition, while helping people discern biblical meaning in the modern era.

Described in a press release as “the most modern translation produced in the King James tradition in thirty years,” the Modern English Version (MEV) promises to offer up “fresh clarity” for today’s generation of Bible readers.

“To Bible readers who value biblical truth, the MEV literally translates God’s Word in a way that preserves the message but remains readable for today’s world,” said Tessie DeVore, executive vice president of Charisma House. “Because of this, we anticipate that the MEV will have broad ecumenical and consumer acceptance.”

Image source: ModernEnglishVersion.com

A website setup to advertise the Bible version uses the following words to describe it: “clear, reverent, accurate.”

Charisma House noted that the MEV is a word-for-word translation that takes historical facts and events at face value, helping readers more easily discern what the Bible’s authors were trying to convey.

“Every effort is made to ensure that no political, ideological, social, cultural, or theological agenda is allowed to distort the translation,” the translation’s website explained. “The Scriptures are accurately translated without loss, change, compromise, embellishments or distortions of the meaning of the original text.”

BELFAST, Northern Ireland – A 75-year-old Irish preacher was subjected to a police probe after he condemned Islam in a sermon and was accused of 'hate mongering.'

James McConnell, pastor of the Whitewell Metropolitan Church in North Belfast, Ireland, discussed the religion of Islam during an evening sermon on Sunday, May 18th. During the sermon, McConnell denounced Islam and said the contrast between it and Christianity is stark.

"The God we worship and serve this evening is not Allah," he proclaimed, according to a video of his sermon. "The Muslim god—Allah—is a heathen deity. Allah is a cruel deity. Allah is a demon deity."

McConnell then criticized the "foolish" British government for attempting to appease Muslims financially, saying Islam is "a doctrine spawned in hell." He also noted that Christians around the world are persecuted for their faith by the "fanatical worshippers" of Allah.

According to the Belfast Telegraph, McConnell's remarks were inspired by the current plight of Meriam Ibrahim—a professing Orthodox Christian woman in Sudan. As previously reported, Ibrahim was sentenced to hang after she was convicted of apostasy for refusing to deny her faith and convert to Islam.

Following McConnell's May 18th sermon, the Police Service of Northern Ireland investigated the preacher for allegations of hate crime. Northern Ireland's Deputy First Minister Martin McGuinness described the preacher's comments as "hate mongering" and said the anti-Muslim statements "must be condemned in the strongest possible terms."

"Coming in the wake of recent spate of disgraceful racist attacks against families in parts of Belfast and elsewhere, such inflammatory comments only serve to fuel hatred," McGuinness added, according to the Daily Mirror. "[It is] essential that there is a full and thorough investigation of these comments and their potential to generate further racist attacks."

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Utah Sen. Orrin Hatch conceded Wednesday it's only a matter of time before gay marriage is legal across the country, even though he doesn't think that's the right way to go.

Hatch said people who can't see what's happening aren't living in the real world. He made the remarks during an appearance on KSL-Radio's Doug Wright Show (<http://bit.ly/1koFdlh>).

"Let's face it: anybody who does not believe that gay marriage is going to be the law of the land just hasn't been observing what's going on," said Hatch, a seven-term Republican senator who has been a proponent of keeping marriage exclusively between a man and a woman.

Time, the weekly news magazine founded by CIA operative Henry Luce, is pushing the transgender agenda as the next civil rights movement.

A photo of Laverne Cox, the star of Orange Is the New Black, a comedy-drama television show produced by Netflix, is featured on the cover of the June 9 edition of the magazine.

Evan McMurry, writing for Time's website, says Cox talked with the magazine "about the movement's growing ownership of its narrative, what the world still needs to learn about trans people, and the role of the internet and social media in easing the isolation of transgender teens."

Cox says America is now "in a place now where more and more trans people want to come forward and say 'This is who I am.'"

"If someone needs to express their gender in a way that is different, that is okay, and they should not be denied healthcare," Cox said. "They should not be bullied. They don't deserve to be victims of violence."

A statement by the Royal College of Psychiatrists that people are not born gay has been welcomed as "a major admission" by a Christian charity that helps men and women change unwanted same-sex feelings.

Core Issues Trust (CIT), which is campaigning against a ban on therapy being offered to people who want to move away from a homosexual lifestyle, says the latest statement by the Royal College admits what it previously denied.

"They now say that the causes of homosexuality are a combination of 'biological and postnatal environment factors.' So, if a child does not encounter such postnatal life experiences, he or she will grow up heterosexual," says the director of CIT, Mike Davidson.

Davidson says he is incredulous that despite its admission that being gay is not fixed at birth, the college continues to support the ban on change therapy.

"The Royal College has also modified its view on whether sexual orientation can change, saying, 'It is not the case that sexual orientation is immutable or might not vary to some extent in a person's life,'" he says. "So how can that be consistent with a ban on people voluntarily seeking professional counseling to change unwanted same-sex feelings?"

In Defaming Move, Church Website Blocked as 'Porn'

World Watch Monitor

The Turkey parliament building had blocked the website for Diyarbakir Church under a porn filter. (diyarbakirkilisesi.com)

Aykan Erdemir, a member of Turkey's parliament, plans to travel to Diyarbakir Church in mid-June. This week, to prepare for his visit, he looked up the church's website.

He didn't get far. His office computer in the parliament blocked the church website with a message that it contained "pornographic" content.

Checking the websites of other Turkish Protestant churches, Erdemir and his colleagues found they also were blocked, though the filtering screens did not mention "pornography" as the reason.

The website for Diyarbakir Church, in southeastern Turkey, is not under a national ban, although on occasion, websites are banned in Turkey—the most notable in recent months being YouTube.

The block affected computers in the parliament only, and it was quickly removed after Erdemir complained.

"The lifting of the block on the Diyarbakir Church website was a small step for Internet freedoms in Turkey, but a big step for internet freedom in the Parliament," he said.

Erdemir, representing the western province of Bursa in the main opposition Republican People's Party, said the episode is a symptom of deep-rooted governmental antagonism toward Christians, especially Protestants, and of Turkey's increasing intolerance towards minorities.

A Swiss organisation that helps people take their own lives has voted to extend its services to elderly people who are not terminally ill.

Exit added "suicide due to old age" to their statutes at an annual general meeting held over the weekend, allowing people suffering from psychological or physical problems associated with old age the choice to end their life.

World food prices rose in the first quarter of the year for the first time since their all-time high in August 2012, driven by rising demand in China, drought in the United States and unrest in Ukraine.

U.S. Economy Shrinks for First Time Since 2011; Pent Demand Suggests Temporary Setback

Less is more for the U.S. economy, which suffered its first contraction since 2011 last quarter.

Gross domestic product fell at a 1 percent annualized rate, worse than the most pessimistic forecast in a Bloomberg survey of economists, revised Commerce Department figures showed today in Washington. The good news: Much of the decline was due to less inventory building that economists say can't last. As a result, some are boosting second-quarter growth forecasts, with Morgan Stanley projecting a 4.2 percent gain.

Stockpiles grew at less than half the pace than in the final three months of 2013, lopping 1.6 percentage points off GDP while businesses cut back on investment. Demand picked up entering the second quarter, giving weight to the Federal Reserve's view that the economy is recovering.

"Inventories are going to be a much smaller drag, and business fixed investment contracted but is probably going to grow in the second quarter," said Guy Berger, U.S. economist at RBS Securities Inc. in Stamford, Connecticut. What's more, "the labor market is in good shape and is moving in the right direction," he said.

May 29 (Bloomberg) -- Bloomberg's Michael McKee breaks down economic data on first-quarter GDP as the economy contracted more than expected at 1 percent. He speaks on Bloomberg Television's "In The Loop."

The US economy contracted sharply in the first quarter and bond yields have been falling at the fastest rate since the recession scare two years ago, in signs that bond tapering by the Federal Reserve is biting more than anticipated.

The slowdown comes as a key indicator of the US money supply flashes slowdown warnings, though the picture remains murky after extreme weather conditions over the winter.

Increasing numbers of young Americans are heading to college, where they're racking up debt to pay for rapidly increasing tuition costs.

Those graduating are being confronted by a challenging job market, which eventually leads many to just drop out of the labor force altogether.

This in turn has led to an increasing delinquency rate for student-loan borrowers.

So it's no surprise that young people are increasingly opting, perhaps out of necessity, to live at home with their parents.

There are many emerging markets, and particularly China and Russia, which do not really want to hold many US dollars, consequently they will move away from it in trade deals, the CEO of The Motley Fool Singapore David Kuo told RT.

The biggest energy deal between China and Russia could be the catalyst that dethrones the greenback as the world's reserve currency. Some economists, commenting on Russia and China's 400 billion dollar natural gas accord, say that the dollar is becoming rather weak since many countries are likely to prefer trading in their national currencies.

Capitalization of the bank was one of the main sticking points in the sometimes tortuous negotiations among the emerging powers to create a joint lender to finance infrastructure projects in developing nations.

Wall Street concerned over China's gold hoarding

Huang Shu-rong and Staff Reporter | 2014-06-02 | 09:21 (GMT+8)

A customs officer holds a gold ingot seized at Shahjalal International Airport in Bangladesh. (Photo/Xinhua)

The People's Bank of China, China's central bank, is the world's biggest gold hoarder and the bane of Wall Street traders, reports the Chinese-language financial news website BwChinese, citing a Hong Kong financial analyst.

Leung Hai-ming told the portal that China's central bank took advantage of the US Federal Reserve's quantitative easing program in 2013, when the price of gold fell by 27%. The bank bought in over 1,000 tonnes of gold, representing almost one third of the world's 3,756 tonnes last year.

There is reportedly less than 180,000 tonnes of gold reserves left, and only 20% of that remaining gold is tradable. This means that the People's Bank of China will likely keep hold of the gold, limiting the gold trading volume — a concern for both the US government and Wall Street traders.

The Size Of The Derivatives Bubble Hanging Over The Global Economy Hits A Record High

By Michael Snyder, on May 26th, 2014

The global derivatives bubble is now 20 percent bigger than it was just before the last great financial crisis struck in 2008. It is a financial bubble far larger than anything the world has ever seen, and when it finally bursts it is going to be a complete and utter nightmare for the financial system of the planet. According to the Bank for International Settlements, the total notional value of derivatives contracts around the world has ballooned to an astounding 710 trillion dollars ($710,000,000,000,000). Other estimates put the grand total well over a quadrillion dollars. If that sounds like a lot of money, that is because it is. For example, U.S. GDP is projected to be in the neighborhood of around 17 trillion dollars for 2014. So 710 trillion dollars is an amount of money that is almost incomprehensible. Instead of actually doing something about the insanely reckless behavior of the big banks, our leaders have allowed the derivatives bubble and these banks to get larger than ever. In fact, as I have written about previously, the big Wall Street banks are collectively 37 percent larger than they were just prior to the last recession. "Too big to fail" is a far more massive problem than it was the last time around, and at some point this derivatives bubble is going to burst and start taking those banks down. When that day arrives, we are going to be facing a crisis that is going to make 2008 look like a Sunday picnic.

If you do not know what a derivative is, Mayra Rodríguez Valladares, a managing principal at MRV Associates, provided a pretty good definition in her recent article for the New York Times...

Almost 5mn UK kids to face poverty by 2020: Study

Almost five million British children could face a lifetime of poverty by 2020 due to the government's changes to the country's welfare system, a new study shows.

According to the research, which was commissioned by the Save the Children charity and whose results were released on Wednesday, the number of children living in poverty in the UK will increase by 41 percent or 1.4 million from the current 3.5 million by the end of the decade.

This is while the British government has set 2020 as a deadline to end child poverty.

Save the Children Chief Executive Justin Forsyth said, "We're increasingly worried that unless there is a dramatic change of course, we're at risk of writing off the future of millions of British children."

Putin cuts Western ties in shift to the East

Russian President Vladimir Putin's movement eastwards can no longer be in any doubt.

Attending the St Petersburg Economic Forum, the annual meeting Putin set up in his hometown to rival Davos, last week, was almost more about who wasn't there than who was.

While evening receptions hosted by Russian companies had opulence to rival the last days of the "ancien regime" at Versailles, the high-profile U.S. attendees of recent years -- like Lloyd Blankfein of Goldman Sachs -- were notably absent. The most high-profile foreign delegates were from China, like Vice Premier Li Yuanchao.

GOVERNMENT PLAN WOULD TRANSFORM ISRAEL INTO THE WORLD'S FIRST CASHLESS SOCIETY

by MICHAEL SNYDER | AMERICAN DREAM | MAY 27, 2014

Will Israel be the first cashless society on the entire planet? A committee chaired by Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu's chief of staff has come up with a three phase plan to "all but do away with cash transactions in Israel". Individuals and businesses would still be permitted to conduct cash transactions in small amounts (at least initially), but the eventual goal is to force Israeli citizens to conduct as much business as possible using electronic forms of payment. In fact, it has been reported that Israeli officials believe that "cash is bad" because it fuels the underground economy and allows people to avoid paying taxes. It is hoped that requiring most transactions to be conducted in cash will reduce crime and help balance the national budget. And once 98 or 99 percent of all transactions are cashless, it will not be difficult for the Israeli government (or any other government) to go the rest of the way and ban cash transactions altogether. But is a cashless society actually desirable? This is a question that people all over the world will have to start asking as governments increasingly restrict the use of cash.

Back in September, it was announced that the Israeli government had formed a committee to "examine ways to eliminate cash from the Israeli economy"...

The government on Tuesday authorized establishment of a committee that will examine ways to eliminate cash from the Israeli economy – the better to prevent citizens from cheating on their taxes. The committee will be chaired by Harel Locker, director of the Prime Minister's Office.

The world wide web may seem like a global community, but two-thirds of the planet still remain without access.

Now, Google is planning to change this by launching a fleet of 180 satellites to provide web access for the 4.8 billion people not yet online, according to sources close to the company.

The California-based giant will spend more than $1 billion (£600 million) on the technology, which will rival Facebook's efforts to connect remote regions of the world.

SUSPENDED-ANIMATION TRIALS TO BEGIN ON HUMANS

by MICHELLE STARR | CNET | MAY 27, 2014

This month, the world's first attempts at placing humans in suspended animation using a new technique will take place at the UPMC Presbyterian Hospital in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania — not for space travel, but to save lives.

The technique will initially be used on 10 patients whose wounds would otherwise be lethal in an attempt to buy the surgeons some time. It works, as suggested by science fiction, by cooling the body — but not by applying an external temperature change.

Instead, a team of surgeons will remove all of the patient's blood, replacing it with a cold saline solution. This will cool the body, slowing its functions to a halt and reducing the need for oxygen. Effects similar to this have been seen in accidents: Swedish Anna Bågenholm survived trapped under a layer of ice in freezing water for 80 minutes in a skiing accident; Japanese Mitsutaka Uchikoshi survived 24 days without food or water by entering a state of hypothermic hibernation.

"We are suspending life, but we don't like to call it suspended animation because it sounds like science fiction," Doctor Samuel Tisherman, the surgeon who will lead the trial, told New Scientist. "So we call it emergency preservation and resuscitation."

Dutch Scientists Successfully Teleport Data for the First Time

 By Danielle Wiener-Bronner
20 hours ago

Scientists in the Netherlands have managed to reliably teleport quantum data for the first time, bringing us one step closer to the possible wonders of (data) teleportation. The research was published this week in the journal Science.

The New York Times explains that "teleportation" in this context refers to the instantaneous sharing of quantum information; specifically, the spin state of an electron. The Times adds that "classical bits, the basic units of information in computing, can have only one of two values — either 0 or 1. But quantum bits, or qubits, can simultaneously describe many values."

The Delft University scientists trapped electrons in diamonds at extremely low temperatures and separated them by about ten feet. By storing them in such a way, researchers were able to observe their quantum properties, and determine that the electrons had become "entangled," making it impossible to differentiate their respective electron spins. Here's a (surprisingly entertaining) video made by the scientists to explain their research:

Here's What Happened After Christians Begged God to Bring Rain to Water-Starved Texas City

Hundreds of Christians in Austin, Texas, last week sought heavenly intervention to alleviate their city's severe drought. And just days after making mass pleas to the Lord, rain came pouring down.

Divine intervention or coincidence? That's in the eye of the beholder. Either way, some much-needed precipitation came to an area of Texas that badly needed it.

Members of the Hyde Park Baptist Church prayed and fasted last week to bring rain to their water-starved lands.

"I believe that God can do big things and I believe he's going to do it," Emily Davis, an Austin resident, told KTBC-TV before the rain came.

Afterward, some said they had witnessed the power of prayer in action.

According to the Associated Press, Lake Travis is up 2 1/2 feet and Lake Buchanan is up 1 1/2 feet since the prayer event, though both bodies remain way below their average levels and more water is still needed.

Meteorologist Bob Rose noted that May is actually the month when rain generally comes, though did say that rainfall has been higher than normal in some areas.

"I speak from the scientific side right now and I'm looking at all the charts and seeing how the atmosphere behaves," he told KTBC-TV. "Our average rainfall around this area is about five inches, so in some spots rainfall has actually been above normal for the month of May."
