والعلامات حتى 10 يونية 2014

Holy_bible_1

انجيل لوقا 21

21: 25 وتكون علامات في الشمس والقمر والنجوم وعلى الارض كرب امم بحيرة البحر والامواج

تضج

21: 26 والناس يغطى عليهم من خوف وانتظار ما يأتي على المسكونة لان قوات السماوات

تتزعزع

سفر اعمال الرسل 2

2: 19 واعطي عجائب في السماء من فوق وآيات على الارض من أسفل دما ونارا وبخار دخان

2: 20 تتحول الشمس الى ظلمة والقمر الى دم قبل ان يجيء يوم الرب العظيم الشهير

2: 21 ويكون كل من يدعو باسم الرب يخلص

لماذا قال المسيح بعض العلامات؟

إنجيل يوحنا 14: 29

وايضا لنتنبه ونستعد

انجيل لوقا 21

28 وَمَتَى ابْتَدَأَتْ هَذِهِ تَكُونُ، فَأَنْتَصِبُوا وَارْفَعُوا رُؤُوسَكُمْ لِأَنَّ نَجَاتَكُمْ تَقْتَرِبُ.»

Huge 'Beast' Asteroid to Fly By Earth Soon, Live Webcast Today (Video)

By Megan Gannon, News Editor
9 hours ago

A newfound huge asteroid, nicknamed "The Beast," is expected zoom by Earth this weekend, and you can get a sneak preview of the space rock flyby today (June 5).

The asteroid 2014 HQ124, which is the size of a football stadium, poses no chance of hitting Earth in its flyby on Sunday (June 8), and will pass by at a range of three times the distance between the Earth-moon on Sunday (June 8). It was discovered on April 23 by NASA's Wide-Field Infrared Survey Explorer, a sky-mapping space telescope.

This afternoon, the online Slooh community observatory will host a live webcast preview of asteroid 2014 HQ124, beginning at 2:30 p.m. EDT (11:30 a.m. PDT/1830 GMT) at its website: <http://www.slooh.com>. You

What's going on with the sun? Scientists puzzled by oddities in sunspot cycle.

Even though sun-watchers have recently gotten the tools to dig deep into the underlying mechanisms driving sunspot cycles, it's still been hard to understand Earth's host star.

By Pete Spotts, Staff writer / June 3, 2014

This image of the sun was taken on July 24, 2007, when it was almost spotless, a sign that the Sun may have reached solar minimum. The 11 year long solar cycle is marked by two extremes, solar minimum and solar maximum. During solar minimum, sunspot and solar flare activity diminishes, and often does not occur for days at a time.

NASA/AP

Enlarge

The sun has been acting strangely of late, prompting some solar physicists to suggest that once current sunspot activity peaked, which appeared to happen last fall, it could tank and remain that way for several decades.

In Pictures: The sun: what a star!

A prolonged period with few or no spots would have a slight, temporary cooling effect on Earth's climate and a general calming effect on space weather, which would be good news for astronauts and satellites.

Recent observations of the sun show that, yes, it's still acting in a peculiar way for this point in its 11-year sunspot cycle.

Volcanic eruptions from Ubinas in southern Peru to continue next week

Posted on June 7, 2014

June 2014 – PERU – Peru's most active volcano is likely to continue its eruptive activity next week with ash emissions and occasional eruptions, government officials have said. The ongoing process of the Ubinas volcano, in south-eastern region of Moquegua, is characterized by major plume of ashes as well as by volcanic gases and explosive activity. The above former activity is expected to generate harmful effects on farming and livestock raising activities in the area, the country's Geological, Mining and Metallurgical Institute (Ingemmet) said. Likewise, the Peruvian agency announced an overall decrease in the volcano's daily seismic energy and a sharp decline in the number of explosions, lowering from more than 40 to 1 or 2 a day.

The monitoring agency said the Ubinas began erupting with new intensity this week, thus starting a continuous stream of massive volcanic rocks which are being spewed out over 1.2 miles. In view of this situation, Ingemmet decided to continue its orange alert, the second-highest alert level, and to keep prompting inhabitants of the towns of Querapi and Tonohaya to flee their homes. According to the monitoring activity hourly, Ubinas' current conditions is the eruptive process would be similar to that recorded over the last five centuries, which is low to moderate eruption. –Andina

Ground rips open in northern India, new “volcano-like eruption” reported

Posted on June 7, 2014

June 2014 – INDIA – A “volcano-like eruption” in Kangra district in Himachal Pradesh triggered panic among the people of the area. Reports said that flames and a hot liquid stream were seen spewing out of a hill 100 m from Gadiyada village. The village is over 200 km from Shimla. State geologists confirmed that the eruption is a ‘small magmatic activity.’ After the report, a team of Geological Survey of India (GSI) reached the site on Thursday. Fearing that a bigger eruption could damage their agricultural land and houses, residents of around half a dozen villages in the vicinity of the eruption are anxiously awaiting the final report of GSI team. “Gases and liquids are being emitted from holes in a 10 feet area around the hill where the volcanic activity took place,” said Ved Prakash, president of Drang panchayat. He said the eruption, unheard of in this area, caused panic among villagers. This is the first time such a volcanic activity has been witnessed in the state. Chief parliamentary secretary Jagjivan Pal in whose Sulah assembly constituency the area falls visited the spot on Tuesday. He said the flames and the hot liquid emanating from the hill had created panic. “Underground temperature in the area has increased manifold and people say that a steel electricity pole had become red hot a couple of days back,” he added. Pal said a sulphur-like material and black stone is flowing out from the perimeter of the hill. -CANINDIA

HELENA, Mont. — Seismographs have picked up a swarm of earthquakes in the northwestern corner of Yellowstone National Park, including dozens early Tuesday.

The University of Utah Seismograph Station reported five small earthquakes including those with magnitudes of 3.4, 2.7 and 3.2 in a 20-minute period starting at 3:33 a.m. in an area 16 to 18 miles south of Gardiner.

Earthquake information specialist Paul Roberson says there were another 20 to 30 small quakes Tuesday morning that hadn't yet been posted on the university's website. He called it a fairly normal swarm for Yellowstone. He didn't expect there to be any damage.

Fish kill prompts concern over water safety

By Brooke Moore

Published: June 2, 2014, 9:58 pm | Updated: June 3, 2014, 6:17 am

INDIAN LAKE, Ohio (WDTN) – Hundreds of dead fish are washing up along the shores of a Indian Lake in Logan County.

People enjoying the lake over the weekend made several calls to the Ohio Department of Natural Resources to make a report. They want to be sure the popular tourist lake is safe.

Hundreds of white bass surfaced so far.

"I've never seen this many fish before."

John Bodey has lived on Indian Lake for thirty five years. He notice a number of dead fish last week, lying on the dock behind his house.

"I think this is unusual, but it is not unusual for it to happen in some lakes."

According to the Ohio Department of National Resources, he's correct.

Thousands of fish found dead in river near Uttoxeter

Written by JOANNA CRAIG

THOUSANDS of fish have been found dead in a river near Uttoxeter and an environmental investigation is now underway to confirm the cause.

Angler Glen Pointon posted a tweet with a picture showing several dead fish on a riverbank near the River Tean.

He said: "It's one of the saddest moments in fishing I have ever seen, a river I often fish called the river Tean, a tributary of the Dove has been polluted over the last 24 hours and killed every single bit of life in the river.

"Thousands of trout fry, grayling, huge trout, stone loach, bull heads are lying in their thousands all over the bed of the river. The Environmental Agency are there now. Gutted is not the word."

An Environment Agency spokesman said: "We are currently dealing with a fish kill on the River Tean.

"The incident was reported to us yesterday evening and our officers attended the scene shortly after.

"Today we are continuing to investigate the cause, checking and taking samples on the river upstream and downstream of where the incident occurred.

"We are still assessing how many fish have died but early estimates are in excess of 1000."

Mar de peces muertos en la Laguna San José

Pescadores atribuyen el problema a la contaminación

Por Francisco Rodríguez-Burns / francisco.rodriguez@gfrmedia.com

Muchos de los pescadores opinaron que se podría evitar la muerte de los peces mediante una limpieza profunda al Caño Martín Peña. (francisco.rodriguez@gfrmedia.com)

Pescadores de la villa de la Asociación Laguneros en la Península de Cantera en San Juan, se toparon con un mar de peces muertos, escena que ya han visto en el pasado. Algunos opinaban que se trataba de un evento aislado, pero ahora el suceso se repite dos a tres veces al año.

La Laguna San José se ha convertido en la último destino de miles de peces que aparentemente mueren por la falta de oxígeno ante la alta contaminación. Los pescadores aseguran que se trata de descargas de desperdicios sólidos y una acumulación de basura que ha cambiado la topografía de la orilla.

"Se veía como un jardín de flores blancas sobre la laguna. El (pasado) viernes comenzó... Seguían bajando con la corriente y se seguía acumulando en la orilla. Se mueren por falta de oxígeno", sostuvo el pescador José A. Matos de la Paz, de 67 años de edad y residente de Barrio Obrero.

The leg of this purple ochre sea star in Oregon is disintegrating, as it dies from sea star wasting syndrome.

Just in the past two weeks, the incidence of sea star wasting syndrome has exploded along the Oregon coast and created an epidemic of historic magnitude, one that threatens to decimate Oregon's entire population of purple ochre sea stars, experts said Wednesday.

Prior to this, Oregon had been the only part of the West Coast that had been largely spared this devastating disease.

The ochre sea star, which is the species most heavily affected by the disease in the intertidal zone, may be headed toward localized extinction in Oregon, according to researchers at Oregon State University who have been monitoring the outbreak.

As a "keystone" predator, its loss could disrupt the entire marine intertidal ecosystem.

Researchers say this is the first time that die-offs of sea stars, more commonly known as starfish, have ever been identified at one time along such a wide expanse of the West Coast, and the sudden increase in Oregon has been extraordinary.

Dead fish line Saluda River's edge

June 5, 2014 Updated 20 hours ago

People walking along or paddling on the Saluda River on Wednesday were greeted by hundreds of dead blueback herring, the result of a rare early season fish kill.

The cause and the number of fish killed weren't entirely clear Wednesday afternoon.

One possible cause: A large school of herring might have been sucked into the Lake Murray dam's hydroelectric turbines and flushed into the river, according to Ross Self, chief of fisheries for the S.C. Department of Natural Resources.

S.C. Electric and Gas, which manages the lake and the hydro plant, also tested the dam spillway early Wednesday. Congaree Riverkeeper Bill Stangler says the timing of the kill and the spillway test makes that a likely cause.

读者反映

记者调查

于女士在集杏海堤闸口附近上班，从上周六开始，她就发现闸口里面的水域出现死鱼了。

事发水域在闸口里面，旁边就是厦门园博苑，水域中间拉了两道网，于女士介绍，当时捞死鱼的船主要就是在网外面，而从那两道网到闸口的这片区域则没有清理。

CAPE MAY POINT, N.J. (CBS) — Officials are investigating what caused hundreds of fish to wash ashore along the beach of a Jersey shore town.

According to State environmental officials, hundreds of fish washed up Friday morning in Cape May Point.

According to Larry Hajna of the New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection, at this point, there is no reason to believe that the dead fish are washing up as the result of any environmental issue.

SEABROOK, TX (KTRK) -- It's happened again. More dead fish have washed up in Galveston County.

On Friday, we learned of more dead fish near the Kemah Bridge at Todville Road in Seabrook. This come nearly two weeks after fish first washed ashore near the same spot.

At the time, Texas Parks and Wildlife says the shad or bait fish are likely showing up dead because of oxygen depletion.

There are hundreds of things to see, do, and talk about at the World Pork Expo this week in Des Moines, Iowa. But one subject eventually surfaces in virtually every conversation: Porcine Epidemic Diarrhea Virus, or PED. The nasty nature of this new disease has everyone talking.

A year ago at WPX, PED was a blip that had most pork producer's attention, but no one could foresee just how quickly it would spread to infect half of all the sows in the U.S. And no one knew how destructive it would be in pig farrowing houses. Painfully, now we know. Here are some of the highlights and comments from numerous seminars and conversations about PED on just the first day of WPX 2014.

7,000,000 dead piglets. PED infects the sows, who typically pass the virus to their piglets through manure and nose-to-nose contact. If the sows have had no previous exposure, they are unable to impart immunity to pigs through their colostrum. The virus unabatedly destroys the lining of the pigs gut, causing severe diarrhea and dehydration. For newborn piglets, that's almost always deadly. Howard Hill, president of the National Pork Producer's Council, says incidence estimates from Minnesota are that half of the U.S. sow herd has been infected in the last year alone. With 6,000,000 sows, that means 3,000,000 have had PED. While some sows lose 100% of their piglets, others survive, and on average the loss is 2.7 pigs per sow per year. Multiply that out, and the loss to PED is about 7,000,000 piglets, or 10% of the pig crop in the past year. About 1,300,000 pigs died from PED in January 2014 alone. "We can make up for some of the loss by better performance of the ones that survive, or less of other diseases," says Hill. "And we can feed the survivors to heavier weights to make up for some of the tonnage loss."

Good news! It's slowing down. There is good news about PED, and this might be the best example. There have been fewer reported occurrences of the disease in recent weeks. Like many viral diseases, incidence is always higher in the winter months – viruses thrive on cold. "The fact that number of cases is declining now is good news," says Tom Burkgren, a veterinarian with the American Association of Swine Veterinarians. "What we don't know is if it will pick back up again when we get back to cold weather. On some farms, just when you think you got through a PED outbreak and can relax, mortality

MERS death toll in UAE hits 10: Health Ministry

PLAY 00:04 00:53

WWW.PRESSTV.COM

The United Arab Emirates (UAE) is the latest country to confirm 10 deaths as a result of the Middle East Respiratory Syndrome Coronavirus (MERS-CoV), better known as the MERS virus.

The Emirati Health Ministry said on Wednesday that six locals and four foreign nationals have so far died from the MERS disease in the UAE since March 2013.

A total of 68 others have been also confirmed infected with the disease since the country's first case was diagnosed, Health Minister Abdul Rahman al-Owais added.

Saudi Arabia reports big jump in MERS cases, including 282 deaths: is virus already out of control?

Posted on June 7, 2014

June 2014 – SAUDIA ARABIA – Saudi Arabia reported significantly more deaths from the MERS virus on Tuesday, the same day the country sacked one of its top health officials. The Saudi Ministry of Health reported that 282 people have died since 2012 from the Middle East Respiratory Syndrome coronavirus, or MERS-CoV, a major uptick from the previous official death toll of 190. This is out of 688 total cases in the Arab nation; 353 patients have recovered and 53 are still receiving treatment. About five weeks ago, Saudi Arabia was reporting 339 known cases of MERS-CoV, 102 of which had resulted in deaths. Hospitals prepare for MERS outbreak. The new numbers came out the same day that acting Health Minister Adel bin Mohammed Fakieh announced he had relieved Deputy Health Minister Dr. Ziad Memish from his post, according to a statement on the health ministry's website. No reason was given. Last week, the World Health Organization reported it was aware of 636 "laboratory-confirmed cases" of MERS infections, which had led to 193 deaths. It is not immediately clear how Saudi Arabia's latest figures affect those numbers. There is now a grave fear among global health watch agencies that the number of MERS cases in Saudi Arabia is being under-reported. There are documented cases of the virus around the world. As a coronavirus, MERS is in the same group of illnesses as the common cold.

But it is much more lethal: The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention notes that about 30% of those infected have died. Those with MERS have severe acute respiratory illness, including symptoms such as fever, cough and shortness of breath. Some develop more dangerous complications like pneumonia and kidney failure. There is no vaccine or special treatment. MERS is thought to have originated on the Arabian Peninsula in 2012. No one knows exactly where it came from, but evidence implicating camels is emerging. In a recently published study in mBio, researchers said they isolated live MERS virus from two single-humped camels, known as dromedaries. They found multiple substrains in the camel viruses, including one that

Two mosquito-borne diseases - dengue fever and chikungunya - are posing a serious threat to Florida and residents should take steps to control mosquito populations to try to limit the danger, a leading health expert said on Wednesday.

The Florida Department of Health, in its latest weekly report, said that through last week dengue fever had been confirmed in 24 people in Florida and chikungunya confirmed in 18 people. Both are viral diseases spread by mosquito bites.

All of the infected people in Florida have traveled to the Caribbean or South America and could Even by Tornado Alley standards, the hail storm that hit Blair, Neb., on Tuesday was a whopper, with tennis-ball-sized chunks of ice pounding the town for 15 minutes. Some 27 people were injured, hundreds of homes and buildings damaged and scores of windows broken. And the biggest hit landed at the local mega car dealer, which estimates nearly 4,500 new cars and trucks suffered some $10 million in damage.

The Woodhouse Auto Family dealership chain has its flagship Ford and Chrysler/Dodge/Jeep stores in Blair, with $152 million in new-vehicle inventory — all of which was sitting outside Tuesday when the storm blew in. In one video recorded by employees and posted to the dealership's Facebook page, the hail sounds like a storm of buckshot hitting the roof.

A tornado sweeps through the midlands today as freak weather starts to hit Britain[ STU MORANT/MERCURY PRESS]

As these terrifying pictures show, a series of fearsome twisters ripped through Lincolnshire this afternoon as experts insisted 'much worse' is to come over the next few days.

The logistics boss said: "It was spotted by one of our store staff working outside looking up at the sky. Somebody rushed in and said there's a tornado.

"We dashed outside and I grabbed my camera and took a picture.

El Niño Likely: 70 Per- cent Chance by Summer

By Becky Oskin, Senior Writer
June 5, 2014 2:34 PM

Time to place your bets: The chance of an El Niño developing this year continues to rise, forecasters with the National Atmospheric and Oceanic Administration said today (June 5).

NOAA's Climate Prediction Center (CPC) puts the odds of an El Niño at 70 percent this month and 80 percent during the fall and winter. But it's too soon to officially declare an El Niño, because the ocean and atmosphere are sending mixed signals, the CPC said in its monthly El Niño outlook, released today.

Sunday, June 8, 2014, 5:41 PM - Heavy rain and snow has been affecting several regions of Chile since last Friday, directly affecting more than 3500 people.

Another 10,000 Chileans are currently stranded due to flooding or covered roads, according to officials.

Most of the affected are in the Biobio and Los Lagos regions where 12 homes were destroyed and another 140 left uninhabitable.

The system also left more than 27,000 people without power.

Following President Obama's commitment of $1 billion to expand NATO's role in Eastern Europe, Defense Secretary Chuck Hagel announced on Thursday that the United States will be bolstering its presence in the Black Sea region.

Hagel is currently swinging through Romania, a NATO member that has urged the US to increase its presence in Eastern Europe in the wake of the Ukraine conflict and Russia's accession of Crimea. Since then, the country has been a part of joint military exercises with American forces and has promised to increase its own defense spending.

According to Reuters, Hagel said President Obama's $1 billion fund would allow for a "stronger presence of U.S. ships in the Black Sea," and that the plan would mean a consistent stream of rotating vessels in the region.

"We will sustain that tempo going forward," he added.

US to boost army presence in Europe

The United States is preparing to boost its military presence in Europe at a cost of up to $1 billion, President Barack Obama says, as tensions in the region simmer over Russia's aggressive actions in Ukraine. Standing with Polish President Bronislaw Komorowski, Obama said the US plans to send more military equipment and rotate additional American troops into the region. He called on lawmakers in Washington to provide the funding to sustain the effort. Obama's announcement marks a significant departure from a two-decade trend toward a smaller US military presence in Europe amid a shift by the Obama administration to a more visible and active naval and air power presence in the Asia-Pacific region. Just three years ago the Pentagon downgraded the top US Army Europe commander from a four-star to a three-star general. "Today, I'm announcing a new initiative to bolster the support of our NATO allies here in Europe," Obama said at Warsaw's Belweder Palace. More

Russian jet nearly collides with U.S. surveillance aircraft in 'reckless' intercept in Asia

A Russian Su-27 jet flew dangerously close to a U.S. reconnaissance plane over the Pacific northeast recently in an aerial clash not seen since the Cold War.

An Air Force RC-135 electronic intelligence jet was flying a surveillance run some 60 miles off the Russian Far East coast, north of Japan, on April 23 when the incident occurred, according to defense officials familiar with the incident.

The Su-27 flew to follow the RC-135, and at one point rolled sideways to reveal its air-to-air missile before flying within 100 feet of the cockpit in an attempt to unnerve the crew.

The showdown was video-recorded by the aircrew.

Pentagon spokesman Col. Steven Warren said the Su-27 intercepted the RC-135U as it conducted a routine surveillance mission in international airspace over the Sea of Okhotsk during the afternoon of April 23.

"The Su-27 approached the RC-135U and crossed the nose of the U.S. aircraft within approximately 100 feet," Warren told the Free Beacon in a brief statement. "Senior department leaders have communicated our concerns directly to the Russian military."

A defense official said the incident was a "reckless intercept" and one of the most dangerous aerial encounters for a U.S. reconnaissance aircraft since the Cold War.

Many people find it hard to understand why China is acting the way it is in the East and South China Seas. What does Beijing hope to achieve by alienating its neighbors and undermining regional stability?

Let me suggest an answer: China is trying to build what President Xi Jinping calls "a new model of great power relations." To understand how this might be the aim of Beijing's actions, we have to recognize that under his "new model," Xi wants China to wield much more power and influence in Asia than it has for the past few centuries. These things are inherently zero-sum, so for China to have more power and influence, America must have less. This is what Xi and his colleagues are trying to achieve.

Their reasoning is simple enough. They know that America's position in Asia is built on its network of alliances and partnerships with many of China's neighbors. They believe that weakening these relationships is the easiest way to weaken U.S. regional power. And they know that, beneath the flowery diplomatic phrases, the bedrock of these alliances and partnerships is the confidence America's Asian friends have that America is able and willing to protect them from China's power.

So the easiest way for Beijing to weaken Washington's power in Asia is to undermine this confidence. And the easiest way to do that is for Beijing to press those friends and allies hard on issues in which America's own interests are not immediately engaged -- like a string of maritime disputes in which the U.S. has no direct stake.

By using direct armed pressure in these disputes, China makes its neighbors more eager for U.S. military support, and at the same time makes America less willing to give it, because of the clear risk of a direct U.S.-China clash. In other words, by confronting America's friends with force, China confronts America with the choice between deserting its friends and fighting China. Beijing is betting that, faced with this choice, America will back off and leave its allies and friends unsupported. This MANILA — China is moving ships around disputed reefs in the South China Sea that could be used to reclaim land and build structures, President Benigno S. Aquino III of the Philippines said on Thursday.

The statement by Mr. Aquino comes as China has been more aggressive in pushing its territorial claims in the South China Sea, having recently enraged Vietnam by placing an oil rig in disputed waters.

Philippine officials said the Chinese ships were photographed from the air near the Gaven and Calderon Reefs, two areas of the Spratly Islands, a part of the South China Sea that includes reefs and islets claimed by China, the Philippines and Vietnam.

China is looking to expand its biggest installation in the Spratly Islands into a fully formed artificial island, complete with airstrip and sea port, to better project its military strength in the South China Sea, a Chinese scholar and a Chinese navy expert have said.

The planned expansion on the disputed Fiery Cross Reef, if approved, would be a further indication of China's change of tack in handling long-running sovereignty disputes from a defensive stance to an offensive one, analysts said. They said it was seen as a step to the declaration of an air defence

Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu strongly criticized the Obama administration for pledging to work with the new Palestinian unity government on Tuesday, saying he is "deeply troubled" by the decision.

Additionally, Netanyahu's office threatened to levy further sanctions on the West Bank-based Palestinian Authority over its decision to reconcile with Gaza-based Hamas, which has been labeled a terrorist organization by the US, European Union, and Israel.

The remarks came just one day after the US and EU stated they would recognize and continue to fund the Fatah-Hamas governing alliance, despite objections by the Jewish state. As RT reported previously, Netanyahu had urged the world to reject the unity government due to the involvement of Hamas, a group committed to the destruction of Israel.

Speaking with the Associated Press, Netanyahu expressed frustration over the development.

"I'm deeply troubled by the announcement that the United States will work with the Palestinian government backed by Hamas," he said, adding that the group has murdered "countless innocent civilians."

In interviews here, officials underscored Israel's sovereign right and need to advance its diplomatic and security agenda through strengthened ties with Moscow, an increasingly pivotal player in the region and the world.

WASHINGTON — Many Americans have been puzzled by the bizarre behavior of soldier Bowe Bergdahl's father, Robert, during a White House Rose Garden ceremony on Saturday celebrating the exchange of his son for five top Taliban commanders.

The father began by saying his son was having trouble speaking English after five years away from home.

He then uttered the Arabic phrase that begins every chapter of the Quran, except one, "Bismillah al-Rahman al-Rahim." It means, "In the name of Allah, the merciful, the compassionate."

Report: Freed Taliban Commander Vows To Return To War Against US

The deepest concerns of critics of President Obama's decision to release five Taliban commanders from Guantanamo Bay, Cuba in exchange for Army Sgt. Bowe Bergdahl may be coming to fruition.

One of the commanders, Noorullah Noori, has plans to return to Afghanistan to resume fighting against the U.S., according to NBC News which spoke to another Taliban commander.

"After arriving in Qatar, Noorullah Noori kept insisting he would go to Afghanistan and fight American forces there," the commander told NBC News.

Last Saturday, Obama announced the release of Mohammad Fazl, Mohammed Nabi, Khairullah Khaikhwa, Abdul Haq Wasiq and Noori in exchange for Bergdahl, who was captured by the Taliban in eastern Afghanistan after he disappeared from his

North Korea Sentences Baptist Missionary to Hard Labor for Life

North Korean officials have sentenced a Baptist missionary from South Korea to hard labor for life for allegedly attempting to establish underground churches in the nation.

Kim Jong-uk was convicted of spying and other “anti-state” violations on Friday during his trial. According to reports, he admitted to the court that he had founded a church in the country. The Associated Press also reports that the missionary also helped some North Korean residents escape to South Korea.

Prosecution had sought the death penalty for Jong-uk, but his defense attorney asked for mercy, noting that the missionary “sincerely repented of his crimes and apologized for them.”

Jong-uk has been held since October, and attempts by the South Korean government to demand his release have been futile. Instead, the North Korean government has reportedly accused South Korea of “psychological warfare” against the country.

The missionary is the second to make headlines this week after facing criminal charges for engaging in evangelistic activity in the country. As previously reported, American tourist has been detained in North Korea since mid-May after he was discovered to have left a copy of the Bible in a hotel room.

“The U.S. citizen, who entered the DPRK (North Korea) on April 29 as a tourist, engaged in activities that were in breach of DPRK's laws,” wrote the country's official Korean Central News Agency.

North Korean officials also detained an elderly missionary earlier this year for leaving Christian material in a Buddhist temple during his visit. John Short, 75, of Hong Kong was released after he read a written confession of guilt, which some have characterized as being forced or staged.

“I deeply apologize for what I have done by spreading my Bible tracts on February 16th the birthday of his Excellency Kim Jong Il,” he stated, according to the North Korean outlet KCNA. “I wanted more Korean people to be Christians. Therefore, I secretly spread Bible tracts written by me.”

American Kenneth Bae, who operates a Washington-based tourist company, was likewise arrested not far from the city of Yanji in November 2012, where some Christian groups provide aid to North Korean refugees. It is stated that Bae has made a number of trips to North Korea to assist orphaned children.

As Right Wing Watch first reported, Porter slammed Disney World for the unofficial event, and called upon members of her group, Faith 2 Action, to spread the word. She also suggested families "re-think" their forthcoming visits to the Orlando-based resort.

"The homosexual agenda is planning to once again descend upon Disney World in Orlando, Fla. to expose your children to far more than Mickey Mouse and Space Mountain," Porter said, before adding that "cross-dressing men will be among those parading public displays of perversion" at the theme parks.

"If so, it will be due to the emergence of conservative Christians who say orthodox believers can support life-long, monogamous gay relationships without undermining their commitment to biblical authority."

In her column in USA Today, Powers mentions by name evangelical Matthew Vines, the homosexual author of the new book, "God and the Gay Christian," as well as New Testament scholar James Brownson, who wrote the 2013 book "Bible, Gender, Sexuality."

Manufacturing expanded in May at the fastest pace this year as American assembly-line workers responded to increased orders by cranking up production. The Institute for Supply Management's factory index rose to 55.4 from the prior month's 54.9. Readings above 50 indicate expansion. The release of the data, watched closely by financial markets as a gauge of the economy's strength, was anything but smooth. Twice the Tempe, Arizona-based group had to amend its figures due to calculation errors.

Factories are helping spur a second-quarter economic rebound after a slowdown in inventory-building led to the first contraction in three years. Sustained demand from consumers, combined with corporate orders for machinery and equipment, are helping propel sales at companies such as Cisco Systems Inc.

"The case for better growth is very good," said Ethan Harris, co-head of global economics research at Bank of America Corp. in New York, who projected a reading of 55.5. "We're kind of at the point where the economy should really have a chance to pick up speed."

The Standard & Poor's 500 Index and Dow Jones Industrial Average rose to records, erasing earlier losses after the ISM's corrections. The S&P 500 climbed 0.1 percent to 1,924.97 at the close in New York. The Dow advanced 0.2 percent to 16,743.63.

FRANKFURT - The European Central Bank ventured into uncharted territory Thursday with a raft of unusual measures meant to revive the eurozone economy by getting credit flowing to companies and preventing a debilitating bout of deflation.

The ECB was spurred into action by evidence that growth in the 18-country eurozone is too weak to keep consumer price inflation at a healthy level. The fear is the low inflation will last or, worse still, become an outright drop in prices that, if sustained, can snuff out what little growth Europe has.

The land of milk and honey is still living up to its name, according to data the Central Bureau of Statistics released Monday ahead of the Shavuot holiday. In 2013, total milk production in Israel stood at 1,435 million liters, a 2 percent increase over 2012.

Israel's cows remained the most productive in the world, producing an average of 11,780 kilograms of milk each.

Honey production was up even more. Israel's bees kept busy, producing 3,400 tons of the sweet stuff in 2013, a 9.7% jump over 2012 levels, which were 6.9% higher than in 2011.

But while the glut of honey helped prices fall 7.8% between the end of 2012 and 2013, the price of pasteurized milk rose 5.9%. More expensive dairy hits Israeli consumers hard; dairy comprises 15.2% of households' monthly food expenditures, making it the fourth-largest expenditure for families.

The milk that flowed over Israeli borders grew as well. According to the Israel Export Institute, Israeli exports of dairy in the first quarter of 2014 increased 25% compared with the same period the previous year, reaching $7 million. Over the past decade, Israel's dairy exports have increased 142%, growing from $12.2m. in 2003 to $29.5m. in 2013.

Dairy sales to North America fell 25% in 2013, while dairy exports to Asia rose 30%.

4 in 10 Americans Believe God Created Earth 10,000 Years Ago

SHOCKING! Ellen Lied!

Ellen Has Been Exposed For TRICKING THE WORLD! She Has Lied For Years!

Four in 10 Americans believe God created the Earth and anatomically modern humans, less than 10,000 years ago, according to a new Gallup poll.

About half of Americans believe humans evolved over millions of years, with most of those people saying that God guided the process. Religious, less educated, and older respondents were likelier to espouse a young Earth creationist view — that life was created some 6,000 to 10,000 years ago — according to the poll.

Though the percentage of people who believe in creationism has changed little over the decades, the percentage of people who believe humans evolved without God has more than doubled, and the percentage who believe in God-guided evolution has decreased.
