والعلامات حتى 24 يونية 2014

Holy_bible_1

اكرر اننا لا نحدد مواعيد بل فقط نشجع بعضنا بعضا بقرب مجيء المسيح

وأيضاً أوضح أنه يوجد نبوات لم نراها بعد حدثت مثل ابن الهلاك وحرب هرمجدون وظهور

الشاهدين وحزقيال 38 وغيره ولا نعرف متى ولكن أشعر انها اقتربت.

ولكن ايضا علامات كثيرة من التي قال عنها الكتاب انها في الزمان الاخير وفي الجيل الأخير

بدأت تحدث بوضوح ويجب أن ننتبه اليها. فلا نعرف هل المسيح سيأتي في سنة ام سبع سنين ام

سبعين سنة أم أكثر فكرر لا احدد مواعيد وارفض من يحددون ولكن نذكر بعضنا باننا نحتاج ان

نستعد. والاستعداد ليس فقط قبل مجيء المسيح بل ايضا قبل الظلمة التي ستسبق مجيؤه ليكون

عندنا زيت في مصابيحنا يكفي ان نعبر هذه الظلمة وتكون مصابيحنا مضيئة وقت مجيؤه. بمعنى

نحتاج من الان ان نستعد بقوة بأيمان عامل وبتنقية القلب وان نشمر بالخدمة أي نجمع زيت في

مصايحنا لان الظلمة والضيقة اقتربت جدا ومن لن يستعد لها بزيت كافي من الان لن يجد زيت في الضيقة لان وقتها تجميع زيت سيكون صعب جدا بل أستطيع ان أقول من مثل العذاري انه لن يكون هناك زيت الا ما جمعه سابقا. فأكرر لا نحدد المواعيد ولكن أفضل ان اقول لنفسي ولكم استعدوا الان لأنه اقترب فنكون مستعدين سواء جاء او نحن ان سلمنا وديعتنا عن أنى لا اقول انه اقترب لكيلا يقال عني كاذب وانشر اشاعات ولكنه يأتي بسرعة بغته. لا اعتقد اي أحد ندم لانه كان مستعد ومنتظر مجيء المسيح ولم يأتي المسيح في زمنه ولكنه انتقل وهو مستعد ولكن كثيرين جدا ندموا على عدم الاستعداد عندما انتقلوا

فيجب علينا ان نذكر الكل بالاستعداد والتوبة من الان حتى لو كان سيتأخر فقد نسلم وديعتنا في اي وقت

بعض الاحداث التي قال عنها الرب يسوع

إنجيل يوحنا 14: 29

وَقُلْتُ لَكُمْ الْآنَ قَبْلَ أَنْ يَكُونَ، حَتَّى مَتَى كَانَ تُؤْمِنُونَ.

An asteroid named The Beast has been filmed by NASA [ GETTY]

Earth has had a narrow escape after a massive asteroid named The Beast, just missed a catastrophic collision.

Travelling at 31,000mph, the 1,200ft lump of space rock could have caused an explosion the size of a nuclear bomb had it smashed into our planet.

Luckily, The Beast was being closely monitored by NASA and passed without incident.

And with the latest technology the US space agency was able to film the asteroid as it hurtled passed the earth.

The grainy image shows the asteroid careering through the night sky and is the most detailed picture ever taken

Yellow Alert declared for Tungurahua Volcano in Ecuador

Posted on June 18, 2014

June 2014 – Quito, ECUADOR – The National Secretariat for Risk Management of Ecuador today decided to change from orange to yellow the alert in Tungurahua Volcano, 80 km south of Quito, given the decline in activity. According to a report of the Geophysical Institute of the National Polytechnic School, the volcanic activity at Tungurahua has remained low in the recent days, so the authorities decided to change the level of the alert. In the first months of the year, the volcano showed an increased activity with columns of ash and gases that rose reaching four kilometers above the crater, causing the orange alert to be declared in the affected areas. Although the alert level was changed, the Secretariat said that provincial and cantonal Emergency Operations Committees should keep on alert in order to react to any situation to protect the citizens. At an altitude of five thousand 20 meters above the sea level, Tungurahua volcano erupted in 1999 and since then high activity periods with others of relative calm have been interspersed. –Prensa Latina

39: Sabancaya Volcano in southern Peru wakes up after 15 year slumber

Posted on June 18, 2014

June 2014 – PERU - Geological authorities are reporting that the Sabancaya volcano in southern Peru has become active after 15 years of silence. According to information released by the Peruvian Geophysical Institute (IGP), Sabancaya has erupted several times. The first recorded activity at Sabancaya was in 1750, and the volcano became active again in 1784. 200 years later, in 1986, the volcano once again displayed activity. Now, the volcano is once again active, having gradually intensified since late February. Speaking to El Comercio, IGP investigator Orlando Macedo said "All this activity is part of an expected process. Before the eruption, tremors were occurring closer and closer to the volcano and the crater. However, the process is taking longer than that which we saw at the Ubinas Volcano, when everything happened in a matter of days. In the case of Sabancaya, this could go on for several months." In addition to seismic activity, Sabancaya has also emitted plumes of smoke. No thermic anomalies have been observed by the IGP. According to the IGP, three seismic monitoring stations are keeping watch over activity at Sabancaya. Sabancaya, located in the southern region of Arequipa, is part of a volcanic complex that includes Hualca-Hualca and Ampato. – Peru

Earth's largest active volcano shows signs of life in Hawaii.

Mauna Loa, the world's largest active volcano, has rumbled back to life in Hawaii over the past 13 months with more seismic activity than at any time since its last eruption, scientists say, while calling it too soon to predict another blast. The volcano, which last erupted in 1975 and 1984, has been rattled since March 2013 by earthquakes of the same type and in the same location as the temblors that preceded those explosions, said Wes Thelen, a seismologist for the US Geological Survey's Hawaiian Volcano Observatory. ## 40: Reunion Island volcano wakes up after 4 years with major eruption

June 2014 – REUNION ISLAND – This morning at 1:35 am tourists on the French Indian Ocean Islands La Reunion witnessed a spectacular many had been waiting to see for some time. The Piton de la Fournaise volcano erupted. "It made a few days that we were waiting for it, said Pascal Viroleau, CEO of Reunion Island Tourism, about the eruption of the volcano of Reunion Island, the Piton de la fournaise. According to Viroleau, "the volcano entered in activity this morning at 1:35 am." Most recently, an eruption occurred on December 9, 2010 and lasted for two days. The volcano is located within Réunion National Park, a World Heritage site. It is considered one of the major attractions of the Indian Ocean Vanilla Islands. "Sleeping since December 2010," Piton de la fournaise is considered as one of the major attractions of the Indian Ocean Vanilla Islands. Situated in the national park, classified in the World heritage by the UNESCO, its visit, combined with the attractions of the other islands constitutes a "must-seen" at the world level, added Viroleau. Piton de la Fournaise, a typical basaltic shield volcano, located on the French island La Réunion, is one of the world's most active and productive volcanoes. It is in a phase of frequent but short-lived eruptions that start with lava fountains and produce large lava flows. Since the active areas of the volcano are not inhabited, its eruptions pose little danger and cause little damage. Piton de la Fournaise is a typical example

June 2014 – ALASKA – Sharply increased seismic activity and volcanic eruptions in the Aleutian Islands and the far western Brooks Range are being investigated by scientists. The Alaska Volcano Observatory says the activity over the past few months is the most seen by the station in 26 years. On the Alaska Volcano Observatory three volcanoes are classified with a yellow alert level—signifying signs of elevated unrest above known background levels—and three are at an orange alert level—heightened unrest with increased likelihood of eruption. Orange is the second-highest alert level after red signifying an eruption that is imminent or underway.

Pavlof Volcano released an ash plume in May that diverted aircraft. The 8,262-foot (2,518-meter) tall volcano erupted sending ash plumes as high as 30,000 feet (9,144 meters). Aircraft were advised to avoid the area since ash could damage airplane engines. With heightened activity from all volcanoes, scientists still don't have enough information to point to any larger trend or activity. "At this point, you know, we have to say it's coincidental," he said in an interview with radio station KTOO News. "It could be that there is a larger process at work, but we're not able to say what that is at this point in time, or if there is such a process. You know, perhaps the answer is we haven't been looking long enough to know." –Mining

Swarm of Earthquakes in Alaska Puzzles Scientists

ANCHORAGE, Alaska June 16, 2014 (AP)

By RACHEL D'ORO Associated Press

A moderate earthquake shook northwest Alaska on Monday, the fifth temblor of the same magnitude since April in an area with otherwise little activity, seismologists said.

The magnitude-5.7 quake struck at 4:01 a.m. Monday northeast of the village of Noatak, the Alaska Earthquake Center reported. As with other temblors in the earthquake swarm, the quake was felt in Noatak, an Inupiat Eskimo community of 560 people.

"It woke me up," said resident Alvin Ashby. "Some people slept through it."

People there aren't used to earthquakes, and these have some residents worried, said Ashby, who has lived in the community most of his life.

Before the swarm that began April 18, the last known quake of similar size in the area was a magnitude-5.5 quake that occurred in 1981, earthquake center seismologist Natasha Ruppert said.

The swarm of magnitude-5.7 quakes is connected to more than 300 smaller aftershocks, some with magnitudes in the high 3s, Ruppert said. The first quake and the others of that magnitude have been located in roughly the same area about 20 miles from Noatak. The community is 70 miles north of the Arctic Circle.

Monday's quake was preceded by one minute by a magnitude-4.2 foreshock and followed by at least 10 aftershocks.

Minor damage from the earthquakes includes cracks in walls in Noatak, but no injuries have been reported.

Ruppert said old seismic faults have been mapped in the area, but there are no known active faults, although that doesn't mean there aren't any. She said sometimes surface fault scars could be hidden by vegetation or glacial deposits.

"Obviously, since we are having all this earthquake activity, there must be some active faults in the area," Ruppert said.

Officials Preparing For Major Kentucky Earthquake

It's been more than 200 year since Kentucky saw its last catastrophic earthquake, but officials said the state is at high risk for another one.

"It's not if it's going to happen, it's when it's going to happen," Michael Dossett of Kentucky Emergency Management said.

Officials from all over the state crammed into the Emergency Operations Center in Frankfort to prepare for the worst.

"If you prepare for a catastrophic event of this nature where hundreds of thousands will be in peril, you'll be prepared in each state for all other type of disasters that we face," Dossett said.

The new Madrid Seismic Zone is a large fault line running through several states including Kentucky.

Sinkhole Swallows Metro Bus Near Cincinnati Zoo

A massive sinkhole near the Cincinnati Zoo that trapped a Metro bus Thursday night will likely take a month to fix, according to a Metropolitan Sewer District official. The bus was partially stuck in the a 15-deep hole that spans about 15 feet wide near the intersection of Vine and Shields streets around 9 p.m., said Cincinnati police Lt. Tim Brown, the night chief. "It's crazy," he said. "It looks like the road just fell out under the bus while it was sitting at the light," described one witness, a resident. The bus was towed overnight. More

S. Korea reports new case of bird flu

An additional outbreak of bird flu has been confirmed, the government said Saturday, dashing hopes that the avian influenza (AI) in the country is under control.

The new case of highly pathogenic AI was reported at a duck farm in Hoengseong, about 90 kilometers east of Seoul, earlier this week, and hundreds of ducks and chickens have already been slaughtered in order to prevent a spread of the animal disease into nearby regions, according to the Ministry of Agriculture, Food and Rural Affairs.

The confirmed bird flu case, the latest in 20 days, came as the government was set to announce later this month that the animal disease is completely under control.

South Korea suffered an AI breakout in February, possibly caused by migratory birds from China. Over 13.8 million birds here have been slaughtered since the outbreak was first reported at a duck farm on Feb. 16.

Health officials here have said the bird flu poses no immediate threats to humans, with no human infection of the strain reported so far. (Yonhap)

More Animals Found Dead Near Old Hickory Lake

Posted: Jun 16, 2014 4:12 PM MDT

by Adam Ghassemi

MT. JULIET, Tenn. – The homeowner who found around two dozen animals dead on her property near Old Hickory Lake said more animals have died.

NewsChannel 5 first reported about the animals deaths Monday. Property owner Michelle Desirey said the day before her husband had seen ducks suddenly fly into the rocks and die.

"He saw two wild ducks fly in that never got in the water. They landed on the rocks and immediately had something like a seizure, and then just died right there," she said. "In five minutes they were all dead. It was heartbreaking."

Over the next 24 hours they found more than 20 dead ducks. Monday, they even found a dead raccoon and woodpecker in the same area.

Desirey said three more ducks died Tuesday. The family raises domestic ducks and has worried that whatever is killing the wild ones could kill theirs, as well.

Officers from the Tennessee Wildlife Resources Agency have been investigating.

Desirey said they were staying away from the lake until they knew more about what was killing the wildlife.

"We're not going to fish or eat any fish out of the lake. We're probably not going to swim in the lake," she said.

Number of unexplained deaths of seabirds

• DOMESTIC 13:52 PM, JUNE 16, 2014

SVAVAR HÁVARÐSSON WRITES:

Number three species of seabirds were found dead on the Snæfellsnes Fróðárrífi last week. Since mid-May, also found 50 dead eiders of eider ducks conveniently. Reasons bird deaths are not available, but no visible signs of birds which may explain the number of death.

"The bird was scattered throughout the water and scrapped," said Sigurdur Sigurdsson, one knowledgeable landowners, who passed over the dead birds and announced the Natural History West (NW) from its meeting on Wednesday.

According Menia von Schmalensee, a specialist in NV, were found two days later dead 70 written on a small area of the rib, along with dead skörfum the eider duck. In addition, the site found dead flundrur, a petite flatfish that had washed ashore Bugs Lakes in propulsion. ## Cold Antarctic water probable cause of dead fish washed up on Ninety Mile Beach, EPA says

Updated Tue 17 Jun 2014, 2:28pm AEST

Thousands of dead fish washed up on Victoria's Ninety Mile Beach were probably killed by cold Antarctic water, according to the Environmental Protection Authority (EPA).

Many beachgoers had reported the dead fish between Seaspray and Marlo in Gippsland, identifying mainly the leather jacket species and also trevally.

The EPA said it was investigating but test results did not indicate water pollution was the cause.

It said the fish were most likely killed by cold Antarctic waters moving up the east coast.

The fish prefer warmer waters.

Large numbers of dead fish have also washed up on Tasmania's east coast.

Mthatha man arrested for nun's murder

THE results of postmortems on three of the almost 40 birds found dead along the Port Elizabeth coastline recently have proved inconclusive.

The mysterious deaths of the birds – Cape gannets, cormorants, African penguins and seagulls – was very worrying, experts said.

While signs of starvation were found in most of the birds, the results of the postmortems done at the SA Marine Rehabilitation and Education Centre were inconclusive and they attributed the deaths to three possible factors – the weather, infections or man-made conditions.

Bird expert Albert Schultz said 11 African penguins and 23 Cape gannets were found around Beachview on Sunday, while some cormorants were found along the beachfront in Summerstrand. - Thulani Gqirana

Thousands of small fish in a large detention pond in Willband Creek Park in Abbotsford have been found dead, for the second consecutive year, and the cause is proving to be a mystery for fisheries officials.

The three-spined stickleback – about the size of a sardine – washed up along the shoreline of the pond in the park located at Highway 11 and Bateman Road.

The deaths occurred at the same time – mid-May to early June – that they did in 2013.

Following last year's reports of the dead fish, ministry of environment officials ruled out obvious possibilities such as contamination.

PARADIP: Large scale death of marine species including fish and crabs for the last couple of days on Santra Creek here has spread panic among local fishermen. Scientists of State Pollution Control Board (SPCB) have rushed to the spot to collect water samples to ascertain the cause of the mass death of marine species.

The fishermen alleged that discharge of chemical effluents from the proposed Paradip refinery project of IOCL is the main cause of the fish death.

Though the refinery project is yet to be commissioned, IOCL authorities have pressed several contractual agencies for the project's construction work. The agencies have been discharging chemical effluents into Santra creek and Kadua river leading to the mass death, alleged the fishermen.

Farmers in Paradip area also complained that prawn and other marine species have perished in nearly 11 gheris causing loss to the tune of `4 crore. Prawn farmer Susant Pradhan said marine fishes in a three-acre gheri have died due to release of chemical effluents from the refinery project. The loss is estimated to be around `35 lakh, he added.

Seven die in Monrovia Ebola outbreak

The virus was first reported in Guinea, before spreading across the region

The deadly Ebola virus has killed seven people in Liberia's capital, Monrovia, health officials have said.

These are the first deaths reported in the city since the outbreak of the contagious virus in several West African states.

Among the dead are a nurse and four people from the same household, including a baby, officials said.

Guinea has been worst-affected by Ebola, with 208 deaths since the outbreak was first reported in March

The Water Wars Are Coming

Water scarcity is omnipresent in the developing world. Today, 768 million people lack access to safe drinking water worldwide. And in Central Asia, a growing population and water-hungry resource extraction industries have made the problem even worse. The balance of resources in Central Asia is far from a happy one. The region is divided into water-rich upstream states, and water-poor downstream ones, and the division leads to conflict and tit-for-tat exchanges, in which water is used for leverage. Lawmakers in Kyrgyzstan, for instance, are currently toying with the idea of cutting water flow to semi-arid Uzbekistan, the nation with the region's largest population and standing army, after Uzbekistan cut gas supplies to the Kyrgyz city of Osh in April — a move that Uzbekistan's President Islam Karimov warned could lead to full-blown war. A powerful, non-supercell tornado over water has caused damage after it hit the eastern shores of Istanbul on June 19.

The tornado, a rare occurrence for northwestern Turkey, was first seen over the Marmara Sea before passing through the Pendik and Tuzla neighborhoods of Istanbul and reaching the province of Kocaeli.

The tornado caused some material damage in Tuzla, Doğan News Agency reported on June 20. Villas in the Mercan area were severely damaged. The tornado picked a yacht up from the sea and threw it into a residential area's garden 100 meters away. Fences and roofs were damaged and several windows were broken, shattering glass around the area.

The extremist group ISIS (Islamic State of Iraq and Syria) is not acting alone in Iraq but is part of a de facto alliance of other disaffected Sunni opposition groups, including former Baathist army officers and civilians. And that is what makes the changes to the political map more lasting. The fortunes of ISIS might rise or fall, but the Sunni population of Iraq, like much of the Sunni population of Syria, has made a decisive break with the Shiite- (or in the case of Syria, Alawite) dominated central government.

Sunni opposition groups in Syria and Iraq, with backing from regional players, have been battling to topple the regime in Damascus, and to topple Maliki or at least regain a meaningful share of power in Baghdad. Having failed in both goals, ISIS has effectively shown another way forward: to forget about Damascus and Baghdad for now, forget about the Sykes-Picot borders and create a new political space out of the parts of Syria and Iraq that their capitals do not control--a large and viable political territory with major historic cities, trade routes, oil resources and borders potentially abutting Turkey, Saudi Arabia and Jordan. For now, let's call it Syriaq. In this, they might be emulating the Kurds, who long ago decided to concentrate on controlling

US-made Stinger missiles have likely fallen into ISIS hands, officials say

U.S. officials with access to the latest U.S. intelligence on Iraq told Fox News it "appears likely/probable" that U.S.-made Stinger missiles have fallen into the hands of Sunni insurgents.

It is possible that the Islamic State of Iraq and Syria (ISIS) fighters acquired them from army bases they have taken over in recent days, the sources said.

The Stinger missile is a shoulder-fired surface-to-air weapon that is used against aircraft.

As ISIS forces have advanced through Iraq, concerns have increased that more U.S.-made weaponry could fall into the hands of the radical group.

Iraqi intelligence officials said ISIS fighters managed to take control of two big weapons depots late last week holding some 400,000 items, including AK-47 rifles, rockets and rocket-propelled grenades, artillery shells and mortars. A quarter of the stockpiles were quickly sent to Syria in order to help the group's comrades there, they said.

ISIS seizes Iraqi-Syrian border crossing at Qaim

Sunni Islamist militants seized the Qaim border crossing between Iraq and Syria Saturday after a daylong battle in which 30 Iraqi soldiers were killed, security officials reported in Baghdad. The jihadists, fighting to establish an Islamist state spanning Iraq and Syria, can now more easily transfer weapons and heavy equipment between their two battlefields. Iraqi Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki, after losing major cities and Sunni regions to the Sunni radicals' offensive, faces rising demands to form a more inclusive government or step aside. Debka

The Iraqi military says it has driven off Islamist-led militants attacking the country's biggest oil refinery amid reports it had been overrun.

The army said 40 attackers had been killed, a claim which could not be verified independently.

But an official source told Reuters the rebels had seized 75% of the Baiji refinery north of Baghdad.

Obama Not Asking Congress' Permission on Iraq (Updated)

Updated 5:09 p.m. | President Barack Obama is still considering what to do about Iraq, but he told the top congressional leaders Wednesday that he doesn't think he needs Congress' permission to act.

"We had a good discussion," said Senate Minority Leader Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., arriving back at the Capitol after the meeting. "The president basically just briefed us on the situation in Iraq and indicated he didn't feel he had any need for authority from us for the steps that he might take and indicated he would keep us posted."

Obama met for about an hour in the Oval Office with McConnell, Speaker John A. Boehner, R-Ohio, House Minority Leader Nancy Pelosi, D-Calif., and Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid, D-Nev.

(Get breaking news alerts from Roll Call in your inbox or on your iPhone.)

Pelosi told reporters that she agreed that the president has all of the authorities that he needs in the authorizations to use military force passed by Congress previously.

"All of the authorities are there. That doesn't mean I want all of them to be used, especially boots on the ground," she said. "But I definitely think the president has all of the authority he needs by dint of legislation that was passed in 2001 and 2003."

She appeared to be referring to the authorizations to use military force passed after the Sept. 11, 2001 attacks and the 2002 authorization to use force in Iraq. Neither of those authorizations have expired, although the official White House position is that the Iraq authorization should be repealed.

Pelosi said the president didn't lay out what actions he intended to take but instead laid out his thinking on what was happening in Iraq.

Reid also called the meeting "a good meeting."

MAJORITY OF AMERICANS OBJECT TO ENGAGING IN FRESH IRAQ CONFLICT

A survey conducted by Public Policy Polling found that 74 percent of the public is opposed to deploying combat troops back into Iraq. Across all political lines, large majorities of Americans do not want to see the US become embroiled in another war, despite the atrocities that the radical Sunni group Islamic State in Iraq and Syria (ISIS) is committing as it rampages across Iraq, taking control of major cities and strategic areas. Republicans, Democrats and independents all strongly rejected the idea of US troops engaging in conflict, with only 16 percent saying that they support such military action. More

The latest Iraq war is between Iraq's pro-Iranian Shiite government and pro-Al Qaeda Sunni rebels. It boils down to Iran vs. Al Qaeda, radical Shiites versus radical Sunnis. The first rule of foreign policy is if your enemies are killing each other, don't step in to stop them.

What we've seen in Syria, and now in Iraq, is the early phase of a 30-year civil war between Shiites and Sunnis, which will go from region to region, country to country, tribe to tribe. Fighters will become increasingly radical and brutal, and they will be fueled by Arab oil money. For them, it is a fight about religion, power, geography and resources. And it could well be a fight to the finish.

WASHINGTON – The well-organized army of the Islamic State of Iraq and Syria, or ISIS, claims it has access to nuclear weapons and a will to use them to “liberate” Palestine from Israel as part of its Islamic Spring,” according to a WND source in the region.

Franklin Lamb, an international lawyer based in Beirut and Damascus, said the move is part of the SIS aim of creating a caliphate under strict Islamic law, stretching from the Mediterranean Sea to Iraq.

Lamb, who has access to ISIS fighters and sympathizers, said ISIS has been working with a “new specialized” unit organized at the beginning of 2013 to focus “exclusively on destroying the Zionist regime occupying Palestine.”

Lamb added that the ISIS “Al-Quds Unit” is working to broaden its influence in more than 60 Palestinian camps and gatherings from Gaza, across “Occupied Palestine,” or Israel, to Jordan and from Lebanon up to the north of Syria “seeking to enlist support as it prepares to liberate Palestine.”

ISIS is also known as the Islamic State of Iraq and the Sham. “Sham,” or “Greater Syria,” refers to Cyprus, Palestine, Jordan, Iraq, Syria, Lebanon, Israel and southern Turkey.

ISIS also is known as DAASH, the Arabic acronym for al-Dawlah al-Islamiyah fi al-Iraq wa-al Sham.

The Sunni militant group, which has taken over much of the Sunni region of Iraq, could leave the Shiite-dominated region of the country and head toward Jordan and Turkey.

The judge who sentenced former Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein to death has been captured and executed by ISIS militants, it is claimed.

Raouf Abdul Rahman, who sentenced the dictator to death by hanging in 2006, was reportedly killed by rebels in retaliation for the execution of the 69-year-old.

His death has not been confirmed by the Iraqi government, but officials had not denied reports of his capture last week.

ISIS' success in Iraq is due largely to other Sunni and ex-Baathist groups joining its numbers, although there are increasing reports that factions within ISIS in Iraq already have had violent exchanges between them.

One such case has been a gun battle in recent days between ISIS and the ex-Baathists of the Naqshbani Army, which initially joined ISIS to aid its sweep through Iraq and may have given the jihadist group access to a sarin production facility, as WND recently reported.

JERUSALEM – Members of the Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant, or ISIS, were trained in 2012 by U.S. instructors working at a secret base in Jordan, according to informed Jordanian officials.

The officials said dozens of ISIS members were trained at the time as part of covert aid to the insurgents targeting the regime of Syrian President Bashar al-Assad in Syria. The officials said the training was not meant to be used for any future campaign in Iraq.

The Jordanian officials said all ISIS members who received U.S. training to fight in Syria were first vetted for any links to extremist groups like al-Qaida.

SEVERODVINSK, June 17 (RIA Novosti) – Russian fifth-generation submarines will be armed with military robots, Commander-in-Chief of the Russian Navy said.

"The combat capabilities of the multipurpose nuclear and conventional submarines will be improved in the future through integration of promising robotic systems into their weaponry," admiral Viktor Chirkov said on Tuesday.

He stressed that tough laws of shipbuilding demand to avoid pauses in the creation of new generations of submarines. This is due to the construction time, cyclical use of ships and submarines, and the rapid development of scientific and technical progress.

"Therefore, we demand from the industry to avoid pauses and start designing the next generation of submarines as soon as they finish designing the previous one," Commander-in-Chief said.

This is the only way the Russian Navy can keep up with technological progress and have submarines that "meet the latest requirements," the admiral said.

MOSCOW, June 18 (RIA Novosti) – The Russian Army is ready for any developments in Ukraine or anywhere in the world and Russian defense industry can quickly replace any imports, including those from Ukraine, Russia's Defense Minister Sergei Shoigu said at a State Duma meeting behind closed doors.

"A question was asked whether our army is ready to defend the motherland in the circumstances of a more complex international situation. We received a positive, life-affirming answer. Everyone's ready, combat efficiency is at a high level," Mikhail Yemelyanov, first deputy head of A Just Russia parliamentary faction, told RIA Novosti.

He noted that another issue up for discussion was replacement options for imported equipment in the defense industry.

"I asked a colleague of mine how the shortages of supplies from Ukraine will affect our defense capabilities. He said he was confident that they won't, that everything could be replaced," said Yemelyanov. According to Shoigu, Russia can replace its military imports relatively quickly, Yemelyanov said.

Another parliamentarian, Vadim Solovyov noted that "concerning the situation in Ukraine it was said that we are ready for any developments and it all depends on specific situation, first of all, the position of our western partners, army is ready to accomplish any task set by the country's government and the Commander-in-Chief."

Canada imposes fresh sanctions against Russia

Canada has announced economic sanctions and travel bans for Russian officials over the crisis in eastern Ukraine.

Canada's Prime Minister Stephen Harper announced the sanctions and travel bans against 11 Russian and Ukrainian individuals plus one additional entity in relation to Russia's actions in Ukraine on Saturday.

Harper said in a statement that "Russia's illegal occupation of the Crimean peninsula in Ukraine and provocative military activity remains a serious concern to the international

North Korea appears to have acquired a sea-based copy of a Russian cruise missile, the latest step in an effort to enhance its maritime strike capability, a US think-tank said Tuesday.

A state propaganda film disseminated on social media sites, including YouTube, provides a very brief glimpse of the missile being launched from a naval vessel.

In war with Japan, PLA would strike Kobe first: report

If China and Japan were to go to war, Kobe, Japan's sixth-largest city, would likely be the People's Liberation Army's first point of attack, according to the Tokyo-based Shukan Gendai, also known as Modern Weekly, on June 18.

Kobe would be a primary target for the PLA because the city is home to two of Japan's major submarine manufacturers, Mitsubishi and Kawasaki, the weekly magazine said.

Amid rising tensions between the two nations over islands in the disputed East China Sea, Japanese military expert Mitsuhiro Sera told Shukan Gendai that fighters of the PLA Air Force or Navy usually fly at least 800 meters away from Japanese aircraft when they encounter each other in the air. However, Sera said that the rules have changed and Chinese

The Israel Air Force launched attacks on nine Syrian military positions in the Golan Heights late Sunday night in response to a missile attack earlier in the day that killed a 13-year-old boy on the Israeli side of the border.

The IDF said the targets belonged to President Bashar Assad's Syrian army, and included command posts and firing positions. The military confirmed direct hits on the targets. High-precision ground-to-ground Spike (Tamuz) missiles were also used in the attack.

Residents of northern Israel reported hearing explosions from across the border with Syria.

The strikes were launched shortly after midnight, when IAF jets fired missiles on Syrian army positions on the Syrian-controlled Golan Heights.

Syrian opposition sources claimed that there were 3 attacks on Syrian army positions. They said the headquarters of Syria's 90th Division, which is stationed in Quneitra, was also attacked.

Syria's Deputy Foreign Minister, Faisal Mekdad, on Sunday asked the United Nations to take actions against Israel, claiming it violated the 1974 ceasefire agreement in the Golan Heights.

According to Syria's SANA news agency, Mekdad spoke with the Under-Secretary-General of the Department of Peacekeeping Operations, Hervé Ladsous, who is visiting Syria to inspect the status of the peacekeeping force in Syria.

Mekdad reportedly cited Israel's "direct ties with terrorist groups" and its attack in Syria in March.

Syria uses the term "terrorists" when referring to the rebels fighting to oust President Bashar Al-Assad.

As jihadists with the Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant capture wide swaths of territory in northern Iraq, seizing military equipment and massacring Iraqi soldiers as they proceed, Christians are particularly alarmed and have fled in droves, not knowing if they will ever see their homes again.

Churches have been looted and burned and women have been forced to wear the Islamic veil in Mosul, a major city in northern Iraq that was captured last week, the Christian Post reported.

The Tablet, a British Catholic news weekly, quoted local Christian officials who described a scene of chaos and devastation.

TEXAN TOLD TO REMOVE AMERICAN FLAG BECAUSE IT'S A "THREAT TO MUSLIMS"

Apartment management suggests removing flag will help "provide for the safety of all residents"

by KIT DANIELS | INFOWARS.COM | JUNE 19, 2014

A Texan was told by his apartment manager that he must remove his American flag hanging on his patio because it's a "threat to the Muslim community."

Even more, the manager of the Lodge on El Dorado in Webster, Texas released a press release to reporters stating that while management "admires our resident's patriotism," they must "maintain the aesthetics of our apartment community and provide for the safety of all residents."

Somehow Duy Tran is a threat to his neighbors, particularly Muslims, for proudly displaying an American flag on his patio.

"What really stunned me is that she said it's a threat towards the Muslim community," he said to KHOU. "I'm not a threat toward anybody."

He also added that he's not taking the flag down without a fight.

"I'm gonna leave my flag there, as an American, until she shows me proof that I don't have the right to leave my flag there," he said. "I have friends that died for this country."

British Government Bans Creationism Public Schools, Seen as Secular Triumph

In what's being heralded as a secular triumph, the UK government has banned the teaching of creationism as science in all existing and future academies and free schools. The government released a new set of funding agreements in a little noticed document last week, including clauses which specifically prohibit pseudoscience. The funding agreement defines creationism as "any doctrine or theory which holds that natural biological processes cannot account for the history, diversity, and complexity of life on earth and therefore rejects the scientific theory of evolution," and goes on to note that this idea is rejected not only by the scientific community but most mainstream churches as well.

Vancouver School Board trustees have adopted a controversial update to school policy that will provide supports for transgender students.

After a lively debate packed with parents, both for and against the motion, all but two trustees voted in favour of the policy, amid shouts from the crowd and despite calls for more consultation.

The policy update will allow students to be addressed by the name that corresponds with their own gender identity. It will also allow transgender students to use the Barack Obama has integrated promotions of homosexuality and other alternative lifestyle choices into his policy and practice since his election, successfully promoting the "gay" lifestyle in the U.S. military and forbidding the enforcement of the federal law called the Defense of Marriage Act that supported traditional marriage.

The extent of the reach of his actions perhaps was epitomized by last week's announcement that the U.S. Embassy in Israel was flying a rainbow flag – representing homosexual activism – along with Old Glory.

But now a coalition in Congress, made up exclusively of Democrats, wants to take the effort further and make promoting LGBT "human rights" a "priority for the U.S. government worldwide."

Prepared by Sen. Ed Markey, D-Mass., the "International Human Rights Defense Act" would demand that the State Department "make preventing and responding to discrimination and violence against the LGBT community a foreign policy priority and devise a global strategy

Luxembourg Approves Gay Marriage

AP

Posted: 06/19/2014 11:02 am EDT | Updated: 06/19/2014 11:59 am EDT

LUXEMBOURG (AP) — Lawmakers in Luxembourg, whose prime minister is openly gay, overwhelmingly approved changes in the small European nation's legislation governing marriage on Wednesday that will allow people of the same sex to wed and to adopt children.

The Chamber of Deputies voted 56-4 to adopt the bill, which is said to be part of the most fundamental rewrite of Luxembourg's laws on marriage since 1804. The chamber's website said the new rules could take effect in early 2015, or six months after their official publication.

The Human Rights Campaign, a U.S.-based organization in favor of lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender rights, commended Luxembourg on its decision.

Under the reform, Luxembourg's legislators also fixed the legal age for marriage at 18 and dropped existing legal requirements for a pre-wedding medical exam, as well as the 300-day waiting period that had been imposed on widows or widowers before they could remarry. To combat forced marriages, the lawmakers provided for fines and prison terms.

Xavier Bettel, who became Luxembourg's prime minister in December, is openly gay.

The Obama administration canceled a regional military exercise in Uganda on Thursday due to the country's gay sex laws. The African nation implemented a bill in February that makes gay sex an offense that could land individuals a life sentence in prison.

“The idea is to send a signal to perpetrators and would-be perpetrators that we are indeed monitoring, that we are indeed prepared to take measures, and that there are consequences,” a senior administration official told Reuters Thursday. The White House specifically wants to target those responsible for abuses connected with the anti-gay laws' implementation.

When the bill was signed in February, Ugandan President Yoweri Museveni blasted the United States for saying the law would complicate its relationship with the country.

“We Africans never seek to impose our view on others,” Mr. Museveni said, the Associated Press reported. “If only they could let us alone. We have been disappointed for a long time by the conduct of the West. There is now an attempt at social imperialism.”

Inflation? Only If You Look At Food, Water, Gas, Electricity And Everything Else

By Michael Snyder, on June 19th, 2014

Have you noticed that prices are going up rapidly? If so, you are certainly not alone. But Federal Reserve chair Janet Yellen, the Obama administration and the mainstream media would have us believe that inflation is completely under control and exactly where it should be. Perhaps if the highly manipulated numbers that they quote us were real, everything would be fine. But of course the way that the inflation rate is calculated has been changed more than 20 times since the 1970s, and at this point it bears so little relation to reality that it is essentially meaningless. Anyone that has to regularly pay for food, water, gas, electricity or anything else knows that inflation is too high. In fact, if inflation was calculated the same way that it was back in 1980, the inflation rate would be close to 10 percent right now.

But you would never know that listening to Federal Reserve chair Janet Yellen. In the video posted below, you can listen to her telling the media that there is absolutely nothing to be concerned about...

And it is really hard to get too upset with Janet Yellen.

How Soon Might We Have Genetically Modified Meat?

The state of diarrhea-preventing goat milk, flu-resistant poultry, and cleaner pigs.

By Francie Diep Posted 06.17.2014 at 12:08 pm

Howdy, Pig Lord Rex via Flickr

There are no genetically engineered animals sold for human consumption right now. The only candidate that's anywhere close, AquaBounty's fast-growing GM salmon, seems to have stalled in its approval process, in spite of positive scientific reviews finding AquaBounty fish safe to eat and safe for the environment. As you might guess, the lack of genetically modified meat on the market isn't because of a lack of technology. It's because of politics—GM foods are deeply unpopular, and GM food animals especially so.

Still, I was surprised at how far along the development of GM meat is after I read this new feature from the biologists' magazine The Scientist. There are many labs around the world working on making animals that are engineered to grow faster, resist disease, or provide people with extra nutrients. Research projects underway include goats whose milk is designed to prevent deadly diarrhea in children and chickens in which bird flu viruses don't reproduce. In spite of public opposition and a lack of funding, GM meat research has continued to advance.

As Iraq Runs Dry, A Plague Of Snakes Is Unleashed

An unprecedented fall in the water levels of the Tigris and Euphrates rivers has left the rural population at the mercy of heat, drought - and displaced wildlife.

Swarms of snakes are attacking people and cattle in southern Iraq as the Euphrates and Tigris rivers dry up and the reptiles lose their natural habitat among the reed beds.

"People are terrified and are leaving their homes," says Jabar Mustafa, a medical administrator, who works in a hospital in the southern province of Dhi Qar. "We knew these snakes before, but now they are coming in huge numbers. They are attacking buffalo and cattle as well as people." Doctors in the area say six people have been killed and 13 poisoned.

In Chabaysh, a town on the Euphrates close to the southern marshland of Hawr al-Hammar, farmers have set up an overnight operations room to prevent the snakes attacking their cattle.
