اكرر اننا لا نحدد مواعيد بل فقط نشجع بعضنا بعضا بقرب مجيء المسيح

وأيضاً أوضح أنه يوجد نبوات لم نراها بعد حدثت مثل ابن الهلاك وحرب هرمجدون وظهور

الشاهدين وحزقيال 38 وغيره ولا نعرف متى ولكن أشعر انها اقتربت.

ولكن ايضا علامات كثيرة من التي قال عنها الكتاب انها في الزمان الاخير وفي الجيل الأخير

بدأت تحدث بوضوح ويجب أن ننتبه اليها. فلا نعرف هل المسيح سيأتي في سنة ام سبع سنين ام

سبعين سنة أم أكثر فكرر لا احدد مواعيد وارفض من يحددون ولكن نذكر بعضنا باننا نحتاج ان

نستعد. والاستعداد ليس فقط قبل مجيء المسيح بل ايضا قبل الظلمة التي ستسبق مجيؤه ليكون

عندنا زيت في مصابيحنا يكفي ان نعبر هذه الظلمة وتكون مصابيحنا مضيئة وقت مجيؤه. بمعنى

نحتاج من الان ان نستعد بقوة بأيمان عامل وبتنقية القلب وان نشمر بالخدمة أي نجمع زيت في

مصايحنا لان الظلمة والضيقة اقتربت جدا ومن لن يستعد لها بزيت كافي من الان لن يجد زيت في الضيقة لان وقتها تجميع زيت سيكون صعب جدا بل أستطيع ان أقول من مثل العذاري انه لن يكون هناك زيت الا ما جمعه سابقا. فأكرر لا نحدد المواعيد ولكن أفضل ان اقول لنفسي ولكم استعدوا الان لأنه اقترب فنكون مستعدين سواء جاء او نحن ان سلمنا وديعتنا عن أنى لا اقول انه اقترب لكيلا يقال عني كاذب وانشر اشاعات ولكنه يأتي بسرعة بغته. لا اعتقد اي أحد ندم لانه كان مستعد ومنتظر مجيء المسيح ولم ياتي المسيح في زمنه ولكنه انتقل وهو مستعد ولكن كثيرين جدا ندموا على عدم الاستعداد عندما انتقلوا

فيجب علينا ان نذكر الكل بالاستعداد والتوبة من الان حتى لو كان سيتأخر فقد نسلم وديعتنا في اي وقت

بعض الاحداث التي قال عنها الرب يسوع

انجيل لوقا 21

21: 25 وتكون علامات في الشمس والقمر والنجوم وعلى الارض كرب امم بحيرة البحر والامواج

تضج

21: 26 والناس يغطى عليهم من خوف وانتظار ما يأتي على المسكونة لان قوات السماوات

سفر اعمال الرسل 2

2: 19 واعطي عجائب في السماء من فوق وآيات على الارض من أسفل دما ونارا وبخار دخان

2: 20 تتحول الشمس الى ظلمة والقمر الى دم قبل ان يجيء يوم الرب العظيم الشهير

2: 21 ويكون كل من يدعو باسم الرب يخلص

لماذا قال المسيح بعض العلامات؟

إنجيل يوحنا 14: 29

وَقُلْتُ لَكُمْ الْآنَ قَبْلَ أَنْ يَكُونَ، حَتَّى مَتَى كَانَ تُؤْمِنُونَ.

وايضا لنتنبه ونستعد

انجيل لوقا 21

28 وَمَتَى ابْتَدَأَتْ هَذِهِ تَكُونُ، فَأَنْتَصِبُوا وَارْفَعُوا رُؤُوسَكُمْ لِأَنَّ نَجَاتَكُمْ تَقْتَرِبُ.»

A PUZZLING COLLAPSE OF EARTH'S UPPER ATMOSPHERE

July 15, 2010: NASA-funded researchers are monitoring a big event in our planet's atmosphere. High above Earth's surface where the atmosphere meets space, a rarefied layer of gas called "the thermosphere" recently collapsed and now is rebounding again.

"This is the biggest contraction of the thermosphere in at least 43 years," says John Emmert of the Naval Research Lab, lead author of a paper announcing the finding in the June 19th issue of the Geophysical Research Letters (GRL). "It's a Space Age record."

The collapse happened during the deep solar minimum of 2008-2009—a fact which comes as little surprise to researchers. The thermosphere always cools and contracts when solar activity is low. In this case, however, the magnitude of the collapse was two to three times greater than low solar activity could explain.

"Something is going on that we do not understand," says Emmert.

The thermosphere ranges in altitude from 90 km to 600+ km. It is a realm of meteors, auroras and satellites, which skim through the thermosphere as they circle Earth. It is also where solar radiation makes first contact with our planet. The thermosphere intercepts extreme ultraviolet (EUV) photons from the sun before they can reach the ground. When solar activity is high, solar EUV warms the thermosphere, causing it to puff up like a marshmallow held over a camp fire. (This heating can raise temperatures as high as 1400 K—hence the name thermosphere.) When solar activity is low, the opposite happens.

Secretary of State John Kerry welcomed French foreign minister Laurent Fabius to the State Department in Washington on Tuesday to discuss a range of issues, from Iran to Syria to climate change. Or, in the words of the foreign minister, "climate chaos." Kerry and Fabius made a joint appearance before their meeting, and the foreign minister warned that only 500 days remained to avoid "climate chaos"[emphasis added]:

Well, I'm very happy to be with John. There is no week without a phone call or a visit between John and myself, and we have on the agenda many items, many issues – Iran, because negotiations are resuming today; the question of Syria, and we shall meet next Thursday in London together; Ukraine as well; and very important issues, issue of climate change, climate chaos. And we have – as I said, we have 500 days to avoid climate chaos. And I know that President Obama and John Kerry himself are committed on this subject and I'm sure that with them, with a lot of other friends, we shall be able to reach success on this very important matter.

It is unclear what the foreign minister had in mind with the 500 days. However, France is scheduled to host the "21st Conference of the Parties on Climate Change" in December 2015, about 565 days from now.

Why has the sun gone quiet? Scientists baffled as sun spots disappear during peak period of solar activity

Researchers are baffled as the sun has gone quiet during a time in its 11-year-cycle when it should be at its most active.

Just a few weeks ago it was bursting with sunspots but now it seems to be going days without even developing a single dark spot.

Solar physicist Tony Phillips has named it an 'All Quiet Event.'

Sunspots attract attention because they highlight the part of the sun where solar activity, such as this solar flare, originates

'It is weird, but it's not super weird,' he told The Los Angeles Times. 'To have a spotless day during maximum is odd, but then again, this solar maximum we are in has been very weird.'

Fukushima's radiation disaster is "far from over"

INFOWARS.COM

by JOHN LAFORGE | COUNTERPUNCH | JULY 18, 2014

There is broad disagreement over the amounts and effects of radiation exposure due to the triple reactor meltdowns after the 2011 Great East-Japan Earthquake and tsunami. The International Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War (IPPNW) joined the controversy June 4, with a 27-page "Critical Analysis of the UNSCEAR Report 'Levels and effects of radiation exposures due to the nuclear accident after the 2011 Great East-Japan Earthquake and tsunami.'"

IPPNW is the Nobel Peace Prize winning global federation of doctors working for "a healthier, safer and more peaceful world." The group has adopted a highly critical view of nuclear power because as it says, "A world without nuclear weapons will only be possible if we also phase out nuclear energy."

UNSCEAR, the United Nations Scientific Committee on the Effects of Atomic Radiation, published its deeply flawed report April 2. Its accompanying press release summed up its findings this way: "No discernible changes in future cancer rates and hereditary diseases are expected due to exposure to radiation as a result of the Fukushima nuclear accident." The word "discernable" is a crucial disclaimer here.

Updated Earthquake Map Shakes Up Risk Zones

By Laura Geggel, Staff Writer
July 17, 2014 3:27 PM

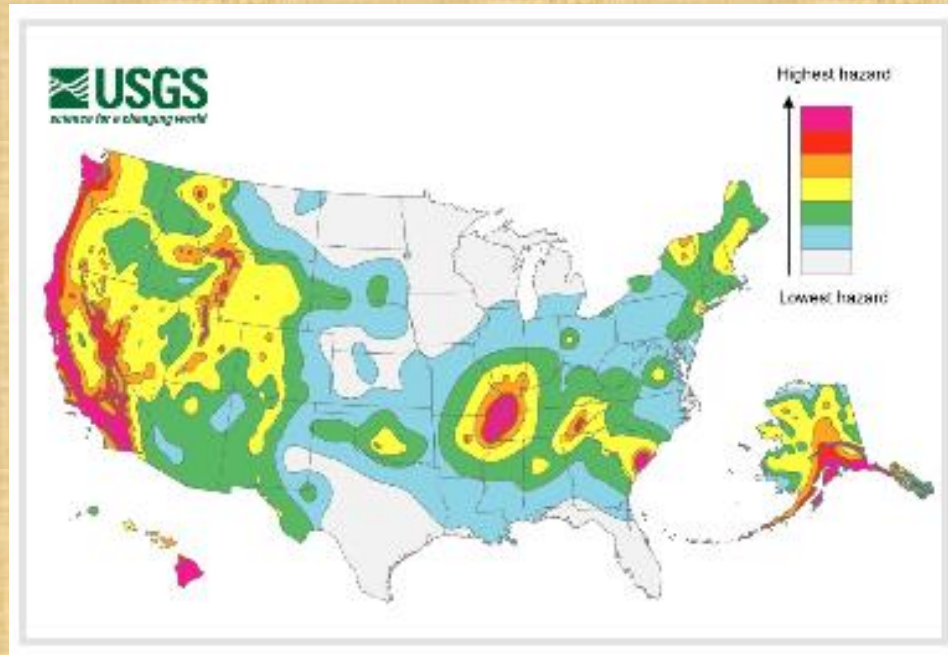

Parts of 42 states are at risk of earthquakes during the next 50 years, according to a new report from the U.S. Geological Survey.

The report includes updated maps that show geologists' predictions of where and how often future earthquakes may occur, and how strongly they may shake the ground.

Many of the at-risk states are in the country's western half, but the map also highlights hotspots in the Midwest and Southeast. There are 16 states that have regions labeled as being at high risk for seismic activity, because they have histories of earthquakes measuring a magnitude of 6.0 or greater: Alaska, Arkansas, California, Hawaii, Idaho, Illinois, Kentucky, Missouri, Montana, Nevada, Oregon, South Carolina, Tennessee, Utah, Wash-

Japan earthquake has raised pressure below Mount Fuji

Mount Fuji, or Fujisan as it is known in Japanese, is the highest point on the archipelago (rising to 3,776 metres) and the national emblem, immortalised in countless etchings. In June last year Unesco added it to the World Heritage list as a "sacred place and source of artistic inspiration". But it is still an active volcano, standing at the junction between the Pacific, Eurasian and Philippine tectonic plates. Though it has rarely stirred in recorded history, it is still potentially explosive. The Tohoku – or Great East Japan – earthquake on 11 March 2011 triggered a devastating tsunami, which in turn caused the Fukushima Daiichi nuclear disaster. According to a Franco-Japanese study published by Science (PDF), the magnitude-9 tremor also increased the pressure on Mount Fuji. "Our work does not say that the volcano will start erupting, but it does show that it's in a critical state," says Florent Brenguier, a researcher at the Institute of Earth Sciences (IST) in Grenoble, France, and lead author of the publication, to which the Institute of Global Physics (IPG) in Paris also contributed. An eruption of the Yellowstone National Park supervolcano could last for over a year.

The park sits on top of the world's largest active volcano, which erupted around 640,000 years ago and sent ash across most of North America.

The two other recorded eruptions are 1.3 million and 2.1 million years ago.

While discussing the effects of an eruption, supervolcano scientist Bob Smith told NBC that an eruption could last for a long time.

Scientists from the University of Utah have determined that Mount Rainier, one of the most prominent peaks in North America, will erupt again. The question of when remains unanswered, but science has recently discovered how: By measuring how quickly Earth conducts electricity and seismic waves, they've effectively "mapped" Rainier's magma "plumbing."

"This is the most direct image yet capturing the melting process that feeds magma into a crustal reservoir that eventually is tapped for eruptions," says geophysicist Phil Wannamaker, of the university's Energy & Geoscience Institute and Department of Civil and Environmental Engineering. "But it does not provide any information on the timing of future eruptions from Mount Rainier or other Cascade Range volcanoes."

The 120-foot wide and 30-foot deep sinkhole opened Saturday afternoon in Spring Hill.

"Out of nowhere the earth just went straight up in the air and exploded up in the air," said Margaret Helmick, who lives in the neighborhood.

Police evacuated four homes but later allowed residents to return to three of them. The area was closed off until further notice.

Wave of fish deaths in eThekweni

July 14 2014 at 09:39am
By Tony Carnie

Comment on this story

Durban - Rotting fish lined the banks of the Isipingo River estuary at the weekend after the latest in a series of fish kills in this degraded river system, close to Durban's largest industrial zone.

North of the city, residents reported that up to 1 000 fish had also been killed by pollution in the uMdloti Lagoon.

Although the exact cause of the deaths at Isipingo has not been confirmed, parts of the estuary were covered in dense mats of green algae and residents reported seeing fish gasping for air last week.

Surveying dozens of dead fish at the river mouth, Isipingo Beach fisherman Haroon Shaik said: "Just look at this stinking mess! I fish at several places along the coastline and many of the other rivers are still clean and healthy. But Isipingo has become a disgrace."

Shaik said he noticed a strong smell of chemicals in the vicinity of the Reunion Canal just over a week ago.

"We phoned Ezemvelo to come and look at all these dead fish, instead of going after subsistence fishermen who are trying to feed their families. They need to examine the bigger problems in front of their eyes.

"We used to get lovely grunters, mud bream and other big fish in this river, but nowadays all we seem to see is fish gasping for air, or floating belly up," he said.

Residents Wade Holland and Gerrard Smith estimated that up to 1 000 fish were killed in the uMdloti lagoon.

Holland said paddle-boarders first noticed dead fish on July 3.

The cause of the deaths at eMdloti had also not been confirmed, although water samples were collected for analysis.

More than 1,000 dead fish that were discovered on Monday in Jingualiao Creek (金瓜寮溪), a tributary of a creek that runs into the Feitsui Reservoir in New Taipei City, sparked concerns over the safety of drinking water in the greater Taipei area, home to more than 5 million residents.

Water quality tests conducted jointly by the Taipei Feitsui Reservoir Administration, the Taipei Water Management Office and the Pinglin District Office later on the same day showed that both the acidity and oxygen content of the water in the reservoir are within normal ranges.

This indicated that the fish did not die because of bad water quality and that the water in the reservoir is safe to drink, officials said.

The dead fish were discovered in the lower reaches of Jingualiao Creek, 100m south of Lirenbao Bridge, just before the creek joins with Beishih Creek, which runs directly into the reservoir.

Dead turtles found in Salina Cruz

Gloria Lopez Thursday, July 17, 2014 - 23:13

Citizens and fishermen report at least 7 dead turtles in 24 hours.

~ ~ Salina Cruz, Oaxaca -. Quite a mystery is the death of at least 7 turtles whose remains were found in the waters of Playa Abierta, in the Buenos Aires town of Salina Cruz.

Citizens and fishermen reported this, and there was even one who said the death of the turtles to high pollution of the sea.

The fact dismayed hundreds of citizens who made the report through social networks and email.

Meanwhile, the municipal authority confirmed the death of turtles, but said only two chelonian remains were found.

Was informed this media that one of the hawksbill was secured by military and taken to the base for analysis staff.

Keep you informed.

The state is trying to figure out what killed a large number fish found on the Willamette River in Lane County.

The Lane County Sheriff's Office called the number of dead fish found "abnormal."

The Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife and the Department of Environmental Quality are investigating.

Kelly Reis, a spokeswoman for ODFW, said it is not known right now how many fish died. An agency biologist is still counting and identifying the fish.

She said the dead fish were found almost two miles downstream of a Springfield wood products plant that caught fire Thursday. Officials don't know if the fish died because of the fire.

Reis said a staff person from the city of Springfield informed officials of the dead fish Friday afternoon.

The sheriff's office is advising people to stay out of the Willamette River near the confluence Mill Race and the river at Island Park until more is known about the situation. The area officials are concerned about is from Island Park down to Alton Baker.

Officials also say dead fish located or fish caught near the river shouldn't be eaten.

Ebola virus spreads in four more Liberian counties

New cases of Ebola virus have been found in four additional counties in Liberia, raising the number of affected counties to seven out of a total of 15.

The four counties are located in the west, center and east of Liberia, while the virus has affected mainly western parts of the country.

Ebola has spread through several West African countries, including Sierra Leone, Liberia and Guinea, since its latest outbreak in February. The death toll from the virus has surpassed 600 despite efforts by regional and international health experts to contain the epidemic.

Say Hello to the Latest Mosquito-Borne Virus: Chikungunya

Beth Greenfield

Scientists knew it was coming, and now it's here: The first U.S. cases of chikungunya, a virus carried by mosquitoes that can cause fever and joint pain, have surfaced in a Florida man and woman who have not traveled to any of the foreign countries where the disease is common, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). The two cases indicate that the virus may begin to pop up more frequently in the region.

HEALTH: MOSQUITO-BORNE VIRUS POTENTIALLY IN KENTUCKY

By Debbie Bell/Franklin County Health Department, Published: July 19, 2014 9:54PM

The Kentucky Department for Public Health recently provided local health departments with the following media confirming Kentucky's first case of mosquito-borne Chikungunya virus, also called CHIKV.

Although this illness is not a concern for most Kentuckians at the present time, it is always a wise decision to stay abreast of public health occurrences.

The department has received lab results confirming the first case of the mosquito-borne Chikungunya virus in an Anderson County resident who recently traveled to Haiti. Results for nine possible cases in other individuals who recently traveled to the same region are still pending, but are expected to be positive.

"We have been testing our first potential cases of Chikungunya virus in Kentucky residents who recently traveled to areas where the disease is present, and have received confirmation of one positive result so far," said Dr. Craig Humbaugh, state epidemiologist and DPH deputy commissioner.

"This is not a concern for most Kentuckians at this time because the risk is only to those traveling to foreign countries where the disease is present. However, it's always good to remember to wear protection against mosquitoes, both here at home and when traveling abroad, to protect against all mosquito-borne illnesses."

The CHIKV illness is routinely found in mosquitoes in the Caribbean, Africa and Asia, but is not yet carried by mosquitoes in Kentucky. CHIKV is only transmitted to humans by the bite of infected mosquitoes, and does not spread person-to-person. The period of time between when an infected mosquito bites a person and when the person develops signs and symptoms of the illness is typically 3-7 days.

Symptoms

With illness onset, the person develops high fever, chills, and joint pain, followed in some by a rash on the trunk, limbs and face lasting 3-4 days. Muscle and joint pain last about one week. Joint pain is often severe and in some people lasts longer, up to several months. CHIKV is usually prevent CHIKV infection.

There are other illnesses that are preventable in travelers, and up-to-date recommendations for travel are available on the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) website: wwwnc.cdc.gov/travel.

Kentucky does have both species of mosquitoes that can become infected with CHIKV and then transmit the illness will become more common in the state and the country in coming years. This is one of the reasons for monitoring new cases of illness in U.S. residents. However, this illness is not a concern for most Kentuckians.

People at increased risk for severe disease should consider not traveling to areas with ongoing Chikungunya virus activity. Severe disease include newborns exposed near the time of birth, older adults and persons with underlying conditions such as hypertension, diabetes or cardiovascular disease.

Russia says will impose visa bans on U.S. citizens in retaliation

REUTERS 9 hours ago

(Adds further comments, details)

MOSCOW, July 19 (Reuters) - Russia's Foreign Ministry said on Saturday Moscow would retaliate against the United States' most recent sanctions over Ukraine by denying entry to several U.S. citizens.

"Retaliatory measures definitely will be taken. First of all, a similar number of Americans will be prohibited from entering (Russia)," the ministry's spokesman Alexander Lukashevich was quoted in a statement as saying.

Lukashevich did not give names of those who would be denied entry.

Analysts, consequently, warn the attack could have a major impact on the fight between Russia and Ukraine over Crimea and other territories.

The Pentagon has expressed doubts that the missile was launched by the Ukrainian military and hinted strongly that the Buk, known by NATO as the SA-11 Gadfly, that hit the Boeing 777 came from Russian separatists, who have been taught by Russia how to use the weapon.

MH-17 was carrying people of various nationalities from Amsterdam with an intended destination of Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia. The jetliner was over the war zone in eastern Ukraine, at an altitude of about 33,000 feet, when it apparently disintegrated.

Senate Intelligence Chairwoman Dianne Feinstein thoroughly condemned Russian President Vladimir Putin for his role in empowering Ukraine's pro-Russian separatists during an interview with CNN on Sunday, largely laying the blame at his feet for the downing last week of a Malaysia Airlines passenger jet.

Regardless of Putin's level of involvement in the plane crash, Feinstein said U.S. relations with Russia had dipped to a new low.

WASHINGTON – Islamic State jihadists not only have designs on Saudi Arabia, Israel and Rome for their caliphate but also on Spain and other lands Muslims occupied from A.D. 622 to 1492.

In a newly released video in Arabic, Islamic State jihadists vowed to "conquer Israel, Rome and Spain." IS would redraw boundaries of countries, separate Shia and Sunni Muslims, and subject everyone to extreme Islamic law, or Shariah.

Al-Qaida leader Ayman al-Zawahiri also has called for restoring to Muslim rule the Iberian Peninsula, referring to as Al-Andalus, as it was known in the eighth century.

Anti-Israel Protests Rock Paris, Thousands Rally In London

Thousands of pro-Palestinian protesters marched in French cities on Saturday to condemn violence in Gaza, defying a ban imposed after demonstrators marched on two synagogues in Paris last weekend and clashed with riot police. A Reuters photographer said demonstrators in northern Paris launched projectiles at riot police, who responded by firing teargas canisters and stun grenades. Demonstrators also climbed on top of a building and burned an Israeli flag. At least one car was set on fire. A police spokesman said that 38 demonstrators had been arrested by early evening and that the clashes were dying down. More

DID ISIS KILL THE ISRAELI TEENAGERS TO TRIGGER A WAR?

by PATRICK COCKBURN | LONDON INDEPENDENT | JULY 20, 2014

Patrick Cockburn
London Independent
July 20, 2014

I was speaking last week to a Syrian Kurd asking him about the current Isis offensive which is taking over eastern Syria, capturing oil-rich Deir Ezzor province and assaulting the Kurdish enclaves in the north. We agreed that, given the international furor in the three weeks after Isis captured Mosul on 10 June, there was astonishingly little reaction to or publicity about Isis's successful new offensive in Syria. The reason for this is that this time international attention is focused on the Israeli bombardment of Gaza.

"Do you think it possible," asked my Syrian friend tentatively, "that Isis might have arranged to have the three Israeli teenagers killed – it certainly has militant cells on the West Bank – knowing that this would provoke an Israeli assault on Gaza and divert attention from its own operations?" I pooh-poohed the idea at the time as one more conspiracy theory based on no real evidence, but thinking it over I am not so sure.

Some of Africa's most notorious jihad groups, such as Boko Haram and al-Shabaab, are benefiting from an elaborate, international funding network, including large sums of money flowing from the United States.

"First and foremost, the Somalis contribute through remittances and hawala. Somalis wire money home, which is often processed by Dahabshiil, a business that routinely pays off al-Shabaab," Kendall told WND. "Dahabshiil's involvement in financing terrorism is the reason

A man purported to be the reclusive leader of the militant Islamic State Abu Bakr al-Baghdadi has made what would be his first public appearance at a mosque in the centre of Iraq's second city, Mosul, according to a video recording posted on the Internet on July 5. (Reuters/Social Media Website via Reuters TV)

Islamist insurgents have issued an ultimatum to northern Iraq's dwindling Christian population to either convert to Islam, pay a religious levy or face death, according to a statement distributed in the militant-controlled city of Mosul.

The statement issued by the Islamic State, the al-Qaida offshoot which led last month's lightning assault to capture swathes of north Iraq, and seen by Reuters, said the ruling would come into effect on Saturday.

It said Christians who wanted to remain in the "caliphate" that the Islamic State declared this month in parts of Iraq and Syria must agree to abide by terms of a "dhimma" contract—a historic practice under which non-Muslims were protected in Muslim lands in return for a special levy known as "jizya."

"We offer them three choices: Islam; the dhimma contract—involving payment of jizya; if they refuse this they will have nothing but the sword," the announcement said.

'Non-Christian' Veteran Wages Battle to Remove Statue of Praying Soldier and Christian Flag From War Memorial

A veteran's lawsuit against symbols that are part of a North Carolina city's war memorial will soon be heading to trial. At the heart of the decorated soldier's grievances is a display that features the silhouette of a soldier bowing before a cross-shaped grave and a faith-based flag.

The memorial, located in King, North Carolina, is being challenged by Steven Hewett, a veteran of the U.S. war in Afghanistan who is being represented by Americans United for Separation of Church and State, an organization devoted to church-state separatism.

Hewett, who was identified as a "non-Christian" in a statement addressing the matter, first complained in July 2010, asking the city to remove a Christian flag from the war memorial — but officials and residents apparently fought back.

While the King City Council initially voted in September 2010 to remove the Christian symbol after its attorney said that it violates the First Amendment, 5,000 residents showed up at a rally in October to defend its presence.

Sex & Obscenity In The Bible

ORLANDO – A federal judge has given a secular organization the green light to distribute more atheistic and anti-Christian materials to Florida public school students, in spite of the materials’ graphic content and offensive language.

As previously reported, the Freedom From Religion Foundation (FFRF) learned last year that a Christian ministry had made Bibles available to Orlando high school students on “Religious Freedom Day.” To counter the Bible distribution, FFRF sought permission from the school district to give students a variety of atheistic and anti-Christian materials.

According to reports, the Orange County School Board permitted FFRF to distribute several books and pamphlets, including a booklet entitled “What’s Wrong With The Ten Commandments?” and a brochure entitled “What Is An Atheist?” However, the board prohibited FFRF from giving students several other publications, citing the materials’ “disruptive” and inappropriate content.

FFRF promptly sued the school board for not allowing the distribution of the materials. Eventually, the school board complied with the organization’s demands, giving FFRF permission to distribute the previously-prohibited materials. Then, earlier this month, a district judge officially dismissed the FFRF lawsuit, thus giving the green light to the in-school distribution of atheistic materials.

In a statement released on Tuesday, FFRF praised the school board’s and district judge’s decisions to permit the anti-Christian materials.

“Satanists can distribute their literature, Muslims can distribute the Quran, and atheists can distribute books that criticize religion,” said FFRF Staff Attorney Andrew Seidel.

The atheists now promise to circulate “a lot more” secular materials in the future.

“We intend to give out a lot more literature to educate students about atheism and the importance of keeping religion out of public schools,” FFRF member David Williamson proclaimed. “We are even designing new materials specifically for students and families in Orange County.”

'Hail Satan': At-Large Arizona Arsonist Burns Bibles at Churches, Praises Devil

MESA, Ariz. – Police officers in Arizona are searching for an arsonist who has burned several Bibles on church properties recently, even inscribing 'hail Satan' on one of the church's gates.

According to The Arizona Republic, an unidentified arsonist in Mesa has torched Bibles on six different occasions since mid-May. The arsonist, who remains at large, is believed to be a White or Hispanic male in his late teens or early 20s.

Three of the fires occurred at Mesa Baptist Church, on May 11, 17, and 18. Then, in mid-June, the arsonist burned Christian materials at East Mesa Christian Church, Pilgrim Lutheran Church, and Calvary Baptist Church.

In each case, church employees found the charred remains of a Bible or a burned pile of papers on church property. Officials described the incidents as "bias crimes."

"It is being looked at as a bias crime because of the place and the manner where it is taking place," Mesa police spokesperson Diana Williams told reporters. "It's a message of some sort, but it's hard to tell what it is."

The first burned Bible was discovered on Mother's Day by churchgoers at Mesa Baptist Church.

"Mother's Day morning ... we were opening up our double doors and as we came out we walked right up on a burned bible," Pastor Mark Rice told local Fox affiliate KS4Z.

first, Rice thought the Bible-burning was just a bizarre prank. But then it happened again just one week later.

"When it happened a week later, we realized that it was intentional," Rice said.

Rice quickly concluded that the arsonist had sinister motives.

"No one was trying to set the church on fire or they would have burned it closer the building," he told Reuters. "They had something else in mind."

Archie Andrews, the redheaded American teenager in the "Archie" comic book series, will die taking a bullet protecting his gay friend in the issue that comes out on Wednesday.

But the death of the character who made his comic book debut more than 70 years ago is not meant to be a sob story, Archie Comics publisher and co-chief executive officer Jon Goldwater said on Tuesday.

"It's really not sad. Actually it's inspirational," Goldwater said. "Because Archie does what you would want Archie to do. He takes the bullet for his friend, and he would do that for anybody."

Archie steps in front of a shot aimed at his friend Kevin Keller, who is targeted for his "personal point of view," Goldwater said.

"Archie taking the bullet really is a metaphor for acceptance," Goldwater said, adding that the assailant did not agree with Kevin's personal life or political stance.

The issue, No. 36 in the flash-forward "Life with Archie" series, will be followed by an issue showing how his friends cope with his death a year later.

City Cuts Contract with Christian College Over Biblical Position on Homosexuality

SALEM, Mass. — The mayor of a city in Massachusetts has ended a contract with an area Christian college because of the institution's biblical beliefs about homosexual behavior.

Salem Mayor Kimberley Driscoll recently sent a letter to Michael Lindsay, the president of Gordon College, advising that the school could no longer manage the Old Town Hall because it opposes sexual activities between those of the same gender.

She stated that her main concern was over the college's behavioral standards policy, which prohibits staff and students from engaging in homosexual behavior. The policy also forbids fornication, drunkenness, profanity, blasphemy, lying and other behaviors that are contrary to biblical law.

"I hope you realize how hurtful and offensive these 'behavioral standards' are to members of the greater Salem LGBT community, some of whom are Gordon alumni, staff and/or students," Driscoll wrote.

She said that Gordon College's policies "fly in the face" of Salem's non-discrimination law, which bars the city from working with entities that "discriminate" against others.

"While I respect your right to embed religious values on a private college campus, religious freedom does not afford you the right to impose those beliefs upon others and cannot be extended into a publicly owned facility or any management contract for a public owned facility, like Old Town Hall," Driscoll wrote.

She told reporters recently that she made the decision to cancel the contract, which was to have expired later this year, when she discovered that Lindsay was among those who signed a letter to Barack Obama requesting that a religious exemption be included in the Employment Non-Discrimination Act (ENDA), which bars the government from contracting with "discriminatory" organizations.

Gender-Neutral Bathrooms Are Quietly Becoming The New Thing At Colleges

DAYS OF LOT — A popular student center at Northwestern University is the latest college campus facility to embrace gender-neutral bathrooms. New to campus this fall will be a pair of such restrooms — sometimes called “all-gender” restrooms — at the school’s Norris University Center. “These are two gender-open bathrooms where students of any gender can go in, and use the restroom, and feel safe, regardless of gender expression or gender identity,” Michelle Margulis, president of NU’s Rainbow Alliance LGBT student group told CBS Chicago. A Florida judge on Thursday struck down the state's gay marriage ban, the latest in a string of court rulings across the United States voiding state laws that restrict the right to marry.

Circuit Judge Luis Garcia, whose jurisdiction includes the Florida Keys, ordered the Monroe County Clerk of Court to begin issuing marriage licenses to same-sex couples next Tuesday.

Garcia ruled in favor of a same-sex couple seeking to marry, saying Florida's gay marriage ban violated their rights to equal protection under the U.S. Constitution.

He acknowledged that the majority of Florida voters opposed same-sex marriage and had voted in favor of the state's 2008 constitutional amendment.

"But it is our country's proud history to protect the rights of the individual, the rights of the unpopular and the rights of the powerless, even at the cost of offending the majority," Garcia wrote.

Vancouver Catholic schools first with transgender policy

VANCOUVER -- Catholic schools in Vancouver are the first in the country to institute a policy for transgender students.

The policy allows students to be addressed by the name and pronoun they prefer, gain access to a private washroom where requested and wear an alternative uniform, but makes it clear schools do not support gender transitioning.

The policy requires a case management team of the student's parents, administrators, a priest and medical professionals be assembled.

"We bring in the professionals and the professionals decide what is best for that child," said Doug Lauson, superintendent, Catholic Independent Schools of Vancouver. "Accommodation is not automatic."

Lauson said that the policy allows schools to accommodate students without going against Catholic teaching.

"The Catholic Church is very clear that men and women are created distinctly and the body and spirit is one and the same," Lauson said.

Obama Finally Ready To Sign Executive Order Targeting LGBT Job Discrimination

WASHINGTON -- President Barack Obama on Monday will sign an executive order banning workplace discrimination against gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgender workers of federal contractors and the federal government.

The executive order has two components: It prohibits federal contractors from discriminating against employees based on sexual orientation or gender identity -- a move that affects 24,000 companies employing roughly 28 million workers, or about one-fifth of the nation's workforce -- and it explicitly bans discrimination against federal employees based on their gender identity.

Senior administration officials outlined details of the executive order in a Friday afternoon call.

To the relief of the LGBT community, there is no sweeping religious exemption in the executive order. Obama is simply adding the categories of sexual orientation and gender identity to an existing executive order that protects employees of federal contractors from discrimination based on race, color, religion, sex or national origin. President George W. Bush amended that executive order in 2002 to allow religiously affiliated federal contractors to prioritize hiring employees of their particular religion, however, and Obama is keeping that language intact.

Obama Refuses to Add Religious Exemption to Homosexual Employment Mandate

WASHINGTON – Barack Obama has refused to include a religious exemption in an executive order that he plans to sign today, which mandates that federal contractors hire homosexual and transgender persons.

According to White House representatives, Obama will sign the Employment Non-Discrimination Act (ENDA) on Monday without any provisions for religious entities. The order prohibits federal contractors from refusing to hire prospects on the basis of their gender identity or “sexual orientation.”

“Following on his pledge for this to be a year of action to expand opportunity for all Americans, the president has directed his staff to prepare for his signature an executive order that prohibits federal contractors from discriminating on the basis of sexual orientation or gender identity,” an unnamed White House official told Time last week.

“The action would build upon existing protections, which generally prohibit federal contractors and subcontractors from discriminating in employment decisions on the basis of race, color, religion, sex or national origin. This is consistent with the president’s views that all Americans, LGBT or not, should be treated with dignity and respect,” they stated.

▶ For years, Christian groups have expressed concern over ENDA, which had also been considered in Congress, but failed. Ed Vitagliano of the American Family Association has stated in the past that the bill is unnecessary as there is “no real problem of discrimination against homosexuals” in the workplace. The Traditional Values Coalition likewise worried how the legislation could effect child-related businesses, asserting, “If ENDA passes, students and children in daycare centers all across the nation will be subjected to individuals experimenting with their gender identities.”

“President Obama is ... attempting to bypass Congress and essentially enact ENDA through the power of executive order,” lamented Andrew Beckwith, president of the Massachusetts Family Institute, in a recent article. “He has promised to require that all recipients of federal contracts be subject to ‘non-discrimination’ policies that include sexual orientation.”

Earlier this month, 14 prominent faith leaders signed a letter to Obama requesting that he add a religious exemption to the order. Signees included former Obama Faith Vote Director Michael Wear and spiritual adviser Joel Hunter of Northland Church in Florida.

Vegans who miss the creamy taste of real cheese, rejoice! A group of biohackers from Counter Culture Labs in Oakland, Calif., and BioCurious in Sunnyvale, Calif., are using baker's yeast to produce the world's first cheese that did not originate from milk in the udder of a cow.

Most vegan cheese is soy or nut-based and doesn't taste much like cheese at all. If you've been vegan for awhile you may not remember the creamy, salty, delicious taste of a good sharp cheddar or the pungent stink of Limburger or Brie. That's all about to change for you, thanks to science.

By now you may have some questions as to how this is possible. The group, known as the San Francisco Bay Area iGEM Team, is engineering this very real cheese from a genetic sequence found in mammals. They plan to insert that sequence into the yeast, no cows needed. What you may be wondering at this point is how it's vegan if the genetic sequence is from an animal. Here's the Network

Could a Brain Scan Protect U.S. Troops from Insider Attacks?

A Pentagon report, revealed by The New York Times over the weekend, showed that the American troops working alongside Iraqi forces were at risk of harm from Sunni extremists who had infiltrated the Iraqi Army (and, perhaps, from the pro-Iranian Shiite militias that effectively are the Army.) On Monday, Rear Adm. John Kirby told reporters that "it would be imprudent, irresponsible not to think about the insider threat." The threat is real in Afghanistan as well where insider threats, so-called "green-on-blue" attacks, have killed several U.S. troops in recent years.

So, if you're a U.S. soldier in Iraq or Afghanistan today, how do you determine whether or not the Iraqi or Afghan soldier next to you is going to give up your location to the enemy at the first chance? One solution, developed by a former Army counterintelligence agent, is scanning the brains of Iraqi troops for signs of potential betrayal.
