اكرر اننا لا نحدد مواعيد بل فقط نشجع بعضنا بعضا بقرب مجيء المسيح

وأیضا أوضح أنه يوجد نبوات لم نراها بعد

ولكن ایضا علامات كثيرة من التي قال عنها الكتاب انها في الزمان الاخير بدأت تحدث بوضوح

ويجب أن ننتبه اليها. فلا نعرف هل المسيح سيأتي في سنة ام سبع سنين ام سبعين سنة أم أكثر

فكرر لا احدد مواعيد وارفض من يحددون ولكن نذكر بعضنا باننا نحتاج ان نستعد. والاستعداد

ليس فقط قبل مجيء المسيح بل ایضا قبل الظلمة التي ستسبق مجيؤه ليكون عندنا زيت في

مصابيحنا يكفي ان نعبر هذه الظلمة وتكون مصابيحنا مضيئة وقت مجيؤه. بمعنى نحتاج من

الان ان نستعد بقوة بأيمان عامل وبتنقية القلب وان نثمر بالخدمة أي نجمع زيت في مصابيحنا

لان الظلمة والضيقة اقتربت جدا ومن لن يستعد لها بزيت كافي من الان لن يجد زيت في الضيقة

لان وقتها تجميع زيت سيكون صعب جدا بل أستطيع ان أقول من مثل العذارى انه لن يكون هناك زيت الا ما جمعته سابقا. فأكرر لا نحدد المواعيد ولكن أفضل ان اقول لنفسي ولكم استعدادوا الان لأنه اقرب فنكون مستعدين سواء جاء او نحن ان سلمنا وديعتنا عن أنى لا اقول انه اقرب لكيلا يقال عني كاذب وانشر اشاعات ولكنه يأتي بسرعة بغته. لا اعتقد اي أحد ندم لانه كان مستعد ومنتظر مجيء المسيح ولم يأتي المسيح في زمنه ولكنه انتقل وهو مستعد ولكن كثيرين جدا ندموا على عدم الاستعداد عندما انتقلوا

فيجب علينا ان نذكر الكل بالاستعداد والتوبة من الان حتى لو كان سيتأخر فقد نسلم وديعتنا في اي وقت

بعض الاحداث التي قال عنها الرب يسوع

انجيل لوقا 21

21: 25 وتكون علامات في الشمس والقمر والنجوم وعلى الارض كرب امم بحيرة البحر والامواج تضح

21: 26 والناس يغطى عليهم من خوف وانتظار ما يأتي على المسكونة لان قوات السماوات تتزعزع

سفر اعمال الرسل 2

2: 19 واعطي عجائب في السماء من فوق وآيات على الارض من أسفل دما ونارا وبخار دخان

2: 20 تتحول الشمس الى ظلمة والقمر الى دم قبل ان يجيء يوم الرب العظيم الشهير

2: 21 ويكون كل من يدعو باسم الرب يخلص

لماذا قال المسيح بعض العلامات؟

إنجيل يوحنا 14: 29

وَقُلْتُ لَكُمْ الْآنَ قَبْلَ أَنْ يَكُونَ، حَتَّى مَتَى كَانَ تُؤْمِنُونَ.

المسيح لا يتنبأ ولا يتوقع بل يعرف

انجيل لوقا 21

A direct hit on Earth from an X-class flare could cause major disruptions – or even destruction – to the U.S. electrical grid, which already is very vulnerable, as well as to life-sustaining critical infrastructures dependent on the grid to function.

NASA said the warning regarding the sunspot, AR 2151, could last for weeks.

Eruptions that drew the attention of space experts began last Sunday with an M5.6 solar eruption, which is one tenth the strength of an X-class flare.

California Sets Stage for First Groundwater Regulations

California lawmakers have sent Governor Jerry Brown legislation that would for the first time regulate groundwater use as the most-populous U.S. state suffers from a record drought.

The proposals would require local governments to develop groundwater regulations and give the state the power to step in and enforce restrictions if necessary.

Three years of record low rain and snow have left more than 80 percent of California in extreme drought. With reservoirs at less than half capacity and water supplies to the nation's most productive agricultural region rationed, well drilling has doubled and even tripled in some counties.

"A critical element of addressing the water challenges facing California involves ensuring a sustainable supply of groundwater," Assemblyman Roger Dickinson, a Sacramento Democrat, said in a statement yesterday. "Overdrafting our groundwater leads to subsidence and contamination -- consequences we cannot afford."

California agriculture faces the greatest water loss ever seen because of the drought, with surface water for farms reduced by roughly one-third, according to a July study by the Center for Watershed Sciences at the University of California at Davis. Groundwater is being pumped to replace most of the surface water loss, the study said.

Earthquakes rock Iceland volcano

LONDON (AP) — Earthquakes are rocking Iceland's Bardarbunga volcano, adding to concerns that magma movements may trigger an eruption that could hinder air traffic.

Iceland's Met Office says two earthquakes measuring over magnitude 5 shook the volcano under the vast Vatnajökull glacier on Wednesday. Some 500 quakes have hit the area since midnight.

Iceland's aviation alert level remains at orange, the second highest. On Sunday, the Met Office lowered the alert level, saying there was no sign of an imminent eruption at Bardarbunga.

In 2010, Iceland's Eyjafjallajökull volcano erupted and sparked off a week of international aviation chaos. Some 100,000 flights were cancelled after aviation officials closed Europe's air space for five days out of fear that volcanic ash could harm jet engines.

Small volcanic eruption spotted in Iceland, volcanic alert level raised to 'Red'

BÁRDARBUNGA 2

Almost two weeks after a swarm of earthquakes began to signal the restless movement of magma beneath the surface of Iceland's large Bardarbunga volcano, which is itself underneath the huge Vatna glacier, the first visible signs of an eruption were spotted in an area between Bardarbunga and the nearby Askja volcanic system. "An eruption started in Holuhraun north of Dyngjujökull (an outlet glacier on the north end of the larger Vatna glacier) at around 00:02," writes Iceland's Meteorological Office at 2:45 a.m. local time Friday. "It is a small fissure eruption and at 02:40 AM the activity appears to have decreased." Icelandic Police report that the fissure is 300 meters long and that no volcanic ash has been detected by radar so far. The eruption tremors have been mild, which indicates that there is little explosive activity — rather the lava is effusive, meaning it is simply spilling forth from the fissure and pouring over the surface. A triangular section of airspace over the eruption site has been closed, but the country's main airport in Reykjavik remains open. "We don't see this having any effect on our flights," Icelandair press secretary Guðjón Amgrímsson told visir.is. "At most there will be minor changes. This should not disturb international flights." Icelandic Coast Guard aircraft are scheduled to take off at 9:30 am Iceland time to conduct more observations. -Forbes

Iceland volcano erupts again, one day after scientists declared eruption over: aviation warning raised to highest level

Posted on August 31, 2014

August 2014 – ICELAND - Iceland has raised its aviation warning level after a new eruption from a fissure near the Bardarbunga volcano Sunday morning. The eruption was described as “a very calm lava eruption” which could “hardly be seen on seismometers.” Planes are now banned from flying within 6,000 feet of the volcano peak. Iceland’s Eyjafjallajökull volcano erupted in 2010, producing ash that disrupted air travel across Europe. It happened in roughly the same place as an earlier eruption on Friday morning, and is the third to happen in the area in the last week. Scientists have been on high alert after Iceland’s largest volcanic system has been hit by thousands of earthquakes over the last two weeks. The news comes just one day after geologists in Iceland lowered the alert and said the eruption of Bardarbunga was over. If this recent eruption teaches us anything, it tells us just how unpredictable these volcanic systems are and that nature has a mercurial mind of its own. -WGN TEP

PNG volcano Tavurvur eruption may disrupt Australian flights

A Major volcanic eruption in Papua New Guinea this morning could disrupt flights to and from Australia. The Volcanic Ash Advisory Centre in Darwin is monitoring the ash cloud from Tavurvur on PNG's East Britain Island, which is slowly drifting southwest. Senior meteorologist Ian Shepherd said they were watching the cloud closely and providing advice to airlines. "The volcanic eruption reached the top of the atmosphere at 50,000 feet which is the same height as which planes travel," said Mr Shepherd. "It's too early to say at this point if the ash cloud will reach Australia but it was a significant eruption." He said the cloud was identifiable on satellite imagery but it was not possible to gauge its size. Cyndee Feals, also from the Volcanic Ash Advisory Centre in Darwin, said the ash cloud was drifting southeast and had the potential to disrupt air travel. "The ash was initially blowing to the southwest but has now turned to the southeast and we expect it to clip the edge of Australian airspace later today, but we don't expect ash over Australia," she said. Planes may be forced to take alternate routes with the ash forecast to move towards the Solomon Islands and then Vanuatu, she added. Ash clouds have played havoc with Australian aircraft in the past with the eruption of a Chilean volcano in 2011 grounding hundreds of flights. Tavurvur, on the tip of New Britain island in the country's east, erupted sending lava into the air and causing panic among locals. It has previously erupted in 1937, 1994, 2008 and again last year. The news site PNGloop reported that ash from the volcano is blowing toward the north coast of the island. The site also posted a notice from the Department of Mineral Policy and Geohazards Management that stated the eruption commenced between 3.30am-4am. The eruption involved "incandescent projections and ongoing loud roaring and rumbling noises," the notice stated.

The Australian government issued a warning against travelling to the area. "Authorities have evacuated communities close to the volcano. Residents of Rabaul town have been advised to remain indoors to avoid falling ash," it said. There were no immediate reports of injuries or damage. In Rabaul, the ground was covered in a layer of ash, local reports said. "Police have cautioned people not to panic but remain indoors and listen to local Radio East New Britain for updates," the PNGloop website said. "The situation has eased except for the rumbling and roaring as rocks are shot into the

Massive Sinkhole Swallows Northwest Indiana Couple's Backyard After Heavy Rains

A sinkhole in Letitia and Frank Castro's backyard has turned into a big problem for three Northwest Indiana communities after the hole expanded considerably over the weekend thanks to heavy rains. The sinkhole borders three towns. Half of the home is in Dyer, the other half in Schererville, and Munster is across the street. All three municipalities share sewer pipes, gas and electrical lines sitting underneath the property, according to Fox59. Homeowner Letitia Castro told 5 NBC Chicago that the towns temporarily filled in the 4-by-6-foot hole at least 20 times before, but the ground gave way in heavy rain during Saturday's storms, creating a 40 feet wide by 30 feet deep sinkhole. Six of the Castro's 25-year-old trees have fallen into the hole, CBS Chicago reported. A construction crew is working to shore up the hole and fix the collapsed storm sewer pipes that caused it while the towns debate who will pick up the tab. "It's scary," Letitia Castro told 5 NBC Chicago. "They guaranteed me that it won't get to the house, but they also told me this would never happen." TWC

Giant sinkhole in Durham is 'becoming bigger' every second, landowner warns

A giant sinkhole, measuring 115ft wide, has opened up on farmland in County Durham and the landowner warns further wet weather will increase the size of the hole

Earth collapsed to reveal a 115ft-wide sinkhole in County Durham that is so deep the bottom cannot be seen.

The gaping void is thought to be the result of rocks and soil rushing into mine workings deep beneath the surface.

The hole was three times smaller when it was first discovered on Thursday 21 August, at Cowshill, in the rural area of Weardale.

John Hensby, 71, whose house is just 260ft (80 metres) from the sinkhole has been warned that it will keep growing.

Connecticut DEEP looking into cause of fish die-off in Mill River

POSTED: 08/25/14, 10:56 PM EDT | UPDATED: 28 MINS AGO | # COMMENTS

NEW HAVEN >> The Mill River near the Humphrey Street bridge has offered a disturbing view over the last days.

Hundreds of silver-colored fish either float belly up on the river's surface or flail wildly in the shallow water near its banks. Some even appear as though they are trying to beach themselves.

The first sightings of the fish, which state environmental officials have identified as menhaden, occurred Saturday. CJ May, a resident of the city's East Rock neighborhood, and a friend went to see for themselves on Sunday.

"It was a little spooky to see, somewhat scary," May said Monday night. "They were acting very erratically."

The Marine Fisheries Division of the Connecticut Department of Energy and Environmental Protection was called in to determine the cause of the fish kill. And according to David Simpson, the director of the division, the cause appears to be natural, not the result of a man-made condition like pollution.

"If pollution were the cause, we'd be looking at a variety of types of fish dead," Simpson said. "We're not completely certain, but we believe this may have something to do with bluefish."

Thousands of dead fish wash ashore in Saudi

Officials say it was an environmental crime committed by known parties

Published Tuesday, August 26, 2014

Dead fish washed ashore on a Saudi coast.

Thousands of dead fish have washed ashore on a Saudi coast and port officials said the carnage was a result of a deliberate attack on the environment.

The fish washed ashore in tonnes at the coast near the eastern King Abdul Aziz port in Dammam, the second such a phenomenon in just five days.

"We have identified the reasons for this carnage and the parties involved in this act...we will open an investigation into this case and make sure those behind it will be punished," the Arabic 'Alyoum' newspaper said, quoting Mohammed Al Qahtani, director of the marine control authority in the eastern province.

Massive fish kill reported at Dalworthington Gardens lake

DALWORTHINGTON GARDENS — A small lake that was the subject of a News 8 story last week about low water levels is now the site of a growing fish kill.

Neighbors who live around Pappy Elkins Lake in Dalworthington Gardens woke up to find thousands of carp floating on the surface Tuesday morning.

As town workers tried to clean up the fish, residents gathered on the shoreline.

"Disappointment doesn't begin to describe how we feel right now," said one man who didn't want to be identified by name.

Although the drought has taken a toll on the lake, some feel other forces are to blame for the community's water woes.

News 8 reported last week that XTO Energy was recently cited for pumping out nearly 1.4-million gallons of water for drilling in 2011.

Although the company was permitted to use some of the lake's water for its fracking operations, the amount in question was never authorized for removal, according to the Texas Commission on Environmental Quality.

"All of us who've lived around here have been watching this lake go down for a very long time," said the man.

The company is fighting the citation and maintains it did nothing wrong.

Virus is killing thousands of fish

Posted: Thu 12:51 PM, Aug 28, 2014

Thursday, August 28, 2014

NEWVILLE, Wis. (AP) — Wisconsin biologists say the koi herpes virus that's killing thousands of common carp has spread and will continue to do so.

Laura Stremick-Thompson, a fisheries biologist at the state Department of Natural Resources, tells The Janesville Gazette (<http://bit.ly/1lynACf>) the die-off started at the Rock River in July, reached Lake Koshkonong last week and will probably arrive in Janesville and Beloit in the next few weeks.

The biologist says local residents have reported hundreds of dead fish downstream of Lake Koshkonong and upstream of the Indianford Dam. One man says he has picked up about 30 dead carp along the Lake Koshkonong shoreline.

Stremick-Thompson says the koi herpes virus affects carp like Ebola affects humans. She says the mortality rate of the virus can reach up to 80 percent.

Algae blooms keep killing lagoon fish

Jim Waymer, FLORIDA TODAY

2:07 p.m. EDT August 28, 2014

Summer algae blooms continue to take a deadly toll on the Indian River Lagoon.

Sylvia and Norman Hervey smelled the foul, fatal fallout this morning in the canal behind their Cocoa Beach home on South Banana River Boulevard.

"There were literally thousands out there this morning," Sylvia Hervey said of the small floating fish she saw.

"A lot of them have sunk now," she added. "It does smell pretty bad right now. The water was very green.

Late Wednesday, they'd noticed about 60 dead fish in the canal.

Fish kills have been reported in the Indian River Lagoon this month from Titusville to Grant-Valkaria.

According to a state database that records fish kills, about 200 flounder were reported dead Monday between Eau Gallie and Melbourne causeways and about 2,000 flounder were reported dead along Riverside Drive in Indialantic.

Earlier this month, scientists with the St. Johns River Water Management District reported two algae blooms near State Road 50 in Titusville and one bloom south of the NASA Causeway.

A new episode in the cockle mortality causes alarm

The alarm has been given, again, Lane: the samples that have been conducted at the mouth of Ulla point to a new episode of mortality among the population of cockles. This species was razed two years ago, according to Sea from marteiliosis, a parasite that was strong in the bottom of the river and then pick on, too, with the rest of the arousanos banks.

In the last campaign itself was free shellfish catches of this species, but were minimal: just 8,500 kilos which was the flagship product of the area.

That figure was not expected by an industry hoped the cockle had been recovered. And it seems that the bad news continues. With the start of the campaign to free shellfishing around the corner, it seems that the situation has not only improved, but it has become worse. "Fixéronse Moitas mostraxes and trinta atopamos live cockles, xa foron moitos" carrilexo explained yesterday from the tank.

Biotoxin causes California pelicans to drop dead from the sky (part one)

August 26, 2014

An outbreak of algae-produced biotoxins that attack animals brains also poses a grave risk to humans

Produced by algae, domoic acid quickly works its way up the food chain. It's first gobbled up by shellfish and plankton-eating fish, like sardines and anchovies, that harbor the toxin in their guts. Next in line are sea lions, brown pelicans, otters, whales and dolphins, all of which have been stranding in large numbers recently, or, in the case of pelicans, literally dropping dead out of the sky. Billions of locusts swarmed Madagascar's capital Antananarivo on Thursday, prompting residents and tourists to share photographs of the sudden insect invasion on Twitter, while experts worried about the effect on the country's food supply.

In the past five years, swarms of giant locusts have regularly swept in over the island nation off Africa's southeastern coast, devastating crops and other food supplies within just a few hours.

- A 21-year-old Conakry University student is infected and was placed in quarantine
- Officials in Guinea alerted Senegal on Wednesday after losing track of the young man
- Senegal closed its Guinea border on August 21 amid the deadliest Ebola outbreak ever

(CNN) -- The West African country of Senegal has confirmed its first Ebola case one week after closing its border with Guinea over fears that the deadly outbreak could spread, the Senegalese Press Agency reported Friday.

Senegal is the fifth country in the region where the virus has spread.

Senegal's health minister, Awa Marie Coll Seck, confirmed that a 21-year-old university student from Guinea was infected with the Ebola virus and placed in quarantine in the Fann Hospital in Dakar, the news agency reported.

Officials in Guinea alerted Senegal on Wednesday after losing track of the young man, the agency reported.

If hundreds of doctors and nurses are becoming infected with Ebola, what chance is the general public going to have? 240 health workers have contracted the virus and more than 120 of them have died, more than 2,800 people have been infected with Ebola since this outbreak began and more than 1,400 people have died. This virus continues to spread at an exponential rate, and now we have learned that there are confirmed cases of Ebola in the Democratic Republic of Congo. Click on Image to view message

Quarantine Fever: Liberian troops fire on protesters, as West Africa's Ebola death toll hits 1,427

Posted on August 28, 2014

August 2014 – AFRICA - Security forces in the Liberian capital fired live rounds and tear gas on Wednesday to disperse a stone-throwing crowd trying to break an Ebola quarantine imposed on their neighborhood, as the death toll from the epidemic in West Africa hit 1,427. In the sprawling oceanfront West Point neighborhood of Monrovia, at least four people were injured in clashes with security forces, witnesses said. It was unclear whether anyone was wounded by the gunfire, though a Reuters photographer saw a young boy with his leg largely severed just above the ankle. Liberian authorities introduced a nationwide curfew on Tuesday and put the West Point neighborhood under quarantine to curb the spread of the disease. "The soldiers are using live rounds," said army spokesman Dessaline Allison, adding: "The soldiers applied the rules of engagement. They did not fire on peaceful citizens. There will be medical reports if (an injury) was from bullet wounds." The World Health Organization said that the countries hit by the worst ever outbreak of the deadly virus were beginning to suffer shortages of fuel, food and basic supplies after shipping companies and airlines suspended services to the region. The epidemic of the hemorrhagic fever, which can kill up to 90 percent of those it infects, is ravaging the three small West African states of Liberia, Sierra Leone and Guinea. It also has a foothold in Nigeria, Africa's biggest economy and most populous country. Liberia – where the death toll is rising fastest – said its Ministry of Health warehouse had run out of rubber boots and bottles of hand sanitizer, essential for preventing the spread of the disease. Still struggling to recover from a devastating 1989-2003 civil war, Liberia recorded 95 deaths in the two days to Aug. 18, the World Health Organization said. Since it was discovered in remote southeastern Guinea in March, the overall death toll from the outbreak has reached 1,427 from a total of 2,615 cases.

Canada pulling Ebola lab team from Sierra Leone

Canada is evacuating a three-member mobile laboratory team from Sierra Leone after people in their hotel were diagnosed with Ebola. The World Health Organization earlier announced it is pulling a team out of the country.

The Public Agency of Canada said in a statement late Tuesday none of the team members had any direct contact with the sick individuals and they are not showing any signs of illness. They will remain in voluntary isolation and be monitored closely.

The laboratory team was helping to control the outbreak there by helping health care workers diagnose and rule out infections. The agency did not say what city the team was in.

Canada said it will send in another team once it is deemed safe. Canada has been rotating three teams of scientists in out and out of West Africa.

The World Health Organization said earlier Tuesday is pulling out its team from the eastern Sierra Leonean city of Kailahun, where an epidemiologist working with the organization was recently infected.

Hamburg - A second World Health Organisation (WHO) staff member has been infected with Ebola in West Africa and will be evacuated to Germany, health officials said Wednesday.

The announcement comes a day after the WHO shut a laboratory in Sierra Leone, after a Senegalese epidemiologist was infected with the deadly virus.

The unnamed WHO worker will be treated in a university hospital in Hamburg-Eppendorf, hospital spokesman Rico Schmidt told dpa.

The patient was expected to land in the northern city of Hamburg Wednesday and be transferred to the hospital in an isolated emergency vehicle.

It was unclear in which West African country the WHO worker had been infected with the virus.

The Ebola death toll across West Africa had risen to 1,427 by August 23, according to the WHO, with a total of 2,615 suspected or confirmed cases in the region.

3rd Doctor Dies From Ebola in Sierra Leone

FREETOWN, Sierra Leone — Aug 27, 2014, 9:54 AM ET

A third top doctor has died from Ebola in Sierra Leone, a government official said Wednesday, as health workers tried to determine how a fourth scientist also contracted the disease before being evacuated to Europe.

The announcements raised worries about Sierra Leone's fight against Ebola, which already has killed more than 1,400 people across West Africa. The World Health Organization said it was sending a team to investigate how the epidemiologist now undergoing treatment in Germany may have contracted the disease that kills more than half its victims.

"The international surge of health workers is extremely important and if something happens, if health workers get infected and it scares off other international health workers from coming, we will be in dire straits," said Christy Feig, director of WHO communications.

Dr. Sahr Rogers had been working at a hospital in the eastern town of Kenema when he contracted Ebola, said Sierra Leonean presidential adviser Ibrahim Ben Kargbo on Wednesday. Two other top doctors already have succumbed to Ebola since the outbreak emerged there earlier this year, including Dr. Sheik Humarr Khan, who also treated patients in Kenema.

Rogers' death marks yet another setback for Sierra Leone, a country still recovering from years of civil war, where there are only two doctors per 100,000 people, according to WHO. By comparison, there are 245 doctors per 100,000 in the United States.

The Senegalese epidemiologist who was evacuated to Germany had been doing surveillance work for the U.N. health agency, said Feig, the WHO spokeswoman. The position involves coordinating the outbreak response by working with lab experts, health workers and hospitals, but does not usually involve direct treatment of patients.

"He wasn't in treatment centers normally," she said by telephone from Sierra Leone. "It's possible he went in there and wasn't properly covered, but that's why we've taken this unusual measure — to try to figure out what happened."

CDC Director Thomas Frieden, who is in Liberia to assess the Ebola outbreak, said today the contagion is "even worse than we'd feared."

"This is an absolute emergency," Frieden told WSB Radio in a phone interview this morning. "We have never seen anything on this scale with Ebola before. Unfortunately, this situation is going to get worse before it gets better. We've not yet turned the tide. The outbreak is ahead of our response."

Frieden, who heads the Atlanta-based U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, said Liberia desperately needs to set up treatment centers across the country that can safely handle Ebola patients, giving the patients a chance to survive and also keeping them out of the community, where they can spread the virus to others.

"We've seen patients with Ebola with nowhere to go, an increasing number of corpses put onto the street," Frieden said. "A whole system of picking up and cremating corpses has had to be developed."

Cremation, which was not culturally acceptable in Liberia before the outbreak, is now widespread practice, the CDC chief said.

The death toll in Liberia and neighboring Guinea and Sierra Leone now stands at 1,427, the World Health Organization said, with total infections of about 2,800 since the outbreak was identified in March.

The Associated Press reported today that two more cases of Ebola infection have been identified in Nigeria.

"The numbers just keep going up, and the need for a global emergency response is enormous," Frieden told WSB.

AUG 28 Ebola outbreak 'going to get worse' – top medic

A leading American health official has warned that the Ebola outbreak sweeping West Africa will get worse. The disease has already killed more than 1400 people in Guinea, Liberia, Nigeria and Sierra Leone, and Doctors Without Borders warned the tremendous influx of patients in Liberia, in particular, is overwhelming their treatment centers there. "I wish I didn't have to say this, but it is going to get worse before it gets better," Dr Tom Frieden, the director of the US Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, said of the outbreak at the end of a visit to Liberia. He described the situation as dire. Liberia has recorded the highest number of cases and deaths of any of the four countries. Doctors Without Borders said in a statement that a new treatment center recently opened in the country's capital with 120 beds filled up almost immediately. The tremendous number of patients means the medical charity is not able to provide those patients with intravenous treatments, a primary way doctors keep people who are losing a tremendous amount of fluid alive. The group did not mention Frieden's visit or recent UN ones, but it said discussions happening now about international coordination are coming too late and that there are countries that could make a dramatic difference if they provided more expertise and resources. It did not name the countries. More

(CNN) -- The Ebola outbreak "continues to accelerate" in West Africa and has killed 1,552 people, the World Health Organization said Thursday.

The total number of cases stands at 3,069, with 40% occurring in the past three weeks. "However, most cases are concentrated in only a few localities," the WHO said.

The outbreak, the deadliest ever, has been centered in Guinea, Sierra Leone and Liberia, with a handful of cases in Nigeria. The overall fatality rate is 52%, the WHO said, ranging from 42% in Sierra Leone to 66% in Guinea.

The WHO issued a "road map" Thursday that "responds to the urgent need to dramatically scale up the international response" in light of

THE Democratic Republic of Congo said as many as 13 people have died of Ebola in a separate outbreak from that raging in three West African nations.

Laboratory tests were positive for Ebola in two cases in a remote village in the northwest, and 11 other deaths are suspected of being due to the virus, Information Minister Lambert Mende said on Monday.

The strain of Ebola in the Congo is different to that in West Africa, Mr Mende said. Among the dead are a doctor and four nurses. The affected areas were under quarantine.

The Department of Health said on Monday that it had no plans to extend travel restrictions to the Congo. The travel bans announced last week remained in place.

The government banned the entry of non-South Africans from Liberia, Sierra Leone and Guinea. South African citizens were asked to delay trips to the affected countries unless they were "absolutely essential".

Department spokesman Joe Maila said any decision to extend restrictions to the Congo would only be made after careful deliberation. "We continue to follow all international developments ... and are on high alert," he said.

The virus has killed at least 1,400 people across West Africa. The World Health Organisation has said it will need at least $430m to bring the worst outbreak under control.

Sudan bans reporting on Ebola

Posted by: APA Posted date : August 31, 2014 at 11:36 am UTC 717 views In: Africa

The Sudanese authorities have prohibited local media from covering any news related to the Ebola virus. Press sources who asked not to be mentioned for security reasons confirmed to APA on Saturday that the security authorities have circulated warning to all media outlets not to publish any news or articles related to the transmission of the Ebola virus in Sudan.

The prohibition came after local media reported on some suspected cases of Ebola in the west of Sudan.

The Minister of Health Affairs for the Darfur Regional Authority, Firdos Abdel Rahman Yousif denied reports of the deadly Ebola virus disease in El Geneina, capital of West Darfur State.

The Sudan News Agency quoted the minister as saying the suspected case had come from Abeche in Chad.

The patient suffered from hemorrhagic fever, began taking treatment from the health center, and was then transferred to a hospital in El Geneina, she claimed.

The Ebola epidemic has killed over 1, 400 people in Guinea, Liberia, Sierra Leone and Nigeria since its outbreak in West Africa in February.

Over 2, 500 people are infected by the virus in the region according to the World Health Organization.

(NaturalNews) Literally hundreds of incidents involving viruses, bacteria and toxins that pose major bioterror risks to both people and agriculture have been reported to federal regulators from 2008 through 2012, according to government reports obtained and reviewed by USA Today.

More than half of the over 1,100 incidents were serious enough that laboratory workers had to have medical evaluations and/or treatment, the reports note. And in five of the incidents, regulators confirmed that lab workers had been either infected or sickened, though all recovered.

CONCERNS are mounting over a powerful new form of gonorrhoea after a patient was found to have the highest level of drug resistance to the disease ever reported in Australia.

It is understood the patient, a tourist from central Europe, contracted the "sex superbug" in Sydney and was eventually treated in Cairns.

The discovery of the case in Australia, which resulted in a health alert in July, has also prompted warnings in New Zealand, where sexual health clinics are on high alert amid fears the new strain will spread there.

North Korea Building Missile Submarine

New intelligence raises fears of future underwater nuclear missile threat from Pyongyang

f SHARE t TWEET e EMAIL

BY: Bill Gertz Follow @BillGertz

August 26, 2014 5:00 am

U.S. intelligence agencies believe North Korea is building a submarine capable of launching ballistic missiles, potentially increasing the threat posed by the nuclear-armed rogue state.

A missile launch tube on a North Korean submarine was observed recently by U.S. intelligence agencies and is raising new concerns about the missile and nuclear threat from the communist regime in Pyongyang, according to two defense officials familiar with reports of the development.

Pentagon spokesman Lt. Col. Jeffrey Pool declined to comment on the North Korean missile submarine program. "We do not comment on intelligence matters, but we do urge North Korea to become more transparent in their defense sector in order to reduce tensions in the region," he said in a statement.

Details of the missile submarine remain closely held within the government.

Disclosure of the missile submarine work followed a recent report from North Korea showing photographs of dictator Kim Jong Un riding in the conning tower of a rusty North Korean submarine at sea.

Military analysts expressed surprise at the intelligence on the missile submarine program and speculated the submarine could be a modification of one of North Korea's Russian or Chinese design Romeo-class diesel submarines.

A second possibility is that the new missile submarine is a copy or modification of a Soviet-era Golf-class missile-firing submarine purchased by Pyongyang—ostensibly for scrap metal—in the mid-1990s.

North Korea's current submarine force includes around 70 submarines. Most of the vessels are older diesel submarines, including 22 Romeo-class or Chinese design Type-031 subs—the type of submarine Kim was photographed on in June.

The majority of the North's submarines, more than two dozen, are small, Sango-class mini-submarines used for covert commando operations to infiltrate South Korea during a conflict. The North Koreans also have four 1940s-design Whiskey-

Ukraine conflict: Russian soldiers seen with 'up to 100' military vehicles in Ukrainian villages

Updated 28 Aug 2014, 12:27pm

A group of Russian soldiers has crossed the Ukrainian border in armoured infantry carriers and trucks and entered the eastern town of Amvrosiyivka, according to a Ukrainian military spokesman.

A convoy of "up to 100" tanks, armoured vehicles and rocket launchers was seen travelling on a road toward Telmanove, a town about 80 kilometres south of rebel stronghold Donetsk and 20 kilometres from the Russian border, Ukraine's army said in a statement.

The army did not give details about the personnel on board the vehicles or when the column was thought to have entered Ukraine.

A military source said the convoy had come from Russia.

"We believe that this is Russian equipment. You cannot buy 100 tanks at a market in Donetsk or Lugansk," the source said.

"Of course they have been moved from across the border."

Military spokesman Andriy Lysenko said government forces had killed about 200 separatists and destroyed tanks and missile systems in clashes in the towns of Horlivka and Ilovaysk further north.

Mr Lysenko said 13 Ukrainian service personnel had been killed in the latest fighting and 36 people had been wounded.

If it turns out Russian soldiers are fighting in Ukraine it could further deepen the country's crisis — the focus of talks this week between Russian president Vladimir Putin and Ukrainian prime minister Arseny Yatsenyuk.

ISIS Fears Prompt Britain to Raise Terrorism Threat Level

LONDON — Alarmed by the suspected presence of hundreds of British jihadists among Sunni militants in Syria and Iraq, Britain increased its assessment of the terrorism threat on its own soil on Friday and said new laws would be introduced to counter what Prime Minister David Cameron called “a greater threat to our security than we have seen before.”

The tone of the warnings recalled the days after July 7, 2005, when four suicide bombers killed 52 travelers in the London transit system. The show of concern, moreover, seemed intended to bolster the government’s case for contentious new legislation to control terrorism suspects.

The terrorism threat level — an official designation assessing the likelihood of an attack — had long been considered to be “substantial,” meaning that an attack was “highly likely.” The new level — “severe” — indicates that “a terrorist attack is highly likely, although there is no intelligence to suggest that one is imminent,” Theresa May, the home secretary, said in a statement.

AUG 28 ISIS Releases video of execution of 200 captured Syrian Troops

The Islamic State has released pictures it claims shows the execution of 200 Syrian soldiers after the capture of a key military air base earlier this week. The unconfirmed reports, which contain pictures and video footage of hundreds of soldiers being led into the desert dressed only in their underwear, were circulated on social media by IS supporters early this morning. Unlike in previous Islamic State propaganda exercises, no pictures have yet been circulated of dead or mutilated bodies. This comes after Twitter late last week cancelled the accounts of any Twitter user who circulated images of the decapitated photojournalist James Foley. But the accuracy of the pictures and video footage is being disputed, with some Syrian sources saying the men being marched into the desert were actually Sheytat tribesmen being executed earlier this month. Two polls released this week both ask a question that you would hope wouldn't need asking: how many people support the Islamic State in Iraq and Syria (ISIS)? Unfortunately, in all four countries surveyed, the answer is greater than zero, and by a lot.

Here is a chart of the results of the polls. The first, by ICM Research, asked people in Germany, France, and the UK whether they had a favorable or unfavorable view of ISIS. The second, by the Palestinian Center for Public Opinion, asked Gazans whether they support or oppose ISIS. Here are the results.

* - Gaza results are from a separate poll

Source: ICM Research, Palestinian Center for Public Opinion

First, a caveat: while the polls of Gazans and Europeans are similar, they are not totally identical. They were conducted by different polling agencies using different methods, and the different question could skew responses, as "support" is stronger than "favor." So keep that in mind when comparing the Gaza results to the others, although it is hard to ignore that ISIS could have a higher approval rating in France than in Gaza.

- The U.S. has been dropping aid to the Iraqi town that was surrounded by ISIS
- The town of Amerli is home to many of Iraq's Shiite Turkmen
- Australia, France and the UK also participated in the aid drop

(CNN) -- Iraqi security and volunteer forces have broken the siege of Amerli and have entered the town, retired Gen. Khaled al-Amerli, an Amerli resident and member of its self-defense force, told CNN on Sunday.

Iraqi state TV also reported that the siege had been broken.

The news prompted a wave of celebrations across the town, which had been besieged by fighters from the terror group ISIS. Residents waved the Iraqi flag and fired celebratory shots into the air, al-Amerli said.

"Today is a day of victory for Iraq and the resilient people of Amerli," the retired general said.

ISIS terrorists pose an "imminent" threat to the U.S. electric grid with the capacity to coordinate a devastating assault on our nation's infrastructure, warned a leading homeland security and terrorism expert in a radio interview Sunday.

Dr. Peter Pry, a former CIA officer, is executive director of the Task Force on National and Homeland Security and director of the U.S. Nuclear Strategy Forum, both congressional advisory boards. He also served on the Congressional EMP Commission, the Congressional Strategic Posture Commission, and the House Armed Services Committee.

"There is an imminent threat from ISIS to the national electric grid and not just to a single U.S. city," said Pry.

Pry was speaking on "Aaron Klein Investigative Radio" on New York's AM 970 The Answer.

United Nations soldiers and al-Nusra fought it out on Saturday in the Golan Heights on the Syrian-Israeli occupied frontier.

On Wednesday al-Nusra, the former al-Qaeda affiliate that merged with ISIS earlier this year, overran the Quneitra crossing on the border and seized 44 Fijian UN soldiers.

Nusra also surrounded nearby Rwhana and Breiqa encampments where dozens of United Nations soldiers are trapped. The gun battle on Saturday erupted after al-Nusra surrounded the Rwhana camp and ordered the soldiers to surrender.

35 Filipino soldiers were pulled out of the Breiqa encampment on Saturday morning with the assistance of Irish UN peacekeepers, according to a report filed with the Associated Press.

Iranian military leaders on Tuesday vowed that Tehran would take military action against Israel in response to an alleged Israeli drone that was shot down in Iran on Sunday.

Iran "will not give a diplomatic response," but will air its grievances with Israel on the "battlefield," senior Iranian generals were quoted as saying on Tuesday.

"Our response to this aggression will not be diplomatic, we will retaliate in the battlefield, but will not necessarily announce it," Brigadier General Hossein Salami, the Lieutenant Commander of Iran's Islamic Revolution Guards Corps (IRGC) was quoted as saying during a ceremony on Tuesday meant to commemorate "martyred" Iranian military personnel.

"The enemy will see and understand it," Salami was quoted as saying by the semi official Fars News Agency. "We never step back (in the confrontation) against the enemy. The Islamic Republic is powerful and is capable of confronting any power at any level and we never bring down the level of our goals."

The threat of a surprise attack against Israel for its apparent attempts to send a spy drone into Tehran came just a day after Iranian government officials threatened to sue Israel in the International Criminal Court.

Iranian military leaders announced over the weekend that they had used a surface-to-air missile to shoot down a drone that it claimed was an Israeli-made Hermes 450 unmanned plane. The drone was allegedly on its way to the Natanz nuclear enrichment site, which is believed to be part of Iran's clandestine attempts to build a nuclear weapon.

"This hostile action is a violation of Iran's territorial integrity and sovereignty," Iranian Foreign Ministry spokeswoman Marzieh Afkham was quoted as saying Monday by the Islamic Republic News Agency (IRNA).

Afkham also hinted that military action is being considered by Tehran.

"Iran has the right to take the necessary defensive action and pursue the case in international legal courts," IRNA reported Afkham as saying.

Tehran said it would "accelerate" its support for Hamas with weapons and missile-building technology after Israel allegedly deployed a spy drone over Iran.

General Amir Ali Hajizadeh, of Iran's Revolutionary Guards, said: "We will accelerate the arming of the West Bank and we reserve the right to give any response."

Iran has confirmed it supplied fighters from Hamas and the Islamic Jihad with the technology for the rockets being fired relentlessly into Israel from Gaza since July 8.

Hundreds of Israelis living in communities near the coastal strip fled their homes following a deadly mortar attack over the weekend. At least seven Palestinians were reported killed yesterday as the TEL AVIV – In the week leading up to Tuesday's cease-fire announcement, Hamas deployed an alarming new weapon: Russian-manufactured mortars with accurate GPS capabilities.

Senior Egyptian security officials say Hamas purchased the precision mortars from rebels who looted Muammar Gadhafi's reserves after the Libyan strongman was toppled by a U.S.-NATO campaign in 2011.

The rebels also reportedly acquired thousands of shoulder-launched surface-to-air missiles, or MANPADS, said to be capable of downing passenger jets.

The security officials said the mortars, believed to number in the hundreds, were smuggled into Gaza during the administration of Mohamed Morsi, the Muslim Brotherhood leader who served as Egyptian president until being deposed in July 2013.

Feds Creating Database to Track 'Hate Speech' on Twitter

$1 Million study focuses on internet memes, 'misinformation' in political campaigns

BY: Elizabeth Harrington

Follow @LizWFB

August 25, 2014 3:30 pm

The federal government is spending nearly $1 million to create an online database that will track "misinformation" and hate speech on Twitter.

The National Science Foundation is financing the creation of a web service that will monitor "suspicious memes" and what it considers "false and misleading ideas," with a major focus on political activity online.

The "Truthy" database, created by researchers at Indiana University, is designed to "detect political smears, astroturfing, misinformation, and other social pollution."

The university has received $919,917 so far for the project.

"The project stands to benefit both the research community and the public significantly," the grant states. "Our data will be made available via [application programming interfaces] APIs and include information on meme propagation networks, statistical data, and relevant user and content features."

"The open-source platform we develop will be made publicly available and will be extensible to ever more research areas as a greater preponderance of human activities are replicated online," it continues. "Additionally, we will create a web service open to the public for monitoring trends, bursts, and suspicious memes."

"This service could mitigate the diffusion of false and misleading ideas, detect hate speech and subversive propaganda, and assist in the preservation of open debate," the grant said.

"Truthy," which gets its name from Stephen Colbert, will catalog how information is spread on Twitter, including political campaigns.

"While the vast majority of memes arise in a perfectly organic manner, driven by the complex mechanisms of life on the Web, some are engineered by the shady machinery of high-profile congressional campaigns," according to the website.

Wall Street Admits That A Cyberattack Could Crash Our Banking System At Any Time

By Michael Snyder, on August 28th, 2014

Wall Street banks are getting hit by cyber attacks every single minute of every single day. It is a massive onslaught that is not highly publicized because the bankers do not want to alarm the public. But as you will see below, one big Wall Street bank is spending 250 million dollars a year just by themselves to combat this growing problem. The truth is that our financial system is not nearly as stable as most Americans think that it is. We have become more dependent on technology than ever before, and that comes with a potentially huge downside. An electromagnetic pulse weapon or an incredibly massive cyberattack could conceivably take down part or all of our banking system at any time.

This week, the mainstream news is reporting on an attack on our major banks that was so massive that the FBI and the Secret Service have decided to get involved. The following is how Forbes described what is going on...

The FBI and the Secret Service are investigating a huge wave of cyber attacks on Wall Street banks, reportedly including JP Morgan Chase, that took place in recent weeks.

The attacks may have involved the theft of multiple gigabytes of sensitive data, according to reports. Joshua Campbell, supervisory special agent at the FBI, tells Forbes: "We are working with the United States Secret Service to determine the scope of recently reported cyber attacks against several American financial institutions."

4.3% of Americans Survive on Less than $2/Day

Slightly more than one American household with children in every 25 is surviving on less than $2 per day of income from all sources. One quarter of that 4.3% (that's 1% of all Americans with children) receive less than $1.25 per day. One third (that's about 1.33% of all Americans) receive between $1.25 and $2. Another third of that 4.3% receive enough government benefits to be living on between $1.25 and $2 a day. A tiny 0.1% of that 4.3% are even surviving somehow on "Negative income & benefits."

Humanists Threaten Lawsuit Over Sermon, Prayer Delivered at Mississippi Convocation

JACKSON, Miss. — A nationally-recognized humanist organization has threatened to sue a Mississippi school district after a pastor delivered a sermon and prayer at a convocation for teachers earlier this month.

The American Humanist Association's (AHA) Appignani Humanist Legal Center sent a letter to the superintendent of the Jackson Public School District on Monday stating that it had received a complaint from a teacher who attended the event. The organization claims that the convocation was mandatory.

Among the speakers at the convocation was Pastor Roy Maine, who also works as an electrician in the district. He had been invited to deliver the opening prayer, and included words of exhortation during his invocation.

"This is the time to stand for God," Maine told those gathered, according to video footage of the event. "We get run over and run over, and we get up ...We're gonna keep getting up for God, amen?"

He also led attendees in the 23rd Psalm, which he asked those present to recite with him, and made other Scriptural references.

But AHA says that Maine was not their only concern.

"Nearly every speaker at this three-hour event engaged in some form of religious preaching, recitation of Bible verses, and invocation to 'Lord' and 'God.' The event was best described by our client as 'one long church service.'" the letter, written by staff attorney Monica Miller, stated.

Connect with Christian News Like 464k Follow

AHA argued that the religious content of the convocation was a violation of the Constitution's Establishment Clause in the First Amendment, which reads, "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

"Given the clarity of the jurisprudence, it shocks the conscience that the school district included a prayer, by a Christian pastor, at a formal, and indeed mandatory, school-sponsored event," Miller wrote.

She then ordered that the district bar the use of religious speech in future events under threat of a lawsuit.

Her Fans Are In Shock. Her Huge Secret Is Finally Exposed!

The Catholic Archbishop of Oklahoma City has agreed to drop a lawsuit against a satanic cult that plans to perform a "black mass" in the city now that the cult has returned a stolen consecrated host to the church.

An Oklahoma-based satanic group called Dakhma of Angra Mainyu has leased space in the Civic Center Music Hall, which is owned and operated by the city, for a black mass on Sept. 21.

The event is booked for the Cityspace theater, which is the facility's smallest theater space, said Jennifer McClintock, public information officer for the Civic Center.

She told WND the city will not block the black mass from being held despite an uproar among Christian and family groups, which are mobilizing to stop it.

Facebook is making some changes towards a more inclusive community for users with the addition of gender-neutral options for family member identification.

Previously the social networking site had announced the addition of customizable gender options for its U.S. users along with three pronoun choices: him, her or them. The change was meant to give people more ways to describe themselves, "such as androgynous, bi-gender, intersex, gender fluid or transsexual," the Associated Press reported.

Now, Facebook is expanding its gender-neutral options to include family members, the Advocate noted. The new additions include sibling (gender neutral), parent (gender neutral), grandchild (gender neutral) and more.

'So You Think You Can Dance' Breaks Its Routine By Going Gay, And We Love It

The Huffington Post | By Cate Matthews

Posted: 08/29/2014 1:30 pm EDT | Updated: 08/29/2014 1:59 pm EDT

"So You Think You Can Dance" is show that runs on physical skill and sexual chemistry, but up until now, that chemistry's been pretty heterosexual.

Although the dancers in the show do occasionally pair up in same-sex duets, as gay site The Backlot notes, those duets are always very pointedly unromantic. (Think Sharks vs. Jets, not Tony and Maria.)

Which is why the show's opening number on Wednesday night was so groundbreaking.

The final four competitors danced to the ballad "Wind Beneath My Wings." Where another choreographer might have paired them off in the heterosexual couples the show's audience is accustomed to, "So You Think You Can Dance" veteran Travis Wall decided to do things a little differently.

فالاضطهاد يزيد والاضطراب يزيد والفساد الأخلاقي يزيد والاحاد يزيد

فهذا أقول المسيح اقترب ميعاد مجيؤه لا احدد مواعيد بل ارفض من يحدد مواعيد ولكن اطلب شيئين

الأول نصلي ونستعد ونعد زيت لمصابيحنا لاستقبال العريس بالصلاة والصوم وخدمة أبناء الله
وتنقية القلب والاستعداد بلبس العرس.

أفسس 6: 15 وَحَازِنِينَ أَرْجُلَكُمْ بِاسْتِغْدَادٍ إِنِّجِيلِ السَّلَامِ .

رسالة بولس الرسول الي أهل رومية 13

13: 11 هذا وأنكم عارفون الوقت انها الان ساعة لنستيقظ من النوم فان خلاصنا الان أقرب مما كان حين امنا

13: 12 قد تنهى الليل وتقارب النهار فلنخلع اعمال الظلمة ونلبس اسلحة النور

13: 13 لنسلك بلباقة كما في النهار لا بالبطر والسكر لا بالمضاجع والعهر لا بالخصام والحسد

13: 14 بل البسوا الرب يسوع المسيح ولا تصنعوا تدبيرا للجسد لأجل الشهوات

احترس ان لم تتمسك بالمسيح من الان قد لا تستطيع في المستقبل القريب بسبب الظلام.

الثاني لا نخاف

بطرس الأولى 3: 14

وَلَكِنْ وَإِنْ تَأَلَّمْتُمْ مِنْ أَجْلِ الْبِرِّ، فَطُوبَاكُمْ. وَأَمَّا خَوْفُهُمْ فَلَا تَخَافُوهُ وَلَا تَضْطَرُّوْا،

بل نفرح

رسالة بولس الرسول إلى أهل فيلبي 4: 4

إَفْرَحُوا فِي الرَّبِّ كُلَّ حِينٍ، وَأَقُولُ أَيْضًا: اَفْرَحُوا.

افرحوا لان عريسنا قد اقترب مجيؤه. وانتبهوا الشيطان يريد أن نفقد سلامنا ولا ننال أكاليل.

وأيضاً استعدوا فقد تسلموا وديعتكم في أي وقت فهناك 150 ألف شخص يموتوا في اليوم الواحد

انت لا تعرف متى ستكون منهم

المسيح اقترب فاصنعوا ثمار تليق بالتوبة واستعدوا لاستقبال العريس.

والمجد لله دائما
