والعلامات حتى 9 ديسمبر 2014

Holy_bible_1

اكرر اننا لا نحدد مواعيد بل فقط نشجع بعضنا بعضا بقرب مجيء المسيح

وأیضا أوضح أنه يوجد نبوات لم نراها بعد مثل ابن الهلاك وهرمجدون

ولكن ایضا علامات كثيرة من التي قال عنها الكتاب انها في الزمان الاخير بدأت تحدث بوضوح

ويجب أن ننتبه اليها. ونذكر بعضنا باننا نحتاج ان نستعد. والاستعداد ليس فقط قبل مجيء

المسيح بل ایضا قبل الظلمة التي ستسبق مجيؤه ليكون عندنا زيت في مصابيحنا يكفي ان نعبر

هذه الظلمة وتكون مصابيحنا مضيئة وقت مجيؤه. بمعنى نحتاج من الان ان نستعد بقوة بأيمان

عامل وبتنقية القلب وان نثمر بالخدمة أي نجمع زيت في مصابيحنا لان الظلمة والضيقة اقتربت

جدا ومن لن يستعد لها بزيت كافي من الان لن يجد زيت في الضيقة لان وقتها تجميع زيت

سيكون صعب جدا بل أستطيع ان أقول من مثل العذارى انه لن يكون هناك زيت الا ما جمعه

سابقا. أفضل ان اقول لنفسي ولكم استعدوا الان لأنه اقترب فنكون مستعدين سواء جاء او نحن ان سلمنا وديعتنا عن أنى لا اقول انه اقترب لكيلا يقال عني كاذب وانشر اشاعات ولكنه يأتي بسرعة بغته. لا اعتقد اي أحد ندم لانه كان مستعد ومنتظر مجيء المسيح ولم ياتي المسيح في زمنه ولكنه انتقل وهو مستعد ولكن كثيرين جدا ندموا على عدم الاستعداد عندما انتقلوا بعض الاحداث التي قال عنها الرب يسوع

انجيل متى 24

مت 24: 6 وسوف تسمعون بحروب واخبار حروب انظروا لا ترتاعوا لأنه لا بد ان تكون هذه

كلها ولكن ليس المنتهى بعد

مت 24: 7 لأنه تقوم امة على امة ومملكة على مملكة وتكون مجاعات واوبئة وزلازل في اماكن

مت 24: 8 ولكن هذه كلها مبتدأ الازعاج

مت 24: 9 حينئذ يسلمونكم الى ضيق ويقتلونكم وتكونون مبغضين من جميع الامم لأجل اسمي

مت 24: 10 وحينئذ يعثر كثيرون ويسلمون بعضهم بعضا ويبغضون بعضهم بعضا

مت 24: 11 ويقوم انبياء كذبة كثيرون ويضلون كثيرين

مت 24: 12 ولكثرة الاثم تبرد محبة الكثيرين

مت 24: 13 ولكن الذي يصبر الى المنتهى فهذا يخلص

مت 24: 14 ويكرز ببشارة الملكوت هذه في كل المسكونة شهادة لجميع الامم ثم ياتي المنتهى

انجيل لوقا 21

21: 10 ثم قال لهم تقوم امة على امة ومملكة على مملكة

21: 11 وتكون زلازل عظيمة في اماكن ومجاعات واوبئة وتكون مخاوف وعلامات عظيمة من

السماء

21: 25 وتكون علامات في الشمس والقمر والنجوم وعلى الارض كرب امم بحيرة البحر والامواج

تضج

21: 26 والناس يغطى عليهم من خوف وانتظار ما يأتي على المسكونة لان قوات السماوات

تتزعزع

21: 27 وحينئذ يبصرون ابن الانسان اتيا في سحابة بقوة و مجد كثير

سفر اعمال الرسل 2

2: 19 واعطي عجائب في السماء من فوق وآيات على الارض من أسفل دما ونارا وبخار دخان

2: 20 تتحول الشمس الى ظلمة والقمر الى دم قبل ان يجيء يوم الرب العظيم الشهير

2: 21 ويكون كل من يدعو باسم الرب يخلص

المسيح لا يتنبأ ولا يتوقع بل يعرف

لماذا قال المسيح بعض العلامات؟

إنجيل يوحنا 14: 29

وَقُلْتُ لَكُمْ الْآنَ قَبْلَ أَنْ يَكُونَ، حَتَّى مَتَى كَانَ تُؤْمِنُونَ.

وايضا لنتنبه ونستعد

انجيل لوقا 21

Earth is 'living on borrowed time': Scientists fear killer asteroids

Asteroid impact on Earth could happen. And could be deadly. Source: ThinkStock

AN array of the world's leading experts in astrophysics want everyone to stop worrying about what's happening on Earth and start planning for what could one day crash into it.

We've seen it play out in Hollywood before: A killer asteroid is hurtling toward our precious planet while NASA scrambles to find a way to stop the celestial beast in its tracks.

But an international group of astronauts and scientists, led by British royal astronomer Lord Rees, have joined forces to go on the hunt for the precarious projectiles, warning the public that the possibility of a deadly strike is actually a terrifying reality, the Financial Times reports.

Dangerous 300+ meter asteroid to cross Earth orbit every 3 years

Scientists have calculated that 2014 UR116 asteroid will fly in dangerous proximity to Earth every three years. If it collides with the planet the energy of the explosion could be a thousand times greater than the impact of the Chelyabinsk meteorite. Vladimir Lipunov, a leading scientist on the team which discovered the asteroid this October, says the scientists now know its orbit and its period which is 3 years, but they cannot say precisely when the asteroid will approach the Earth. "We should track it constantly. Because if we have a single mistake, there will be a catastrophe. The consequences can be very serious," he said in the documentary "Asteroids attack" posted on Roscosmos website. The new asteroid, called 2014 UR116 is about 370 meters in diameter. Its size exceeds the famous Apophis which the Earth can meet in the next decade. The exact trajectory of 2014 UR116 is yet to be determined, but theoretically it may collide with the Earth, Mars or Venus. Its trajectory can fluctuate because of the gravitational pull of these planets. More

■ Data Tools: Daily Weather Records

The daily records summarized here are compiled from a subset of stations in the Global Historical Climatological Network. A station is defined as the complete daily weather records at a particular location, having a unique identifier in the GHCN-Daily dataset.

For a station to be considered for any parameter, it must have a minimum of 30 years of data with more than 182 days complete each year. This is effectively a "30-year record of service" requirement, but allows for inclusion of some stations which routinely shut down during certain seasons. Small station moves, such as a move from one property to an adjacent property, may occur within a station history. However, larger moves, such as a station moving from downtown to the city airport, generally result in the commissioning of a new station identifier. This tool treats each of these histories as a different station. In this way, it does not "thread" the separate histories into one record for a city.

This tool provides simplistic counts of records to provide insight into recent climate behavior, but is not a definitive way to identify trends in the number of records set over time. This is particularly true outside the United States, where the number of records may be strongly influenced by station density from country to country and from year to year. These data are raw and have not been assessed for the effects of changing station instrumentation and time of observation.

U.S. Records Summary

The summaries below list the number of records broken for several recent periods is summarized in this table and updated daily. Due to late-arriving data, the number of recent records is likely underrepresented in all categories, but the ratio of records (warm to cold, for example) should be a fairly strong estimate of a final outcome. There are many more precipitation stations than temperature stations, so the raw number of precipitation records will likely exceed the number of temperature records in most climatic situations.

Super Typhoon Hagupit has become a potentially catastrophic tropical cyclone in the tropical western Pacific Ocean after undergoing a period of explosive and rapid intensification. Uncertainty remains high in its future track, but there is increasing concern that the super typhoon could eventually strike the Philippines -- where it has been named Ruby -- with devastating force.

A very dangerous situation is unfolding in the Philippines as Typhoon Hagupit, locally known as Ruby, makes landfall in the province of Eastern Samar. More than 30 million people will be impacted by this cyclone.

Hagupit rapidly strengthened into a super typhoon on Wednesday afternoon and into Thursday with sustained winds over 241 kph (150 mph), the equivalent to a Category 4 hurricane in the Atlantic or Eastern Pacific Ocean.

(NaturalNews) The drought in California has unfortunately become a way of life for the majority of its residents, with many of them resorting to showering in portable stalls located in parking lots and getting on board with drinking recycled sewage water.

The latter specifically pertains to San Diego, where a plan has already been put in place to recycle 15 million gallons by 2023 and 83 million gallons daily by 2035. While surveys have shown that three out of four residents are in favor of the plan saying that it's beneficial for the drying state, some say it ranks high on the gross scale, conjuring up bathroom behaviors and all the related visuals and odors.⁽¹⁾

Shockingly, it has only 60 days of water supply remaining. The city "has about two months of guaranteed water supply remaining as it taps into the second of three emergency reserves," reports Reuters. [1]

Technical reserves have already been released, and as the city enters the heavy water use holiday season, its 20 million residents are riding on a fast-track collision course with severe water rationing and devastating disruptions.

Expert group wants 3 more volcanoes added to list under 24-hour watch

November 29, 2014

By TAKATERU DOI/ Staff Writer

An experts' panel studying the forecasting of volcanic eruptions has urged the government to add three more volcanoes to the 47 under round-the-clock observation, and recommended enhancing monitoring near craters to improve early detection.

A study group set up at the Japan Meteorological Agency's Coordinating Committee for Prediction of Volcanic Eruptions has been reviewing the volcano monitoring system after volcanologists failed to predict the deadly eruption of Mount Ontakesan in central Japan in late September. The group compiled a report on its proposals on Nov. 28.

The three volcanoes sought for inclusion are Mount Hakkodasan in Aomori Prefecture, where volcanic tremors were observed near the summit in 2013; Mount Midagahara between Toyama and Nagano prefectures, where increases in temperatures have been detected near craters, called fumaroles, since 2012; and Mount Towada, straddling Aomori and Akita prefectures, where an increased frequency of volcanic quakes has been observed this year.

The study group also called for enhancing efforts to observe activities that could lead to so-called phreatic eruptions, as in the case of Mount Ontakesan. These less-severe upsurges, which occur when groundwater is heated by magma, are hard to detect in advance, according to volcanologists.

The Meteorological Agency is in the process of requesting funding of an effort related to the proposals.

The group also recommended more equipment be installed as soon as possible in the vicinity of craters, such as cameras to monitor temperature conditions and fumarolic activity, as well as clinometers, which can measure the angle of a mountain slope.

Hiroshi Shimizu, a professor of volcanology at Kyushu University's graduate school who heads the study group, stressed the need for increasing monitoring capabilities.

Check Out The Massive Sinkhole Tearing Apart A Street In San Francisco

BUSINESS INSIDER By Lisa Eadicicco 13 hours ago

A massive 30-by-20 foot sinkhole tore apart a street in the Bay Area of San Francisco on Wednesday, according to a CBS local San Francisco affiliate.

The sinkhole, caused by heavy overnight rain, sits at the intersection of Lake Street and Sixth Avenue.

Jean Walsh, a spokesperson for the San Francisco Public Utilities Commission, told CBS that sand had eroded around an underground water main pipe at the intersection. As a result, the pipe collapsed, causing rocks and sand to erode.

This isn't a first-time experience for Lake Street residents — in May 2013, an enormous 22-foot sinkhole opened up on Lake Street and 2nd Ave.

Two poultry farms in British Columbia have been placed under quarantine after the Canadian Food Inspection Agency confirmed Tuesday an avian flu outbreak.

At a turkey farm in Abbotsford, B.C., half of the barn's 11,000 birds have already died from the disease, according to Jane Pritchard, B.C.'s chief veterinary officer. At a second farm about eight kilometres away in Chilliwack, B.C., 1,000 of the farm's 7,000 birds have died.

Pritchard told reporters Tuesday the remaining birds would be euthanized using carbon dioxide gas, then "composted" in the barn so the disease would not escape the building or go airborne. The CFIA will also oversee the disinfection of the barns, vehicles and tools once the infected animals are disposed of.

A stretch of Robberg Beach, on the southern coast of South Africa, has been transformed into 'mussel beach' as thousands of the black molluscs cover the sands.

As experts try to work out what caused the mussels to be washed up, people were warned to play it safe and not eat them.

Four years ago that the salmon industry revived not due to one of its greatest fears: the massive death of your fish by health factors, causing an intense operation by the Government through the Servicio Nacional de Pesca (Sernapesca).

Last week four companies, whose cultivation centres hundreds of kilometres away in the southern area, lit the alarms of the health authority due to its high mortality rates. It's the companies: Blumar, Friosur, Acuinova and Acuimag, the first three in Aysén and Magallanes last.

This time two foci of - also called bloom of algae - algae blooms caused high mortalities of fish and occurred simultaneously in the northern area of Aysén and Magallanes, in the sector of Última Esperanza.

In the latter, the case generated impact in Puerto Natales, closest town to affected culture centers, due to fulminant death of the fish that were in those moments of fattening.

"In four days in Magellan 400 thousand fish died in a Center. Many animals die in a very short time and what is important is that we are acting quickly to prevent the spread," explains the Subdirector of aquaculture of the Sernapesca, Alicia Gallardo.

And adds: "the researchers have published is that climate change could affect temperatures in the sea and that could lead to an increase of populations zoo planktonic that produce these bloom." Therefore, it is expected that such events come with climate change".

The Canadian Food Inspection Agency confirmed Saturday afternoon that avian influenza had spread to a fifth Fraser Valley farm, a turkey producer near Abbotsford, B.C.

B.C. Ministry of Agriculture Chief Veterinary Officer Dr. Jane Pritchard says the turkey farm contains two barns with a capacity of 30,000 birds each.

The CFIA says given the highly contagious nature of the disease it anticipated other farms could be identified.

The latest of several mass die-offs in recent years, the rotting corpses were found on Anconcillo Beach, located in Peru's Ancash region. Both young and old sea lions were found at the site, which the local governor blamed on fishermen who may have poisoned them while they searched for food at the

A nature reserve has been flooded with oil and more than 80 people have been hospitalized from exposure to toxic fumes after approximately 600,000 gallons of crude oil spilled from a pipeline in southern Israel on Wednesday, according to media reports there.

The massive spill, which resulted from a breach in the 153-mile Trans-Israel pipeline, has been described as "one of the gravest pollution events in the country's history." That's according to Israel Environmental Protection Ministry official Guy Samet, who also said the spill could take months, maybe years, to fully clean up.

(NaturalNews) Though it is not in the headlines much these days, the Ebola outbreak in West Africa is worsening, with the number of infected people and the number of people killed by the disease being dramatically underreported.

In fact, as noted by Britain's The Guardian newspaper, the number of people in West Africa who have contracted the disease has risen well above 16,000, and the death toll nearly 7,000, according to the World Health Organization, which warned that those figures are most probably low.

"It's all hands on deck, 24/7, for Ebola," one prominent federal health official told me during the hysteria, but "we're ignoring antibiotic resistance."

Yet, each year, more than 5 million people in the U.S. and Europe become infected with serious, resistant bacterial infections across the globe, with at least 48,000 of those people dying as a direct result of these infections, according to the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and the European Centre for Disease Prevention and Control. Globally, the bacteria responsible are growing increasingly resistant to these treatments. And more than 2 million children, mostly in the undeveloped world, die each year of bacterial pneumonia alone.

(Reuters) - A week after grilling hamburgers in his backyard in November 2011, business consultant Kenneth Koehler became violently ill. He suffered stomach pains, diarrhea and nausea – and rushed to the hospital emergency room in Biddeford, Maine.

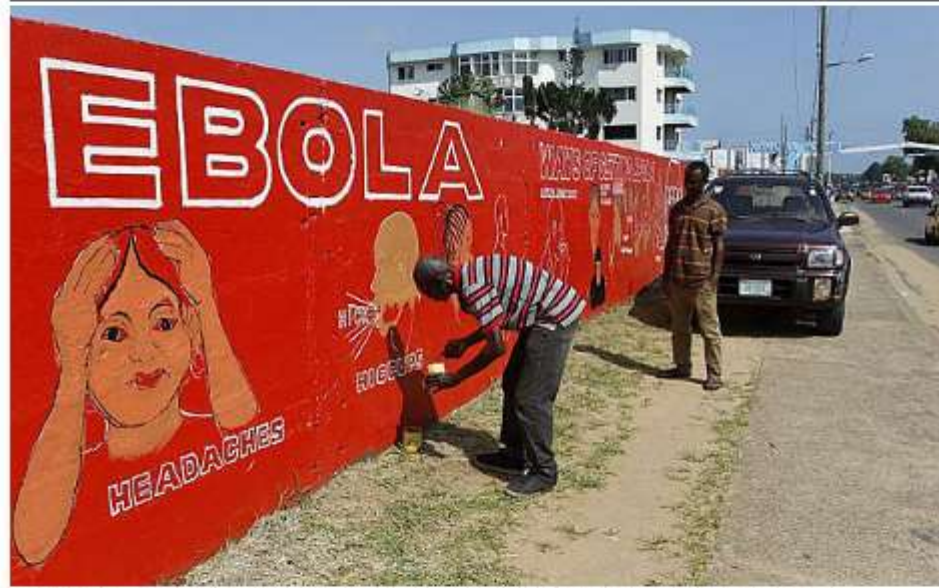

Days later, his doctors told him that his burger was contaminated with Salmonella Typhimurium, a strain commonly found in ground beef.

But Koehler's salmonella was more dangerous than he realized.

North Korea accuses US of developing Ebola virus

Editorial in the Pyongyang Times fuels conspiracy theory that Washington is using deadly disease to maintain power over developing world

The global death toll from Ebola has risen to more than 6000, according to the World Health Organisation Photo: EPA

By Hamish Macdonald, NK News

An editorial in the Pyongyang Times on Monday claims that the US may have developed the Ebola virus and intentionally allowed it to spread throughout West Africa and the rest of the world.

The article, "Ebola virus much feared as biological weapon", claims that the US has done so for the purposes of generating profits from an Ebola vaccine as well as to weaken other countries for its own political gain.

"Fears are rising after suspicions were aroused that the virus was made and spread by the US," the article read, paraphrasing comments and beliefs from a plant pathologist in Liberia and two Americans, Paul Roberts and Francis Boyle, as possible evidence.

(NaturalNews) The arguments in favor of biotechnology-derived food – that is, genetically modified organisms (GMOs) – are a complete farce. A new study by the investment group Portfolio 21 explains that, despite their widespread adoption mostly in North America, GMOs are not saving farmers money, they're not producing higher yields, and perhaps most significantly they're wrecking the environment and human health.

Practically everything positive to speak of concerning GMOs is nothing but a corporate talking point designed to sell more of them to farmers and, ultimately, the public. They will feed the world, we are repeatedly told, and

RUSSIA PREPARES FOR WAR

Russian media has announced the government is preparing for war.

Russia Today reports the country now has a new fortified national defense facility located in Moscow that "would take control of the entire country in case of war." The cost of the project is estimated at several billion dollars.

"The creation of NDCC [National Defense Control Center] was one of the biggest military projects of the past few years. The closest analogy in the past in terms of functions and tasks was the Commander-in-Chief HQ in 1941-45, which centralized all controls of both the military machine and the economy of the nation in the interests of the war," Lt. General Mikhail Mizintsev, the NDCC chief, said during an interview.

The National Defense Control Center replaces an old facility that monitored nuclear weapons deployment by the West. It is compared to the U.S. National Military Command Center located deep inside the Pentagon that provides the Joint Chiefs with worldwide situation monitoring and crisis management.

Cutting Russia out of SWIFT banking system would mean 'war' – head of VTB

Excluding Russia from the global SWIFT banking transactions system is another form of sanctions and would mean "war," said Andrei Kostin, head of VTB Russia's second largest bank, adding that should it happen Russia has a "Plan B."

"In my personal opinion, if such a sanction is introduced it would mean war," Kostin said in an interview with Germany's Handelsblatt newspaper. If Russian banks no longer have access to SWIFT, the American ambassador would leave Moscow the same day, he said.

Kostin added that the banking system is highly dependent on the dollar and euro, and is the most vulnerable part of the Russian economy. However, he said Russia has an alternative should the SWIFT system be no longer available to Russia. Last month the Bank of Russia said it's going to launch an alternative for financial transactions in May 2015.

See Russian Jet Fighter Nearly Collide With NATO F-16 In Skies Over Norway In Startling Video

A Russian jet fighter came within a mere 60 feet of a NATO F-16 in an incident that could have ended with a disastrous mid-air collision in the skies over Norway — and the Norwegian military caught the whole frightening encounter on video. Norway made the incredible video public on Sunday, to add visual proof of Russia's increasing military brinkmanship.

According to the Norwegian military, the plane that appears directly in front of the Norwegian NATO F-16 in the video is a Russian Mig-31, during an incident in which Norway scrambled two of its own jet fighters to intercept a Russian fighter jet flying in international airspace, but dangerously close to Norway.

Iran-Backed Hackers Target Airports, Carriers: Report

By Michael Riley and Jordan Robertson | Dec 2, 2014 12:50 PM MT 76 Comments Email Print

Hackers working for Iran have targeted at least 50 companies and government organizations, including commercial airlines, looking for vulnerabilities that could be used in physical attacks, cyber-security firm Cylance Inc. said today.

The hackers infiltrated the computer systems of carriers and their contractors in Pakistan, the United Arab Emirates and South Korea, the Irvine, California-based firm said in a report outlining the results of a two-year investigation. They broke into the computers of suppliers responsible for aircraft maintenance, cargo loading and refueling, according to the report and Cylance analysts, and stole credentials that could be used to impersonate workers.

In the U.S., computers belonging to chemical and energy companies, defense contractors, universities and transportation providers were hacked in what Cylance dubbed Operation Cleaver. The report said the Iranian group is the same one that breached the U.S. Navy's unclassified computer system in September 2013.

The capabilities of Iranian cyberspies have advanced to the point that the country is quickly becoming a top-tier cyber power, according to the report. While the group Cylance followed appears to have been focused on intelligence gathering, the choice of targets raises security fears, the report said.

"If the operation is left to continue unabated, it is only a matter of time before they impact the world's physical safety," the report said.

Cylance said it provided the information it collected to the U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation. The FBI is already looking into Iranian hacking, including the Navy breach, according to two people familiar with that probe.

Dec. 2 (Bloomberg) — Stuart McClure, chief executive officer at Cylance, and Bloomberg's Michael Riley discuss the infiltration of Iranian hackers into 50 U.S. companies and government organizations. They speak on "In The Loop."

The Islamic State of Iraq and Syria militants have reportedly developed a nuclear weapon from the radioactive material they seized from the Mosul University in Iraq. ISIS bragged about the nuclear device on social media as a British extremist fighter claimed it would wreak havoc in London when it explodes.

According to media reports, ISIS militants have stolen 40 kilogrammes of uranium in July and used it to make a "dirty bomb." The Mirror noted that British bomb expert Hamayun Tariq was identified as among the militants who issued threats to the West online. In 2012, he left his home in Dudley and went to the Middle East.

On his Twitter account under the Muslim name, Muslim al-Britani, he announced that ISIS has a dirty bomb and revealed they militants found radioactive material at the Iraqi university in Mosul. UN resolution: Israel must renounce nuclear arms

By ALEXANDRA OLSON
12 hours ago

t f twitter email Y + X

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The U.N. General Assembly overwhelmingly approved an Arab-backed resolution Tuesday calling on Israel to renounce possession of nuclear weapons and put its nuclear facilities under international oversight.

The resolution, adopted in a 161-5 vote, noted that Israel is the only Middle Eastern country that is not party to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons. It called on Israel to "accede to that treaty without further delay, not to develop, produce test or otherwise acquire nuclear weapons, to renounce possession of nuclear weapons" and put its nuclear facilities under the safeguard of the U.N.'s International Atomic Energy Agency.

The United States, Canada, Palau and Micronesia joined Israel in opposing the measure, while 18 countries abstained.

Israel is widely considered to possess nuclear arms but declines to confirm it.

Senior White House and State Department officials have recently met to discuss the possibility of imposing sanctions on Israel in an effort to stop housing construction projects in eastern Jerusalem, Haaretz reported.

The report – which comes as the Obama administration is lobbying furiously against new sanctions on Iran over its illicit nuclear program – is likely to trigger new, bipartisan concern on Capitol Hill over the direction of U.S. Mideast policy.

Moscow's deputy foreign minister, Mikhail Bogdanov, also met with the leaders of Lebanon's rival political and sectarian factions. The two-day trip was seen as a gesture of Russian goodwill and an expression of its support for efforts to forge a unity government.

White House Rejects Petition Asking Government to Declare Muslim Brotherhood Terrorist Group

WASHINGTON – The White House has rejected a petition requesting that the government declare the Muslim Brotherhood a terrorist organization.

The petition had been first created in July on the White House website, and obtained over 213,000 signatures in just a month. The Obama administration has stated that it will respond to any petition that reaches at least 100,000 signatures in a 30-day period.

“[The] Muslim Brotherhood has a long history of violent killings & terrorizing opponents. Also, MB has direct ties with most terrorist groups like Hamas,” it read. “A book by one of their prominent figures, Sayyid Qutb, called Ma’alim fi-l-Tariq, is the bible for many terrorist groups.”

“The Muslim Brotherhood has shown in the past few days that it is willing to engage in violence and killing of innocent civilians in order to invoke fear in the hearts of its opponents. This is terrorism,” the petition continued. “We ask the US government to declare MB as a terrorist group for a safer future for all of us.”

But in response to the petition, the White House replied recently that although it opposes violence in the name of religion, it does not view the Muslim Brotherhood as being a terrorist organization.

“We have not seen credible evidence that the Muslim Brotherhood has renounced its decades-long commitment to non-violence,” it wrote in its brief reply.

“The United States does not condone political violence of any kind and we continue to press actors of all viewpoints to peacefully engage in the political process,” the Obama administration continued. “The United States is committed to thwarting terrorist groups that pose a threat to U.S. interests and those of our partners.”

Oil Shock Streaks Across Globe From Moscow to Tehran to Caracas. Ready for $40?

Oil's decline is proving to be the worst since the collapse of the financial system in 2008 and threatening to have the same global impact of falling prices three decades ago that led to the Mexican debt crisis and the end of the Soviet Union.

Russia, the world's largest producer, can no longer rely on the same oil revenues to rescue an economy suffering from European and U.S. sanctions. Iran, also reeling from similar sanctions, will need to reduce subsidies that have partly insulated its growing population. Nigeria, fighting an Islamic insurgency, and Venezuela, crippled by failing political and economic policies, also rank among the biggest losers from the decision by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries last week to let the force of the market determine what some experts say will be the first free-fall in decades.

"This is a big shock in Caracas, it's a shock in Tehran, it's a shock in Abuja," Daniel Yergin, vice chairman of Englewood, Colorado-based consultant IHS Inc. and author of a Pulitzer Prize-winning history of oil, told Bloomberg Radio. "There's a change in psychology. There's going to be a higher degree of uncertainty."

Oil just plunged to Great-Recession levels

By Victor Reklaitis

U.S. oil benchmark at level last seen more than 5 years ago

The U.S. oil benchmark on Friday settled at levels last seen in mid-2009.

NEW YORK (MarketWatch) — Talk about an oil slick. Few seem to know how much further crude prices can fall, lately. The most recent slide is to levels last seen in mid-2009.

The U.S. crude benchmark CLF5, -1.77% slumped to a five-year low on Friday, as shown in the included chart. It settled at $65.84 a barrel — its lowest level since July 2009, back when the U.S. economy was far from recovering from the Great Recession.

Plummeting Oil Prices Could Destroy The Banks That Are Holding Trillions In Commodity Derivatives

By Michael Snyder, on December 3rd, 2014

G+ Share Tweet Pinterest Email ShareThis

Could rapidly falling oil prices trigger a nightmare scenario for the commodity derivatives market? The big Wall Street banks did not expect plunging home prices to cause a mortgage-backed securities implosion back in 2008, and their models did not anticipate a decline in the price of oil by more than 40 dollars in less than six months this time either. If the price of oil stays at this level or goes down even more, someone out there is going to have to absorb some absolutely massive losses. In some cases, the losses will be absorbed by oil producers, but many of the big players in the industry have already locked in high prices for their oil next year through derivatives contracts. The companies enter into these derivatives contracts for a couple of reasons. Number one, many lenders do not want to give them any money unless they can show that they have locked in a price for their oil that is higher than the cost of production. Secondly, derivatives contracts protect the profits of oil producers from dramatic swings in the marketplace. These dramatic swings rarely happen, but when they do they can be absolutely crippling. So the oil companies that have locked in high prices for their oil in 2015 and 2016 are feeling pretty good right about now. But who is on the other end of those contracts? In many cases, it is the big Wall Street banks, and if the price of oil does not rebound substantially they could be facing absolutely colossal losses.

It has been estimated that the six largest "too big to fail" banks control $3.9 trillion in commodity derivatives contracts. And a very large chunk of that amount is made up of oil derivatives.

'Near Perfect' Indicator That Precedes Almost Every Stock Market Correction Is Flashing A Warning Signal

By Michael Snyder, on December 4th, 2014

g+ Share Tweet Pinterest Email Share This

Are we about to see U.S. stocks take a significant tumble? If you are looking for a "canary in the coal mine" for the U.S. stock market, just look at high yield bonds. In recent years, almost every single time junk bonds have declined substantially there has been a notable stock market correction as well. And right now high yield bonds are steadily moving lower. The biggest reason for this is falling oil prices. As I wrote about the other day, energy companies now account for about 20 percent of the high yield bond market. As the price of oil falls, investors are understandably becoming concerned about the future prospects of those companies and are dumping their bonds. What is happening cannot be described as a "crash" just yet, but there has been a pretty sizable decline for junk bonds over the past month. And as I noted above, junk bonds and stocks usually move in tandem. In fact, junk bonds usually start falling before stocks do. So does the decline in high yield bonds that we are witnessing at the moment indicate that we are on the verge of a significant stock market correction?

That is a question that CNBC asked in a recent article entitled "Near perfect sell signal says stocks should drop"...

Hang on to your hats, America.

And throw away that big, fat styrofoam finger while you're about it.

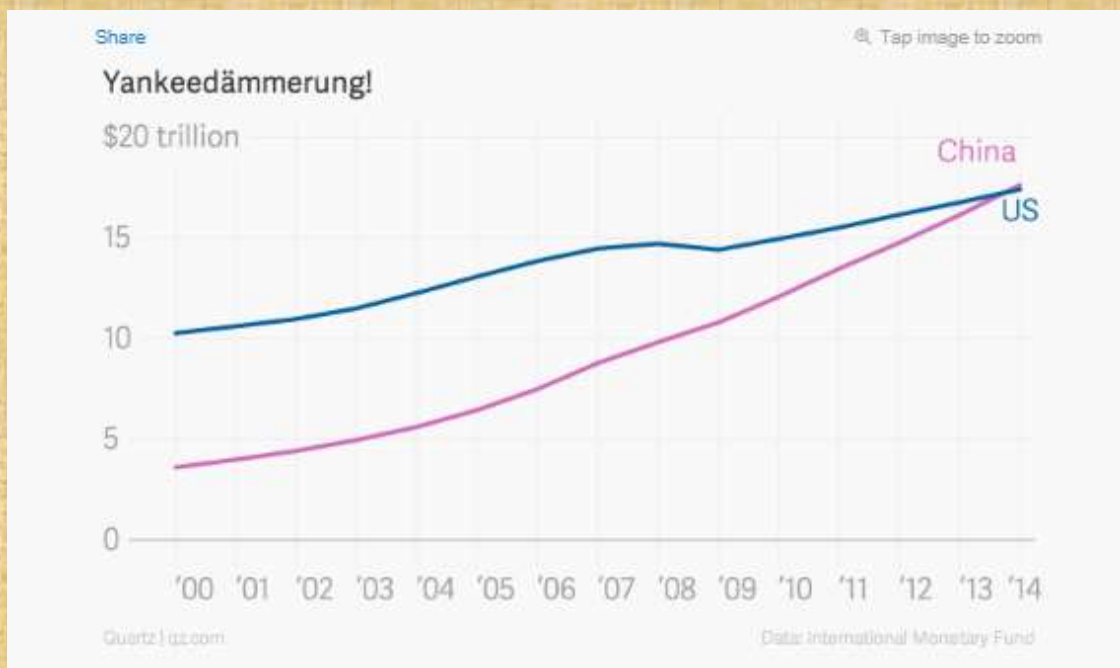

There's no easy way to say this, so I'll just say it: We're no longer No. 1. Today, we're No. 2. Yes, it's official. The Chinese economy just overtook the United States economy to become the largest in the world. For the first time since Ulysses S. Grant was president, America is not the leading economic power on the planet.

It just happened — and almost nobody noticed.

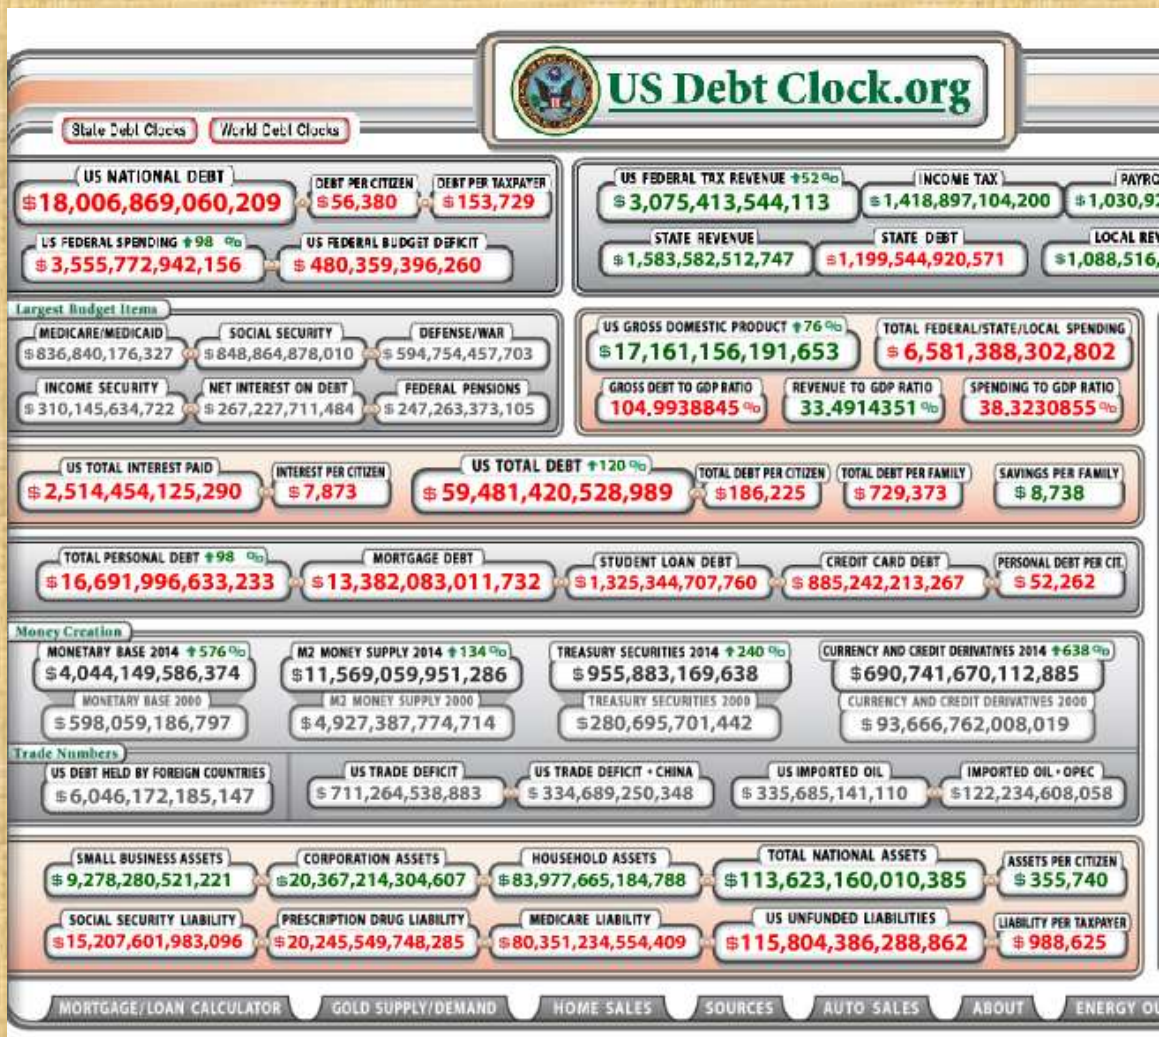

The International Monetary Fund recently released the latest numbers for the world economy. And when you measure national economic output in "real" terms of goods and services, China will this year produce $17.6 trillion — compared with $17.4 trillion for the U.S.A.

To put the numbers slightly differently, China now accounts for 16.5% of the global economy when measured in real purchasing-power terms, compared with 16.3% for the U.S.

In an interview last week with the Christian Broadcast Network published on the Orthodox Christian Network, White, who is the only Anglican vicar in Iraq and is know as "The Vicar of Baghdad," detailed the plight of Christians in Iraq and recounted two instances

'We Love Jesus!' Iraqi Children Proclaim Love for Christ in Face of Islamic Beheading

BAGHDAD, Iraq – Four Iraqi children firmly declared their love for Jesus in the face of death when Muslims in the country recently demanded that they convert to Islam.

Andrew White, chaplain of St. George's Anglican Church in Baghdad, relayed the story in a recent video as he shared both about the persecution that Christians face in the country and the bravery of the children in standing up for their faith despite the consequences.

"ISIS turned up and said to the children, 'You say the words that you will follow Mohammad,'" White explained. "The children, all under 15, four of them, said, 'No, we love Yesua (the Iraqi name for Jesus). We have always loved Yesua. We have always followed Yesua. Yesua has always been with us."

The Muslims then again demanded the children to say that they will follow Mohammad.

"They said, 'Say the words!' [The children] said, 'No, we can't," he recalled.

The men then decapitated the children.

"They chopped all their heads off," White said, visibly moved and holding back tears.

"How do you respond to that?" he asked. "You just cry. They are my children (being from my country). That is what we have been going through. That is what we are going through."

During the video, White also told other stories of how Christians are being persecuted in Iraq, especially in cities like Baghdad and Nineveh. He said that matters became especially dire when ISIS, who call themselves the Islamic State of Iraq and Syria, began its insurgency and drove Christians from their homes.

Satanists Win the Right to Place 'Grossly Offensive' Holiday Display Next to the Nativity Inside Florida's Capitol

Satanists have won the right to place a holiday display inside Florida's state capitol in Tallahassee later this month — one that features an image of an angel falling into burning flames, Bible verses and a "Happy Holidays" message.

Officials in the state had initially refused the Satanist display and called it "offensive," but have since changed their minds after Americans United for Separation of Church and State, a church-state activist group, threatened a lawsuit on behalf of Satanists, according to a press release.

The New York-based Satanic Temple, which does not believe the devil to be real and "advocates for religious tolerance and pluralism," will be free to put the scene on display beginning December 22.

The Florida capitol rotunda has become a place where numerous dueling holiday messages generally emerge. Take 2013, for instance, when an atheist display and a Festivus pole, among other symbols, were placed next to the traditional nativity.

Despite the state's change-of-heart on the Satanic display, Americans United isn't backing down from its public challenge to the state's Department of Management Services banning certain displays.

Google: Online Searches for Ouija Boards Up 300 Percent

In a report recently released by the search engine giant Google, online searches for Ouija boards—occult boards used to communicate with the dead—have risen 300 percent in the past few months, raising concerns with Christians over those who may engage in the Bible’s forbidden practice of necromancy.

“Certain retro toys are making a comeback this season,” Google wrote in its Black Friday article on the most popular searches for gifts online. “Thanks to the new movie ‘Ouija,’ searches for ‘Ouija boards’ are up 300% since October.”

The LA Times reported just before the opening of the film this fall that Hasbro Studios President Stephen Davis, the head of the company that creates the “Ouija Board Game,” had posted on his wall a “framed New Yorker cartoon in which a child with a Ouija board says, ‘It’s like texting, but for dead people.’” The “Ouija Board Game” is available in the toy section of retail stores such as Walmart, Target and Toys R Us.

Although the film based on the occultist board was spurned by critics, “Ouija” was a success at the box office, raking in over $20 million on its opening weekend and showing in over 2,000 theaters nationwide. It grossed over $50 million total in the USA alone.

“A girl is mysteriously killed after recording herself playing with an ancient Ouija Board, which leads to a close group of friends to investigate this board,” a description of the horror film reads. The friends hold a seance to try to communicate with the deceased girl and find themselves getting in touch with other spirits, unraveling a murder mystery.

By the end of the film, the youth “find out that some things aren’t meant to be played with, especially the ‘other side.’”

But despite the film’s conclusion that “some things aren’t meant to be played with,” the movie has reportedly piqued the interest of many of its viewers as Google saw a significant spike in searches for Ouija boards online.

Muslims have threatened to sue a Georgia city that denied permission for an Islamic prayer center in retail space. The city says it's a land-use and zoning issue. (CharismaNews file)

A suburban Atlanta city has rejected a request by Muslim residents to put a prayer center in a local shopping center, setting up a potential lawsuit over what the group says is a violation of religious freedom.

The City Council in Kennesaw, Georgia, denied an application for the mosque on Monday night in a 4-1 vote because zoning regulations do not allow places of worship in that particular shopping center, city spokeswoman Pam Davis said on Tuesday.

"It's a land-use issue," she said.

Douglas Dillard, an attorney for the Muslim residents, told the Marietta Daily Journal that the rejected application was an attack on the group's First Amendment rights.

Court Orders School District to Pay $75,000 for Denying Boy Use of Girls' Restroom

AUGUSTA, Maine — A superior court has ordered a Maine school district to pay $75,000 to the attorneys of a male student who identifies as a female after it was declared that officials discriminated against him by denying the use of the girls' restroom.

As previously reported, Wyatt Maines is an identical twin who, according to his parents, has exhibited feminine behavior since he was a preschooler. By the time he reached fifth grade, Wyatt legally changed his name to "Nicole," let his hair grow long, and began regularly wearing feminine clothing.

During that same time period, Wyatt also started using the girls' restrooms at Asa Adams Elementary School, which disturbed some of the other students. In late 2007, a student's grandfather voiced his concern to school officials, and the superintendent asked Wyatt to instead use a unisex staff bathroom instead of the main girls' restroom.

However, Wyatt's parents—Wayne and Kelly Maines—were unhappy with the superintendent's request. So, in early 2008, they hired a lawyer and filed a lawsuit against the elementary school, claiming the bathroom policy unfairly discriminated against their child. The case has been battled all the way to Maine's highest court.

After previous court rulings had concluded that the school district had acted within the law, the Maine Supreme Court sided with the Maines family this past February, stating that the now 16-year-old student should have been accommodated for his mental health's sake. Maines was later diagnosed with gender dysphoria following the 2007 incident.

"Decisions about how to address students' legitimate gender identity issues are not to be taken lightly," Justice Warren Silver wrote on behalf of the majority. "Where, as here, it has been clearly established that a student's psychological well-being and educational success depend upon being permitted to use the communal bathroom consistent with her gender identity, denying access to the appropriate bathroom constitutes sexual orientation discrimination."

Several discount stores across Britain have been unknowingly selling fake bottles of Head and Shoulders shampoo, which contain potentially dangerous ingredients including 'sex change' chemicals.

Thousands of counterfeit bottles of the top-selling haircare brand have been seized by Trading Standards officers after customers began reporting side effects of itching and bleeding after using the products.

Tests carried out by scientists at Loughborough University, on samples collected during the UK seizures, revealed the fakes had a 'significantly different chemical make-up to the genuine product'.

The bogus products were found to contain high levels of the 'sex change' chemical Diethyl Phthalate, which can affect reproductive health and can also be toxic to wildlife.

Irish School Withdraws Worksheet on Bible's Teachings on Homosexuality Over Complaint

BELFAST, Ireland – A school in Ireland has apologized and has decided to withdraw a worksheet that presents the Bible's teachings on homosexuality following a complaint over the assignment.

Hunterhouse College in Belfast, a grammar school for girls ages 11-18, had included a study on 1 Corinthians 6: 9-11 for its Religious Studies curriculum, discussing a variety of opinions about homosexual behavior, in addition to the Christian view as outlined in Scripture.

"Surely you know that the wicked will not possess God's Kingdom," the worksheet read, quoting from the Good News translation. "Do not fool yourselves; people who are immoral or who worship idols or are adulterers or homosexual perverts or who steal or are greedy or are drunkards or who slander others or are thieves—none of these will possess God's Kingdom."

"Some of you were like that," the Scripture continues. "But you have been purified from sin; you have been dedicated to God; you have been put right with God by the Lord Jesus Christ and by the Spirit of our God."

The worksheet then asks, "What do these verses tell us about homosexuals? Who else is included with homosexuals? What hope is there for all these people?"

But the father of one student complained about the worksheet, which had been assigned as homework, prompting the school to pull the study from the class.

Principal Andrew Gibson said that the study was simply a part of learning about morality in Christianity, but recently issued an apology over the matter and said that the worksheet would not be used again.

فالاضطهاد يزيد والاضطراب يزيد والزلازل والابوئة والفساد الأخلاقي يزيد والاحاد يزيد

فلهذا أقول المسيح اقترب ميعاد مجيؤه لا احدد مواعيد بل ارفض من يحدد مواعيد ولكن اطلب

الأول نصلي ونستعد ونعد زيت لمصابيحنا لاستقبال العريس بالصلاة والصوم وخدمة أبناء الله
وتنقية القلب والاستعداد بلبس العرس.

أفسس 6: 15

وَحَادِيْنَ أَرْجُلِكُمْ بِاسْتِعْدَادِ إِجِيلِ السَّلَامِ .

13: 11 هذا وأنكم عارفون الوقت انها الان ساعة لنستيقظ من النوم فان خلاصنا الان أقرب مما

كان حين امنا

13: 12 قد تناهى الليل وتقارب النهار فلنخلع اعمال الظلمة ونلبس اسلحة النور

13: 13 لنسلك بلياقة كما في النهار لا بالبطر والسكر لا بالمضاجع والعهر لا بالخصام والحسد

13: 14 بل البسوا الرب يسوع المسيح ولا تصنعوا تدبيراً للجسد لأجل الشهوات

احترس ان لم تتمسك بالمسيح من الان قد لا تستطيع في المستقبل القريب بسبب الظلام.

الثاني لا نخاف

بطرس الأولى 3: 14

وَلَكِنْ وَإِنْ تَأَلَّمْتُمْ مِنْ أَجْلِ الْبِرِّ، فَطُوبَىٰ لَكُمْ. وَأَمَّا خَوْفُهُمْ فَلَا تَخَافُوهُ وَلَا تَضْطَرُّوهُ،

بل نفرح

رسالة بولس الرسول إلى أهل فيلبي 4: 4

إَفْرَحُوا فِي الرَّبِّ كُلَّ حِينٍ، وَأَقُولُ أَيْضًا: افْرَحُوا.
