

تعليق على بعض الاحداث العالمية

والعلامات حتى 13 يناير 2015

Holy_bible_1

اكرر اننا لا نحدد مواعيد بل فقط نشجع بعضنا بعضا بقرب مجيء المسيح

وأيضاً أوضح أنه يوجد نبوات لم نراها بعد مثل ابن الهلاك وهرمجدون

ولكن أيضاً علامات كثيرة من التي قال عنها الكتاب انها في الزمان الاخير بدأت تحدث بوضوح

ويجب أن ننتبه اليها. ونذكر بعضنا باننا نحتاج ان نستعد. والاستعداد ليس فقط قبل مجيء

المسيح بل أيضاً قبل الظلمة التي ستسبق مجيؤه ليكون عندنا زيت في مصابيحنا يكفي ان نعبر

هذه الظلمة وتكون مصابيحنا مضيئة وقت مجيؤه. بمعنى نحتاج من الان ان نستعد بقوة بأيمان

عامل وبتنقية القلب وان نثمر بالخدمة أي نجمع زيت في مصابيحنا لان الظلمة والضيق اقتربت

جدا ومن لن يستعد لها بزيت كافي من الان لن يجد زيت في الضيقة لان وقتها تجميع زيت

سيكون صعب جدا بل أستطيع ان أقول من مثل العذارى انه لن يكون هناك زيت الا ما جمعه

سابقا. أفضل ان اقول لنفسي ولكم استعدوا الان لأنه اقتررب فنكون مستعدين سواء جاء او نحن ان سلمنا وديعتنا عن أنى لا اقول انه اقتررب لكيلا يقال عني كاذب وانشرب اشاعات ولكنه يأتي بسرعة بغته. لا اعتقد اي أحد ندم لانه كان مستعد ومنتظر مجيء المسيح ولم يأتي المسيح في زمنه ولكنه انتقل وهو مستعد ولكن كثيرين جدا ندموا على عدم الاستعداد عندما انتقلوا بعض الاحداث التي قال عنها الرب يسوع

انجيل متى 24

مت 24: 6 وسوف تسمعون بحروب واخبار حروب انظروا لا ترتاعوا لأنه لا بد ان تكون هذه كلها ولكن ليس المنتهى بعد

مت 24: 7 لأنه تقوم امة على امة ومملكة على مملكة وتكون مجاعات واوبئة وزلازل في اماكن

مت 24: 8 ولكن هذه كلها مبتدأ الازعاج

مت 24: 9 حينئذ يسلمونكم الى ضيق ويقتلونكم وتكونون مبغضين من جميع الامم لأجل اسمي

مت 24: 10 وحينئذ يعثر كثيرون ويسلمون بعضهم بعضا ويبغضون بعضهم بعضا

مت 24: 11 ويقوم انبياء كذبة كثيرون ويضلون كثيرين

مت 24: 12 ولكثرة الاثم تبرد محبة الكثيرين

مت 24: 13 ولكن الذي يصبر الى المنتهى فهذا يخلص

مت 24: 14 ويكرز ببشارة الملكوت هذه في كل المسكونة شهادة لجميع الامم ثم يأتي المنتهى

انجيل لوقا 21

21: 10 ثم قال لهم تقوم امة على امة ومملكة على مملكة

21: 11 وتكون زلازل عظيمة في اماكن ومجاعات واوبئة وتكون مخاوف وعلامات عظيمة من

السماء

21: 25 وتكون علامات في الشمس والقمر والنجوم وعلى الارض كرب امم بحيرة البحر والامواج

تضج

21: 26 والناس يغطى عليهم من خوف وانتظار ما يأتي على المسكونة لان قوات السماوات

تتزعزع

21: 27 وحينئذ يبصرون ابن الانسان اتيا في سحابة بقوة و مجد كثير

سفر اعمال الرسل 2

2: 19 واعطي عجائب في السماء من فوق وآيات على الارض من أسفل دما ونارا وبخار دخان

2: 20 تتحول الشمس الى ظلمة والقمر الى دم قبل ان يجيء يوم الرب العظيم الشهير

2: 21 ويكون كل من يدعو باسم الرب يخلص

المسيح لا يتنبأ ولا يتوقع بل يعرف

لماذا قال المسيح بعض العلامات؟

إنجيل يوحنا 14: 29

وَقُلْتُ لَكُمْ الْآنَ قَبْلَ أَنْ يَكُونَ، حَتَّى مَتَى كَانَ تُؤْمِنُونَ.

وايضا لنتنبه ونستعد

انجيل لوقا 21

28 وَمَتَى ابْتَدَأَتْ هَذِهِ تَكُونُ، فَانْتَصِبُوا وَارْفَعُوا رُؤُوسَكُمْ لِأَنَّ نَجَاتَكُمْ تَقْتَرِبُ.»

Strange Behavior of the Sun's Iron Heart Surprises Scientists

A machine on Earth capable of recreating the conditions inside the sun's heart is helping scientists study how iron behaves at mind-boggling temperatures. The results of the experiment, so far, have defied expectations and just might help settle a long-standing solar puzzle, researchers say.

Potentially dangerous asteroid to fly by Earth on January 26

A potentially hazardous asteroid, at least 20 times the size of the Chelyabinsk meteorite, will approach the Earth on January 26. The rock is expected to fly by at a distance of 1.2 million kilometers.

Science

The asteroid, named 2004 BL86 by scientists, is estimated to be between 440-1,000 meters in diameter. 1.2 million kilometers is approximately three times the distance from the Earth to the Moon.

According to astronomers, there is no threat of the object colliding with our planet. The Goldstone Observatory, located in California's Mojave Desert, will observe the asteroid during its approach.

READ MORE: Erasing memories and landing on a comet: How science rocked in 2014

2004 BL86 was discovered on January 30, 2004, by the Lincoln Near-Earth Asteroid Research (LINEAR), responsible for the majority of asteroid discoveries from 1998 until 2005, when it was overtaken by the Catalina Sky Survey (CSS). As of mid-September 2011, LINEAR had detected some 231,082 new objects, of which at least 2,423 were near-Earth asteroids and 279 comets.

Rogue star HIP 85605 on collision course with our solar system, but Earthlings need not worry

11 hours ago by Matt Williams, Universe Today

Our Solar System is due for a near-collision with HIP 85605, a star 16 light-years away, in roughly 240,000 years. Credit: Dana Berry, SkyWorks Digital, Inc.

It's known as HIP 85605, one of two stars that make up a binary in the Hercules constellation roughly 16 light years away. And if a recent research paper produced by Dr. Coryn Bailer-Jones of the Max Planck Institute for Astronomy in Heidelberg, Germany is correct, it is on a collision course with our Solar System.

Now for the good news: according to Bailer-Jones' calculations, the star will pass by our Solar System at a distance of 0.04 parsecs, which is equivalent to 8,000 times the distance between the Earth and the Sun (8,000 AUs). In addition, this passage will not affect Earth or any other planet's orbit around the Sun. And perhaps most importantly of all, none of it will be happening for another 240,000 to 470,000 years from now.

"Even though the galaxy contains very many stars," Bailer-Jones told Universe Today via email, "the spaces between them are huge. So even over the (long) life of our galaxy so far, the probability of any two stars have actually collided—as opposed to just coming close—is extremely small."

Mystery of the glowing orb: Bizarre fireball that splits in two could be a meteorite burning up in Earth's atmosphere

- Strange fireball was spotted by commuter Ken Roberts as he drove home
- American Meteor Society received 1,500 fireball sightings in the past week
- UFO experts say the bright orb flying in the opposite direction is 'peculiar'
- Sighting has sparked speculation that it may be a UFO or aircraft crashing
- Fireball may have also been a meteorite breaking apart in the atmosphere

A mysterious glowing orb has been filmed breaking away from an unidentified meteorite-like object as it streaked across the sky above California.

The unusual object can be seen moving through the sky leaving a long tail behind that is characteristic of space debris or a meteorite burning up in the atmosphere.

But after a few seconds a second round object separates from the main fireball and moves off in the opposite direction.

A meteorite has disintegrated over Bucharest, the capital of Romania, early Wednesday, blazing through the sky and briefly lighting up the city in the wee hours of the morning.

The event, which occurred at approximately 3:05:57 a.m. local time, was caught on several security cameras throughout the city, such as the rooftop cam from surveillance company NXDATA that took the footage below.

NEW YORK (MYFOXNY) - The Space Weather Prediction Center issued a warning for a large geomagnetic storm on Wednesday morning.

The NOAA organization said the primary areas that would be affected would be in the northern portion of the northern hemisphere.

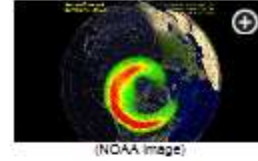

Some of the storm's potential effects were power system voltage irregularities, possible false alarms triggered on security systems, and problems with GPS systems.

The storm could also impact spacecraft and cause orientation problems in satellites.

The warning also said that the storm could push the area where the Aurora could be seen as far south as Pennsylvania to Iowa to Oregon.

The main intensity of the storm was supposed to have affected the planet just before 6:30 a.m. but the storm was reported to still be in progress at 9 a.m.

The storm was listed as a G3 on the NOAA storm scale, which is considered large, but not the most severe.

Fliers faced several trouble spots Tuesday as cold air moved east and south out of the Midwest.

More than 930 flights had been canceled nationwide as of 8:45 p.m. ET, according to flight-tracking service FlightAware. Several major airports in the mid-Atlantic and Midwest were seeing above-normal delay and cancellation tallies.

FLIGHT TRACKER: Is your flight on time?

Tuesday's flight disruptions were concentrated at five airports: Washington Reagan National, Philadelphia, New York LaGuardia, Newark Liberty and Chicago O'Hare. American operates a hub at three of those airports while United has hubs at two of those.

At Washington's National Airport, where 2 inches of snow fell Tuesday morning, nearly 215 flights had been canceled as of 8:45 p.m. ET. That cancellation total accounts for more than 20% of the airport's daily flight schedule, according to FlightAware. Delays also were a problem, with more than 320 flights – or about a third of the day's schedule – suffering delays. Combined, more than half of Tuesday's flights at D.C.'s close-to-downtown airport were either delayed or canceled.

The region's two other major airports – Washington Dulles and Baltimore/Washington International (BWI) – fared better, but still had enough disruptions to be a nuisance for fliers. There were a small number of cancellations at those airports, but as many as 40% of the flights at BWI were delayed. At Dulles, about 20% were delayed, according to FlightStats.

Record Snowfall Strikes Jacksonville, Florida

Snow-way! Call it a miracle! Snow danced over the streets of Jacksonville Thursday for the first time in five years and tied the record for the day of a trace set 57 years ago. Granted it's not a Buffalo type record where the only way of escape out of your house after a snow event is out the second story window. But this is Florida and any flurry, whether one or a dozen is a BIG deal. Snow is exceedingly rare in these parts. It was enough to drive adults and kids alike from high rise offices downtown and out of schools to witness this "great white rain," a term coined by explorer's through this area in the late 1700s when snow fell over the region, according to meteorologist-emeritus George Winterling, that was falling from the sky. So how rare is snow in Jacksonville really? According to NWS meteorologist David Shuler, unofficially Jacksonville has recorded 18 winters since 1910 with at least one trace snowfall event. This only accounts for the months of December, January and February. Not November or March. Therefore the number of events may be a bit higher if those two months are accounted for. According to meteorologist Jason Hess, only three snowfalls have actually accumulated officially in Jacksonville in 103 years (1956, 1986 and 1989) with the greatest 24 hour accumulation of 1.9 inches in February 1899 — before records officially began. Hawaii Shatters 122 Year Old Cold Record

The unusually cold weather over the last two days continued to break records in Hawaii, including a record for this date that goes back over 122 years in Honolulu. The National Weather Service said Monday morning's low temperature of 57 degrees beat the low temperature for this date of 60 degrees of temperatures recorded at the Honolulu Airport. It also beat a older low temperature record for Honolulu set in 1893 of 58 degrees. On Kauai, the low of 57 degrees at the Lihue Airport beat tied a record of 57 degrees last seen in 1993. It's the second day of record low temperatures. Four low temperatures records were tied or broken Sunday morning. The low of 54 degrees in Lihue and Kahului Sunday broke records for Kauai and Maui. The previous record of 59 degrees in Lihue was set in 2005. The low in Kahului broke a record of 55 set for this date in 1971. More

CPS, more than 125 other districts close as dangerous weather arrives

JANUARY 6, 2015, 8:48 PM

Chicago Public Schools and more than 125 school districts in the area decided to close Wednesday as a cold front sliding off the Canadian Rockies threatens to drive wind chills into dangerous territory for the next two days.

Chicago school buildings will be open for any students who show up and administrative staff, building engineers and custodians will be on hand.

"The safety and well-being of our students comes first," CPS CEO Barbara Byrd-Bennett said in a statement. "The frigid temperatures and winds make a dangerous combination, and it is in the best interest of our students to cancel classes."

Colima volcano activity puts Mexican authorities on alert

The Colima volcano in western Mexico is continuing to produce emissions that have put civil protection authorities in the states of Jalisco and Colima on alert, and they are not ruling out undertaking a possible evacuation of local residents if the situation worsens, officials said Monday.

The head of the Civil Protection and Firefighters Unit in Jalisco state, Trinidad Lopez Rivas, said at a press conference that "the evacuation of the people (will be undertaken) if it's necessary," that is, if there is an event involving the volcano that is more serious than what has occurred so far.

"We're prepared for that," she added.

Last Saturday at 8:57 a.m. the volcano exploded, emitting a column of smoke and gas that reached 3,000 meters (almost 10,000 feet) into the sky over the crater and four hours later there was another explosion that produced a smoke column 1,200 meters (about 4,000 feet) high.

Volcano news: Soputan

Soputan volcano (N-Sulawesi, Indonesia): strong explosive eruption this morning

Tuesday Jan 06, 2015 19:36 PM | BY: T

Follow us:

Volcano Calendar 2015

Volcano Calendar 2015:
We're proud to present our new volcano calendar 2015: 13 different and attractive images of volcanoes, volcanic landscapes and phenomena taken during volcano tours over the past few years.

The eruption of the volcano Soputan observed from the volcano observatory post (images: PVMBG / twitter)

The volcano erupted this morning at 02:45 local time with a strong explosion from the summit lava dome. It sent an 6 km tall ash column to approx. 26,000 ft (8,5 km) altitude. The eruption followed an increase in seismic activity in December, when so-called "drumbeat" earthquakes appeared - a type of volcanic tremor typically associated with movements of viscous magma at shallow depths,- in this case new lava rising beneath the existing lava dome (in place since 1991). As a consequence, the alert status of the volcano had been raised to the second highest level "Siaga" (3 on a scale of 1-4, alert).

Today's explosion caused parts of the summit dome that occupies the crater, open to the western flank, to collapse and produce a glowing avalanche that traveled approx. 2000 m, remaining within the volcano's caldera. It seems that no pyroclastic flow (which could sweep over the caldera walls and into inhabited areas below) occurred. No damage to people or infrastructure was reported. Continued glow from the summit dome after the explosion suggests that magma has and continues to arrive now there.

Volcano Ashes Prompt Closure of Colombian Airport

Bogotá, Jan 7 (Prensa Latina) The increase in the emissions of ashes from Colombia's volcano Nevado del Ruiz prompted today the closure of nearby La Nubia airport to prevent traffic congestion to and from the terminal.

According to Director of the Volcano Observatory of Manizales, Gloria Cortes, the communities near the crater, the most watched over in Colombia, remain on alert because of this increase in its activity.

The measure to suspend operations in the terminal was adopted to prevent any air accident because the ashes might interfere with the good functioning of plane turbines.

Besides, the volcano, located between the central departments of Caldas and Tolima, continue emitting sulfure dioxide, though for the time being the situation is not serious, said Cortes as quoted by El Espectador newspaper.

Located 220 km west of Bogota, is part of the volcanic strip of Los Andes, also including another 74 similar structures.

Its first eruptions occurred 1.8 million years ago, in the early Pleistocene, but the most lethal explosion was registered in November, 1985, when an enormous lahar (mud and debris flow) buried the small town of Armero, in Tolima, in Lagunilla valley, where only one fourth of its 28,000 inhabitants managed to survive in the absence of early warnings or predictions.

Chinchina town also suffered the impact of the phenomenon, losing nearly 2,000 inhabitants.

Hunga Tonga-Hunga Ha'apai volcano (Tonga Islands): eruption continues under water
Wednesday Jan 07, 2015 13:40 PM | BY: T

Activity continues, but seems not to have breached the surface (for now). Recent satellite imagery with clear views show a discolored water plume and a steam plume but no ash, suggesting that the activity is still well below the surface.

Hunga Ha'apa and Hunga Tonga islands are subaerial parts of a large caldera of about 6 km diameter. A number of cones have been built near its rim during past eruptions, including the Hunga Ha'apa and Hunga Tonga islands themselves. The eruption of 1988 took place from a fissure on the Hunga Ha'apai cone near the south rim of the caldera. Being at 200 m depth, it remained completely under water; only single pumice and scoria blocks floated to the surface during the eruption.

The eruption in 2009 took place again from the Hunga Ha'apai volcano, but this time the fissure cut through the island and occurred in shallow water, producing spectacular surtseyan explosions.

The current eruption seems to occur from another location, again at deeper water depth: judging from the origin location of the steam plume, its vent is likely on the NE base of the submarine base of Hunga Ha'apai island, or on the valley separating it from Hunga Tonga island to the NE.

Earthquakes, Blizzards, Volcanic Activity All Hit Russia's Far East on One Day

The Moscow Times | Jan. 06 2015 16:57 | Last edited 16:57

Wikicommons

Severe natural upheavals raged across Russia's Far East on Thursday, as the region experienced increased volcanic activity, at least five earthquakes, avalanches and a month's worth of snow within a day, media reports said.

An airport on Sakhalin Island was forced to shut down while regional officials closed off roads and struggled to restore power to 12 villages on the south of the island that were still without electricity Thursday morning, Interfax reported.

The Yuzhno-Sakhalinsk Airport was closed for the second day in a row on Thursday, with 60 flights grounded or rerouted because of the severe snow storm, Interfax reported. More than 1,000 people were stranded in the terminal, the airport said in a statement Wednesday.

The authorities have also issued an avalanche alert for Sakhalin Island and the Kamchatka Peninsula after three snow slides were recorded in one day, according to Interfax.

100s of fish turn up dead at Nevada lake claims all 100K of its fish

By MARTIN GRIFFITH Associated Press

SPARKS, Nevada — Hundreds of fish have turned up dead in an urban Nevada lake, a year after a die-off claimed all of its estimated 100,000 fish.

Roughly 500 trout have died since last Saturday in the Sparks Marina along Interstate 80 east of Reno, Sparks city spokesman Adam Mayberry said.

Experts said they think both die-offs have been caused by a sharp drop in dissolved oxygen levels because of cold weather, and they continue to monitor the water quality of the popular 77-acre lake.

Though the number of deaths has remained steady the last couple of days, the extent of the die-off is not yet known, Mayberry said. Not all dead fish wash up on shore or float to the surface where they can be counted.

"We're certainly concerned ... But it's premature to come to come to any hard conclusions about any outcomes," Mayberry said.

The Nevada Department of Wildlife has restocked the lake with 50,000 trout beginning in April after the previous die-off killed all of its trout, catfish and bass, spokesman Chris Healy said.

The marina won't have a die-off on the scale of a year ago because it now holds fewer than 20,000 trout due to anglers and birds, Healy said. But tough decisions will have to be made if the current die-off proves devastating to the lake's fishery, he added.

State wildlife officials plan to meet with city officials to discuss solutions, including the installation of an aeration system to provide oxygen to the lake.

 Thousands of small birds called Cassin's auklets are found dead along Pacific Coast

 Pacific bird die-off may be linked to successful breeding season, biologists say

JANUARY 2, 2015, 4:41 PM

The carcasses of thousands of small birds called Cassin's auklets have been washing ashore over the last few months from Northern California up to the north coast of Washington.

Scientists along the Pacific Coast have been trying to determine what is causing the large die-off of the birds this winter.

Dead fish on the coast of San Roque Again the phenomenon is repeated.

By Correspondent

It looks like a classic every year. Dead fish reappeared on the shore of Lake San Roque accompanied by foul odor causing algae blooms in the reservoir. The first day of 2015 many tourists and visitors noticed the phenomenon of fish deaths and had to endure the odor on the shore of the reservoir.

Adriana, a neighbor of Malagueño who went to spend the day at the waterfront of Carlos Paz, said that while there were a lot of dead fish, the smell was becoming unbearable.

The phenomenon has to do with the proliferation of blue-green algae that cause eutrophication of the lake. In simple words: remove oxygen and that kills fish. The smell is produced by algae.

Continues, unfortunately the slaughter of sea turtles in the Adriatic Sea. After the six found beached on Monday, will check another Friday morning. This is a loggerhead, found beached in Cattolica's Malindi. Probably a propeller or a hook are the cause of death. The previous deaths were due to the stormy sea that left dead turtles along the coast of the province of Rimini and, in particular, in Misano, Miramare, Viserba, Viserbella and Bellaria.

Mystery of dead snapper in Doubtless Bay

One of hundreds, possibly thousands, of snapper seen floating on the surface in Doubtless Bay on December 21.

Taipa man Mark Osborne wasn't as quick as some to point the finger at commercial fishermen after he found hundreds of dead snapper floating over a wide area at the entrance to Doubtless Bay.

He wasn't able to think of any other plausible explanation, however, when he found the fish on December 21.

The water had looked a little odd, he said, possibly as the result of an algal bloom or some such phenomenon.

However, that would not explain why only snapper had succumbed.

Mr Osborne's experience came exactly seven days after scores of dead snapper were found on Tokerau Beach.

Fish were also reported, by other sources, at Maitai Bay and Karikari Beach late last week.

Thousands of fish have died in historical Sher Shah Suri Lake in Lal Bangla area of the city since Sunday evening.

Local corporator Aditya Shukla said that residents of the area saw dead fish floating in Sher Shah Suri lake. "Again on Monday morning, we found thousands of fish lying motionless in the river," he added.

A team from the zonal office of Kanpur Municipal Corporation visited the spot and spread chlorine in the lake.

The residents expressed apprehension about the fish being given poison which proved fatal. "There may be chances of fish being poisoned as even big fish too have died. The count being high and it is not possible for pollutant or contamination in water to cause such a high number of deaths," they added.

The municipal authorities had assured for cleanliness of the lake but action was missing. After much persuasion, sanitary workers sprinkled chlorine in the lake.

The locals helplessly watched the fish dying. According to residents, over a quintal of dead fish were taken out from the lake on Monday evening and buried in four big pits near the water body.

The locals were seen using submersible pumps to rotate water in the lake.

A SPATE of deaths of the world's deepest-diving mammal around the west coast of Scotland has left marine experts baffled.

Hundreds of animals are believed to have been killed in South Australia since bushfires began burning out of control in the Adelaide Hills last Friday.

Another 125 dead, oil-soaked birds discovered in Northwest Ohio

BRYAN — Authorities discovered another 125 dead, oil-soaked birds — mostly ducks — today near the vicinity of Saturday's Titan Tire spill, bringing the total number of dead animals to 150, the Ohio Department of Natural Resources said.

John Windau, spokesman for the Ohio DNR's wildlife division, said the agency continues to work with volunteers and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to assess the total loss.

The Ohio DNR will consider filing charges once it believes it knows the full extent of the damage, Mr. Windau said.

Meanwhile, efforts to decontaminate about 400 surviving ducks continue, he said.

Volunteers are working with Tri-State Bird Rescue and Research, Inc., of Newark, Del., to wash off oil. Each bird takes about an hour to clean, Lisa Smith, the group's executive director, has said.

The spill was reported to the Bryan Fire Department Saturday morning by a local waterfowl hunter, Dick Long.

The fire department and the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency traced the spill to Titan Tire's factory on South Union Street. The company has not responded to requests for interviews.

Dina Pierce, Ohio EPA spokesman, has said there was a problem with a valve on an above-ground storage tank, releasing used lube oil into Prairie Creek, better known in Williams County as Ditch 40.

Ditch 40 flows into the Tiffin River, a Maumee River tributary.

KENNEWICK, Wash. (AP) — The Washington Agriculture Department declared an emergency quarantine for domestic poultry and eggs in the southeast part of the state to contain the highly contagious avian flu.

The quarantine issued Wednesday restricts the movement of chickens, turkeys and other birds out of that zone. It covers an area within 20 miles of two Benton County locations where backyard flocks of chickens, turkeys and ducks were found to have the disease.

500 new HIV cases in PH in 1 month

By Shella Crisostomo, The Philippine Star
Posted at 01/05/2015 8:03 AM

MANILA, Philippines - Almost 500 new cases of human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) infections were documented in November 2014, two-thirds of whom were aged 15 to 24 and mostly infected through sexual contact, records of the Department of Health (DOH) showed yesterday.

Based on the registry prepared by the DOH's National Epidemiology Center, there were 492 new cases of HIV, including 40 cases of acquired immunodeficiency syndrome (AIDS). A total of 134 of them were aged 15 to 24. There were 10 deaths.

The DOH said the 492 cases are 28 percent higher than the 384 cases recorded in November 2013.

Sexual contact accounted for 464 cases and 250 of them were due to homosexual contact and 146 due to bisexual contact. Twenty-eight cases were injecting drug users who shared infected needles.

"Males having sex with other males (85 percent) was the predominant type of sexual transmission... Eighty-three of the new HIV cases came from the National Capital Region, Region 4-A, Region 2 and Region 11," the DOH said.

The new cases brought to 5,502 the number of cases since January this year and to 22,018 since 1984.

A New Drug in the Age of Antibiotic Resistance

The Atlantic By Carl Romm
5 hours ago

Two alarming figures from a report released last month by the U.K. government: By 2050, antibiotic resistance will cost the world a projected 10 million lives and $8 trillion each year.

The report is one more in a growing collection of dire pronouncements about the current state of antibiotics: This past summer, Thomas Frieden, the director of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, warned that antibiotic resistance could be “the next pandemic.” In March 2013, England’s chief medical officer urged lawmakers to add antibiotic resistance to the government’s list of civil emergencies, a registry of contingency plans for situations like terrorist attacks and major floods. And last April, the World Health Organization issued its own report, declaring that “a post-antibiotic era—in which common infections and minor injuries can kill—far from being an apocalyptic fantasy, is instead a very real possibility for the 21st century.”

In the U.S. alone, antibiotic-resistant bacteria infect more than two million people each year, killing around 23,000 of them. Meanwhile, scientists are struggling with a losing race against the clock, as bacteria evolve to evade our drugs faster than we can make new ones. But researchers at Northeastern University say they’ve discovered a new antibiotic that may buy us some

5 New Measles Cases Reported With Ties to Disneyland

SANTA ANA, Calif. — Jan 9, 2015, 1:01 PM ET
By AMY TAXIN Associated Press

 148  73  172  4  63 Comments

AP Five more people who visited Disney theme parks in California last month have fallen ill with measles, bringing the number of cases in the state to a dozen, local health officials said Friday.

Six patients in Southern California's Orange County have been diagnosed with the illness who visited the local theme parks last month, and only one was fully vaccinated against the disease, said Nicole Stanfield, a spokeswoman for the county's health care agency.

More people may have been exposed when measles patients were treated at two local hospitals and a lab, county officials said. Stanfield urged anyone with measles symptoms to call their doctor before seeking medical attention to avoid exposing others to the highly contagious illness.

"The medical provider may visit them in the car or may have a special room for them to go where they're not contaminating everyone else in the waiting room," she said.

California's health care agency has reported seven people in the state and two people in Utah likely contracted measles on trips to Disneyland or Disney California Adventure between Dec. 15 and Dec. 20. In Colorado, the El Paso County Public Health department said a patient was diagnosed with measles at a Colorado Springs hospital after visiting a California theme park.

Disney officials have said they are working with public health authorities to provide any necessary assistance.

Measles is a highly contagious virus that lives in an infected person's nose and throat mucus and spreads through coughing and sneezing, according to the federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. Symptoms include fever, cough, runny nose and red eyes and a red rash that usually first appears on the face and spreads to the rest of the body.

Only one of 103 children stricken by a mysterious, polio-like illness has recovered, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

Doctors have diagnosed children in 34 states with sudden, unexplained weakness or paralysis since August, the CDC says.

In the worst cases, children have developed quadriplegia, becoming completely paralyzed, says Jim Sejvar, a neuroepidemiologist at the CDC. Some children have even experienced paralysis of the muscles they need to breathe, causing them to be put on breathing machines.

About two-thirds of the children, whose average age is 7, have shown some improvement. In general, most of the improvement occurs within the first six months, with less chance for recovery after that, Sejvar says. Most children are left with a lasting disability.

The paralysis cases coincided with an outbreak of severe respiratory illnesses caused by enterovirus D68, a rare member of a large family of viruses that mostly causes mild colds.

Since August, at least 1,153 people in 49 states and Washington, D.C., have developed severe respiratory illnesses linked to enterovirus D68. Most cases have been in children, many of whom had a history of wheezing or asthma, the CDC says. Many have been hospitalized.

Thirteen patients with the enterovirus have died, although doctors can't say for sure that the virus caused their deaths. There have been no deaths among the paralysis cases.

Most paralyzed children had a fever or respiratory illness before developing muscle

In March 2014, hydraulic fracturing – or fracking – caused 77 earthquakes in a small Ohio town that had no previous experience with seismic activity, according to a new study. One quake was large enough to be felt in neighboring areas.

Fracking in Poland Township, Ohio was halted two days after the area was hit with a magnitude-3 earthquake along a hidden fault in rock which was deep beneath a natural gas well in the Utica Shale, according to research published in the Bulletin of the Seismological Society of America.

The study's authors said the magnitude-3 quake was "one the largest earthquakes ever induced by hydraulic fracturing in the United States."

All 77 quakes occurred between March 4-12, the study found.

Besides the magnitude-3 quake, the study reported that most of the seismic activity was not felt by Poland Township's population, which numbered 14,960 in the 2010 census.

It isn't a small minority anymore asking our regulators to limit biotech's far-reaching arm. There is now an open letter endorsed by more than 59 million people asking both US and UK officials to be more prudent in questioning the hazards of genetically modified crops.

The open letter is signed by celebrities, scientists, farmers, academics in various fields, business tycoons, and every day people like you and me. It's called the letter from America, but it is getting global attention. No longer can Americans be called sheeple. We are clearly voicing our disdain for GM crops in ever growing numbers, and our eyes are wide open.

One high-profile signatory, actress Susan Sarandon says:

"We've had GMOs in the US for nearly 20 years. Instead of bringing certainty and security they have raised more and more worrying questions about their effectiveness, their necessity, and even their safety. Polls show that the majority of US citizens - and in fact citizens everywhere - either want them labelled or taken out of the food system altogether. It's important to keep pressing

Biotech corporation Syngenta's GMO corn (known as MIR 162 or 'Agrisure Viptera') was recently refused by Chinese officials when shipped to the country, yet a spokesperson from the Big Ag company, Paul Minehart, "expects that the Chinese government will still approve" their prematurely released crop which is now in the subject of several US lawsuits by miffed corn-growers.

Those who grew MIR 162 were assured by Syngenta that China had already approved the corn before they even started growing it. Obviously this is not the case, since China has refused several billion tons of GM corn coming from the US already. Syngenta claims the current lawsuits directed against them by US farmers are baseless. Minehart says that he will make an official announcement when China does approve the crop for import.

If China does indeed approve the GM corn, it would reverse a decision to refuse shipments since November of 2013. It is still not understood whether the commentary by Syngenta represents wishful thinking, or an actual break-through to China's officials concerning the approval of their MIR 162 product. Syngenta has waited four years thus far for approval.

The U.S. grain Council – who has also taken heat from farmers based on Syngenta's premature declaration of the Chinese acceptance of Syngenta's GM corn crop – was hoping that approval would come in the next few days, but this was reported in early December of 2014.

(NaturalNews) Today, 1 in 68 children have been diagnosed with autism spectrum disorder (ASD) in the U.S., a rate that's increased 30 percent since 2012, according to a March 2014 report by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). Boys are five times more likely than girls to have ASD, and white children are more prone to the condition than black or Hispanic children.

Speaking at a conference sponsored by the holistic-focused Groton Wellness organization, research scientist Dr. Stephanie Seneff of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology presented data showing a consistent correlation between glyphosate (a key ingredient in Monsanto's Roundup herbicide), and the rise in autism.

Vladimir Putin Sets Stage For World War 3, Expands Russia's Nuclear Weapons Defenses Near Europe

Setting the stage for World War 3, Russian leader Vladimir Putin is threatening to expand Russia's nuclear weapon defense systems near Europe in response to efforts by NATO and the United States to extend air and anti-missile defense coverage over Europe.

In a related report by the Inquisitr, President Obama is also considering giving Ukraine military support and lethal aid as required by the Ukraine Freedom Support Act. Former Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev warns that World War 3 and a major nuclear war could start over the Ukraine war.

This past fall, the number of Russian nuclear weapons surpassed the United States for the first time in 40 years. The development of a new Russian cruise missile which could strike Europe has U.S. officials claiming that Russia is in violation of the 1987 intermediate-range nuclear forces (INF) treaty. In response, the Pentagon is considering deploying U.S. cruise missiles in response to Vladimir Putin's nuclear missile threats.

The United States is concerned as China's strategic missile force, or the Second Artillery Corps, has 10 DF-31 intercontinental ballistic missiles ready in service. Intelligence reports from the Pentagon revealed that while launch of the DF-31 missiles will not be able to hit the central U.S., the modified DF-31A, with a range of 11,200 kilometres, is capable of hitting key locations in the U.S. The People's Liberation Army, or PLA, would only need a maximum of 30 minutes to launch the DF-31 intercontinental ballistic missiles.

China and North Korea, allies at the same time two of the greatest archenemies of the United States, have reportedly advanced well into their respective military inventions. A report by Want China Times disclosed the world's second-largest economy now has a nuclear-powered ballistic missile submarine that can strike the continental United States from the Chinese coast, while South Korea warned its northern twin may have already developed missiles that are also capable of striking the same target of China's.

The Type 096 third-generation nuclear-powered submarine, Want China Times said, will carry a ballistic missile with a range of 11,000 kilometres. This range, it said, is far enough to reach the United States, thus risking the latter of a direct nuclear attack even from far Chinese shores.

A study from the Moscow-based Russian Military Analyst said China is working on the Type 096 Tang-class ballistic missile submarines to replace the Type 094 by 2020. By that time, China's PLA Navy will possess six Type 094 and Type 096 submarines. Its combined power will control 80 submarine-launched ballistic missiles with about 300 nuclear warheads.

North Korea warns of 'war disaster' over U.S. sanctions

MORE ON WAR & CONFLICT

SEOUL, Jan 8 (Reuters) - North Korea has threatened the United States "with a hail of bullets and shells on its own territory" if it does not withdraw sanctions, the North's state news agency reported on Thursday.

U.S. President Barack Obama issued an executive order last week authorising expanded sanctions against North Korea after a hacking attack on Sony Pictures Entertainment, which Washington blamed on Pyongyang.

North Korea, which has denied it was responsible for the hacking, routinely uses aggressive rhetoric, often warning of war against its sworn enemies the United States and South Korea.

"The U.S. should roll back its hostile policy towards the DPRK of its own accord if it does not want to suffer a war disaster," the KCNA news agency reported, citing the National Defence Commission, which is headed by leader Kim Jong Un.

North Korea is officially known as the Democratic People's Republic of Korea.

"We have taken this stand because all 'sanctions' the U.S. has imposed against the DPRK so far are based on the inveterate hostility and repugnancy towards it and Washington's hostile policy towards it," KCNA said.

"This is also because 'sanctions' were invented under absurd pretexts and conditions."

The new U.S. sanctions are aimed at impeding access to the U.S. financial system and they named three entities, including North Korea's military intelligence agency, and people with links to weapons sales and proliferation.

North Korea has set up posts along its border with South Korea to be able to more quickly invade its neighbor, while also expanding its artillery and mechanized forces, according to South Korea's Defense Ministry.

Kim Jong Un's regime is setting up "infiltration facilities" along the demilitarized zone dividing the countries to be able to both accommodate and rapidly deploy special forces into South Korea if war breaks out, the ministry said in its latest white paper released today. It didn't say how many posts there are or whether they included tunnels and housed weapons.

North Korea has also probably developed ballistic missiles capable of threatening the continental U.S., according to the report, the first time South Korea has made the assertion in its white paper.

"These are newly spotted structures and could be part of a wider network of military bases and tunnels," Park Chang Kwon, a senior research fellow at the state-run Korea Institute for Defense Analyses in Seoul, said by phone. South Korea is also "formally saying that North Korea has very much addressed the issues of accuracy and reliability for its intercontinental ballistic missile."

The biannual assessment offers a glimpse into North Korea's defense strategy as it develops asymmetric capabilities to defend against the more modern forces across its border. Under its songun, or military-first policy chartered by late leader Kim Jong II, the North has funneled its limited resources into building weapons systems capable of deterring what it calls U.S. and South Korean hostility.

Miniaturizing Warheads

North Korea's capacity to miniaturize nuclear warheads is also believed to have reached a "considerable" level, according to the paper. No South Korean or U.S. officials have said the North has yet obtained the ability to tip a

The United States Air Force (USAF) has confirmed it will pull out of three UK airbases.

US Defence Secretary Chuck Hagel said the Americans will leave RAF Mildenhall in Suffolk and RAF Alconbury and RAF Molesworth in Cambridgeshire.

The move is part of a programme to save £320m ($500m) a year across Europe. The USAF lease the RAF bases.

Mr Hagel said he understood it would mean job losses and thanked those who had supported the US Air Force.

WASHINGTON – Al-Qaida in the Arabian Peninsula is warning Americans that they've been working long and hard on a new tool to attack the U.S.

In the latest issue of the terror group's Inspire electronic magazine, an individual called the AQ Chef was quoted as saying they developed a bomb in 2009, but "the brothers in the external operation committee did not give us the green light until recently."

Hinting at al-Qaida in the Arabian Peninsula's dedication to building undetectable bombs, he said in the winter 2014 edition of Inspire, released in late December, "they have developed other bombs that are more effective."

AQ Chef indicates that lessons learned from failures in past assassination attempts and plots to attack U.S. airplanes and buildings have fed the development of a new generation of what it calls "undetectable" bombs.

In "The Hidden Bomb," a 20-page section of the magazine, the writer goes into painstaking detail about how to build and test such a bomb: "For several months, we conducted a number of experiments. As a result we came up with these simple materials that are readily available around the globe, even inside America. We spared no effort in simplifying the idea in such we made it 'another meal prepared in the kitchen' so that every determined Muslim can prepare."

Middle East Officials Question 'Convenient Mistakes' Of US Airdrops To Al-Qaeda.

As the "convenient" and "accidental" airdrops of weapons and supplies by the US and NATO into the hands of ISIS and al-Qaeda jihadists fighting inside both Syria and Iraq begin to draw more attention throughout largely alternative media outlets, such convenient mistakes are also being questioned by national governments, particularly those who may be in the crosshairs of NATO in the very near future. Individuals who have come to question the nature of the allegedly accidental air drops are legion, but one of the more recent and high profile skeptics is the Commander of Iran's Basij Force, Brigadier General Mohammed Reza Naqdi. In an address to a group of Basij forces on January 5, Naqdi stated that "The US directly supports the ISIL in Iraq and the US planes drop the needed aids and weapons for ISIL in Iraq ...". In addition, he stated that the US Embassy in Baghdad is the command center for ISIL and other "takfir" militants. Indeed, while the United States military portrays the receipt of weapons and supplies by ISIS as entirely accidental, Naqdi presents the situation as quite the opposite. Contradicting the propaganda and stated aims of the US military, Naqdi stated that the Iraqi forces have managed to retrieve aid that was actually intended for ISIS fighters, not the other way around. Iran-Backed Militias Are Getting U.S. Weapons

552 @ JAN 2, 2015 2:00 AM EST

By Josh Rogin & Eli Lake

U.S. weapons intended for Iraq's beleaguered military are winding up in the possession of the country's Shiite militias, according to U.S. lawmakers and senior officials in the Barack Obama administration. These sources say that the Baghdad government, which was granted $1.2 billion in training and equipment aid in the omnibus spending bill passed last month, is turning hardware over to Shiite militias that are heavily influenced by Iran and have been guilty of gross human-rights violations.

One senior administration official told us that the U.S. government is aware of this, but is caught in a dilemma. The flawed Iraqi security forces are unable to fight Islamic State without the aid of the militias, who are often trained and sometimes commanded by officers from Iran's Revolutionary Guard Corps. And yet, if the U.S. stopped sending arms to the Iraqi military, things would get even worse, with IS overrunning more of the country and committing human-rights horrors on a broader scale. The risk of not aiding them was greater than the risk of aiding them, the official said, adding that this didn't mean the administration was unconcerned about the risks involved.

The commander of Iran's notorious Basij forces declared Monday that the Islamic Republic's ultimate goal is the destruction of America and Israel.

As new details are revealed in the investigation of the Islamic State \(ISIS\) terror cell in Hevron, security officials estimate that hundreds of Hamas terrorists are leaving the "moderate" terrorist group in favor of ISIS to wage war on Israel - and the Palestinian Authority (PA).

The leader of the Hevron ISIS cell, Ahmed Wadah Salah Shehada (22), admitted under Israel Security Agency (ISA, or Shin Bet) investigation that he switched from Hamas to ISIS in recent years because it was too "moderate" for him, in that Hamas didn't compel Sharia Islamic law, reports Channel 2.

Reportedly the security system assesses that hundreds of other terrorists have made the move to ISIS like Shehada, and are in contact with the terrorist organization through online social media.

"This cell was just the tip of the iceberg," a security source was quoted as saying. "There are terrorists who are tired of Hamas because it is portrayed as moderate and not aggressive and extremist enough against Israel."

He continued "there they see ISIS as an organization that implements the Islamic laws - Sharia. Hamas is under great pressure from this phenomenon which is slowly eating into its power. ISIS is entering into this vacuum."

Indeed, ISIS already reportedly has a foothold in Gaza where it took an active part in last summer's terror war against Israel, and where it claimed a bombing attack on the French Cultural Center last October.

Already as of last October 30 Arab citizens of Israel had reportedly joined ISIS.

ISRAELI OFFICIAL TAUNTS OBAMA: CRITICISM ONLY HELPS NETANYAHU

'They actually are achieving the opposite direction'

Published: 1 day ago

The Obama administration's criticism of the current Israeli government only serves to make Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu and his Likud party more popular with the electorate, charged Likud Knesset Member Danny Danon in a U.S. radio interview Sunday.

Danon was speaking on "Aaron Klein Investigative Radio" on New York's AM 970 The Answer.

Danon had been asked about some recent accusations the Obama administration may be trying to influence the March 17 general elections in Israel by repeatedly criticizing Netanyahu's policies.

The Likud politician charged "there are a few people in the administration who sometimes want to get involved and I can tell you one thing. Whenever somebody tries to get involved in our politics they actually are achieving the opposite direction."

As darkness fell across Europe, tens of thousands took to the streets to show their solidarity with those killed by gunmen at the offices of satirical French weekly Charlie Hebdo.

The scenes were replicated across France, in London and around the world with crowds holding placards bearing the slogan #JeSuisCharlie, which means 'I am Charlie' in French. Others were seen carrying enlarged versions of some of the newspaper's anti-Islamist cartoons.

Meanwhile the website of French newspaper Le Monde last night showed an interactive map of vigils being held across the world in Dublin, Edinburgh, Amsterdam, Brussels, Madrid, Rome, Berlin, Vienna, Moscow, and as far afield as Tunis, Lima, Rio de Janeiro and Madagascar.

In London, hundreds of people filled Trafalgar Square at a silent vigil for those killed when masked gunmen stormed the newspaper's headquarters. Many held pens, pencils and notebooks in the air to show their support for the journalists, cartoonists and police officers who lost their lives.

The gatherings were held as French President Francois Hollande declared tomorrow a day of national mourning in respect for the victims of this morning's attack.

More than 700,000 rally in France after Islamist attacks

6 hours ago

Paris (AFP) - More than 700,000 people on Saturday took to streets across France in tribute to the 17 people killed in three days of violence by Islamist extremists, the interior minister said.

From Nice and Marseilles in the south to Besancon in the east and Lille in the north, people poured onto the streets to express their solidarity following Wednesday's attack on the satirical weekly Charlie Hebdo that left 12 dead. The massacre was followed by the fatal shooting of a police officer on Thursday and the murder of four hostages during a siege at a Jewish supermarket on Friday.

Jews are fleeing terror-hit Paris because of growing anti-Semitism in France, one of Britain's most influential Jewish journalists said today.

Stephen Pollard, editor of the Jewish Chronicle, spoke out after an Islamic terrorist took six people hostage and held them captive in a Kosher supermarket in the French capital.

This afternoon police ordered all shops in a famous Jewish neighborhood in central Paris to close.

Obama Declares War On 'Extremism' – Are You An 'Extremist' According To His Definition?

By Michael Snyder, on January 11th, 2015

g+ Share Tweet Pinterest Email ShareThis

Do you know what an "extremist" is? In the wake of the horrible terror attacks on the offices of Charlie Hebdo in France, Barack Obama is speaking very boldly about the need to win the war against "extremists", and he has announced plans to host a major global summit on "extremism" next month. And on the surface that sounds great. But precisely how are we supposed to determine whether someone is an "extremist" or not? What criteria should we use? As you will see below, your definition of an "extremist" may be far, far different from the definition that Barack Obama is using. When you do a Google search, you will find that an "extremist" is defined as "a person who holds extreme or fanatical political or religious views, especially one who resorts to or advocates extreme action." According to Wikipedia, "extremism" is "an ideology (particularly in politics or religion), considered to be far outside the mainstream attitudes of a society or to violate common moral standards. Extremism can take many forms, including political, religious and economic." Please notice that neither of those definitions uses the word violence. In this day and age, you can be considered an "extremist" simply based on what you believe, and as you will see later in this article there are now tens of millions of Americans that are considered to be "extremists" and "potential terrorists" according to official U.S. government documents.

When you use the word "extremist", you may have in your mind a picture of ISIS fighters or the terrorists from the Charlie Hebdo massacre.

But for elitists such as Barack Obama, the word "extremist" has a much broader meaning. In recent years, it has become a code word for those that do not have an "enlightened" view of the world. If your views on politics, religion or social issues are extremely different from the liberal, progressive views of "the mainstream" (as defined by the mainstream media and by "mainstream" politicians such as Barack Obama), then they consider you to be an extremist.

Iceland is planning to formally withdraw its EU application, the country's prime minister told the national radio station. Reykjavik also wants to lift capitals controls imposed on Iceland by Brussels after a financial crisis hit the country in 2008.

Despite expected public protests, Iceland is going to make a second attempt to withdraw its application to become a member state of the European Union, Prime Minister Sigmundur Davíð Gunnlaugsson said in an interview with Icelandic radio station Bylgjan.

"Participating in EU talks isn't really valid anymore," PM Gunnlaugsson said as quoted by the Reykjavik Grapevine.

The exchange rate of the US Dollar and the Euro, at top, is displayed in the window of a currency exchange office in Athens. Some investors say the eurozone's newly installed defenses against financial turmoil aren't as tough as some think. That means Greek problems could spread to other countries — so that the potential fallout from a Greek debt default or even a euro exit shouldn't be downplayed. The eurozone's troubles are big news for the global economy, since it's a major trade partner for the U.S., Eastern Europe and Asia.

The question of whether Europe can handle another crisis in Greece is heightening financial uncertainty for the currency union just as it is struggling to grow and create jobs.

Some analysts and politicians say Greece 2.0 wouldn't be as rough on the eurozone as the original Greek crisis and default in 2010-2012. They claim the currency bloc has new safeguards. Most investors seem to agree for now. Others argue that's dangerous complacency.

Loud booms are actually usual on New Year's Eve. However, I think that all the rockets and fireworks have already exploded two or three days after! So what are these mysterious booms heard and felt across the US in the first days of 2015? Yesterday, mystery booms have been reported across the US from Texas to North Carolina, California to Indiana and Georgia, so literally all over the country. Freaky, isn't it? Lucy banks shared on the DSW Scanner's Facebook page: "Loud booms in Euless, Texas just now lots of them started off really loud and then got quieter." On the same thread Kim Walk Prazak reports another boom in Keller, Tx. Any ideas about their origin? Jennifer Whitacker reports 2 loud booms again, the first was louder than the second in Indiana. And here Becky Forrester Garrison reporting mystery loud blasts across northern Georgia more precisely in nw Forsyth. They sound like blasting and usually (but not always) occur at night. Hollande said he wanted to make sure there's progress in peace talks over the situation in Ukraine, before putting an end to sanctions.

He said he hopes to see signs of mutual understanding at the January 15 talks in Astana, Kazakhstan. The meeting is being organized by Ukrainian President Petro Poroshenko, and Russian President Vladimir Putin and German Chancellor Angela Merkel are expected to be among the participants.

Tougher sanctions against Russia could destabilize the country and provoke an "even more dangerous" situation in Europe and have negative consequences for the entire world, German Vice-Chancellor Economic Affairs and Energy Minister has warned.

"Those who want it, provoke an even more dangerous situation for all of us in Europe," Sigmar Gabriel said in an interview with the Bild am Sonntag newspaper on Sunday.

"Those who are seeking to even more destabilize Russia from the economic and political point of view are pursuing quite different goals."

The goal of sanctions against Russia was to return Moscow to the negotiating table to find ways for a peaceful resolution to the crisis in Ukraine, he said.

He elaborated that additional sanctions may exclude Moscow from partnership in the resolution of conflicts which "will have very dangerous consequences for the entire world."

Though there are some in the US and EU that "would like to floor their superpower rival," but it is not in the interest of Germany or Europe, he stated.

"We want to help solve the conflict in Ukraine, not to force Russia to its knees," he stressed.

Oil Falls Below 50 As Global Financial Markets Begin To Unravel

By Michael Snyder, on January 5th, 2015

Share

Pinterest

Email

Share This

On Monday, the price of oil fell below $50 for the first time since April 2009, and the Dow dropped 331 points. Meanwhile, the stock market declines over in Europe were even larger on a percentage basis, and the euro sank to a fresh nine year low on concerns that the anti-austerity Syriza party will be victorious in the upcoming election in Greece. These are precisely the kinds of things that we would expect to see happen if a global financial crash was coming in 2015. Just prior to the financial crisis of 2008, the price of oil collapsed, prices for industrial commodities got crushed and the U.S. dollar soared relative to other currencies. All of those things are happening again. And yet somehow many analysts are still convinced that things will be different this time. And I agree that things will indeed be "different" this time. When this crisis fully erupts, it will make 2008 look like a Sunday picnic.

Another thing that usually happens when financial markets begin to unravel is that they get really choppy. There are big ups and big downs, and that is exactly what we have witnessed since October.

So don't expect the markets just to go in one direction. In fact, it would not be a surprise if the Dow went up by 300 or 400 points tomorrow. During the initial stages of a financial crash, there are always certain days when the markets absolutely soar.

For example, did you know that the three largest single day stock market advances in history were right in the middle of the financial crash of 2008? Here are the dates and the amount the Dow rose each of those days...

October 13th, 2008: +936 points

October 28th, 2008: +889 points

November 13th, 2008: +552 points

Just looking at those three days, you would assume that the fall of 2008 was the greatest time ever for stocks. But instead, it was the worst financial crash that we have seen since the days of the Great Depression.

So don't get fooled by the volatility. Choppy markets are almost always a sign of big trouble ahead. Calm waters usually mean that the markets are going up.

$200 bn in debt looms over American oil and gas

Plummeting Brent oil prices are putting pressure on North American shale, which has sunk hundreds of billions of dollars into investment, and could soon come crashing down.

Tempted by big returns, shale companies have borrowed more than $200 billion in bonds and loans, from Wall Street and London, to cover development and projects that may not even come to fruition. Oil producers' debt since 2010 has increased more than 55 percent, and revenues have slowed, rising only 36 percent from September 2014, compared to 2010, according to the Wall Street Journal.

Fracking, the process of hydraulic fracturing and horizontal drilling on land is much more expensive than the average water-based oilrig. However, over the past years, it has become relatively cheap and fast. Energy companies, eager to get in on the riches of the American oil boom, have been borrowing money faster than they have been earning it.

On Sunday, the first shale company filed for bankruptcy. WBH Energy LP, a private Texas-based drilling group, filed for bankruptcy after saying that their lender was no longer willing to advance money. The company estimates their debt between $10-50 million. There are hundreds more in the US alone.

Analysts believe North American shale needs to sell at $60-100 per barrel to break even on the billions of debt accrued by the energy companies. Indebted companies, fearing bankruptcy, may therefore be forced to keep selling oil, even at a loss.

Geopolitical turmoil draws nearer as oil drops below $50 for first time since 2009

As the price of oil drops below $50 for the first time since 2009, noted investor Jeffrey Gundlach warns that a fall to $40 dollars a barrel could spark "terrifying" geopolitical consequences.

The February contract for West Texas Intermediate briefly fell to a session low of $49.95 earlier today, while Brent crude also hit a 5-1/2-year low.

However, according to influential investor Gundlach, founder of Doubleline Capital, a fall to $40 could set in motion devastating global developments.

NO WEIRD TRICK REQUIRED

"Oil is incredibly important right now," Gundlach said in a recent interview with FuW. "If oil falls to around $40 a barrel then I think the yield on ten year treasury note is going to 1%. I hope it does not go to $40 because then something is very, very wrong with the world, not just the economy. The geopolitical consequences could be – to put it bluntly – terrifying."

As Zero Hedge points out, Gundlach is right to draw a correlation between unstable price fluctuations in crude oil and geopolitical turmoil.

Brussels are set to impose a maximum power limit on gas and electric ovens next month which could threaten the Sunday roast.

An EU ruling will require 'new energy efficiency requirements for ovens, hobs and range hoods' by next month.

Officials insist it will cut waste and improve value for money, but critics fear it will take longer to warm up ovens to cook the Sunday joint.

New measures will be brought on February 26 for electric and gas-fired ovens. Shops will still be able to sell existing models, but an eco-design directive will be introduced over several years.

Energy Crisis as Early as 2016

Low oil prices today may be setting the world up for an oil shortage as early as 2016. Today we have just 2% more crude oil supply than demand and the price of gasoline is under $2.00/gallon in Texas. If oil supply falls too far, we could see gasoline prices doubling within 18 months. (CNSNews.com) - The federal government drove $789,473,350,613.20 deeper into debt in calendar year 2014, an increase that equaled $6,875 per household, $7,458 per full-time year-round worker, and $8,853 per full-time year-round private-sector worker.

According to the Treasury, the debt started calendar year 2014 at $17,351,970,784,950.10 and ended it at $18,141,444,135,563.30.

When Obama took office on Jan. 20, 2009, the debt was $10,626,877,048,913.08. Since then, it has increased $7,514,567,086,650.22--which is $65,443 per household, $70,985 per full-time worker and $84,266 per full-time private-sector worker.

In 2013, according to the Census Bureau there were 105,862,000 full-time year-round workers in the United States. The $789,473,350,613.20 increase in the federal debt during 2014 worked out to $7,457.57 for each of those full-time year-round workers.

3 In 5 Americans Don't Have Savings To Cover Unexpected Bills

Comcast Equity Markets Nielsen

While various CNBC anchors may be willing to say that the US is "growing gangbusters" yet again confusing the liquidity-oozing equity markets with the economy, there are a couple hundred million Americans who would bet to differ (which incidentally may also explain why the Comcast channel no longer wishes to have its viewership calculated by Nielsen): the reason is that according to the latest Bankrate survey released today, more than three in five Americans don't have money in their savings accounts to cover any unexpected bills such as a $500 car repair or a $1,000 emergency room visit.

In fact, only 38% of respondents said they have enough funds in their bank accounts to cover even the most mundane of spending emergencies.. Most others would need to take on debt or cut back elsewhere.

Fallback Plan

How Americans would deal with an unexpected expense such as $1,000 for an emergency room visit or $500 for a car repair:

Source: Bankrate.com | WSJ.com

As the WSJ reports, citing Bankrate banking analyst Claes Bell, "a solid majority of Americans say they have a household budget but too few have the ability to cover expenses outside their budget without going into debt or turning to family and friends for help."

THE CHINESE ARE COMING: BEIJING IN THE BALKANS AND EASTERN EUROPE

In the latter part of 2014, China became the world's largest economy, dethroning the United States which has held the position since 1872. The technique for identifying such sizes will always be up for question, even if the IMF did account for the issue of purchasing power parity. Those in the US can still summon relatively larger pay packets than their Chinese counterparts.

Be that as it may, China now makes up for about 16.48 percent of the world's purchasing-power adjusted GDP, with the US coming in at 16.28 percent. Analysts point out that these figures ignore "raw terms" (Business Insider, Oct 8, 2014), though that doesn't diminish a spectacular transformation – in 1980, China's overall economic output was a mere tenth that of the US.

The chatter about Beijing's economic surge coincided well with its Balkans drive, yet another means by which the Chinese business juggernaut is seeking satiation. Chinese diplomats and figures are not strangers to the region. Their involvement during the eccentric relationship between Beijing and the communist Albanian state of Enver Hoxha is well noted.

The love affair with Hoxha went cold in the late 1970s. China began cultivating ties with Yugoslavia and Romania, insisting that both the Soviet Union and the United States adopt more constructive approaches to the Balkan region. Then, as now, the Balkans was to provide an entry point into the markets of European states while also enabling a currying of favour with so called third world countries.[1] Then, as now, China's regimes boasted new, reformist faces, at least in rhetorical aspiration.

Venezuelan leader turns to China amid oil collapse

Venezuelans Throng Grocery Stores Under Military Protection

Shoppers thronged grocery stores across Caracas today as deepening shortages led the government to put Venezuela's food distribution under military protection.

Long lines, some stretching for blocks, formed outside grocery stores in the South American country's capital as residents search for scarce basic items such as detergent and chicken.

"I've visited six stores already today looking for detergent -- I can't find it anywhere," said Lisbeth Elsa, a 27-year-old janitor, waiting in line outside a supermarket in eastern Caracas. "We're wearing our dirty clothes again because we can't find it. At this point I'll buy whatever I can find."

A dearth of foreign currency exacerbated by collapsing oil prices has led to shortages of imports from toilet paper to car batteries, and helped push annual inflation to 64 percent in November. The lines will persist as long as price controls remain in place, Luis Vicente Leon, director of Caracas-based polling firm Datanalysis, said today in a telephone interview.

Government officials met with representatives from supermarket chains today to guarantee supplies, state news agency AVN reported. Interior Minister Carmen Melendez said yesterday that security forces would be sent to food stores and distribution centers to protect shoppers.

'Into Desperation'

"Don't fall into desperation -- we have the capacity and products for everyone, with calmness and patience. The stores are full," she said on state television.

President Nicolas Maduro last week vowed to implement an economic "counter-offensive" to steer the country out of recession, including an overhaul of the foreign exchange system. He has yet to provide details. While the main government-controlled exchange sets a rate of 6.3 bolivars per U.S. dollar, the black market rate is as much as 187 per dollar.

OPEC is not going to come to the rescue. It is up to American producers to cut oil supplies.

The world is freaking out over oil. After falling 6% on Monday, U.S. crude slipped another 4% Tuesday to close at $47.92. Brent crude is now down to $51.10. This is the lowest price since early 2009, when oil bottomed at $35 less than nine months after hitting a record high of $147.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average fell 331 points Monday and another 130 Tuesday. Many reports have blamed oil for the stock market weakness, but that doesn't really make much sense. All else equal, low oil prices are a boon to economic growth. And

Atheists Seek to Dissuade Congress From Taking Oath on Bible

WASHINGTON – An atheist organization is seeking to dissuade new members of Congress from taking their oath on the Bible when they are sworn into office today.

“On January 6, Congress will take the ceremonial oath of office, during which each member will solemnly swear, or affirm, that he or she will ‘support and defend the Constitution of the United States.’ While members are not required to swear or affirm on a specific text, or any at all, many choose to swear on the Bible,” the Secular Coalition of America recently outlined to supporters.

“This year, the Secular Coalition will seek to remind Congress that it was elected to support and defend the Constitution, not the Bible or any other religious text,” it continued. “We will be circulating letters on the Hill and lobbying in person to get as many members of Congress as we can to take the oath on the Constitution.”

It is not known whether any of the recipients of the letter will actually heed the group’s request.

As previously reported, in 2012, the Freedom from Religion Foundation (FFRF) did the same prior to the inauguration of Barack Obama, also requesting that he eliminate the phrase “So help me God” from his oath as well.

“When you stand to reaffirm your oath, do so using the language of the Founders. Eliminate the religious verbiage,” wrote FFRF attorney Andrew Seidel. “While you’re at it, why not place your hand on the Constitution instead of a Bible?”

According to historical information, America’s first president, George Washington, took the oath of office on the Bible. While it is disputed as to whether or not he used the phrase “so help me God” in his oath, his presidential address often made reference to the Divine Creator.

Parents are accusing a teacher of violating their child's First Amendment rights by allegedly refusing to allow him to read his Bible in school.

They claim that their son, Loyal Grandstaff, a middle school student at Bueker Middle School in Marshall, Missouri, was told by his teacher that he couldn't read the book after he brought the Bible in and silently studied it during free time.

"I feel like it violated his freedom of religion but also his freedom of speech," Justin Grandstaff, the 12 year old's father, told WDAF-TV.

Loyal said that he wasn't being loud and that he wasn't sharing the book with his peers at the time.

PHILLIPSBURG, N.J. – The Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) has ruled that a New Jersey school district violated the rights of a substitute teacher when it fired the man for giving a middle school student his Bible during the lunch period.

As previously reported, Tutka, a longtime substitute teacher for the Phillipsburg School District, was placed under possible disciplinary action in 2012 after it was discovered that he had given his personal copy of the Bible to a student at Phillipsburg Middle School.

Tutka states that one day in October 2012, while the students he was overseeing lined up at the door to be dismissed for lunch, he commented to the last student in line, "Remember, the last shall be first." He explained that over the next few weeks, the student asked several times where the saying came from, and approximately the seventh time, Tutka pulled out his personal Bible and gave it to the student as a gift.

However, upon learning of the incident, the Phillipsburg School Board claimed that Tutka violated school policy. The matter was discussed during a board meeting in November 2012, where a number of area residents showed up to support the substitute teacher.

Tutka acknowledged to reporters weeks later, however, that he had received a concerning letter from Superintendent George Chando, which outlined his recommendation that Tutka face a 90-day suspension beginning in January. The letter explained that the suspension was warranted as Tutka violated two school policies: one, that he not distribute any religious literature on school property, and two, the requirement that he "be neutral in [his] approach and avoid using [discussions about religion] to advance or inhibit religion in any way."

Tutka's name was also removed from the substitute teacher's list because of the incident.

In January 2013, the board again addressed the matter during its monthly meeting and decided to go much further than the 90-day suspension — it fired Tutka.

Atlanta fire chief made example of, terminated following Comment on Homosexuality

Fire Chief Kelvin Cochran — the subject of recent controversy over remarks made in a self-published religious book — has been terminated from the Atlanta Fire Rescue Department, Mayor Kasim Reed announced today. Cochran returned to work today following a month-long suspension for comments in his 2013 book "Who Told You That You Are Naked?" Many criticized the book as promoting discriminatory and anti-gay views, while Cochran's suspension — and now termination — has since become the focus of a fight over "religious liberty." The mayor said he decided to terminate Cochran not just because the fire chief didn't consult him before publishing the book, but also spoke out about his suspension despite being told to remain quiet during the investigation into his leadership. What's more, Reed said he believes Cochran opened up the city to the potential for litigation over future discrimination claims. More

A North Carolina town has finally thrown in the towel on a years-long court battle by agreeing to remove a veterans' memorial statue from its central park that featured a praying soldier kneeling before a cross and a Christian flag.

After spending approximately $50,000 in legal fees to help preserve the memorial at King Central Park, and willing to spend no more, the King

In China, a church-state showdown of biblical proportions

Christianity is booming in China, propelling it toward becoming the world's largest Christian nation. But as religion grows, it spurs a government crackdown.

By Robert Marquand

There's nothing secret about Chongyi Church, one of the largest in China. Its lighted steeple and giant cross penetrate the night sky of Hangzhou, the capital of coastal Zhejiang Province. Nearly everything at the church is conspicuously open: the front gate, the front door, the sanctuary, the people, the clergy. Chinese or not, you are welcome seven days a week. No layers of security

Bill Clinton And The Pedophile: The Sex Scandal That Could Destroy Hillary's Presidential Ambitions

By Michael Snyder, on January 5th, 2015

Why did a convicted billionaire pedophile named Jeffrey Epstein that pimped out underage girls to powerful men have 21 contact phone numbers for Bill Clinton? And why did Clinton fly on "multiple occasions" to the private Caribbean island where Epstein regularly held wild sexual orgies? Let me give you a hint: it was not to discuss politics over milk and cookies. Every once in a while, we get a small peek into the twisted sexual world of the global elite. In this case, a Florida lawsuit that alleges that Britain's Prince Andrew had sex with a 17-year-old "sex slave" provided by Epstein is making headlines all over the planet. But of potentially even greater importance is what this lawsuit is revealing about Bill Clinton. If it can be proven that Bill Clinton had sex with underage girls provided by Jeffrey Epstein, that could potentially destroy any chance that Hillary Clinton has of winning the presidency in 2016.

The 17-year-old girl that Prince Andrew is alleged to have had sex with is named Virginia Roberts. She is claiming that she once received \$15,000 for having sex with him...

A teenage "sex slave" says she was paid $15,000 for bedding Britain's Prince Andrew by the American billionaire who served as the royal's procurer.

Virginia Roberts was 17 when Wall Street honcho and pedophile Jeffrey Epstein allegedly pimped her out to the prince.

"A lot of powerful men were part of Jeffrey's scene, but I specifically remember Andrew," Roberts told Britain's Daily Mail.

And it is a fact that Jeffrey Epstein is a convicted sex offender. He was convicted by a court of law for paying a 14-year-old girl 300 dollars to massage him and KATHMANDU (Thomson Reuters Foundation) - Nepal will issue passports to sexual minorities, adding a third gender category, an official said on Wednesday in a sign of the conservative Hindu-majority country becoming more liberal since the end of a decade-long civil war.

The Himalayan nation's lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender (LGBT) people are identified as either male or female in passports, despite a 2007 Supreme Court ruling ordering authorities to amend laws to include a third gender.

"We have changed the passport regulations and will add a third category of gender for those people who do not want to be identified as

Russia says drivers must not have 'sex disorders'

Moscow street: Various mental "disorders" are seen as a cause of road accidents

Russia has listed transsexual and transgender people among those who will no longer qualify for driving licences.

Fetishism, exhibitionism and voyeurism are also included as "mental disorders" now barring people from driving.

The government says it is tightening medical controls for drivers because Russia has too many road accidents.

"Pathological" gambling and compulsive stealing are also on the list. Russian psychiatrists and human rights lawyers have condemned the move.

A ruling is expected as early as Monday in the latest battle in Houston's war against several pastors who fought an "equal rights" ordinance that grants privileges to transgenders across the city.

A spokesman for the U.S. Pastor Council in Houston, whose members have been involved in the fight, said a judge heard arguments from the city on Friday on its requests that the court deny the pastors a jury decision, and also assign a "special master" to the case.

The judge said a ruling would be coming early in the week, possibly as early as Monday.

WND had reported only a day earlier when Houston, which created a firestorm of controversy by issuing subpoenas for copies of pastors' sermons in the case over a transgender "rights" ordinance, claimed the pastors have no right to a jury trial and said it wanted a hand-picked "special master" to review the evidence.

JUDGE SLAMS CHRISTIAN FLORIST WITH PERSONAL LIABILITY

Home, life savings at risk for asserting constitutional religious freedom

A judge in Washington state has slammed the grandmother who owns and operates Arlene's Flowers with personal liability should she lose any of the lawsuits pending against her for adhering to her religious convictions and declining to celebrate and decorate for same-sex ceremonies.

The case against Barronelle Stutzman began when Washington Attorney General Bob Ferguson sued the Richland, Washington, grandmother for operating her business according to the dictates of her Christian faith.

The issue is that in Washington, officials believe the state's statutory protections for homosexuals trump the Constitution's protection of religious liberty.

New Year's Eve is a special time for many, and for Craig Friesen and Matt Wiens, it was especially meaningful.

The Saskatoon couple was married on Dec. 31 in Osler, Sask., in the presence of family, friends and the church community.

The men's wedding marks a point in history for the Mennonite denomination in Canada. Friesen and Wiens are the first same-sex couple publicly married in a Canadian Mennonite church.

"Our relationship doesn't feel different, but our relationship with our community and with our faith has changed at least a little bit. It was really beautiful and freeing," Friesen said.

The Contents of This Book Aimed at Small Children Led a Parent to Complain — but the District Won't Be Removing It From Classrooms

A local school board has voted to allow a book about a little girl with two mothers to remain inside district libraries and classrooms.

The Superior School Board in Superior, Wisconsin, voted Monday night against banning the book, titled, "Emma and Meesha My Boy: A Two Mom Story," from local schools after an unnamed parent waged an official complaint against it.

"This is a delightful story of little girl with two moms as she learns how to be nice to her cat," a description of the book reads. "Follow along as Emma gets in trouble trying to play with Meesha Kitty and cheer as she learns to treat him with care."

District officials concluded that it would be inappropriate to remove the book based on one parent's complaint, according to the Associated Press.

Steve Stupak was the sole official out of seven board members to vote in favor of banning the book, though, claiming that it is inappropriately aimed at young children in grades first through third, WDO-TV reported.

فلهذا أقول المسيح اقترب ميعاد مجيؤه لا احدد مواعيد بل ارفض من يحدد مواعيد ولكن اطلب
شيئين

الأول نصلي ونستعد ونعد زيت لمصابيحنا لاستقبال العريس بالصلاة والصوم وخدمة أبناء الله
وتنقية القلب والاستعداد بلبس العرس.

أفسس 6: 15

وَحَاذِينَ أَرْجُلَكُمْ بِاسْتِعْدَادٍ إِنِّجِيلِ السَّلَامِ .

رسالة بولس الرسول الي أهل رومية 13

كان حين امنا

13: 12 قد تناهى الليل وتقارب النهار فلنخلع اعمال الظلمة ونلبس اسلحة النور

13: 13 لنسلك بلباقة كما في النهار لا بالبطر والسكر لا بالمضاجع والعهر لا بالخصام والحسد

الثاني لا نخاف

إِفْرَحُوا فِي الرَّبِّ كُلَّ حِينٍ، وَأَقُولُ أَيْضًا: اِفْرَحُوا.

افرحوا لان عريسنا قد اقترب مجيؤه. وانتبهوا الشيطان يريد أن نفقد سلامنا ولا ننال أكاليل.
