اكرر اننا لا نحدد مواعيد بل فقط نشجع بعضنا بعضا بقرب مجيء المسيح

وأيضاً أوضح أنه يوجد نبوات لم نراها بعد مثل ابن الهلاك وهرمجدون

ولكن أيضاً علامات كثيرة من التي قال عنها الكتاب انها في الزمان الاخير بدأت تحدث بوضوح

ويجب أن ننتبه اليها. ونذكر بعضنا باننا نحتاج ان نستعد. والاستعداد ليس فقط قبل مجيء

المسيح بل أيضاً قبل الظلمة التي ستسبق مجيؤه ليكون عندنا زيت في مصابيحنا يكفي ان نعبر

هذه الظلمة وتكون مصابيحنا مضيئة وقت مجيؤه. بمعنى نحتاج من الان ان نستعد بقوة بأيمان

عامل وبتنقية القلب وان نثمر بالخدمة أي نجمع زيت في مصابيحنا لان الظلمة والضيقه اقتربت

جدا ومن لن يستعد لها بزيت كافي من الان لن يجد زيت في الضيقه لان وقتها تجميع زيت

سيكون صعب جدا بل أستطيع ان أقول من مثل العذارى انه لن يكون هناك زيت الا ما جمعه

سابقا. أفضل ان اقول لنفسي ولكم استعدوا الان لأنه اقترّب فنكون مستعدين سواء جاء او نحن ان سلمنا وديعتنا عن أنى لا اقول انه اقترّب لكيلا يقال عني كاذب وانشّر اشاعات ولكنه يأتي بسرعة بغته. لا اعتقد اي أحد ندم لانه كان مستعد ومنتظر مجيء المسيح ولم يأتي المسيح في زمنه ولكنه انتقل وهو مستعد ولكن كثيرين جدا ندموا على عدم الاستعداد عندما انتقلوا بعض الاحداث التي قال عنها الرب يسوع

انجيل متى 24

مت 24: 6 وسوف تسمعون بحروب واخبار حروب انظروا لا ترتاعوا لأنه لا بد ان تكون هذه كلها ولكن ليس المنتهى بعد

مت 24: 7 لأنه تقوم امة على امة ومملكة على مملكة وتكون مجاعات واوبئة وزلازل في اماكن

مت 24: 8 ولكن هذه كلها مبتدأ الازعاج

مت 24: 9 حينئذ يسلمونكم الى ضيق ويقتلونكم وتكونون مبغضين من جميع الامم لأجل اسمي

مت 24: 10 وحينئذ يعثر كثيرون ويسلمون بعضهم بعضا ويبغضون بعضهم بعضا

مت 24: 11 ويقوم انبياء كذبة كثيرون ويضلون كثيرين

مت 24: 12 ولكثرة الاثم تبرد محبة الكثيرين

مت 24: 13 ولكن الذي يصبر الى المنتهى فهذا يخلص

مت 24: 14 ويكرز ببشارة الملكوت هذه في كل المسكونة شهادة لجميع الامم ثم يأتي المنتهى

انجيل لوقا 21

21: 10 ثم قال لهم تقوم امة على امة ومملكة على مملكة

لماذا قال المسيح بعض العلامات؟

إنجيل يوحنا 14: 29

Mystery Mars haze baffles scientists

By Rebecca Morelle

The plume appeared twice in 2012, and stretched for 1,000km

The vast plume was initially spotted by amateur astronomers in 2012, and appeared twice before vanishing.

Solar Filaments

Solar filaments are dark lines or curves that sometimes appear in pictures of the Sun. Filaments are actually huge arcs of plasma (electrified gas) in the Sun's atmosphere. They look dark because they are not as hot as the Sun's surface behind them.

Filaments are held in place by powerful magnetic fields in the Sun's atmosphere. They usually appear above sunspots, which are magnetically disturbed regions on the Sun's surface. Filaments can last for several days - or sometimes up to months! Filaments are most common around the peak of the sunspot cycle (called solar max) when the Sun's magnetic field is very active and explosive solar storms are more frequent.

Filaments are actually the same feature as another solar phenomenon - prominences. Prominences stick out from the edge of the Sun and look bright against the dark background of space. However, prominences and filaments are really the same thing - arcs of plasma in the Sun's atmosphere held up by magnetic fields - just viewed from a different angle.

Filaments are most easily seen in photos of the Sun taken with a filter that only transmits a specific wavelength of red light. That color of red is called the hydrogen-alpha (or H-alpha) band. It is emitted by hydrogen atoms, the main constituent of the Sun. H-alpha light has a wavelength of 656.28 nanometers (6,562.8 Ångstroms).

Latest Blizzard will be Third-Snowiest Winter Ever Recorded for Boston

Gov. Charlie Baker asked Bay Staters to stay off the roads on Sunday as another powerful winter storm pounded the region. "Driving conditions will be very difficult and we continue to urge everyone to stay off the roads for the entire day," Baker said in a morning news conference. More than 10 inches of snow was measured in Boston by 7 a.m., making this winter the city's third-snowiest on record. Blizzard conditions were verified in Chatham, Plymouth, Hyannis, Martha's Vineyard and Falmouth, where visibility was one-quarter of a mile or less with 35 mph-plus winds for three hours or more. "There's a little bit of déjà vu all over again," Baker said. The snow was expected to stop by midday, but the central and eastern parts of the state are under a blizzard warning through Monday morning because high winds will blow snow and reduce visibility. With the storm falling on a weekend and students set to start February vacation on Monday, no travel ban was issued. "The most important thing people need to do today is stay safe and take care of themselves," Baker said. "Someone who gets trapped out there. . . it's just going to be a very bad day to be on the roads." MBTA service was suspended for the entire day on Sunday, and a decision will be made in the afternoon on Monday's service. Flights are not expected to leave or arrive at Logan Airport before mid-afternoon. Transportation Secretary Stephanie Pollack said more than 3,000 pieces of equipment are treating the roads. "We're going to need time," she said. "Just because it stops snowing in your area does not mean you should clear your car out and get out there right away." Following the same protocol from January's blizzard, Pilgrim Nuclear Power Station was in "cold shutdown mode" Sunday morning in case of a power outage, Secretary of Energy and Environmental Affairs Matt Beaton

3 Shocking Studies That Prove Your Water Supply Is Turning You Into A Woman...

(NaturalNews) A last-ditch effort to avoid a complete collapse of one of the city's primary water sources, the city of Sao Paulo in Brazil, population 20 million, has proposed cutting off the water supply up to five days a week, allowing residents to access water only twice per week, or about eight times monthly.

As we reported back in December, Brazil's largest city is barely surviving the worst recorded drought to ever hit the region. With demand for water far exceeding supply, officials have been frantically working to develop a system that will preserve what little water remains while avoiding a

The United Nations says over 2.5 million people in South Sudan are on the brink of famine amid the destructive civil war in the country.

UN emergency relief coordinator Valerie Amos issued the warning on Monday during an international donor conference in the Kenyan capital Nairobi, where the world body launched a 1.8-billion-dollar aid appeal.

The UN official referred to "the continuing widespread devastation and destruction," in South Sudan and called for restoration of peace in the war-torn country.

According to the UN, 2.5 million people – about 20 percent of South Sudan's population of 12 million – are in a state of emergency or crisis, only few steps short of famine. More than half of the country's population are in need of aid.

Strong Magnitude 5.9 earthquake strikes off S.E Taiwan near city of T'ai-tung

A magnitude 5.9 earthquake struck off the southeastern coast of Taiwan near the city of T'ai-tung, the U.S. Geological Survey said on Friday. The quake, initially reported as a strong magnitude 6.3, struck at 4:08 a.m. on Saturday (2006 GMT on Friday). It was centred just 14 miles (22.5 km) east of T'ai-tung, the USGS said. It was shallow, only 15.7 miles (25 km) below the seabed, which would intensify its effects. A magnitude 5.9 quake is considered moderate and is capable of causing considerable damage. SOURCE

31 families evacuated due to suspected sinkhole in GenSan

MANILA - Several families were evacuated from their homes in Purok Tinago in General Santos City on Sunday morning because of a suspected sinkhole.

At 5 a.m., residents said they noticed that the sand in the shallow portion of the shore eroded, creating a big hole.

Local officials helped transfer the affected residents to Ireneo Santiago National High School where they will seek temporary shelter.

An investigation will be conducted to determine the diameter and the cause of the suspected sinkhole. – report from Francis Canlas, ABS-CBN News General Santos City

Planned La Vergne stores hit sinkhole

LA VERGNE – The developer of a retail shopping development in La Vergne has found a sinkhole under the property and wants the county to help finance fixing it, according to documents from the City of La Vergne.

"There are sinkholes all over Tennessee," La Vergne Mayor Dennis Waldron said.

In October, Brentwood-based Browning Development Solutions announced it would build the Shoppes at StoneCrest in the abandoned rock quarry on Industrial Boulevard.

But a geological survey of the site found a cave running under the quarry, which was mined to build Interstate 24, according to the previous minutes from the La Vergne Economic Development Committee.

At the meeting La Vergne City Planner Kristin Costanzo said Browning Development had asked for financial assistance in installing construction piers on the site.

The company was researching tax-increment financing, which would return to the developer the additional property taxes the land generates as its value increases from development.

Tax incentives are typically used by the Rutherford County Industrial Development Board to lure development to the county, but they have never been offered to a retail development, IDB Chairman Jim Baker said.

He explained the IDB only seeks to recruit industrial and professional companies, not retail.

"Our dealings must be with industrial development," Baker said.

An official at Browning Development declined to comment on the issue.

Since December last residents of various districts of the Department of Missions have denounced the massive fish kill, for unknown reasons.

What we do know, at first glance, is floating schools while at the edge of the rice fields and on the banks of Tebicuary. But until now no one knows, no one investigated nothing in the Ministry of Environment (Seam).

"We have received no complaints here in this direction," said Dario Mandelburger, director of Fisheries Seam. The Ing. David Fariña, Water Resources of the same secretariat, also apologized and said he had no information on the strange death of fish.

AGRA: More than 70 monkeys have been found dead in different parts of Kheraghar, about 50 km from Agra, in the past three days, with autopsy reports saying the animals were poisoned.

Authorities suspect that someone may have poisoned the animals to control the simian menace.

According to the police, the 31 monkeys that were found dead on Saturday had vomited a green-coloured substance. .

Fourteen monkey bodies were recovered from Sarendhi Bridge. On Thursday, 13 monkeys were found dead near Jhunjhin Pulia.

Local people expressed shock at the cruelty. "It was terrible to see the animals lying with their mouths open, the green substance flowing out. It was hard to tell whether the monkeys died here or elsewhere, and their carcasses brought here," said Sonu, a cable operator in Kheraghar who informed police about the large number of dead monkeys.

A forest official said, "For so many monkeys to go down in such a short span of time, it must have been poison. They showed symptoms of that - excess salivation, seizures, respiratory distress."

Sudhir Kumar, inspector at Saiyya police station, said, "For the first time, we have had something like this in this area. It is possible that the monkeys were killed somewhere else and the carcasses disposed of here. It is possible that given the monkey menace in Agra, someone had poisoned them. An FIR has been registered under sections of IPC dealing with cruelty to animals."

In the last four years, the monkey population in Agra has gone up three times. Since 2012, the project cost for making the city of Taj free of monkeys has nearly doubled. Sources in the district forest office said nearly 25,000 monkeys now roam the city; in 2011, the simian population here was estimated at 9,000. In 2011, the cost of making Agra monkey-free was estimated at Rs 9 crore. Now, the sum has risen to Rs 15 crore.

Hundreds of fish found dead in Bhogavati river

TNN | Feb 7, 2015, 09:23AM IST

KOLHAPUR: For the second time in the last 45 days, hundreds of fish were found dead in Bhogavati river, a major tributary of Panchganga. Soon after getting the news, the officials of Maharashtra Pollution Control Board (MPCB) rushed to the spot situated in Haladi, 10 km from here, on Friday morning and collected water and fish samples.

On December 22 last year, a similar incident took place in the river, but the water samples collected at that time were found normal. The incidents suggest that local sugar factories or industries are dumping untreated waste water into the river during the wee hours. Since the weirs situated in the upstream release water regularly for irrigation purpose, it automatically flushes out contamination. Hence, water samples collected after 7-8 hours are often found to be normal.

There are three major sugar factories in the vicinity of Bhogavati and the MPCB is collecting information whether contamination originates from these factories. Environmental activists also visited the site and talked to the people living in the surrounding villages such as Kandgaon, Kurdu, Kothali, Kurukali, Dewale and Parite.

According to primary information collected by environmental experts, three tractors released water in the privately held farm fields in Haladi. "There are reports that these tractors were called by the local farmers, who believe that the water contains some chemicals which could break a stone. These farms have murum stones underneath. The water must be contaminated and percolated to Bhogavati causing the death of fish," said Uday Gaikwad, environmentalist and member of district environment monitoring committee.

MPCB officials said they have collected water and fish samples, which will be submitted to the government-owned laboratories for further investigation.

22 out of the pod of dolphins trapped inside Nadella Island's lagoon have been freed and released into the ocean but 12 had died, the island's council said on Saturday.

Faisal Najeeb, the island council's chair said that 38 dolphins had accidentally wandered in to the island's – located in Gaafu Dhaalu atoll - lagoon. He added that there were about four dolphins left to free.

"We caught the dolphins on a net and released them into the ocean" Najeeb said "12 of them died in this process".

"Catching them with nets was the only option we had" he continued.

Maldives National Defence Force (MNDF) officers and islanders noticed the trapped dolphins and began work to free them on Thursday.

Parasite Linked to Mass Deaths of Pacific Coast Band-Tailed Pigeons in Santa Barbara County

With thousands of birds dead, wildlife authorities ask locals to remove birdbaths and feeders to protect California's only native species of pigeon

Thousands of Pacific Coast band-tailed pigeons have been found dead in Santa Barbara County, evidently from a parasite-borne disease that restricts their throat passages and causes them to die of starvation or suffocation. The public is being asked to help California wildlife officials by reporting sick or dying birds. (California Department of Fish and Wildlife photo)

Fish and dead birds found in lagoon
General Baldissera

The fishermen and locals fear that the phenomenon is due to the presence of chemicals from neighboring fields that were washed away by rainwater.

GENERAL BALDISSERA - A resident of this town on social media published a series of images of the nearby lagoon General Baldissera in which hundreds of dead fish and birds observed in moribund state. By the time the reason that generated this slaughter of animals in one of the most visited natural sites in the area is unknown.

Photographs published in the dead fish floating on the surface, a large amount of algae, and other dead birds dying observed. The scenario is worrying and generated an alert among the residents of the rural area.

The affected lagoon is located in the southeast of Cordoba, a few kilometers south of the town of General Baldissera. While it is not exploited the sheet of water for fishing, usually go for the activity groups informally. Since last week the lagoon shows part of his dead fauna. Witnesses thought the situation would be temporary motivated by some climatological question.

However, as of last Monday a greater number of animals are observed lifeless.

The journalist Ivan Ghi, FM Urban Monte Corn, published the photographs that reflect the situation in social networks. In the same dead fish and birds, and the surface of the fully enclosed lagoon vegetation are observed. This is the first time the lake has this problem, so some neighbors and regular fishermen agree that they could have thrown some chemical liquid in place that affected animals.

Note that the gap is in the middle of a purely agricultural area in which soybean performed. A daily performing fumigation by region or ground equipment applied in seed lots planes are observed.

The pictures were taken this week in the lagoon of General Baldissera.

Sudan: Govt Probes Mass Fish Death in Lake Nasser

Wadi Halfa / Khartoum — The mass death of fish in Lake Nasser, south of Wadi Halfa, on the border between Sudan and Egypt, has sparked fears that mercury and cyanide might have leaked into the lake.

During the past two days, large numbers of fish were found dead in the Nubian lake, as it is locally called. A delegation from the area has taken samples for examination to Khartoum.

A source from the Ministry of Environment told Dabanga that the Ministry is concerned about mercury and cyanide employed by prospectors in the area to separate gold particles from ore, in quantities that exceed the global rate limit."

He explained that the Environment Ministry has appealed to the EU to fund research on the quality of drinking water in the mining and oil-producing areas in Sudan.

According to the Mining Facts Organisation, "mercury was once used throughout the world in gold processing. This process has since been replaced by more efficient and less environmentally damaging techniques, such as cyanide leaching in large-scale and industrial mining.

"In developing nations, mercury pollution is increasingly a result of illegal or artisanal mining, and is an ongoing and growing concern.

"Cyanide has been used to separate gold and silver particles from ore for more than 120 years. With proper management, cyanide can be used safely and without harming the environment, despite its toxicity."

Harmful Algae Kills 200 Tons of Rock Lobsters Off South Africa

Wednesday, 11 February 2015 Written by Bloomberg

Red Tide

Harmful algae off the coast of South Africa has killed more than 200 metric tons of West Coast Rock Lobster, according to the Department of Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries.

The algae, known as red tide for the color it creates in the water, killed 80 tons of the crustacean on Wednesday at Eland Bay, north of Cape Town, the department said in an e-mailed statement. The total loss is equivalent to more than 10 percent of the allowable catch this season.

The bloom was detected on Feb. 3 off South Africa's west coast and killed about 30 tons of lobsters on Feb. 9 and another 70 tons on Tuesday, the department said.

Hundreds of fish found dead in a lake Bongouanou

Bongouanou - Hundreds of dead fish floating on the surface of the lake Kaby located opposite the main market Bongouanou, sowing psychosis among the local population.

Residents fear indeed a pollution of the lake could cause an interruption in the supply of drinking water by the water distribution company in Côte d'Ivoire (SODECI).

The manager SODECI to Bongouanou, Felix Doh, admits poisoning of fish.

"Each year, after the first rain, a turnover of water causes the waste dumped by the people in the gutters that cause oxygen deficiency in the lake, causing the death carp, a very fragile fish species" he says.

Mr. Doh therefore appeal to the people so that they avoid dump trash in the gutters.

City Bongouanou suffered from frequent water shortages related to pollution of lakes in the city between 2010 and 2014.

Sea lions found on San Diego County beaches recently are so hungry they've been gnawing on rocks.

Some have been found near death, with a belly full of sand and rock, because there's nothing else for them to eat.

A warm ocean may be to blame, sending the sea lions' favorite prey such as sardines and anchovies north to cooler water.

San Diego 6 reporter Jenny Day went to La Jolla Cove on Wednesday for more about the story.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service announced new steps to reverse the decline of the Monarch butterfly, including efforts to restore more than 200,000 acres of habitat along the Interstate 35 corridor from Texas to Minnesota. (Reuters)

Threatened animals like elephants, porpoises and lions grab all the headlines, but what's happening to monarch butterflies is nothing short of a massacre. The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service summed it up in just one grim statistic on Monday: Since 1990, about 970 million have vanished.

Aggressive HIV strain leading to AIDS in 3 years discovered in Cuba

A "much more aggressive than others" strain of HIV have been discovered by an international team of researchers in patients in Cuba. It can progress to AIDS in just three years, sometimes even before patients realize they were infected.

Tags

Cuba Health Science

The new strain was found by researchers at KU Leuven's Laboratory for Clinical and Epidemiological Virology, based in Belgium.

They took blood results from 73 recently infected patients – 52 of them diagnosed with AIDS, and 22 patients, who progressed to the disease after a normal long period of being infected with HIV, that's estimated to be in between 5 and 10 years.

The scientists thus discovered a new faster-progressing strain of HIV, that's in fact a combination of three subtypes of the virus.

"Here we had a variant of HIV that we found only in the group that was progressing fast," Professor Anne-Mieke Vandamme, who led the research, told Voice of America. "Not in the other two groups. We focused in on this variant [and] tried to find out what was different. And we saw it was a recombinant of three different subtypes."

Airlines Consider Requiring Proof Of Vaccination For Domestic Air Travel

Traveling by air may get even more complicated if a reported plan by major carrier airlines requiring passengers to be vaccinated comes to fruition. After the increasing problem of unvaccinated individuals contracting and spreading communicable diseases, airlines hope to be a stopgap solution to preventing larger outbreaks. An inside source with the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) suggests that, "Multiple major carriers have begun discussing requiring vaccination records for all passengers before allowing them to board a flight."

The FAA source, speaking on condition of anonymity explains that many of the airlines have, "had it with the anti-vaccination arguments and don't want to be left with the guilt and partial responsibility when a preventable disease spreads by way of air travel." It is assumed that a valid vaccination record will be required upon check in before travelers embark on their journey. "It'll add another step to the flight process, but the airlines, so far, are willing to absorb any costs associated with it," said the FAA source. It is not expected to impact the already beleaguered Transportation Security Administration as this would be an elective requirement and not a federally mandated change.

"Woe to them that devise iniquity, and work evil upon their beds! when the morning is light, they practise it, because it is in the power of their hand." (Micah 2:1)

When I was outlining the main points of this article, at times I felt like I was reading a fictional novel — so EVIL, that it nearly took my breath away that people could do such horrific things to their fellow human beings.

When we hear the name of Bill Gates, we think of a man who became ridiculously rich from his empire, Microsoft. I will tell you this. You will never think of Bill Gates the same after reading this article.

The Eugenics Foundation Of Bill Gates' Father

In an interview, Gates talked about his family, in particular – his dad. He told the interviewer that his father was a eugenicist, and that for many years his dad was the head of Planned Parenthood. When Bill Gates divulged this information, it was clear that he felt proud of his father for his work. It disgusted me.

MCDONALD'S GIVES FREE VACCINES WITH HAPPY MEALS IN TEXAS

Would you like a side of hepatitis A shot with your Happy Meal? As it turns out, your child may just be able to receive a number of significant vaccinations at your local McDonald's on behalf of the Department of Public Health.

I was just as shocked as you are when I heard news from an email tip that one reader's local McDonald's was launching a 'free vaccination' program alongside their fast food marketing campaign, and I was reasonably skeptical that even McDonald's would launch such a strange combination. Especially when consider the extreme financial downfall that the company is experiencing as millions abandon their fake food amid public knowledge over the true extent of their synthetic ingredient list.

As it turns out, however, numerous Texas newspapers and outlets have documented the 'free McDonald's vaccine' events that have popped up in Amarillo. It was, and is, very real. Amarillo.com details the event that first occurred years ago, writing:

Recent Italian Court Decisions on Vaccines and Autism

By Mary S. Holland

Milan: 2014

On September 23, 2014, an Italian court in Milan award compensation to a boy for vaccine-induced autism. (See the Italian document here.) A childhood vaccine against six childhood diseases caused the boy's permanent autism and brain damage. While the Italian press has devoted considerable attention to this decision and its public health implications, the U.S. press has been silent.

Like the U.S., Italy has a national vaccine injury compensation program to give some financial support to those people who are injured by compulsory and recommended vaccinations. The Italian infant plaintiff received three doses of GlaxoSmithKline's Infanrix Hexa, a hexavalent vaccine administered in the first year of life. These doses occurred from March to October 2006. The vaccine is to protect children from polio, diphtheria, tetanus, hepatitis B, pertussis and Haemophilus influenza type B. In addition to these antigens, however, the vaccine then contained thimerosal, the mercury-containing preservative, aluminum, an adjuvant, as well as other toxic ingredients. The child regressed into autism shortly after receiving the three doses. When the parents presented their claim for compensation first to the Ministry of Health, as they were required to do, the Ministry

Today's children should look like pincushions from the dozens of vaccines they get from birth to the age of 18. "According to the Centers for Disease Control, the onslaught begins within 12 hours of birth when many babies get a Hepatitis B vaccine," says holistic doctor Dr. David Brownstein. "At two months, eight more vaccines follow, including polio, tetanus, diphtheria, and pertussis, and throughout the next few months, they are subjected to boosters of the vaccines they've already have plus additional vaccines.

"The CDC recommends that children get 49 doses of 14 vaccines before they reach the age of 6, and the total reaches 69 doses by the age of 18," Dr. Brownstein tells Newsmax Health. In fact, today's average child is subjected to three times as many vaccinations as were recommended in 1953. In addition, children's small bodies are subjected to numerous vaccinations simultaneously.

In 1983, the CDC guidelines stated that doctors shouldn't give more than four vaccines at the same time. By 2013, CDC guidelines changed to approve giving children up to eight vaccines at once.

What's the result? According to the National Vaccine Information Center, chronic disease and disability in children has drastically increased in the past 50 years. For instance, in the 1990s, one child in 555 had autism, but by 2013, the figure had risen to one child in 50.

What good do vaccines accomplish? It's a mixed bag, says Dr. Brownstein. "The powers that be claim that vaccines markedly lowered the death rate of common childhood illnesses such as measles and whooping cough. However, the mortality rates of these illnesses were rapidly falling before the mass vaccination campaign began.

The government on Friday approved the commercial planting of genetically engineered apples that are resistant to turning brown when sliced or bruised.

The developer, Okanagan Specialty Fruits, says it believes the nonbrowning feature will be popular with both consumers and food service companies because it will make sliced apples more appealing. The feature could also reduce the number of apples discarded because of bruising.

GMO labeling legislation introduced in Minnesota has massive public support

In the dead of winter, the Minnesota State Legislature isn't letting the snow keep them from reintroducing legislation to label GMOs. At the end of January, HF 351 and SF 335 were proposed in both the House and the Senate. While the state has proposed legislation that would disclose the presence of GMO ingredients to consumers by January of 2017, support for GMO labeling in the state has grown at a fantastic rate. After seeing the Oregon initiative to label GMOs defeated by a mere 812 votes, activists across Minnesota are pushing even more to make sure they get the support they need to pass these bills and let GMO companies know that we want to know what is in our food. Natural News has reported before on the initiatives Minnesotans have been taking to protect themselves from Monsanto toxins. Last December, Minnesota educators started a plan to phase GMOs out of school lunches instead using things like organic squash and hot dogs made from grass fed beef. A month earlier, they had GMO awareness day, distributing information on the lack of proper testing for GMOs and their links to allergies, cancer, autoimmune disorders, and other diseases. Educators took the initiative to distribute flyers to parents detailing the negative effects of GMOs on developing children. The Minnesota state legislature has also proposed bills from both the Senate and the House supporting informed purchasing in the past. Even though bills to label GMOs have been proposed and defeated before, the local support for these two bills is strong in Minnesota. Polls across the nation have found that the majority of Americans want to know about genetically engineered ingredients in their food. Minnesota is no different. Activists from Minnesota's Right to Know organization have expanded the number of co-authors on both bills and met with over 45 legislators in their quest to get these bills passed. Local news outlets in St. Paul are reporting on the large number of people who showed up to the first Capitol hearing of this bill. Local businesses are also receiving requests from customers asking that they label their products and that they support

Ukraine says rebels strengthened by tanks, missiles from Russia

KIEV/DONETSK, Ukraine (Reuters) - Ukraine said on Thursday that pro-Russian rebels had reinforced their positions with tanks and missile systems in east Ukraine while marathon four-nation talks were taking place the previous night.

A deal reached at talks involving Ukraine, Russia, Germany and France envisages a ceasefire between Ukrainian forces and Russian-backed separatists starting on Sunday, but all sides said there was a long way to go towards real peace.

Russia warns the West: Arming Ukraine would be act of war

A battalion of around 600 American paratroopers will be heading to Ukraine next month to train national guard troops there, a Pentagon spokesman told Fox News Wednesday.

The unit heading to the war-torn country is from the U.S. Army's 173rd Airborne Brigade Combat Team, based out of Vicenza, Italy.

The training is to take place at the Yavoriv training center in the western Ukrainian city of Lviv, U.S. Army Europe Commander Lt. Gen. Ben Hodges said, according to The Associated Press.

Hodges said the Americans will train the Ukrainians how to better defend themselves against "Russian and rebel artillery and rockets." Training also will include securing roads, bridges and other infrastructure and treating and evacuating casualties.

He spoke during a visit to NATO's Multinational Corps Northeast Headquarters in the Polish city of Szczecin.

The US Air Force dispatched a dozen A-10 Thunderbolt II attack jets and about 300 airmen to Germany as part of a military exercise, which is expected to involve NATO allies in Eastern Europe amid simmering tensions over Ukraine.

The Cold War-era aircraft, nicknamed the Warthog, on Monday departed Davis-Monthan Air Force Base in Arizona for Spangdahlem Air Base in Germany as part of Operation Atlantic Resolve.

Russian Intel Ship Spying on US Missile Submarines

AGI Viktor Leonov recently spotted in Cuba

A Russian intelligence-gathering ship is again plying the waters off the southern United States in operations aimed at spying on U.S. ballistic missile submarines based in the area, defense officials said.

The intelligence collection ship, Viktor Leonov, has been closely watched by U.S. Navy ships and aircraft for the past several days near Jacksonville, Fla., close to the Naval Submarine Base at Kings Bay, Ga. The ship also conducted operations there in April.

The spying comes amid heightened U.S.-Russia tensions over the crisis in Ukraine, where Russian forces annexed the Crimea last year and are continuing to arm pro-

Moscow rebels in the eastern part of the country.

The Kings Bay base is homeport for the Navy's Submarine Group 10, with six nuclear-armed missile submarines and two conventionally armed missile submarines.

"It's been all in international waters and all perfectly legal," said a defense official familiar with efforts to monitor the ship. "But it's interesting that it is operating, collecting on us where it is."

This week, the Leonov was spotted anchored about 22 miles off the Florida coast, southeast of Kings Bay.

It reportedly left Cuba on Jan. 22, and its movements since then have not been made public.

The ship, known as an AGI in military parlance, is equipped with high technology gear designed to pick up electronic communications and underwater signals. It is also armed with 30-millimeter cannon and anti-aircraft guns.

The Leonov recently made headlines by making a port visit to Havana, Cuba, in late January that coincided with the Obama administration's initiative to normalize relations with the communist regime in Cuba.

The spy ship's presence also comes as Russia is increasing the number of strategic bomber flights near U.S. and allied coasts. One recent air defense zone incursion took place near eastern Canada that U.S. officials said simulated a nuclear cruise missile attack on the United States.

The Arctic could become a site of future turmoil, and not just because of the emerging geopolitical tensions and militarization in the region.

Beyond concerns of a frozen conflict in the icy north, there is the additional fear that the Barents and Kara Seas could become the location of a slow-motion nuclear disaster. Until 1991 the Soviet Union used the seas as a junkyard where it would dispose of its nuclear waste.

According to the Bellona Foundation, citing the Norwegian Radiation Protection Authorities (NRPA), the Soviet Union dumped "19 ships containing radioactive waste; 14 nuclear reactors, including five that still contain spent nuclear fuel; 735 other pieces of radioactively contaminated heavy machinery; 17,000 containers of radioactive waste," and three nuclear submarines in the seas.

New Chinese electromagnetic weapon may paralyze US air defense: expert

Staff Reporter | 2015-02-14 | 09:35 (GMT+8)

According to a Chinese expert, Kashin wants the US to turn its attention towards the Asia-Pacific and away from the crisis in the Ukraine.

The development of an X-ray pulse generator by the Xi'an Institute of Optics and Precision Mechanics under the Chinese Academy of Sciences has attracted the attention of Vassily Kashin, a expert at Russia's Center for Analysis of Strategies and Technologies, according to Moscow-based Sputinks News.

Kashin believes that China's electromagnetic weapon system based on the X-ray pulse generator has the potential to create a huge challenge to the United States in the Asia-Pacific region. It could be used to paralyze the air defense and anti-ballistic missile systems of the United States and its security partners including Japan, Taiwan and South Korea in the region. After that, the People's Liberation Army could easily wreak havoc on the opposing force's military facilities and hardwares with its own aircraft and ballistic missiles.

PLA's new Type 093G nuclear sub a potential 'carrier killer'

Staff Reporter | 2015-02-15 | 14:06 (GMT+8)

China's new Type 093G nuclear sub has provided the People's Liberation Army with a potential "aircraft carrier killer," reports the Beijing-based Sina Military.

Citing Taiwan's Defence International magazine, the report said the manufacturing of two Type 093G nuclear subs — upgraded versions of the Type 093 — were completed by the Bohai Shipbuilding Heavy Industry Co in December, with another resting in a dry dock.

The primary difference between Type 093G subs and Type 093 subs is that the former added a vertical launcher capable of firing cruise missiles and the YJ-18 anti-ship missile, the report said.

CHINESE GOVT THREATENS TO CLAIM HAWAII #China #Hawaii

Posted on 2/11/2015 by Jews News

China has suggested arming Hawaii's independence activists in retaliation for U.S. arms sales to Taiwan and recently threatened to challenge American sovereignty by making legal claims to the Pacific islands as its territory.

Chinese threats to back several groups of Hawaiian independence activists who want to restore the islands' constitutional monarchy, ousted in a U.S.-backed coup over a century ago, has raised concerns that military facilities on the strategic central Pacific archipelago are threatened at a time when the Obama administration is engaged in a major shift toward Asia as part of its military and diplomatic rebalance.

Michael Pillsbury, a Pentagon consultant and author of the recent book 100 Year Marathon, said Chinese military hawks, known as "ying pai," told him they are ready to provide arms to Hawaiian independence activists in retaliation for U.S. arms sales to Taiwan.

"Beijing's extraordinary sensitivity to American arms sales to Taiwan—even one bullet or a spare tire for a jeep—often provokes angry words," said Pillsbury who has held talks with 35 Chinese generals in recent years.

"A favorite comparison the ying pai has made to me is 'How would the Pentagon like it if we provide arms to our friends in Hawaiian independence movement?'" he said. "I was incredulous because I had never heard of such a movement in Hawaii, but, after checking I met a few of them."

Signs China may ally with India and Russia after Beijing summit

Indian foreign minister Sushma Swaraj, Russian foreign minister Sergey Lavrov and Chinese foreign minister Wang Yi met in Beijing on Jan. 2 for the 13th Russia-India-China (RIC) summit to discuss how, as three countries with major influence on global affairs and with emerging domestic markets, they can work together to ensure global and regional peace and stability as well as pushing forward global economic growth.

From his 2012 presidential campaign onwards, Putin has tied his ambitions for Russia's economy to the Russian Far East's trade with China and the Asia-Pacific region. Relations between China and Delhi, which have at times been subject to tensions over ongoing territorial disputes, have also matured to enable mutual respect, despite the Indian WASHINGTON – Engineers, especially petroleum engineers, may want to double-check who a prospective employer may be – it could be the Islamic State.

The Islamic State, or ISIS, is now doing headhunting of a different kind, looking for engineers to help run the oilfields they've taken over in their conquests, especially in Syria and Iraq, according to former U.S. intelligence officer James Powell.

An expert on the Middle East with experience in the nuclear security industry, Powell said that ISIS' recent capture of Syria's oil-rich province of Deir Ezzor has resulted in "help wanted" ads for petroleum engineers who could make as much as $225,000 a year with such added benefits as a car, weapons and other sweeteners.

Invasion Imminent: Jordan Stations "Thousands" Of Troops On Iraq Border

Submitted by Tyler Durden on

A week after the release of a clip with sported professionally produced, near Hollywood-level editing and effects, showing the brutal burning of a Jordanian pilot hostage, Jordan announced it has deployed "thousands" of ground troops to its border with Iraq as it ramps up a campaign against ISIS militants, two Jordanian government officials told NBC News on Tuesday.

As NBC reports, the troops were sent to prevent the infiltration of ISIS fighters into Jordan and as a show of force, according to the sources who spoke on condition of anonymity. In other words, what would formerly have been seen as an overt act of territorial incursion, or as it is also known, a sovereign invasion, is now interpreted as a defensive act, one seeking to "prevent" infiltration by the same ISIS, that only exists due to US intervention in Syria in 2013.

Salafi incitement behind 'Islamic State' kidnapping of Egyptians: Copts coalition

Libyan parliament confirmed Saturday the death of 21 kidnapped Egyptian Coptic Christian workers in Libya following photos released by an English publication affiliated with the 'Islamic State', called Dabiq, claiming their execution.

The Libyan legislative body said that the workers were killed by the self-proclaimed 'Islamic State' group, often referred to as ISIS, in the city of Sirte, according to state newspaper Al-Ahram.

The Egyptian government has asserted it "will spare no effort for the kidnapped", but has not confirmed the execution of 21 kidnapped Egyptian Coptic workers in Libya by 'Islamic State'.

Prime Minister Ibrahim Mehleb met with the families of kidnapped workers on Friday. The meeting came following 'Islamic State' published photographs of 21 abducted Copts in Libya in red execution suits, guarded by 'Islamic State' personnel in black clothes and swords.

20 Coptic Christian Egyptians were kidnapped at the beginning of the year in the city of Sirte on the north coast of Libya. A jihadi website circulated photos in mid-January of kidnapped Christians, also allegedly released by 'Islamic State' in Libya.

The Egyptian presidency stated Thursday, following the execution allegations, that it would follow up on the incident.

Mehleb told the victims' families the government is maintaining intensive communications to clarify the situation of the kidnapped Egyptians. He added that all governmental ministries and agencies are on alert, and permanently convene, and are exerting maximum efforts.

"The government renews its commitment to spare no efforts to protect its sons and defend their rights, despite hardships and dangerous complications in Libya," he added.

The first photos published in January, attributed to the 'Islamic State' in Tripoli, described the kidnapped as "captive crusaders".

White House cuts Israel out of Iran talks

An Israeli report claims the US administration has stopped updating Israel about developments in nuclear negotiations between world power and Iran, allegedly in response to Prime Minister Netanyahu's decision to accept an invitation by Republicans to address Congress on the issue. According to the report by Israel's Channel 2, US Undersecretary of State, Wendy Sherman, who is involved in the talks has announced she will no longer be updating Israelis about the talks. Susan Rice, US President Obama's National Security Advisor, has also reportedly announced she is cutting ties with her Israeli counterpart, Yossi Cohen, who serves as Netanyahu's National Security Advisor. US House Speaker John Boehner says the White House might have tried to quash his plan to have Israeli prime minister speak to Congress if it had gotten wind of the invitation. That helps explain why Boehner made the offer to Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu without letting the White House know in advance. Netanyahu's speech is set for March 3. Some Democrats plan to skip it because they consider it a divisive stunt and a breach of protocol that suggests the US is taking sides in coming Israeli elections. Boehner was asked by "Fox News Sunday" why he told Israel's ambassador to the United States not to mention the invitation to the White House in advance. Boehner says he "wanted to make sure that there was no interference." "There's a serious threat facing the world," he told Fox News. "And I believe Prime Minister Netanyahu is the perfect person to deliver the message of how serious this threat is." The statement makes clear that Boehner made the invitation without telling the Obama administration that he was in contact with Israeli ambassador to the US, Ron Dermer. "There's no secret here in Washington about the animosity that this White House has for Prime Minister Netanyahu. I frankly didn't want them getting in the way and quashing what I thought was a real opportunity," he said. The majority of Americans think Obama should meet with Netanyahu when the Israeli premier visits Washington next month to speak in front of joint session of Congress, according to a poll conducted by international internet-based market research

Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu launched thinly veiled criticism at the Obama administration Monday for reportedly withholding information from Israel regarding the ongoing US-led nuclear talks with Iran. He also left no doubt whatsoever that he will go ahead with his controversial speech to congress on March 3, saying that no responsible Israeli prime minister could "refuse an invitation to speak on a matter that could affect our very existence" before the world's most important parliament.

While the world unified in the name of defending free speech against violent extremism in the wake of the terrorist attack in Paris last month, British police were investigating people who purchased copies of Charlie Hebdo magazine.

That shocking revelation is contained in a letter to the Guardian from a woman who bought a copy of the magazine from her local newsagents in Corsham, Wiltshire, and was subsequently told that police had visited the store to obtain the names and addresses of four customers who had purchased the satirical weekly publication.

Islamic extremists gunned down Charlie Hebdo staff members, killing 12 and wounding 11, during an attack on January 7 in response to cartoons the publication had printed depicting the Prophet Muhammad.

"I asked my helpful newsagents to obtain a copy of the edition of Charlie Hebdo issued after the dreadful massacre in Paris, if indeed a copy was ever available in north Wiltshire," wrote Anne Keat.

Egypt and Russia Proposing to ditch US Dollar

Russia and Egypt might soon exclude the US dollar and use their national currencies in the settlement of accounts in bilateral trade, Russian President Vladimir Putin said in an interview to Egyptian media ahead of his Monday visit to the country. The issue of abandoning the dollar in trade is "being actively discussed," Putin told Al-Ahram daily newspaper ahead of his two-day trip to Egypt. The Russian president was invited for a bilateral meeting by his Egyptian counterpart Abdul Fattah al-Sisi. "This measure will open up new prospects for trade and investment cooperation between our countries, reduce its dependence on the current trends in the world markets," Putin said. "I should note that we already use national currencies for trade with a number of the CIS [Commonwealth of Independent States] states, and China. This practice proves its worth; we are ready to adopt it in our relations with Egypt as well. This issue is being discussed in substance by relevant agencies of both countries."

Egypt is a long-time and trusted partner of Russia and the relationship between the two countries has been rapidly developing, the Russian president said. "The volume of bilateral trade has increased significantly over the past years: In 2014, it increased by almost half compared to the previous year and amounted to more than $4.5 billion," he said urging for this trend to be strengthened. He also praised the development of "mutually beneficial and effective" cooperation in the sector of agriculture. "Egypt is the major buyer of Russian wheat, Russia provides about 40 percent of grain consumed in the country; as for us, we import fruits and vegetables." Moscow imposed a full ban of EU, US, Australian, Canadian, and Norwegian food exports to Russia on August 7 for one year. WASHINGTON – Some 3,000 Sunni jihadist fighters have gathered in the Syrian Qalamoun mountains bordering eastern Lebanon, poised to attack a series of Christian towns in northern and central Lebanon.

They appear to be preparing to undertake a pincer attack on the north around Tripoli and in the south from the Syrian Golan Heights, according to informed Middle East sources.

As they appear to be surviving the harsh winter in the mountains for a possible series of attacks in the spring,

Islam In The Obama White House: Meet Mohamed Elibiary

IN NOVEMBER 2013, ELIBIARY TOOK TO TWITTER TO ANNOUNCE THAT THE U.S. WAS A SHARIAH-COMPLIANT ISLAMIC COUNTRY

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mohamed Elibiary is just one of the many hardcore, radical, Muslim Brotherhood connected Islamists that president Barack Obama has filled the White House with. Elibiary was positioned, of all places, in sensitive areas in Homeland Security. When news of his deep connection with the Muslim Brotherhood leaked out, Obama was forced to remove him. But those connections were well known prior to his appointment, and in fact was the reason for his appointment. Obama's greatest accomplishment, when all is said and done, may well be that he successfully implemented the Islamization of America.

In 2011, Barack Obama appointed Elibiary, a well known member of the Muslim Brotherhood, to a key position in our Department of Homeland Security. Oh.....you didn't know that? Sorry to be the one to break that news to you. And he's not the only one. Obama has appointed numerous members of the MB to very sensitive positions in our government.

Back in September of 2014, Mohamed Elibiary was abruptly relieved of his duties at the Department of Homeland Security. There was speculation that he had leaked information to the Brotherhood, but nothing was confirmed. Where he is now and what he is doing should shock and alarm all of us.

Florida School Board Votes to Ban Bibles Over Satanists Seeking to Pass Out Coloring Books

February 12, 2015 | Filed under: Education, Life & Society, Top Stories | By: Heather Clark

ORLANDO, Fla. — A school board in Florida has voted to ban all religious materials from being distributed in public schools after a New York-based Satanist group

As previously reported, the Freedom From Religion Foundation (FFRF) learned in 2013 that the Christian ministry World Changes had made Bibles available to Orlando high school students on "Religious Freedom Day." To counter the Bible distribution, FFRF sought permission from the school district to give students a variety of atheistic and anti-Christian materials.

According to reports, the Orange County School Board permitted FFRF to distribute several books and pamphlets, including a booklet entitled "What's Wrong With The Ten Commandments?" and a brochure entitled "What Is An Atheist?" However, the board prohibited FFRF from giving students several other publications, citing the materials' "disruptive" and inappropriate content.

FFRF promptly sued the school board for not allowing the distribution of the materials, and eventually it complied with the organization's demands. In July, a district judge officially dismissed the FFRF lawsuit, thus giving the green light to the in-school distribution of atheistic materials.

Following the decision, the New York-based Satanic Temple announced last September that it would likewise distribute its publications to area schools so that it can have its equal time before students.

Hundreds of 'Churches' to Celebrate 'Evolution Sunday' as Others Celebrate 'Creation Sunday'

Nearly 500 "churches" in the United States will commemorate Charles Darwin's birthday this week with "Evolution Sunday," but many other congregations plan to recognize the biblical Creator and celebrate "Creation Sunday" instead.

February 12, Darwin's birthday, is commemorated each year by atheists as International Darwin Day. However, many "churches" also plan to celebrate the birth of the notorious naturalist by following the advice of atheist Dr. Michael Zimmerman and hosting "Evolution Sunday" or "Evolution Weekend" events.

"Evolution Weekend is an opportunity for serious discussion and reflection on the relationship between religion and science," Zimmerman's website says. "An ongoing goal has been to elevate the quality of the discussion on this critical topic, and to show that religion and science are not adversaries."

Since 2006, thousands of congregations that believe the Bible and evolution are compatible have observed Evolution Sunday and similar events. So far, nearly 500 congregations have pledged to recognize the event this year, with California, Pennsylvania, New York, and Ohio being the states with the most participating "churches."

To counter the Evolution Sunday apostasy, many churches are planning to instead observe "Creation Sunday" as an affirmation of their beliefs in biblical creation. Tony Breeden, founder and organizer of Creation Sunday, told Christian News Network that biblical creation beliefs are important, because "evolution undermines the authority of God's Word and the foundational basis of the gospel."

Army eases policy on transgender soldiers

Tom Vanden Brook, USA TODAY 4:26 p.m. EST February 16, 2015

WASHINGTON — The decision to discharge transgender soldiers from the Army now has to be made by a top, senior civilian official, documents obtained by USA TODAY show, a move that will make it more difficult to remove such troops from the service.

Instead of being made by lower-level Army officers, the undated memorandum says the decision to discharge transgender soldiers must now be made by the assistant secretary of the Army for personnel.

In all services, transgender troops can be automatically dismissed from service on medical grounds once they are identified.

"This is a welcome step toward inclusive policy, but transgender troops must still serve in silence until more is done to dismantle the ban," said Aaron Belkin, director of the Palm Center, which has published research on sexual orientation issues in the military.

Army officials had no comment about the memo, known as an All Army Activities directive, or the level at which decisions on dismissing transgender soldiers had been made, said Wayne Hall, an Army spokesman. The new directive expires after 12 months, or sooner, if a broader re-interpretation of the Army's rules about transgender soldiers is issued.

The Army's decision echoes the military's dismantlement of the "don't ask, don't tell" policy, which allowed gays and lesbians to serve unless their sexuality was discovered. Before the policy was rescinded in 2011, the decision to discharge gay troops had been raised to the Pentagon's top lawyer and personnel official and service secretaries. In effect, that requirement functioned as a moratorium, as no further dismissals were sought under "don't ask, don't tell."

Gender Blending For Boys Is Now In Vogue As Male Dresses Hit The Runway

SUDDENLY THE WHOLE WORLD IS UNISEX. OR IS IT ANDROGYNOUS? TRANSITIONING?

This is not satire, though it looks like it should be. Major fashion designers, since 2013, have been pushing men's styles clearly into the female column. It's called "gender blending" but it's ultimate effect is more of a transvestite nature than anything else. When you first see this, it's funny. Really funny. Then after you think about it for awhile it's just sad. Really, really sad. Ah...life in the end times. Another champion of men in dresses, London designer Jonathan Anderson has been a force for gender blending for several seasons with his J.W. Anderson label. Quieter than Westwood, though no less radical, Anderson effectively channels the shock of seeing a flouncy mini-skirt on a man's albeit ectomorphic body on the runway — enough to catch the attention of LVMH, who've installed him at the helm of the Spanish label Loewe. Bustiers (yes for boys) came with pockets in-built and were worn like muffs, while pinstripe trousers boasted oversized and outer pockets that spilled from the waist. Torsos were shown off to tight effect through body-hugging knits, which later boasted white picket fence and scissor emblems. Fluffy coats in pastel shades and leather pleat-skirt tunics further explored Anderson's "examination of bourgeois kinkiness and boudoir perversity", as Teenagers at a California high school were publicly shamed for disagreeing with speakers allowed to push an LGBT agenda during an English class, according to parents who have filed suit over the incident.

The Queer Straight Alliance at Acalanes High School, in Lafayette, lectured students in several ninth-grade English classes on Jan. 29 about LGBT issues, according to Brad Dacus, president of the Pacific Justice Institute, which is representing the parents.

During the class, the students, ages 14 and 15, were instructed to stand in a circle. Then, they were grilled about their personal beliefs and their parents' beliefs on homosexuality, PJI alleges.

"The QSA had students step forward to demonstrate whether they believed that being gay was a choice and whether their parents would be accepting if they came out as gay," PJI attorney Matthew McReynolds said. "Students who did not step forward were ridiculed and humiliated."

Just over a decade on from assisted dying being legalised in the Netherlands, as many as 1 in 33 Dutch people are thought to have died this way, including 650 babies a year, euthanized so that their parents don't have to witness them struggle with disability or disease. The escalation in death by euthanasia over the last six years has led one Dutch ethicist, who had been in favour of the law when it was first passed, to warn "some slopes truly are slippery."
