اكرر اننا لا نحدد مواعيد بل فقط نشجع بعضنا بعضا بقرب مجيء المسيح

وأیضا أوضح أنه يوجد نبوات لم نراها بعد مثل ابن الهلاك وهرمجدون

ولكن ايضا علامات كثيرة من التي قال عنها الكتاب انها في الزمان الاخير بدأت تحدث بوضوح

ويجب أن ننتبه اليها. ونذكر بعضنا باننا نحتاج ان نستعد. والاستعداد ليس فقط قبل مجيء

المسيح بل ايضا قبل الظلمة التي ستسبق مجيؤه ليكون عندنا زيت في مصابيحنا يكفي ان نعبر

هذه الظلمة وتكون مصابيحنا مضيئة وقت مجيؤه. بمعنى نحتاج من الان ان نستعد بقوة بأيمان

عامل وبتنقية القلب وان نثمر بالخدمة أي نجمع زيت في مصابيحنا لان الظلمة والضيق اقتربت

جدا ومن لن يستعد لها بزيت كافي من الان لن يجد زيت في الضيقة لان وقتها تجميع زيت

سيكون صعب جدا بل أستطيع ان أقول من مثل العذارى انه لن يكون هناك زيت الا ما جمعه

سابقا. أفضل ان اقول لنفسي ولكم استعدوا الان لأنه اقترّب فنكون مستعدين سواء جاء او نحن ان سلمنا وديعتنا عن أنى لا اقول انه اقترّب لكيلا يقال عني كاذب وانشّر اشاعات ولكنه يأتي بسرعة بغته. لا اعتقد اي أحد ندم لانه كان مستعد ومنتظر مجيء المسيح ولم يأتي المسيح في زمنه ولكنه انتقل وهو مستعد ولكن كثيرين جدا ندموا على عدم الاستعداد عندما انتقلوا

المسيح قال بعض العلامات مثل

انجيل لوقا 21

21: 10 ثم قال لهم تقوم امة على امة ومملكة على مملكة

21: 11 وتكون زلازل عظيمة في اماكن ومجاعات واوبئة وتكون مخاوف وعلامات عظيمة من

21: 25 وتكون علامات في الشمس والقمر والنجوم وعلى الارض كرب امم بحيرة البحر والامواج

تضج

21: 26 والناس يغطى عليهم من خوف وانتظار ما يأتي على المسكونة لان قوات السماوات

تتزعزع

21: 27 وحينئذ يبصرون ابن الانسان اتيا في سحابة بقوة و مجد كثير

سفر اعمال الرسل 2

2: 19 واعطي عجائب في السماء من فوق وآيات على الارض من أسفل دما ونارا وبخار دخان

2: 20 تتحول الشمس الى ظلمة والقمر الى دم قبل ان يجيء يوم الرب العظيم الشهير

2: 21 ويكون كل من يدعو باسم الرب يخلص

لماذا قال المسيح بعض العلامات؟

أولا لكيلا نرتاع

انجيل متى 24

مت 24: 6 وسوف تسمعون بحروب واخبار حروب لا ترتاعوا لأنه لا بد ان تكون هذه

كلها ولكن ليس المنتهى بعد

إنجيل يوحنا 14: 29

وَقُلْتُ لَكُمْ الْآنَ قَبْلَ أَنْ يَكُونَ، حَتَّى مَتَى كَأَن تُوْمِنُونَ.

ثالثا لننتبه ونستعد

انجيل لوقا 21

28 وَمَتَى ابْتَدَأَتْ هَذِهِ تَكُونُ، فَاَنْتَصِبُوا وَاَرْفَعُوا رُؤُوسَكُمْ لِأَنَّ نَجَاتَكُمْ تَقْتَرِبُ».

New film highlights NASA's warning of a potential Solar Armageddon that knocks out power grids across the globe

Posted on April 5, 2015

April 2015 – SOLAR STORM – Perhaps, as a tech-savvy citizen, you are worried about the financial cost of data breaches, or our increased vulnerability to terrorist hackers, or the erosion of our digital civil liberties. Don't be. Instead, worry about the complete collapse of our power grid. NASA is warning that there's a 12 percent chance an extreme solar storm will hit Earth in the next decade, sending out massive shock waves that would knock out grids across the world. The economic impact of this doomsday scenario could exceed $2 trillion — or 20 times the cost of Hurricane Katrina, according to the National Academy of Sciences. NASA first made this warning in 2009, when a study it funded detailed what might happen to our high-tech society in the event of a super solar flare — essentially the equivalent of bad space weather. An extreme geomagnetic storm would follow, melting copper windings of transformers at the heart of many power distribution centers.

But few listened. And there was very little news coverage. Then in 2012, NASA's prediction almost came true, with Earth experiencing a close shave by a solar storm that tore into our orbit. The storm hit a solar observatory that was equipped to measure the impact, providing precious data that confirmed NASA's previous warnings of the severe consequences these storms pose. But again, few noticed. Recently, commemorating the two-year anniversary of the near-miss, NASA put out a press release with even more research, noting there's a 12 percent chance that such a catastrophic solar storm will actually hit Earth in the next decade, with ramifications to modern society lasting for years. And again, no one noticed. It turns out scientists are really bad at PR. To be fair to them, society's appreciation for science is abysmal anyway.

Category 5 Super Typhoon Maysak is packing sustained winds of at least 160 miles per hour as it takes aim at the tiny island of Yap in the Caroline Islands on Tuesday. The typhoon is the third of the year so far, which sets a record for the most typhoons so early in the Western Pacific typhoon season, according to meteorologist Jeff Masters of Weather Underground.

The storm is rarer still when looking only at the record of typhoons that reached an intensity of Category 3 or stronger before April 1. Such typhoons are known as major typhoons.

(NaturalNews) For the first time in history, the California government has declared mandatory water restrictions designed to save the state from a water collapse. (But it still won't work, see below...)

An order went out yesterday from Governor Brown's office, requiring water agencies to "...implement new pricing models that discourage excessive water use," reports the LA Times. In other words, your water consumption costs are about to get even higher if you live in California.

The directive aims to reduce water consumption by 25% across the state -- an aggressive restriction that clearly qualifies as an emergency reduction goal.

How Many People Will Have To Migrate Out Of California When All The Water Disappears?

By Michael Snyder, on April 2nd, 2015

The drought in California is getting a lot worse. As you read this, snowpack levels in the Sierra Nevada mountains are the lowest that have ever been recorded. That means that there won't be much water for California farmers and California cities once again this year. To make up the difference in recent years, water has been pumped out of the ground like crazy. In fact, California has been losing more than 12 million acre-feet of groundwater a year since 2011, and wells all over the state are going dry. Once the groundwater is all gone, what are people going to do? 100 years ago, the population of the state of California was 3 million, and during the 20th century we built lots of beautiful new cities in an area that was previously a desert. Scientists tell us that the 20th century was the wettest century in 1000 years for that area of the country, but now weather patterns are reverting back to normal. Today, the state of California is turning back into a desert but it now has a population of 38 million people. This is not sustainable in the long-term. So when the water runs out, where are they going to go?

I have written quite a few articles about the horrific drought in California, but conditions just continue to get even worse. According to NPR, snowpack levels in the Sierra Nevada mountains are "just 6 percent of the long-term average"...

The water outlook in drought-racked California just got a lot worse: Snowpack levels across the entire Sierra Nevada are now the lowest in recorded history — just 6 percent of the long-term average. That shatters the previous low record on this date of 25 percent, set in 1977 and again last year.

California farmers rely on that water. Last year, farmers had to let hundreds of thousands of acres lie fallow because of the scarcity of water, and it is being projected that this year will be even worse...

Sunday on ABC's "This Week," Gov. Jerry Brown (D-CA) said Californians will face heavy fines for taking long showers.

Brown said, "This executive order is done under emergency power. It has the force of law. Very unusual. It's requiring action and changes in behavior from the Oregon border all the way to the Mexican border. It affects lawns. It affects people's — how long they stay in the shower. How businesses use water."

Brown said to enforce his order, "Each water district that actually delivers waters — water to homes and businesses, they carry it out. We have a state water board that oversees the relationships with the districts. Hundreds of them. If they don't comply, people can be

Hot Chile volcano sends plume into the sky

EARTH IMAGE by Stuart Gary

ABC

Wednesday, 1 April 2015

(Source: NASA/USGS)

After a short period of rest, the Villarrica volcano in southern Chile recently exploded to life again, sending a plume of boiling ash high into the atmosphere.

The eruption triggered an increase in the alert level near the volcano to orange, the second highest rating.

The 2860-metre-high snow-capped stratovolcano, located 750 kilometres south of the capital Santiago, is one of the most active in Chile.

The latest series of eruptions began on 7 February with several minor explosions and ash plumes triggering a yellow alert.

A further pre-dawn eruption on 3 March sparked the evacuation of thousands of people from within a 10-kilometre radius of the volcano.

That eruption covered the mountain's eastern flank with a huge volume of volcanic material.

Villarrica is one of Chile's most active volcanoes with at least 66 recorded eruptions since the arrival of Europeans.

This image of Villarrica's latest eruption was taken from an altitude of about 700 kilometres by the Advanced Land Imager onboard NASA's EO-1 satellite on 18 March, 2015.

VOLCANO ERUPTION IN INDONESIA TRIGGERS EVACUATION

Jakarta: The Mount Sinabung volcano in Indonesia's North Sumatra province erupted on Thursday afternoon, spewing a column of ash by up to two kilometres into the sky and triggering a small-scale evacuation, an official said on Friday.

A powerful burst of hot ash was spread from the rumbling volcano, heading four kilometres to the south of the crater and one kilometre to the southeast, according to Sutopo Purwo Nugroho, spokesman for the National Disaster Management Agency, Xinhua reported.

Some of the villagers living near the volcano were evacuated to safer places, Sutopo said.

'Some of residents of Sibintun village have to be evacuated by force by officials to other places,' he told Xinhua.

Others at the Sigrang Garang, Kutagunggung and Sukanalu villages located three kilometers away from the crater were panic-stricken as they prepared for evacuation, according to Sutopo. 'The officials keep conducting patrol and monitoring at the field,' he said.

Sinkhole Swallows up Car in Toronto

Marking the start of "sinkhole season" in Toronto, a car was eaten up by a huge one at a Black Creek Dr. and Eglinton Ave. W. parking lot on Wednesday morning. The driver, who didn't have time to get out of his vehicle, a black Jaguar, before it sank deep into the dirt, was able to escape unharmed. "He got out through his window and climbed onto the roof of his car," said Metrolinx spokesperson Anne Marie Atkins. Atkins had sent a crew out to the Todd Baylis Blvd. and Industry St. area to make sure the sinkhole was not caused by nearby construction of the Eglinton Crosstown. The crew was able to confirm the sinkhole was unrelated to the construction. Police are advising drivers to use caution in

Anoxia and ocean warming cause scallop death

PERU

Monday, March 30, 2015, 03:00 (GMT + 9)

A study on the status of the environmental quality of the bay of Pisco-Paracas conducted by the Instituto del Mar del Peru (IMARPE) revealed that the recent mass death of scallops recorded in the area was due to the lack of oxygen and to high water temperature.

IMARPE recalled that in the Atenas area is where marine concessions of Paracas Bay are located, which is an area where scallops are put for fattening using bottom farming.

Experts assessed ten sampling stations randomly distributed along the Atenas area, where scallops were found with densities ranging from 22 to 163 individuals per square metre, demonstrating a high population density and uneven distribution in a shallow zone.

In addition, it was found that 43 per cent of the specimens did not meet the minimum legal size of 6.5 centimetres.

On the other hand, the assessed stations presented anoxia, a condition that occurs due to the little exchange of water and a high load of organic matter, which depletes oxygen as it decomposes.

Another factor was the increase in the temperature of seawater in front of Pisco, which added and caused the death of the resource.

Gaza health officials reported on March 25, 2015, the presence of a highly pathogenic outbreak of bird influenza A (H5N1) found in Jabaliya in the Gaza Strip in poultry (species not identified). Of the 1,100 birds died and 4,700 were destroyed. The diagnosis was confirmed on March 25 by molecular biology technique.

This is the first reported outbreak in the Gaza Strip, while for the month of January 2015, the Ministry of Agriculture in Gaza has banned poultry imports from the West Bank and Israel to reduce the risk introduction of avian influenza.

According to reliable information, outbreaks reported in Israel and the West Bank have been caused by a strain of influenza A (H5N1) whose genotype is closely related to that of the strain circulating in Egypt.

CHESAPEAKE

Chesapeake Sheriff Jim O'Sullivan tasked inmate crews Tuesday with a smelly venture -- cleaning up dead fish that have washed up at the Cove and along the Elizabeth River.

Hundreds of fish have washed up dead in Deep Creek after cold temperatures hit the area recently.

The Chesapeake Sheriff's office contacted the Virginia Marine Resource Commission regarding environmental concerns before sending inmates to collect the fish.

O'Sullivan said he wanted to help clean the area because of the upcoming holiday weekend. The spot next to Chesapeake Yachts is popular with boaters.

There were no risks to the water or the people handling the fish, according to Laurie Naismith of the commission.

The recent cold snap is most likely to blame. Temperatures dipped below freezing last Sunday morning, according to the National Weather Service.

"It's because of the horrible, horrible weather we've had," Naismith said.

Fish in the area used to have help staying warm because the nearby Dominion Power coal-fired generating plant warmed the water around it. The plant shut down Jan. 1.

Normally, the property owner adjacent to the water would be responsible for cleaning up the dead fish, but the Sheriff's Office was performing the cleanup as a public service, according to Jen Bichara, a spokeswoman for the city.

According to information gathered by media, odor in the sector is unbearable

Damage in Bone Cruz hacienda after Chimbo river overflow that devastated 75,000 breeding birds, endanger Cumanda in the province of Chimborazo. Although the incident occurred two weeks ago, environmental pollution that has been generated as a result of the thousands of dead birds, strikes fear in the nearby town.

Pablo Morillo, zonal coordinator 3 of the Risk Management Secretariat (SGR) reported that last week a team of technicians and toured the area and checked the damage, so it was considered necessary to call a meeting of the Bureau of Health.

Yesterday, Mayor Cumanda, Marco Maquisaca, met with members of the Technical Bureau of Labor, Health, Hygiene and Sanitation and Emerging Operations Committee (COE) cantonal to assess what actions to take.

Subsequently, the owner of the affected poultry plant, Marco Granda, organized a tour of the sector. There, a caterpillar tractor, a backhoe, skid steer three and four trucks of the Municipality of Guano assist in the cleanup of land and houses. The bad smell in the place is intense. (AFB)

A southern wind has washed thousands of stinging polyps onto Pensacola Beach.

The bright blue organisms, while resembling jellyfish, are actually colonies of hydrozoan polyps known as porpita porpita, or, more commonly, blue buttons.

The blue-button's sting is nothing compared to that of the more fearsome man-o-war jellyfish, but is none the less noticeable.

Santa Rosa Island Authority water safety supervisor Dave Greenwood said the organisms have raised curiosity among beach-goers but haven't been enough to keep them from the water.

Avian influenza confirmed in South Dakota turkey flock

The Associated Press April 2, 2015

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture says it has confirmed avian influenza in a commercial turkey flock in eastern South Dakota's Beadle County.

The U.S. in recent months has seen an increase in cases of the highly pathogenic H5N2 strain of avian influenza, also known as bird flu, affecting poultry in multiple states including Minnesota.

USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service says the South Dakota flock of 53,000 turkeys is within the Central Flyway bird migration route, where the strain of bird flu has previously been found.

The South Dakota flock has been quarantined, and the birds will be killed to prevent the spread of the disease. The state Health Department also is involved.

The federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention considers the risk to people to be low.

Dead fish emerge on Regina's Wascana Lake shores

It's not a pretty sight, but dead fish emerging on the shores of Regina's Wascana Lake is a sign of spring.

The Wascana Centre Authority in Regina said it is a common occurrence. However, it also said there are more dead fish now than in past years because of how the lake froze this year.

Wascana Centre Authority CEO, Bernadette McIntyre, said the park will clean up the carcasses on the shoreline if they become a public safety issue.

"It is the circle of life," McIntyre said. "You'll see the gulls and if the pelicans were back, they'd be eating them, too. So it's nature. We're a park and we don't interfere with nature, unless it's causing harm in some way."

McIntyre said most of the fish will continue downstream.

"Ninety-plus per cent of the fish is common carp, which is harmful to the lake, so this is again very positive," McIntyre said. "Mother Nature's helped look after us."

Common Murre Die Off Along Waterfront

April 2, 2015 2:58 pm

By Heidi Zemach for SCN –

If you've walked Seward waterfronts lately, you might have come across the carcasses of common murres or you might have spotted bald eagles feasting on them. There's been a lot of the carcasses spotted, and people are calling in, said Dr. Carrie Goertz, a staff veterinarian at Alaska SeaLife Center who also helps manage the stranding program and disaster response. Most of the murres are very thin and emaciated, indicating starvation, she said. The phenomenon is apparently a murre die-off, or "wreck," and is probably caused by these small marine birds having exhausted their nutritional reserves, with the sudden bouts of cold temperatures and waves of poor weather in mid to late March pushing them over the edge to their deaths. Also, the fish biomass may not have coincided with when they were in the area, plus in a weakened state they're easier prey for predators, or to get hit by cars, the latter two of which she saw examples of in the bird carcasses brought in to ASLC, Goertz said. The center vets did some cursory examinations of the murres they found, but are sending them to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and U.S. Geological Survey for more in-depth examinations.

Common murres eat small fish, and breed in rocky cliffs. They travel great distances seeking food.

Thousands of dead fish have been found floating in rubbish between Peng Chau and Discovery Bay.

One scientist said they could have been killed by an algal bloom that starves fish of oxygen, or waste dumped in the water.

Pictures seen by the South China Morning Post showed some had washed up on a beach in Peng Chau, off the northeast coast of Lantau Island.

Islands District Councillor Josephine Tsang Sau-ho said: "The fish are around half the size of a palm. There were thousands of them when they washed up and they really smell."

She said fishermen had told her trawling was not to blame.

Jujuy to Dia® - The Department of Environmental Management, through its Directorate of Environmental Quality and Biodiversity and the Municipality of The Levee, is working to determine the cause of death of fish in the dam La Cienega.

Last week, technical professionals of this organization conducted sampling of water and related species killed immediately from the moment of the appearance of copies. They were sent to laboratories in Agua de Los Andes and the Ministry of Health (SUNIBROM), and these days would be the results thereof.

In principle it is estimated that the cause was the proliferation of red algae that compete with the fish for oxygen water, ie death of them would be by asphyxiation. One of the possible causes of the unusual increase of these algae is that constantly enters organic matter (food scraps, animal eses, etc.), together with the meteorological conditions of temperature, precipitation and humidity prevailing today.

Remarkably, the same situation happened earlier years in the dam itself, and other cases were reported in the NOA, as happened in 2012 in the Cabra Corral de Salta.

The public is advised not to consume, under any circumstances, animals which have died of natural causes, as in the case of these fish in the dam La Cienega. It is also recommended to avoid fishing in the area until the natural balance of the site is restored.

DEADLY BIRD FLU SHOWS UP IN SOUTH DAKOTA, 5TH MINNESOTA FARM

BY CARSON WALKER AND STEVE KARNOWSKI
ASSOCIATED PRESS

SIoux FALLS, S.D. (AP) -- Officials say a bird flu strain that's deadly to poultry has been confirmed on a fifth turkey farm in Minnesota.

The Minnesota Board of Animal Health says the U.S. Department of Agriculture confirmed the H5N2 strain in a flock of 71,000 turkeys in Stearns County.

It's the second infection of a turkey flock in the central Minnesota county. The strain also was detected in a turkey flock in South Dakota.

The latest Minnesota discovery brings the total number of outbreaks in the Midwest to 10.

Migratory waterfowl are suspected as the source.

Use of antibiotics in cattle feed leads to airborne antibiotic-resistant bacteria – study

DNA from antibiotic-resistant bacteria is spreading from cattle feedlots across the US through the air, a new study has found. The report indicates that so-called superbugs threatening humans could be traced to the use of antibiotics in cattle feed.

Antibiotic-resistant bacterial DNA is known to be transferable to humans if ingested via water or meat. The authors of the study sought to determine the extent to which antibiotics, antibiotic-resistance genes and microbes associated with ruminants like cattle are dispersed into the air via particulate matter derived from large scale beef cattle feedyards, they wrote in their abstract. The paper is set to be published in April.

Despite evidence that agricultural use of antibiotics is a contributor to antibiotic-resistance, animal agriculture uses nearly 10 million kg of antibiotics annually in the United States alone.

"This is the first test to open our eyes to the fact that we could be breathing these things," Phil Smith, one of the paper's authors and an environmental toxicologist at Texas Tech University, told the Texas Tribune.

Termite 'superswarm' threatens South Florida

Two of the world's most destructive termite species are swarming South Florida, and the fact that they are mating has scientists sweating.

The Asian and Formosan subterranean termite species are producing hundreds of thousands of winged males and females (known as alates), which are in turn creating hybrid colonies, according to University of Florida entomologists. The two species are no joke, and hybrid colonies could prove even more disastrous for homeowners.

Fleas test positive for plague in Arizona

Coconino County officials are taking precautions after finding fleas collected in Picture Canyon northeast of Flagstaff have tested positive for plague. The Arizona Daily Sun reported Friday that the County Public Health Services District is conducting additional tests and disinfecting prairie dog burrows. Public health officials collected the fleas around trails in the popular hiking area after noticing some prairie dogs dying off. The positive test is the first sign of plague activity in the county since last September in Doney Park. Officials are advising residents to take precautions such as using insect repellent and to avoid handling sick or dead animals. Symptoms of plague appear within two to six days after initial exposure. They can include fever, chills, swollen lymph glands and muscle pain. SOURCE

(NaturalNews) A major bombshell has dropped concerning the failed cleanup efforts at the stricken Fukushima Daiichi nuclear power plant in Japan. The shuttered plant's operator, the Tokyo Electric Power Company (TEPCO), has apparently been hiding for an entire year the fact that radioactive waste has been quietly pouring into the ocean from an onsite drainage ditch.

Sputnik News reports that TEPCO, which is also managing remediation efforts at the site (with guidance from the Japanese government), concealed from the public the fact that highly contaminated radioactive water has been flowing from the drainage ditch directly into the ocean. Local fishermen and others have since expressed outrage over the news.

Russian analyst urges nuclear attack on Yellowstone National Park and San Andreas Fault line to destroy U.S.

Posted on March 31, 2015

April 2015 – YELLOWSTONE - Russian geopolitical analyst says the best way to attack the United States is to detonate nuclear weapons to trigger a supervolcano at Yellowstone National Park or along the San Andreas fault-line on California's coast. The president of the Academy of Geopolitical Problems based in Moscow, Konstantin Sivkov said in an article for a Russian trade newspaper on Wednesday, VPK News, that Russia needed to increase its military weapons and strategies against the "West" which was "moving to the borders of Russia." He has a conspiracy theory that NATO – a political and military alliance which counts the US, UK, Canada and many countries in western Europe as members – was amassing strength against Russia and the only way to combat that problem was to attack America's vulnerabilities to ensure a "complete destruction of the enemy."

"Geologists believe that the Yellowstone supervolcano could explode at any moment. There are signs of growing activity there. Therefore it suffices to push the relatively small, for example the impact of the munition megaton class to initiate an eruption. The consequences will be catastrophic for the United States – a country just disappears," he said. "Another vulnerable area of the United States from the geophysical point of view, is the San Andreas fault – 1300 kilometers between the Pacific and North American plates ... a detonation of a nuclear weapon there can trigger catastrophic events like a coast-scale tsunami which can completely destroy the infrastructure of the United States." He said the Russian geography on the other hand would protect it from a tsunami or a volcano attack. Few people live on the coast in Russia and Siberia which rests on basalt would withstand similar attacks. Mr. Sivkov, who spoke at the 2013 Moscow Economic Forum, said by 2020 to 2025 Russia would have amassed "asymmetric weapons" in its arsenal for the attack. "The situation for us today is comparably worse than half a century ago," he said.

Al-Qaida in Yemen captures a southern city, frees inmates

f Recommend 8 t g+ f e + 24

By AHMED AL-HAJ
Associated Press

SANAA, Yemen (AP) - Al-Qaida militants traveling in convoys flying black banners captured a major port city in southern Yemen on Thursday, seizing government buildings and freeing inmates from a prison, including a top Saudi-born leader, security officials said.

The fall of Mukalla - the capital of Yemen's largest province, Hadramawt - highlighted how al-Qaida is expanding its foothold in Yemen, taking advantage of the turmoil as a Saudi-led coalition backing the country's beleaguered president tries to fend off a takeover by Shiite rebels.

Mukalla's fall came as the rebels, known as Houthis, made dramatic advances in one of the main strongholds of the president's loyalists, the southern city of Aden. The rebels broke into the center of Aden and briefly captured a presidential palace in the city.

The rebels withdrew from the palace after raising the Yemeni flag, but the move showed their continued strength despite more than a week of heavy airstrikes by the Saudi-led coalition. If the Houthis succeed in capturing Aden, it would be a significant blow to the coalition, which has been planning to land ground troops in the city to allow the return of President Abed Rabbo Mansour Hadi, who fled the country last week.

At least 519 people have been killed, many of them civilians and 90 of them children, in the past two weeks of violence in Yemen, as well as 1,700 wounded, the U.N. humanitarian chief Valerie Amos said. She said tens of thousands have also fled their homes.

On the brink of a new Middle Eastern catastrophe: Saudi Arabia sends war planes into Yemen in a terrifying clash with Iran leaving region at boiling point

- Religious fissure between Sunni and Shia Muslims erupted into conflict

Unified Sunni Coalition Confronts Iran

Turkey's Erdogan: 'Iran is trying to dominate the region'

BY: Abraham Rabinovich

March 30, 2015 5:00 am

Shiite rebels, known as Houthis, wearing an army uniform, ride on an armed truck to patrol the international airport in Sanaa, Yemen / AP

JERUSALEM—Iran, whose pursuit in recent years of imperial ambitions in the Middle East has seemed inexorable, found itself over the weekend confronting a hostile coalition of nine Sunni states ranging from Morocco to Turkey, with nuclear-armed Pakistan a possible add-on.

The bombing in Yemen of Iranian-linked Houthi rebels that began last Thursday by the Saudi-led coalition marked the unexpected emergence of a unified Sunni front to counter the threat of regional dominance by Shiite Iran. Egypt, one of the central members of the coalition, has already dispatched naval forces to the waters off Yemen to prevent Houthi militants, acting on behalf of Iran, from threatening shipping to and from the Suez Canal.

The new Sunni militancy follows the accession two months ago of King Salman in Saudi Arabia. His son, Mohammad bin Salman, whom he appointed as defense minister, has taken the leading role in organizing the coalition and planning the strikes against the Houthis, assisted by U.S. intelligence.

Pakistan was named as a member of the coalition by Saudi officials. However, a spokesman for the Pakistani government subsequently said it had not yet made up its mind whether to join. Turkey, which like Pakistan is a Sunni Muslim state but non-Arab, took a clear stand alongside the Arab Sunnis. "Iran is trying to dominate the region," President Recep Tayyip Erdogan of Turkey told a press conference. "This is intolerable and Iran has to see this."

By arming and encouraging Shiite groups in various countries in the region Iran has extended its influence to the point that two major countries, Syria and Iraq, have in effect become Iranian protectorates. The Iranian-backed Hezbollah militia is the dominant group in Lebanon. The Saudis feared Iran had begun to undermine Saudi influence in neighboring Yemen by using the Shiite Houthis. If successful, Iran would be able to use its Houthi proxies to close the Bab-el-Mandeb Straits to shipping to and from the Suez Canal.

Although the overwhelming majority of Muslims in the world are Sunnis, Sunni nations have come to fear the spread of Iranian influence in the Middle East. Heightening the tensions are boasts by Iranian leaders, who are non-Arab, that they are already the dominant influence in four Arab capitals—Beirut, Damascus, Baghdad and, now Yemen's capital, Sana'a, which was captured by the Houthis last September. In addition, prominent Iranians speak ever more openly of Tehran's aspirations to achieve regional hegemony on the scale of their forefathers, the Persians. The mooted agreement between Tehran and the international community on the Iranian nuclear program also adds to the nervousness of its Arab neighbors.

WASHINGTON –The newly formed joint Arab military force under the leadership of Saudi Arabia could drag the U.S. into a conflict it doesn't want, warn regional analysts.

As WND reported, Arab League recently agreed to a joint military force at Egypt's Sharm el Sheikh, partly in response to what analysts say is a desire by the Arab countries, especially Saudi Arabia, to be less dependent on the U.S. for its security.

The 22 Sunni Islamic countries that form the Arab League want to create their own version of NATO for Middle East regional conflicts against Islamic jihadists such as ISIS but also against the growing influence of Shiite Iran.

"The challenges facing our national Arab security are grave, and we have succeeded in diagnosing the reasons behind it," Egyptian President Abdel Fattah el-Sisi told the Arab League.

Dozens of unidentified foreign troops reported disembarking in the port of Aden turned out to be Chinese soldiers maintaining security as an unknown party opened fire on a vessel evacuating foreign citizens, a Yemeni official told Sputnik.

"A Chinese military ship arrived in the port to evacuate Chinese citizens...a skirmish which occurred during the evacuation led to the disembarkation of Chinese soldiers stationed on the ship to protect civilians," said Abd ar-Rabb al-Khalyaky, the deputy head of the port union council. After the evacuation, the soldiers returned to the vessel, he said adding that the situation has calmed down.

He said that Chinese soldiers have already left the port, though reportedly they did not manage to take with them all the people intended to evacuate, not all of the Chinese nationals.

An unnamed Yemeni official confirmed to Reuters that the people who disembarked from the Chinese ship were armed guards aiding civilians, not ground troops.

Iran Expands Regional 'Empire' Ahead Of Nuclear Deal

March 27, 2015 | JPOST

Share this article

With Iran moving closer to a deal with world powers to constrain its nuclear program in return for an end to sanctions, Arab analysts and leaders are focused more on how Tehran is working unconstrained to tighten its grip on Arab states, from Iraq to Lebanon, and Syria to Yemen.

The man behind what some see as an attempt to create a new Persian and Shi'ite "empire" on Arab land is Major General Qassem Soleimani, commander of the al-Quds brigade of the elite Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps (IRGC).

Since he emerged from the shadows last autumn, Soleimani seems to be omnipresent on the battlefields of the Middle East.

Photos of Soleimani, 60, almost an invisible man until the Sunni jihadis of Islamic State overran cities in northern and central Iraq last year, are now everywhere.

He is seen directing operations in the battle to recapture from IS the Sunni city of Tikrit, birthplace of Saddam Hussein. He is snapped in Syria offering condolences on the killing of a relative of Bashar al-Assad, the Syrian president he has helped cling to power during four years of war.

In Beirut he is photographed praying at the grave of Jihad Mughniyeh, son of the late commander of the IRGC-backed Hezbollah paramilitary group. Jihad was killed in Syria in January.

Meanwhile, the heterodox Shi'ite Houthi movement in Yemen has seized power in the capital, Sanaa, to Iranian acclaim and the alarm of Sunni Arab states such as neighbouring Saudi Arabia, Iran's regional rival.

Such is Soleimani's personal sway that a Syrian opposition website has put up a spoof election poster saying: "Vote for Qassem Soleimani, President of Syria."

Iran may be serious about a nuclear deal that ends its pariah status and the crippling sanctions. But it has been maximizing its strength across the Middle East and, because Iranian forces and allied militias are spearheading the fight against IS in Iraq and Syria, Sunni Arab leaders believe the United States will do nothing to stop this.

Pentagon upgrades biggest 'bunker buster' bomb in case Iran talks fail - report

The Pentagon has upgraded and tested the largest bunker-buster bomb in the US, powerful enough to disable Iran's most heavily fortified nuclear facilities in case of failure to reach a nuclear deal, a senior US official told the Wall Street Journal.

"The Pentagon continues to be focused on being able to provide military options for Iran if needed," an unnamed senior US official has been quoted as saying, "We have not taken our eyes off the ball."

According to the Wall Street Journal report, work on the bunker buster (the so-called Massive Ordnance Penetrator, or MOP) started before the latest round of talks with Iran. The most recent testing took place in mid-January, when the improved bunker buster was dropped at a testing site at an undisclosed location by a B-2 bomber that took off from Whiteman Air Force Base in Missouri, officials told the publication.

The Wall Street Journal reported in 2012 that according to Pentagon war planners the 30,000-pound (13,607 kg) bunker buster wasn't powerful enough to destroy some fortified Iranian nuclear facilities. So work reportedly began to upgrade the bomb's design and guidance systems.

Iran Militia Chief: Wiping Israel Off the Map Is 'Nonnegotiable'

Mohammad Reza Naqdi, the chief of the Basji Militia of Iran's Revolutionary Guards, declared that "erasing Israel off the map" is "nonnegotiable."

Israeli Radio reported the militia chief's comments Tuesday, which also included threats against Saudi Arabia for its campaign against the Iran-backed rebels in Yemen. The Saudis, warned Naqdi, would share the "fate of Saddam Hussein."

As the Times of Israel notes, Naqdi has spoken openly in the past about Iran's military strategy against Israel:

Reconstruction of underground routes seen as revival of relations with former ally

Published: 22 hours ago

(Jerusalem Post) Iran has stepped-up its efforts to support Hamas in Gaza, transferring tens of millions of dollars to the Izzadin Kassam Brigades, Hamas's military wing, to help with rebuilding efforts, the Telegraph reported Sunday.

According to the report, the funds have been allocated to the rebuilding of tunnels and restocking of missile arsenals destroyed by Israel during Operation Protective Edge.

Iran's renewed support is a sign of a revival in Iran-Hamas relations, allies previously torn apart over the conflict in Syria, where Shi'ite Iran backed President Bashar Assad, while Hamas stood by its Sunni allies.

Hamas leader Khaled Mashaal often resisted the Iranian support welcomed by the Izzadin Kassam Brigades, the Telegraph said. Yet with the escalation of Saudi-Arabian and Egyptian hostility towards Hamas, and with the strengthening of a Sunni Arab front against Iran, Hamas was left with no option but to accept the Iranian support.

Control of the Red Sea Bab el-Mandeb Straits passed Tuesday, March 31 to pro-Iranian Yemeni forces when the Yemeni Army's 117th Brigade loyal to the former Yemeni President Ali Saleh handed positions guarding the waterway to two Houthi commando battalions trained by Iranian Revolutionary Guards. This is revealed by DEBKAfile's military and intelligence sources.

In another development Tuesday involving Iran's spreading tentacles, DEBKAfile's military sources reveal that unidentified aircraft bombed Burak, a small military base in the Fezzan province of southwestern Libya, which serves Iran as a transit store for arms purchased in Sudan for the Palestinian Hamas.

The weapons, which recently reached the Libyan base through Chad, were destroyed. They were scheduled to be smuggled through Egypt and Sinai and onto Gaza.

Western military sources attributed responsibility for the bombardment to the Egyptian or Israeli air forces. Both Israel and Egypt have declined to comment on the report.

To strengthen Iran's grip on the key Red Sea gateway, Iran's supreme leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei has ordered two naval task forces to sail to the Red Sea. They are to fend off a Saudi-Egyptian offensive to dislodge the Houthi battalions now holding a point linking the Red Sea and the Indian Ocean and Persian Gulf. The naval task forces are being sent to draw a sea shield around the Houthi forces to defend them against Saudi-Egyptian assaults. This maneuver was orchestrated by the Al Qods Brigades chief Gen. Qassem Soleimani.

ISRAEL READY TO LAUNCH ISS TANIN SUBMARINE WITH NUCLEAR-TIPPED CRUISE MISSILE CAPABILITY (VIDEO)

THE ISRAEL NAVY'S FOURTH SUBMARINE, THE ISS TANIN, IS EXPECTED TO BECOME FULLY OPERATIONAL IN A FEW WEEKS AND PARTICIPATE IN NAVAL OPERATIONS.

The navy's fifth submarine, meanwhile, is expected to arrive this summer, and is now in the final stages of construction at the Howaldtswerke-Deutsche Werft (HDW) shipyards in Kiel, Germany. Israel is expected to officially take control of the ISS Rahav in a few weeks, when it will begin its maiden voyage from Germany to Israel.

The fifth submarine will only become fully operational some six or so months after it arrives in Israel. During that time, various Israeli weapons and communications systems are fitted to it, explained an officer in the submarine division. "The ISS Tanin (Crocodile) was initially handed over to Israel in May 2012.

CERN restart expected over Easter

Engineers have upgraded and remodelled the particle-accelerator LHC. Now a scheduled restart had to be delayed due to a short circuit in an electromagnet. The collection of data in 2015 will probably not be affected.

CERN Engineers have upgraded and remodeled the particle accelerator LHC. After a delay due to a short circuit in an electromagnet, the restart is now expected over the Easter holiday.

The start of the Large Hadron Collider, the huge particle accelerator from the European Organization for Nuclear Research (CERN) in Geneva, was scheduled for late March. But engineers could not hold to that initial timeframe: A short circuit in an electromagnet was discovered just ahead of the planned start on 25 March.

Now, the problem has been solved, CERN announced in a press statement on April 2. The LHC could therefore be restarted between Saturday and Monday, over the Easter holiday.

During the two-year reconstruction phase, the particle-accelerator is expected to nearly double the energy levels achieved in its collisions. Physicists said they hoped this would open the door to an even deeper understanding

The European Organization for Nuclear Research (CERN) announced on Sunday that one of the two beams had completed a circuit of the LHC's 27-kilometer ring of superconducting magnets in an underground facility on the Swiss-French border.

The collider has been upgraded to run at a higher energy and with a greater intensity of collisions. This time the 'Big Bang' accelerator is going to run for three years, with operators busy 24-hours a day. First experiments are slated for late May.

US scientists celebrate the restart of the Large Hadron Collider

With the collider back in action, the more than 1,700 U.S. scientists who work on LHC experiments are prepared to join thousands of their international colleagues to study the highest-energy particle collisions ever achieved in the laboratory.

These collisions – hundreds of millions of them every second – will lead scientists to new and unexplored realms of physics, and could yield extraordinary insights into the nature of the physical universe.

A highlight of the LHC's first run, which began in 2009, was the discovery of the Higgs boson, the last in the suite of elementary particles that make up scientists' best picture of the universe and how it works. The discovery of the Higgs was announced in July 2012 by two experimental collaborations, ATLAS and CMS.

Continuing to measure the properties of the Higgs will be a major focus of LHC Run 2.

"The Higgs discovery was one of the most important scientific achievements of our time," said James Siegrist, the U.S. Department of Energy's Associate Director of Science for High Energy Physics. "With the LHC operational again, at even higher energies, the possibilities for new discoveries are endless, and the United States will be at

Coming Soon - National Biometric ID For Americans

April 01, 2015 | Alex Newman

Share this article

After largely failing to prod state governments into developing a national identification system known as "REAL ID," Republican lawmakers in Congress are once again pushing an Obama-backed scheme that would force every American to have a national ID card containing sensitive biometric data.

The controversial plan, embedded in an immigration-enforcement bill, has been in the works for years, but has consistently been met with stiff opposition from liberty-minded grassroots organizations and activists. While the plan has failed in previous Congresses thanks to a groundswell of opposition, critics of the measure say that without prompt action, the unconstitutional scheme could soon become a reality.

The legislation, officially dubbed the "Legal Workforce Act" (H.R. 1147), is ostensibly aimed at preventing illegal immigrants from obtaining jobs in the United States. Among the most troubling elements highlighted by critics, though, is that the bill would purport to mandate a national ID card for every American as a condition of working. It would also force every employer in America to purchase and use so-called "E-Verify technology" to check with Washington, D.C., as to whether potential employees have government permission to work. Finally, it would create a massive federal database containing sensitive data on virtually every person in the country — a database that could easily be expanded to include even more information.

While establishment lawmakers on both sides of the aisle seem fond of the measure, critics are sounding the alarm about the bill and its implications for liberty. In an e-mail to supporters urging them to help crush the unconstitutional legislation, for example, former Congressman Ron Paul (R-Texas), in his capacity as chairman of Campaign for Liberty, warned that the national ID scheme would be a nightmare.

Among other concerns, the two-time GOP presidential contender noted that it would allow federal bureaucrats to include biometric information — potentially including fingerprints, retinal scans, and more — that could and likely would be eventually used as a tracking device. It would also make it illegal for anyone to work in the United States without obtaining the national ID.

"Every time any citizen applies for a job, the government would know — and you can bet its only a matter of time until 'ID scans' will be required to make even routine purchases, as well," Dr. Paul warned, adding that "statists in both parties have been fighting to ram their radical national ID-database scheme into law" for years. "In fact, this scheme was a key portion of the infamous so-called 'Comprehensive Immigration Reform' bills both parties have tried to ram through." Now, Paul said, the statists believe they have found a way to impose their national ID: Drop the amnesty provisions and focus on immigration "security."

According to Dr. Paul, a constitutionalist who served in Congress for more than 20 years, the term "security" is being used as "nothing more than a buzzword meant to trick Americans from all over the country into thinking that Congress is finally going to seal our southern border." In reality, though, it means something much different. "The 'security' members of both parties in the U.S. House want doesn't target any U.S. border," Paul added. "Instead, it's meant to create an all-out police state within them."

WARREN BUFFETT: ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE WILL DECIDE WHETHER HUMANS LIVE OR DIE

"It will be the computer that makes the decision in a nanosecond"

by PAUL JOSEPH WATSON | APRIL 2, 2015  2374  197  35

Billionaire investor Warren Buffett says that the decision on whether humans live or die will be left to artificial intelligence when self-driving cars become a reality.

Warren Buffett: Artificial Intelligence Will Decide Whether Humans Live or Die

Speaking at a forum hosted by the National Automobile Dealers Association, Buffett said that he thought self-driving cars wouldn't be widely adopted for a long time but that when they were, moral considerations in traffic accidents could be taken out of human hands.

"There's some interesting questions. I mean, let's just say you have got a self-driving car and you are going down the street and a 3-year-old kid runs out in front of the car and there's another car coming the other direction with four people in it and the computer is going to make the decision as to whether to hit the kid or hit the other car," said Buffett.

Cyber air warfare: Mass hack sees British Airways freeze thousands of accounts

British Airways (BA) has locked down thousands of frequent flyer accounts after a mass cyber-attack from an unknown source.

BA announced on Sunday it had frozen the accounts after becoming aware its systems had been hacked on a mass scale.

The airline maintained that although the affected accounts number in the tens of thousands, no personal details of frequent flyers had been accessed or stolen. BA issued an apology to customers, saying the accounts would be freed up within a few days.

The source of the hack is unknown, but it is believed to have been carried out using a computer program that infiltrated BA's systems in search of vulnerabilities, before penetrating online security.

MUSLIM IMMIGRATION FROM DANGEROUS NATIONS IS DRAMATICALLY HIGHER IN RECENT YEARS, AND GOVERNMENT ASSURANCES THAT IMMIGRANTS ARE BEING PROPERLY SCREENED IS "A FARCE," ACCORDING TO ACCOMPLISHED AUTHOR AND COLUMNIST PAUL SPERRY.

"I don't think you can overstate the importance that the rise of Islamic fundamentalism will have to the rest of the world in the century ahead-especially if, as seems possible, its most fanatical elements get their hands on nuclear and chemical weapons and the means to deliver them against their enemies." -Ronald Reagan

"It's a huge surge under Obama. In the last three years, he's averaged 100,000 new immigrants from Muslim nations a year. That is very alarming. It's more than we're importing both from Central America and Mexico combined. This is a big shift in immigration flows," said Sperry, who is the author of "Infiltration: How Muslim Spies and Subversives Have Penetrated Washington" and co-author of "Muslim Mafia: Inside the Secret Underworld That's Conspiring to Islamize America."

Americans Not in Labor Force Exceed 93 Million for First Time; 62.7% Labor Force Participation Matches 37-Year Low

(CNSNews.com) - The number of Americans 16 years and older who did not participate in the labor force--meaning they neither had a job nor actively sought one in the last four weeks--rose from 92,898,000 in February to 93,175,000 in March, according to data released today by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

That is the first time the number of Americans out of the labor force has exceeded 93 million.

Also from February to March, the labor force participation rate dropped from 62.8 percent to 62.7 percent, matching a 37-year low.

Five times in the last twelve months, the participation rate has been as low as 62.8 percent, but March's 62.7 percent, which matches the participation rate seen in September and December of 2014, is the lowest since February of 1978.

Billionaire investor warns of coming central bank collapse followed by gold seizure

Tuesday, March 31, 2015 by: J. D. Heyes
Tags: central banks, gold seizure, financial collapse

(NaturalNews) They say history may not always repeat itself, but it often rhymes. The worsening debt scenario in the U.S. and abroad could become a case in point.

It's not something that today's kids will likely learn in civics class (if they even have a civics class), but it was an important event at the time. A few years into the Great Depression, the Roosevelt Administration did something radical with the monetary system, in order to financially prop up the government.

Specifically, President Franklin D. Roosevelt ordered all gold being held in private hands to be surrendered to Uncle Sam.

The Stock Market In 2015 Is Starting To Look Remarkably Similar To The Stock Market In 2008

Are we watching a replay of the last financial crisis? Over the past six months, the price of oil has collapsed, the U.S. dollar has soared, and a whole bunch of other patterns that we witnessed just before the stock market crash of 2008 are repeating once again. But what we have not seen yet is the actual stock market crash. So will there be one this year? In this article, I am going to compare the performance of the Dow Jones Industrial Average during the first three months of 2008 to the performance of the Dow Jones Industrial Average during the first three months of 2015. As you will see, there are some striking similarities. And without a doubt, we are overdue for a major market downturn. The S&P 500 has risen for six years in a row, but it has never had seven up years consecutively. In addition, there has not even been a 10 percent stock market "correction" is almost three and a half years. So will stocks be able to continue to defy both gravity and the forces of economic reality? Only time will tell.

Below is a chart that shows how the Dow Jones Industrial Average performed during the first three months of 2008. It was a time of increased volatility, but the market pretty much went nowhere. This is typical of what we see in the months leading up to a market crash. The markets start getting really choppy with large ups and large downs...

This next chart shows how the Dow Jones Industrial Average has performed during the first three months of 2015. Once again, we are witnessing a time of increased volatility,

Greece is drawing up drastic plans to nationalise the country's banking system and introduce a parallel currency to pay bills unless the eurozone takes steps to defuse the simmering crisis and soften its demands.

Sources close to the ruling Syriza party said the government is determined to keep public services running and pay pensions as funds run critically low. It may be forced to take the unprecedented step of missing a payment to the International Monetary Fund next week.

With the implementation of medieval Sharia law, civilians are seeing the resurrection of diseases that were once eradicated, sweeping not only residents, but also ISIS fighters.

Express reports that Raqqa, the self-proclaimed ISIS capital in Syria, is nearing an epidemic, and many Islamic State insurgents have already been infected. Fighters have reported cases of Leishmaniasis skin disease, a highly contagious flesh-eating bacteria that has deadly consequences.

Although aid workers had taken measures to treat victims and prevent the spread of the disease, the Islamic State quickly shut down their offices.

Egypt: Muslim mob attacks church honoring Christian martyrs of Islamic State

MARCH 29, 2015 9:24 PM BY ROBERT SPENCER

26 COMMENTS

"It is not permissible for Christians to build or repair churches." — Egyptian Shaykh Sa'id 'Abd-al-'Athim

"Non-Muslim subjects...are forbidden to build new churches." (Reliance of the Traveller 011.5; 0119-10)

"Minya church commemorating beheaded Egyptians attacked," by Mahmoud Mostafa, Daily News Egypt, March 29, 2015 (thanks to Patrick Poole):

"...On Friday, scores of mostly young Muslims gathered in the Minya governorate after midday prayer, demonstrating in front of a church under construction there. They chanted that there is no way the church would be built.

After a while, the crowd vanished, but later in the night a smaller number of anonymous militants attacked the church with Molotov cocktails. In the attack, seven people were injured, and one car was left burning.

In February, Copts in Minya's Our Village called for a church to be established in the village honouring 20 Coptic Egyptian workers beheaded in Libya. They died at the hands of Islamic State militants in Libya, according to religious freedoms researcher at the Egyptian Initiative for Personal Rights (EIPR) Ishak Ibrahim.

Pastor in England Arrested for Quoting Bible – Tried, Fined, and Threatened with Imprisonment by Islamic Sharia Judge

Posted on March 31, 2015 by Theodore Shoebat

If a man lies with a male as he lies with a woman, both of them have committed an abomination. They shall surely be put to death. Their blood shall be upon them. (Leviticus 20:13)

A Christian pastor in England, named Michael Overd, was arrested for quoting a passage from the Bible, Leviticus 20:13, in which homosexuality is condemned as an abomination.

He was then arrested for inciting what has been deemed as “threatening” or “abusive” words against homosexuals. He was then forced to be tried by Shamim Qureshi, a Muslim who is also a judge for a Sharia Islamic court in the UK. The Muslim judge fined him $300 and demanded that he pay compensation and costs for the deviant homosexual who claimed that he was emotionally damaged by the pastor’s words, totaling $1,800.

Humanists Threaten Legal Action After Elementary Teacher Gives Bibles to Students

DUNCAN, Okla. – A national humanist organization has threatened to sue a school district in Oklahoma because an elementary school teacher offered Gideon New Testaments to her students.

Erica Mackey is a third grade teacher at Woodrow Wilson Elementary in Duncan, Oklahoma. Last Thursday, Mackey reportedly announced to her students that she had several New Testament Bibles and asked if anyone would like one. Nearly all her students came up to her desk to get copies of the New Testaments.

Upon learning of the Bible distribution, one of the third grade student's parents alerted the American Humanist Association (AHA), describing what happened. The AHA quickly emailed a letter to both the principal of the school and the superintendent of the school district, reprimanding Mackey's in-class actions and threatening legal action.

"The school's actions in assisting the Gideons in distributing Bibles to elementary students represents a clear breach of the Establishment Clause of the United States Constitution and we hereby demand assurances that this practice will discontinue immediately," the letter states.

"Numerous courts have explicitly ruled that a government's practice of assisting Gideons (or other entities) in distributing Bibles violates the Establishment Clause," the letter alleges.

The AHA further accuses the school of allowing Mackey to illegally influence her "impressionable" young students.

"The unconstitutional endorsement is even more troubling here because the Gideons were distributed to students in elementary school," the letter contends. "Elementary students are vastly more impressionable than high school students and are more likely to perceive the school's actions as an endorsement of religion."

Homosexuals protesting

Indiana lawmakers, under attack from the "gay" lobby and executives of major corporations for their adoption of a religious freedom law, apparently are planning a reversal that would leave religious believers defenseless when confronted by demands from homosexuals.

Eat THIS.. NEVER Forget a Single

Indiana has been a target of criticism this week after adopting a Religious Freedom Restoration Act similar to laws in 19 other states as well as a federal law of the same name.

The law allows courts to consider the First Amendment religious rights of those who are sued by homosexuals with "discrimination" complaints.

INDIANA PIZZA PLACE Forced to Close Doors AFTER REFUSING TO CATER GAY WEDDING

Memories Pizza -- the first Indiana business to declare it would refuse LGBT business -- got blasted on the Internet and by phone, but the owner says there's been a huge misunderstanding ... sorta.

Kevin O'Connor tells TMZ he's had to temporarily close his business after he told a reporter he would refuse to cater a gay wedding under Indiana's new Religious Freedom Restoration Act. O'Connor says he was immediately flooded by threatening phone calls, and social media postings.

O'Connor wants to clear up one thing: He says he would never deny service to gay people in his restaurant. However, due to his religious beliefs, he does not believe in gay marriage ... and that's why he wouldn't service one.

PORTSMOUTH, Va. — The story of Louis Jordan's survival is nothing short of amazing.

Jordan, who had been missing for more than two months, was rescued Thursday after he was found 200 miles off the coast of North Carolina, the Coast Guard said.

"I had many moments where I thought I was going to die," said Jordan, 37, of Conway, S.C.

Jordan had been living on his docked sailboat at Bucksport Plantation Marina in Conway until Jan. 23, when he told his family he was "going into the open water to sail and do some fishing," said his mother, Norma Davis, of Jacksonville, N.C. The family had not heard from him since and reported him missing Jan. 29.
