اكرر اننا لا نحدد مواعيد بل فقط نشجع بعضنا بعضا بقرب مجيء المسيح

وأيضاً أوضح أنه يوجد نبوات لم نراها بعد مثل ابن الهلاك وهرمجدون

ولكن أيضاً علامات كثيرة من التي قال عنها الكتاب انها في الزمان الاخير بدأت تحدث بوضوح

ويجب أن ننتبه اليها. ونذكر بعضنا باننا نحتاج ان نستعد. والاستعداد ليس فقط قبل مجيء

المسيح بل أيضاً قبل الظلمة التي ستسبق مجيؤه ليكون عندنا زيت في مصابيحنا يكفي ان نعبر

هذه الظلمة وتكون مصابيحنا مضيئة وقت مجيؤه. بمعنى نحتاج من الان ان نستعد بقوة بأيمان

عامل وبتنقية القلب وان نثمر بالخدمة أي نجمع زيت في مصابيحنا لان الظلمة والضيق اقتربت

جدا ومن لن يستعد لها بزيت كافي من الان لن يجد زيت في الضيقة لان وقتها تجميع زيت

سيكون صعب جدا بل أستطيع ان أقول من مثل العذارى انه لن يكون هناك زيت الا ما جمعه

سابقا. أفضل ان اقول لنفسي ولكم استعدوا الان لأنه اقترب فنكون مستعدين سواء جاء او نحن ان سلمنا وديعتنا عن أنى لا اقول انه اقترب لكيلا يقال عني كاذب وانشتر اشاعات ولكنه يأتي بسرعة بغته. لا اعتقد اي أحد ندم لانه كان مستعد ومنتظر مجيء المسيح ولم ياتي المسيح في زمنه ولكنه انتقل وهو مستعد ولكن كثيرين جدا ندموا على عدم الاستعداد عندما انتقلوا

المسيح قال بعض العلامات مثل

انجيل لوقا 21

21: 10 ثم قال لهم تقوم امة على امة ومملكة على مملكة

21: 11 وتكون زلازل عظيمة في اماكن ومجاعات واوبئة وتكون مخاوف وعلامات عظيمة من

21: 25 وتكون علامات في الشمس والقمر والنجوم وعلى الارض كرب امم بحيرة البحر والامواج

تضج

21: 26 والناس يغطى عليهم من خوف وانتظار ما يأتي على المسكونة لان قوات السماوات

تزعزع

21: 27 وحينئذ يبصرون ابن الانسان اتيا في سحابة بقوة و مجد كثير

سفر اعمال الرسل 2

2: 19 واعطي عجائب في السماء من فوق وآيات على الارض من أسفل دما ونارا وبخار دخان

2: 20 تتحول الشمس الى ظلمة والقمر الى دم قبل ان يجيء يوم الرب العظيم الشهير

2: 21 ويكون كل من يدعو باسم الرب يخلص

لماذا قال المسيح بعض العلامات؟

أولا لكيلا نرتاع

انجيل متى 24

مت 24: 6 وسوف تسمعون بحروب واخبار حروب لا ترتاعوا لأنه لا بد ان تكون هذه

كلها ولكن ليس المنتهى بعد

إنجيل يوحنا 14: 29

وَقُلْتُ لَكُمْ الْآنَ قَبْلَ أَنْ يَكُونَ، حَتَّى مَتَى كَأَن تُوْمِنُونَ.

ثالثا لننتبه ونستعد

انجيل لوقا 21

28 وَمَتَى ابْتَدَأَتْ هَذِهِ تَكُونُ، فَاَنْتَصِبُوا وَاَرْفَعُوا رُؤُوسَكُمْ لِأَنَّ نَجَاتَكُمْ تَقْتَرِبُ».

Sun experiences seasonal changes, new research finds

by Staff Writers
Boulder CO (SPX) Apr 10, 2015

The Sun undergoes a type of seasonal variability with its activity waxing and waning over the course of nearly two years, according to a new study by a team of researchers led by the National Center for Atmospheric Research (NCAR). This behavior affects the peaks and valleys in the approximately 11-year solar cycle, sometimes amplifying and sometimes weakening the solar storms that can buffet Earth's atmosphere.

The quasi-annual variations appear to be driven by changes in the bands of strong magnetic fields in each solar hemisphere. These bands also help shape the approximately 11-year solar cycle that is part of a longer cycle that lasts about 22 years.

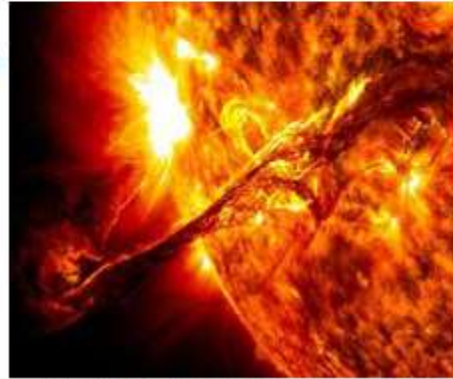

"What we're looking at here is a massive driver of solar storms," said Scott McIntosh, lead author of the new study and director of NCAR's High Altitude Observatory. "By better understanding how these activity bands form in the Sun and cause seasonal instabilities, there's the potential to greatly improve forecasts of space weather events."

The overlapping bands are fueled by the rotation of the Sun's deep interior, according to observations by the research team. As the bands move within the Sun's northern and southern hemispheres, activity rises to a peak over a period of about 11 months and then begins to wane.

The quasi-annual variations can be likened to regions on Earth that have two seasons, such as a rainy season and a dry season, McIntosh said.

The study, published this week in Nature Communications, can help lead to better predictions of massive geomagnetic storms in Earth's outer atmosphere that sometimes disrupt satellite operations, communications, power grids, and other technologies.

The research was funded by NASA and the National Science Foundation, which is

Large sunspot turns towards Earth – chance of solar flares

Posted on April 13, 2015

April 2015 – SPACE WEATHER – LARGE SUNSPOT TURNS TOWARD EARTH: A large sunspot group emerged over the weekend and it is turning toward Earth. Karzaman Ahmad of the Langkawi National Observatory in Malaysia photographed “AR2321” during the early hours of Monday, April 13th: Sprawling more than 120,000 km from end to end, the sunspot group has several dark cores as large as Earth. These dimensions make AR2321 an easy target for backyard solar telescopes. If you have one, take a look.

Of greater interest is the region’s potential for flares. AR2321 has an unstable “beta-gamma-delta” magnetic field that harbors energy for strong eruptions. NOAA forecasters estimate a 55% chance of M-class flares and a 20% chance of X-flares on April 13th – Space Weather

41 killed, as powerful storms slam Bangladesh – storms strike Haiti, killing 6

Posted on April 8, 2015

April 2015 – BANGLADESH – At least 41 people were killed when powerful storms swept Bangladesh at the weekend and left a trail of devastation in the northwest, officials said Monday. Rescuers and villagers recovered the bodies of victims after the storms flattened thousands of houses, uprooted trees and electricity poles and damaged paddy fields across a large area on Saturday night and Sunday. Nineteen people died in the northern district of Bogra, government administrator of the district Shafiqur Reza Biswas told AFP, adding that more than 100 people were injured. "They died mostly after they were hit by falling trees or collapsed houses and walls," he said, adding that authorities have sent emergency relief to thousands of villagers. In neighboring Rajshahi district, at least five people were killed and 27 injured as the storm hit a large stretch of low-lying land, another administrator said.

"At least 6,960 mud and tin-built houses were completely damaged by the storm," said Mejbah Uddin Chowdhury. In the western district of Kushtia two people died and around 100 houses were flattened on Sunday. Two died from lightning strikes as the storm hit the southern port city of Chittagong on Monday, government officials told AFP. There were also fatalities in at least nine other districts, officials told local media, bringing the death toll to 41. Storms known locally as Kalboishakhi often hit Bangladesh during the early summer in the lead-up to the monsoon, which usually begins about the first week of June. –Space Daily, VOA

Haiti floods kill six, damage thousands of homes

by Staff Writers
Port-Au-Prince (AFP) April 6, 2015

The first heavy rains of the wet season flooded parts of the Haitian capital Port-au-Prince over the weekend, leaving at least six dead and damaging 8,000 homes, authorities said Monday.

Raging floodwaters swept two children aged three and seven to their deaths in the Delmas district of the capital, and a 24-year-old woman was killed when a church wall collapsed on her house.

Three more people died in the western, coastal Carrefour district of the city.

Haiti, the poorest country in the western hemisphere, is prey to torrential Caribbean storms and Port-au-Prince's garbage-choked drainage channels struggle with the worst downpours.

Some citizens are still living rough or in substandard housing five years after a devastating earthquake killed more than 200,000 people and levelled entire neighborhoods.

The head of civil protection in the capital region, Nadia Lochard, said that more than 8,000 homes had been flooded in the latest rains, mostly in the Cite Soleil slum and Tabarre suburb.

Officials said the weather forecast looks less menacing for the remainder of the week, but Haiti's annual rainy season normally begins in April and more storms are expected.

Toll in Chile floods rises to 26 dead

Santiago (AFP) April 6, 2015 - The death toll from flash floods that devastated Chile's normally arid north has risen to 26 and could increase further, with another 120 people still missing, officials said.

The Atacama region, home to the world's driest desert, and the neighboring city of Antofagasta were deluged by heavy rains on March 24 that swept away thousands of homes, leaving thick layers of muck and tens of thousands of devastated residents in their wake.

The National Emergency Office said in its latest update Sunday night that more than 2,500 people remained in emergency shelters, with more than 6,000 homes badly damaged and more than 2,000 completely destroyed.

President Michelle Bachelet, who pulled out of this week's Summit of the Americas in Panama to deal with the crisis, vowed "we will rebuild" on Saturday in her second visit to the region since the floods.

Health officials have warned there is a high risk of outbreaks of gastrointestinal and respiratory diseases because of the mud and lack of drinking water.

'Warm blob' in Pacific Ocean linked to weird weather across the U.S.

Posted on April 12, 2015

April 2015 – CALIFORNIA – A mysterious “warm blob” in the Pacific Ocean could be the reason why US West coast states like California are experiencing their worst ever drought, a new study says. The blob in the ocean was discovered last year, with temperatures one to four degrees Celsius (two to seven degrees Fahrenheit) above surrounding ‘normal’ water, causing havoc to West Coast marine ecosystem and led species to seek refuge elsewhere. The blob extends about 1,000 miles (1,600 kilometers) offshore, from Mexico up to Alaska, and was 300 feet (90 meters) deep.

A study by the University of Washington found that a high-pressure ridge could be causing the blob, by trapping heat in the water. Dr. Nick Bond, a climate scientist at the University of Washington, coined the term ‘the blob’ in June. Researchers said it may have contributed to the state of Washington’s mild 2014 winter and might signal a warmer summer. It is still unclear how this area of warmer water has formed, or how long it will stay. One thing scientists can be studied is its effects. As air passes over warmer water and reaches the coast it brings more heat and less snow, which the scientists say helped cause current drought conditions in California, Oregon and Washington. Bond says all the models point to it continuing through the end of this year.

Incredible satellite images have shown a massive sandstorm almost as large as the United States billowing across the Arabian Peninsula.

The sandstorm wrecked havoc across the area last week, causing traffic accidents, the cancellation of hundreds of flights and triggering breathing difficulties among residents.

Images show the vast sandstorm sweeping its way across Saudi Arabia, Oman and the United Arab Emirates and reaching as far east as India and Pakistan over a period of seven days.

LONG BEACH — Water authorities are using a new tool in a major effort to crack down on people and businesses wasting water in light of new water restrictions issued by Gov. Jerry Brown to fight the drought.

The Long Beach Water Department says sprinklers at a McDonald's restaurant on Bellflower Boulevard went on for 45 minutes at a time, twice a night, for an undefined number of nights. Complaints continued to mount as water pooled and wasted. The department, however, could do little about the wasting.

Turrialba Volcano erupts hot rocks, ash 2 kilometers high

Posted on April 7, 2015

April 2015 – COSTA RICA – Turrialba Volcano is at it again. The Volcanological and Seismological Observatory (OVSICORI) released video Tuesday of an eruption at 2:07 a.m., when a column of hot rocks and ash rocketed out of the colossus. The eruption sent ash 2 kilometers into the air. The eruption's most dramatic moment comes 14 seconds into the video when a rush of heat from the crater flashes white on the screen.

Ash and sulfur smells from the eruption were reported as far away as Ciudad Quesada and across Alajuela, Escazú, Heredia and Curridabat, among other places. See the map from OVSICORI for more details: OVSICORI said on its Facebook page that it was investigating the eruption to see if it was related to the volcano's recent activity. –Tico Times

The volcano, like many others currently erupting on the planet, was awakened from a dormant sleep (2006) and has continued to erupt ever since. We're currently on pace to witness a record number of volcanic eruptions this year. It's only April, and 50 systems have already erupted. The average number of volcanoes that typically erupt in a year is somewhere between 50-60. -TEP

April 2015 - PERU - Nearly on the anniversary of the evacuation of 28 thousand camelids from its pastures, the Ubinas volcano erupts once again. The Ubinas volcano of the Moquegua region erupted this morning at 4:24 a.m. causing a layer of ash to fall over nearby villages minutes later, according to Perú21. On March 31, 2014, the volcano's eruption caused Querapi residents to be evacuated as it sits just five kilometers from the volcano. Days later on April 21, Peru ordered the evacuation of the camelid animals, as the volcano posed a threat following further activity.

Gateway to hell? Locals terrified by 800C flaming sinkhole which has appeared in mountains

The 800C fire hole, which has all the appearances of a gateway to Hades, was discovered by villagers in Urumqi, the capital of Xinjiang in north-western China last week. Although superstitious residents are steering clear baffled geologists and mining experts have flocked to catch a glimpse of the strange hole. Even two metres away the heat blasting from the 80cm wide hole has been measured at 792C (1457F). The intense heat is making it difficult for experts to get close enough to determine the hole's depth. Superstitious Chinese villagers have branded it a "gateway to hell". But experts from Xinjiang Meitian Geological Bureau said the hill is not a volcanic area and the hole is probably formed by a spontaneous combustion of coal, which causes the surface layer to collapse. Geologist Hu Tan, who is leading the investigation, said: "The air blasting out of the hole is so hot, that if you hold a branch near to it bursts into flames. "Although it is unusual, we're pretty certain that it has been caused by the spontaneous combustion of coal." His colleague, mining expert Cao Jianwen, said the area used to be a coal mine back in the 1970s and there were documented examples of similar phenomena from previous years. He added: "We have recorded a temperature of around 792C, which is pretty hot and I can understand that locals are superstitious. FULL REPORT

PHOTOS: Sinkholes as Deep as Eight-Story Buildings Form Along Shoreline of the Disappearing Dead Sea

The Dead Sea is disappearing at an alarming rate, leaving behind thousands of sinkholes that are chipping away at the coastlines vibrant and touristy atmosphere.

The Dead Sea - which is actually a lake - is known for being almost 10 times as salty as the ocean and for having the lowest elevation on Earth. However, over the last few decades, the shoreline has become known for sinkholes that appear to just pop up out of nowhere.

More than 3,000 sinkholes exist along the banks of the Dead Sea, ABC News reported. And some of these craters dive 80 feet into the ground - the equivalent of about an eight-story building.

(Thinkstock/istock)

Gidon Bromberg, the Israeli director at EcoPeace Middle East, told ABC news that "these sinkholes are the direct result of inappropriate mismanagement of water resources in the region."

Hundreds of dead fish in the river Tonto because of Ingenio Central Motzorongo

Local residents call for State Government Intervene

Hundreds of fish were found dead in the Tonto River, which crosses over 20 communities in the municipality of Tezonapa and Cosolapa, Oaxaca and ultimately flows into the dam Miguel Alemán; all this waste caused by toxic substances from the Central wit Motzorongo.

The Federal Office for the Environment (PROFEPA), the Ministry of Environment (SEMARNAT) and the National Water Commission, for years have been complicit in these agribusinesses and still contaminate not only water, but the environment, by shedding ashes and carbon dioxides causing serious damage to the sugarcane region.

Inhabitants of Ixtacapa El Chico, said that each year Motzorongo ingenuity to throw their waste as is cachaça, vinasse, caustic soda and other substances, causing fish kills in the river that runs through this area.

The municipal agent of this community, Aurelio Garcia Velasquez said that in order that this case was not out of control and out to the public, employees of the mill came Motzorongo to try to reach an agreement.

This river that until recently was a clean river, virgin, this company no matter causing serious injury and seeking their own interests, sheds debris under the complacency of the federal authorities, "of course, probably with a gun, but tickets," he noted.

Residents of this area, requested the intervention of the State Government to take action on the matter, otherwise, they warned, they will take you up the matter.

Low flow of the Tagus river is in fish death of origin in Abrantes

The Municipality of Abrantes considers that the "very low" of the Tagus River flow caused from Friday, April 3, the death of thousands of fish.

Councillor for the Environment of Abrantes Chamber, Manuel Valamatos, explained that the authority was alerted to the high death of fish in the river and that this is due to lack of water in the river.

"The dead fish were within the ladder 'fish pass' the dam of Abrantes, where many fish were still alive but trapped in this structure, due to lack of water in the river. We saved thousands of fish but a ton had to be removed by firefighters," said the mayor.

On site were elements of civil proteção, GNR, firefighters and the municipal veterinarian, who collected water samples and some dead fish specimens to carry out analyzes.

Low-path Bird Flu in Dutch Poultry Flock

06 April 2015

THE NETHERLANDS - Low-pathogenic H5 avian flu has been detected in a flock of 12,000 free-range poultry in North Brabant (Noord Brabant)

A poultry farm with 12,000 birds has been hit by avian influenza in Milheeze in Noord-Brabant. There are three poultry houses at the farm with outdoor access.

The low-pathogenic H5 variant has been identified. Because a low pathogenic (mild) H5 variant can mutate to a highly pathogenic variant that is deadly for poultry, according to European rules, depopulation of the farm has been carried out by the Dutch Food and Consumer Product Safety Authority (NVWA).

From 3 April, there has been a complete ban on the transporting poultry, eggs, poultry manure and used bedding within a radius of kilometre of the Milheeze farm. There is no sign of the disease at the only other poultry farm within that area.

The Wildlife Management Division, Eluru, has launched an exercise to collect dead fish from the 300-acre pond in the Kolleru Bird Sanctuary at Atapaka in Krishna district to avoid water pollution.

Water analysis conducted by a Kaikaluru-based private laboratory have attributed the massive fish kill to the fall in the Dissolved Oxygen (DO) level in the lake. "Our personnel are examining the dead fish. We are burying them with all necessary precautions without allowing any means of pollution," Kaikaluru In-Charge Forest Range Officer L. Dhana Raju said.

Fish kill has been on the rise in the lake, thanks to the water level touching its lowest level. The forest authorities could not maintain the average depth of four meters in the pond by early summer owing to lack of water in the Polraj drain, a source of water source for the pond.

"We have proposed to divert drinking water that is being supplied from Krishna to the Kaikaluru area into the pond to maintain sufficient water level in the remaining summer period.

Water diversion

Our officials are yet take a decision to request the Krishna Collector, seeking permission to divert the drinking water," said Mr. Dhana Raju.

Two New High-path Bird Flu Outbreaks in Taiwan's Geese

06 April 2015

TAIWAN - More than 7,600 geese have been affected in the two latest outbreaks of H5N2 highly pathogenic avian influenza (HPAI) in Taiwan.

Two new outbreaks of H5N2 highly pathogenic avian influenza are included in the latest Follow Up Report - no.15 dated 2 April - from Taiwan's veterinary authority to the World Organisation for Animal Health (OIE).

Abnormal mortality was observed at two poultry farms with geese located in the counties of Changhua and Yunlin. Samples were sent to the National Laboratory (AHRI) for diagnosis, where the H5N2 subtype of the HPAI virus was confirmed.

The outbreaks began on 23 and 24 March. A total of 7,660 geese were affected; 2,226 died and the rest have been destroyed.

The farms have been put under movement restrictions. All animals on the infected farms have been culled. Thorough cleaning and disinfection have been conducted after stamping out operation. Surrounding poultry farms within a three-kilometre radius have been put under intensified surveillance for three months.

Avian Cholera Kills More than 600 Birds in North Dakota

Posted: Mon 4:01 PM, Apr 06, 2015

Home / Headlines List / Article

More than 600 waterfowl carcasses discovered at Nelson Lake in Oliver County in March are a result of avian cholera, a bacteria that is readily spread in areas where waterfowl congregate in large numbers.

Dr. Dan Grove, wildlife veterinarian for the North Dakota Game and Fish Department, said the initial inspection on March 10 revealed the presence of primarily mallards and Canada geese, already in varying states of decay. "Based on carcass decomposition, it looked like the onset was likely weeks earlier," Grove said.

Whole carcasses were shipped March 11 to the National Wildlife Health Center in Madison, Wis., for necropsy and disease testing. The lake was surveyed a second and third time on March 11-12, when carcasses were again collected and shipped.

"Birds were tested for multiple diseases, including avian influenza, which came back negative," Grove said. "Typically we do not see die-offs in wild birds from AI."

Dead fish litter shorelines of western NY ponds; biologists blame extensive ice, snow cover

BUFFALO, New York — The state Department of Environmental Conservation has been getting lots of calls about dead fish littering the banks of ponds, but biologists say it's probably nothing to worry about.

Fisheries biologists from DEC's Buffalo office say the extended period of ice and deep snow is likely to result in fish die-offs in numerous ponds, especially shallow ones. The phenomenon is known as winterkill.

Winter die-off is caused by oxygen depletion in the water. Ice prevents wind action from adding oxygen to the water, and deep snow blocks sunlight from reaching aquatic plants. Without enough light, the plants can't produce oxygen.

DEC says the best way to avoid winterkill is to deepen a pond to more than 12 feet and remove some of the decaying plant material on the bottom.

Niger isolates suspected bird flu farm as region takes precautions

NIAMEY | BY ABDOULAYE MASSALAKI

(Reuters) - Niger has identified a suspected outbreak of H5N1 bird flu on a chicken farm in the southern town of Maradi, near the border with Nigeria which has confirmed cases of the virus in several northern states.

Authorities in Niger said late on Wednesday they had isolated the farm and banned the transport of all poultry out of the town, the third largest in the country, as they waited for samples to be tested in Italy.

The suspected cases in Niger come a week after neighboring Burkina Faso also confirmed an outbreak of H5N1.

A number of nations in the region, where borders are porous and millions rely on poultry farming as a source of income, last faced a major outbreak of bird flu in 2006.

Bangana Ibrahim, Niger's livestock minister, said authorities suspected bird flu on the Maradi farm after more than half of the 2,440 chickens on it died.

Ibrahim said that all poultry imports from any nation that had confirmed bird flu had been banned as of April 7. Ivory Coast and Mali have imposed similar preventative measures.

Deadly Bird Flu Hits Ninth Minnesota Farm

A ninth Minnesota turkey farm has been hit by a form of bird flu that's deadly to poultry, this time in a large Jennie-O-Turkey Store operation that has 310,000 turkeys, federal authorities and company officials say.

M: |Le|Newsletters|Newsletters|April

The U.S. Department of Agriculture said tests confirmed it was the same highly pathogenic H5N2 strain of avian influenza that infected eight other farms in Minnesota, the country's top turkey-producing state. Those farms have lost about 373,000 turkeys to the outbreaks between the disease itself and birds that were killed to prevent the disease from spreading.

Minnesota Board of Animal health spokeswoman Erica Gunderson said the Meeker County operation has 10 barns on various sites. She didn't know immediately how many birds were in the infected barn, but said state officials would be working to determine what to do with the turkeys in the other barns.

Jennie-O, a division of Hormel, said on its website that it's the first company-owned facility to test positive for the virus. Three previous confirmed cases connected to Jennie-O were flocks that were being raised by independent contractors. Those were in Kandiyohi, Stearns and Lac qui Parle counties.

More than 130 melon-headed whales, a member of the dolphin family usually found in the deep ocean, beached in Japan on Friday, sparking frantic efforts by locals and coastguards to save them.

Children looking at melon-headed whales beached on the shore of Hokota city, northeast of Tokyo, on Friday.

Rescuers were battling to stop the creatures' skin from drying out as they lay on a beach about 100 kilometers (60 miles) northeast of Tokyo, while some were being carried in slings back toward the ocean.

Television footage showed several animals from the large pod had been badly cut, with many having deep gashes on their skin.

An AFP journalist at the scene said that despite efforts to get the dolphins into the water, some were being pushed back onto the beach by the tide soon after they had been released.

Only three of some 150 electra dolphins are believed to have been saved, after being washed ashore in the Ibaraki Prefecture. Scientists are trying to explain the incident, while some see it as an ominous sign to a similar case before the 2011 earthquake.

South Korea is continuing to fight outbreaks of foot-and-mouth disease (FMD) and highly pathogenic avian influenza (HPAI), which despite a cull of millions and a vaccination programme have not yet been eradicated.

Since the first reported outbreak of FMD on 3 December, a total of 151 cases in pig and cattle farms have been confirmed. To date 139,000 head on 160 farms have been culled.

According to a USDA report, FMD cases have recently spread to new areas and the number of cases is increasing rather than falling.

The Korean government attributes this to an increased number of reports being filed and more tests being carried out as a result of enhanced quarantine measures.

Ebola-Like Outbreaks to Become More Frequent, Warns UN

The Ebola crisis created more than 25,000 orphans in a little over a year in Sierra Leone, Liberia and Guinea.

The U.N. Secretary-General Ebola specialist David Nabarro warned Sunday that because of climate change, outbreaks like Ebola could become more frequent.

Nabarro told British newspaper The Independent that diseases which can be transmitted from animals to humans were a "local and global threat to humanity."

Almost 10,500 people died from the recent Ebola outbreak, the vast majority of whom were from Sierra Leone, Guinea, and Liberia. The disease is believed to have come from fruit bats.

Trace amounts of radioactive isotopes from Fukushima power plant disaster have been detected along B.C.'s shoreline for the first time.

The traces were discovered Feb. 19 from samples collected in Ucluelet are well below internationally established levels of concern to humans and marine life, says the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution \(WHOI\).

No radiation was found at the other 59 sites examined regularly and tested along the U.S. and Canada west coast over the last 15 months.

"Radioactivity can be dangerous, and we should be carefully monitoring the oceans after what is certainly the largest accidental release of radioactive contaminants to the oceans in history," Ken Buesseler, a marine chemist at WHOI, said. "However, the levels we detected in Ucluelet are extremely low."

Seaborne radiation from Japan's Fukushima nuclear disaster has reached North America.

Scientists at the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution detected small amounts of cesium-134 and cesium-137 in a sample of seawater taken in February from a dock on Vancouver Island, British Columbia.

It's the first time radioactivity from the March 2011 triple meltdown has been identified on West Coast shores.

Woods Hole chemical oceanographer Ken Buesseler emphasized that the radiation is at very low levels that aren't expected to harm human health or the environment.

USA TODAY
Student loan can hurt your credit for how long?

"Even if the levels were twice as high, you could still swim in the ocean for six hours every day for a year and receive a dose more than a thousand times less than a single dental X-ray," Buesseler said. "While that's not zero, that's a very low risk."

Massive amounts of contaminated water were released from the crippled nuclear plant following a 9.0 magnitude earthquake and tsunami. More radiation was released to the air, then fell to the sea.

Frustrated by the absence of monitoring by U.S. federal agencies, Buesseler last year launched a crowd-funded, citizen-science seawater sampling project.

He's tracked the radiation plume across 5,000 miles of the Pacific Ocean, using highly sensitive, expensive equipment at his Cape Cod, Massachusetts, laboratory. There, he analyzes samples sent to him by West Coast volunteers and scientists aboard

A fresh report in Japan shows the number of deaths resulting from the country's Fukushima nuclear power plant disaster in 2011 increased by 18 percent last year.

The report published on Tuesday by the Japanese newspaper Tokyo Shimbun said figures from authorities in Fukushima Prefecture showed a total of 1,232 deaths in 2014 were linked to the nuclear disaster.

The highest number of fatalities occurred in the town of Namie near the Fukushima Daiichi Nuclear Power Station, with 359 deaths, followed by 291 cases in Tomioka town also near the plant.

Nuclear radiation exposure can cause serious health problems. The first signs of nuclear radiation exposure are nausea and vomiting.

Exposure increases the probability of developing some other diseases, mainly cancer, tumors, and genetic disorders.

U.S Forces Building In Eastern Europe To Counter Russia

American soldiers are once again being called upon to be ready for war, this time their deployment will take them to Eastern Europe, rather than the Middle East. Russia continues to exert its power in the region and continues to promote unrest, arming rebels with sophisticated weapon technology, etc. After capturing and absorbing the Crimea Peninsula into the Russian Empire, President Putin has continued westward with Ukraine. After nearly a year of fighting in Ukraine, the shooting down of passenger plane Malaysia Airlines Flight 17, Putin continues to supply weapons to Russian rebels and amass a massive force on Russia's border with other Baltic states such as Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, etc.

The EMP Threat: All It Would Take Is A Couple Of Explosions To Send America Back To The 1800s

By Michael Snyder, on April 6th, 2015

Our entire way of life can be ended in a single day. And it wouldn't even take a nuclear war to do it. All it would take for a rogue nation or terror organization to bring us to our knees is the explosion of a couple well-placed nuclear devices high up in our atmosphere. The resulting electromagnetic pulses would fry electronics from coast to coast. Of course this could also be accomplished without any attack. Scientists tell us that massive solar storms have hit our planet before, and that it is inevitable that there will be more in the future. As you will read about below, the most recent example of this was "the Carrington Event" in 1859. If a similar burst from the sun hit us today, experts tell us that life in America could suddenly resemble life in the 1800s, and the economic damage caused could potentially be in the trillions of dollars. This is one of the greatest potential threats that we are facing as a nation, and yet Barack Obama has essentially done nothing to get us prepared.

The technology necessary to conduct such an electromagnetic pulse attack against the United States has become much more accessible in recent years. According to an article in the Wall Street Journal, even rogue nations such as North Korea and Iran either already have or will soon have the capability to hurt us in this way...

Rogue nations such as North Korea (and possibly Iran) will soon match Russia and China and have the primary ingredients for an EMP attack: simple ballistic missiles such as Scuds that could be launched from a freighter near our shores; space-launch vehicles able to loft low-earth-orbit satellites; and simple low-yield nuclear weapons that can generate gamma rays and fireballs.

NORAD Head: Russian Bombers Sending a Message

Russia is using its long-range bomber fleet to send a message to the US, and the general charged with protecting the homeland says those flights will continue, or even expand, in the coming months. Adm. Bill Gortney said the flights by long-range Russian bombers are "messaging" for the US, a reminder that there is another nation capable of power projection. "They are messaging us. They are messaging us that they are a global power," Gortney told reporters Tuesday, before noting that "we do the same sort of thing." Gortney said the number of Russian flights near the US has gone up since tensions between the two nations began to rise following the former's invasion and annexation of Crimea last February, with North American Aerospace Defense Command (NORAD) keeping a close eye on where those planes are and what they are doing. FULL REPORT

Two pairs of B-52H Stratofortress bombers, from Barksdale AFB and from Minot AFB, streaked north last week on a long-range exercise dubbed "Polar Growl." One set of bombers would end up over the far reaches of the North Sea, while the other would cruise high above the Polar Icecap, both areas where Putin's Russia is increasing its presence. This doesn't seem like a coincidence.

Russian Fighter Jet Nearly Collides with U.S. Spy Jet Over Europe

U.S. protests 'reckless' aerial encounter over Baltic Sea (UPDATED)

BY: Bill Gertz Follow @BillGertz

April 10, 2015 5:35 pm

A Russia Su-27 jet fighter flew dangerously close and nearly collided with a U.S. reconnaissance aircraft this week in the latest aerial provocation by Moscow, defense officials revealed to the Washington Free Beacon.

The Su-27 conducted the close-in intercept of an RC-135 reconnaissance aircraft in international airspace over the Baltic Sea on Tuesday, said officials. The incident prompted a diplomatic protest.

"On the morning of April 7th, a U.S. RC-135U flying a routine route in international airspace was intercepted by a Russian Su-27 Flanker in an unsafe and unprofessional manner," said Pentagon spokeswoman Eileen M. Lainez.

"The United States is raising this incident with Russia in the appropriate diplomatic and official channels," she said in a statement.

A defense official said the Russian fighter jet flew within 20 feet of the unarmed reconnaissance jet in what the official called a "reckless" encounter that endangered the lives of the RC-135 crew.

No details were available regarding the mission of the RC-135, which was in a position to monitor Russian military activities in western Russia and Kaliningrad.

In Moscow, a Russian Defense Ministry spokesman confirmed the incident.

Maj. Gen. Igor Konashenkov, the spokesman, said the intercept was carried out after the aircraft was detected by Russian radar.

In a maneuver with ominous echoes of the Cold War, a Russian fighter jet 'aggressively' intercepted an American plane over Poland, the Pentagon claims.

Filing an official complaint to Russia, the State Department alleges a U.S. RC-135U reconnaissance aircraft was flying near the Baltic Sea in international airspace when a Russian SU-27 Flanker cut into its path.

Pentagon officials have slammed the move as 'unprofessional' and 'unsafe'.

Northcom: China's Three Missile Submarines a 'Concern'

North Korea has small warheads for ICBMs (Updated)

April 7, 2015 5:10 pm

The Chinese Navy has deployed three ballistic missile submarines at sea capable of striking the United States with nuclear missiles, the commander of the U.S. Northern Command said Tuesday.

Adm. William Gortney, the commander, said the submarines are a "concern" and will be able to strike the United States when fully deployed with missiles and warheads.

The missile submarines are deployed in the South China Sea at a base on Hainan Island, according to a defense official.

"They've not loaded their missiles or begun strategic patrols," the official said. "But we believe they are likely to begin this year."

Gortney also stated explicitly that U.S. intelligence agencies have concluded that North Korea is capable of mounting a small nuclear warhead on its new road-mobile KN-08 intercontinental missiles.

In a wide ranging interview with reporters at the Pentagon, the admiral also disclosed that Russia is engaged in political "messaging" by sending long-range nuclear bombers near the United States and will probably follow through with promises to fly Tu-160 Blackjack bombers near the southern U.S. coast.

On the Chinese sea-based nuclear threat, Gortney said: "They have put to sea their sea-launched ballistic missile submarines. I believe they have three in the water right now."

Gortney said any time a nation has nuclear weapons and delivery systems that can reach the U.S. homeland, "it's a concern of mine."

It was the first time a senior U.S. military official voiced worries about Chinese nuclear missile submarines.

The four-star admiral in charge of the Colorado-based Northern Command in charge of homeland military defense said Chinese

US Researchers: Hundreds of NKorea Missiles Threaten Asia

WASHINGTON — Nuclear-armed North Korea already has hundreds of ballistic missiles that can target its neighbors in Northeast Asia but will need foreign technology to upgrade its arsenal and pose a more direct threat to the United States, U.S. researchers said Tuesday.

Those are the latest findings of a research program investigating what secretive North Korea's nuclear weapons capability will be by 2020.

Unlike Iran, the current focus of international nuclear diplomacy, North Korea has conducted atomic test explosions. Its blood-curdling rhetoric and periodic missile tests have set the region on edge and there's no sign of negotiations restarting to coax it into disarming.

For now, the emphasis is on sanctions and military preparedness. Defense Secretary Ash Carter visits Japan and South Korea this week amid speculation the U.S. wants to place a missile defense system in South Korea against North Korean ballistic missiles, which Seoul is reluctant about as it would alienate China. The U.S. has already deployed anti-missile radar in Japan.

After Iran's Nuclear Deal, Antichrist Turkey Is Now Preparing For A 'Peace Deal' WITH ISRAEL

by Shoebat Foundation on April 6, 2015 in Featured, General

Turkey, and while the U.S. makes a nuclear deals with Iran, Erdogan is attempting to make deals with both, Iran, to expand his alliance, and Israel, for a false peace deal. Turkey is honed in on Israel luring her into a peace deal, now more than ever.

To eliminate my 'special prophetic effects', I just posted the article as is, this way no one can say this is simply my projections. This is a time to see how the Bible speaks of these times more than ever. And while the world slumbers, this is the time to stay wide awake, keeping oil in your lamps, lest you be caught asleep when the Bridegroom suddenly comes. Today's Zaman titled their article as, AK Party may get closer to Israel after Iran's nuclear deal, here it is:

"The ruling Justice and Development Party (AK Party) has started to send a number of positive messages to Israel, after Iran's tentative nuclear deal with major world powers on April 2, which will likely upend the Middle East's fragile balance of power while eliminating a major security concern in the region.

In a recent interview with Israeli television, Deputy Prime Minister Bülent Arınç said it would be a positive thing for Israel to pick Turkey as a partner, if it wants to start afresh with Turkey. He also said teaming up with Turkey would be good for Israel's security.

The White House took to Twitter to send a mocking message Israel's way, using a graphic Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu relied on in his 2012 address to the United Nations as a springboard to defend the looming U.S.-Iran nuclear deal.

Netanyahu presented a diagram before the United Nations General Assembly two years ago that included a picture of a bomb with red and blue lines, with the overall point being: We need to keep Iran from acquiring nuclear technology to make weapons.

Iran's deputy U.N. ambassador Gholam Hossein Dehghani told the U.N. Disarmament Commission that "a comprehensive, binding, irreversible, verifiable" treaty is the most effective and practical way to eliminate nuclear weapons.

Russian President Vladimir Putin signed a decree on Monday lifting a ban on the delivery of S-300 anti-missile systems to Iran, the Kremlin said on Monday.

Russian Foreign Minister Sergey Lavrov said that in light of the progress in the nuclear talks between Iran and the world powers, there was no longer a need for the embargo.

According to the Kremlin, the presidential decree lifts the ban to deliver the missile system to Iran through Russian territory or outside of it, using planes or ships sailing under the Russian flag.

IRAN SENDS NAVY VESSELS TO WATERS OFF YEMEN, RAISING STAKES

BY AHMED AL-HAJ AND SARAH EL DEEB
ASSOCIATED PRESS

SANAA, Yemen (AP) -- Iran dispatched a destroyer and another naval ship to waters off Yemen on Wednesday, raising the stakes amid a Saudi-led air campaign targeting Iranian-backed Shiite rebels fighting forces loyal to the country's embattled president.

The Iranian maneuver came as the U.S. deepened its support for the Saudi-led coalition, boosting weapons supplies and intelligence-sharing and carrying out the first U.S. aerial refueling mission of coalition fighter jets.

The Iranian warships were sent to the strategic Bab al-Mandab strait as part of an anti-piracy campaign to "safeguard naval routes for vessels in the region," Iranian Rear Adm. Habibollah Sayyari was quoted as saying by the English-language state broadcaster Press TV.

Securing navigation in the narrow strait was a key reason for the Saudi-led air and maritime blockade that began after Yemen's internationally recognized president, Abed Rabbo Mansour Hadi, fled the country two weeks ago as the rebels closed in on Aden, Yemen's second-largest city where he was based.

Pakistan Says Saudis Asked For Troops, Ships, Planes For Yemen Campaign

April 08, 2015

Pakistan's defense minister says a Saudi-led coalition targeting Shi'ite rebels in Yemen has asked Islamabad for military aircraft, warships, and ground troops.

Khawaja Muhammad Asif made the comments on April 6 as Pakistan's parliament debates whether to contribute militarily to the campaign against the rebels, known as Huthis.

Pakistani Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif has offered his verbal support for the mission.

The Saudi-led campaign entered its 12th day on April 6, targeting rebels who took over the capital, Sanaa, in September and eventually forced President Abd-Rabbu Mansur Hadi to flee.

Facebook will now track users' finances in addition to social contacts, employment, health status, political affiliation

In its bid to become the provider – and tracker – of all things to all humans, Facebook has announced that it is entering the peer-to-peer money transfer market. The initiative is meant to rival PayPal, and it revolves around Facebook's Messenger app. According to the Financial Times, the Silicon Valley-based social media company is trying to compete with PayPal, Square and other payment providers and, eventually, even large banks, following an announcement that users will be able to upload a Visa or MasterCard debit card to the Messenger app and send payments to other Facebook users for free. Financial Times reported further: In a product that appears similar to PayPal's popular Venmo app, US users of Facebook will be able to send money from Apple and Android devices and desktop computers in the coming months. The company stressed it had enabled security features including a PIN and touch ID on iOS devices, after Venmo was accused of making it easy for fraudsters to steal from a users' bank account. FULL REPORT

Preparing For The Third Temple – Priests In Training Prepare Trial Run For Temple Sacrifice

April 06, 2015 | AMANDA BORSCHER-DAN

Share this article

The fall of the Second Temple 2,000-odd years ago may have seen the end of sacrificial offerings in Judaism. But ahead of Friday's festival of Passover, the Jerusalem-based Temple Institute has released a video offering an "authentic reenactment" of the ancient biblical practice.

The sacrificial lamb marks the miraculous exodus of the Jewish people from Egypt, as recorded in the Hebrew Bible. The ceremony was formally suspended for Jews with the destruction of the Second Temple in 70 CE, and is now only performed by the Samaritan community, which will hold its annual event on Mount Gerizim in the West Bank on May 2, 2015.

The roots of the sacrifice are found in the Book of Exodus. Ahead of the last of the 10 plagues on Egypt, the death of the firstborns, God tells Moses to speak to the people of Israel and instruct each household to obtain a lamb on the 10th of Nisan. The lambs should be kept until the 14th, when the people of Israel should slaughter them at dusk. Later, they should take its blood and put it on their doorposts and on the lintel of the houses in which they are eating. The fire-roasted lamb's flesh should then all be consumed that night with unleavened bread and bitter herbs.

In the biblical Kingdom of Israel, the annual sacrifice was conducted by the Kohanim, or priestly class, on Jerusalem's Temple Mount. Interestingly, although Jesus is often referred to as the "Paschal lamb," historians say an actual Paschal lamb was likely the main course at the historical Last Supper. Based on the Christian scriptures, many scholars claim the famous meal was indeed a Passover Seder.

This could be the scariest chart in the world, from Deutsche Bank's Torsten Sløk. Nearly half of American households don't save any of their money.

If it isn't obvious, this has a broad range of implications. People who don't save won't have any buffer should the economy turn and they lose their jobs. Longer term, people who don't save won't have the capacity to retire.

It's not good.

Christians Sue IRS for Covert Deal Against Churches

Christians are suing the Internal Revenue Status for discrimination against churches. (Charisma News File)

Alliance Defending Freedom filed a federal lawsuit Thursday against the Internal Revenue Service for failing to produce records on its secret deal with an activist group to investigate churches. Federal law requires the tax agency to produce the records that ADF requested under the Freedom of Information Act in July 2014, but the IRS missed its legally required deadline months ago and has continued to stonewall the request.

Judicial Watch attorneys are representing ADF in the lawsuit over the FOIA request, which asked that the IRS produce documents related to a legal settlement in which the agency apparently adopted new protocols and procedures for church investigations. ADF is requesting the same information already provided to Freedom From Religion Foundation, which struck a deal with the IRS to end the lawsuit Freedom From Religion Foundation v. Koskinen.

"Americans deserve to know what the IRS is up to," said ADF Litigation Counsel Christiana Holcomb. "The agency's unwillingness to produce these records only furthers the perception that it makes secret deals with activists that it wishes to hide from the public. The IRS's delays make no sense because we only asked

And the Reverend David Robertson, who will soon take over as Moderator of the Free Church of Scotland, also says there is no such thing as "secular Islam".

His comments come as debate rages throughout Britain as to how to tackle the issue of radical proponents of the religion without alienating minority communities.

But the minister stressed that although he opposes "racist, jingoistic Islamophobia, the fear of Islamophobia is blinding many of our politicians to the threat we face from Islam".

Christians in Indiana might have been better off if legislators repealed the RFRA, reverting Indiana's laws to their previous condition. (Reuters)

Hysteria over Indiana's Religious Freedom Restoration Act has drowned out one critical question: Who are the florist and baker that ABC's George Stephanopoulos hounded Gov. Mike Pence about?

When Americans learn what that florist and baker are threatened with, we face an emerging trend that will destroy companies and jobs, and the chilling specter of what sort of a nation we are becoming.

The florist is 70-year-old grandmother Baronelle Stutzman of Washington state. A longtime gay customer—with whom she had a warm relationship—wanted her to do flower arrangements for his gay wedding.

Mrs. Stutzman, a Southern Baptist, explained her Christian belief that marriage is between a man and woman, and thus could not participate in a gay wedding. Washington's attorney general prosecuted her, pursuing not only her business but also Mrs. Stutzman personally. A state judge has ruled against her, and she faces the loss of her life's savings and even her home.

Now Protesters Insist That A Catholic School
Must HIRE A Gay Teacher

Students and alumni of a Catholic high school in Iowa held a rally on Wednesday afternoon to protest a decision by school officials not to hire a gay teacher. The rally at Dowling Catholic High School in West Des Moines involved a walkout and a demonstration at which a handful of students and alumni spoke, reports The Des Moines Register. The gay teacher who did not get hired had worked as a substitute at Dowling Catholic High — a school of some 1,430 souls. In the process of vetting the teaching candidate for a full-time teaching job, school officials learned that he has a boyfriend and is engaged to be married. "In holding this walkout, our goal is to let our community, administration and diocese know that the decisions of our diocesan and school leaders are not a direct reflection of what the students at Dowling Catholic believe," Dowling student Grace Mumm said, according to the Register. A mere three months after the lethal Islamist terror attacks in Paris at the Charlie Hebdo headquarters and a kosher supermarket, heads of the Muslim community in France are demanding "to double the number of mosques in the state" - and they have support from a French minister.

Dalil Boubakeur, president of the French Muslim Council, said this week that France needs to double its current 2,200 mosques to a total of 4,400 within two years, citing skyrocketing population rates as justification for the construction boom.

Boubakeur said there are seven million French Muslims, although official figures indicate between five and six million; however, French government censuses generally do not query respondents on religion.

The demand was given surprising support on Tuesday from Thierry Mandon, the French minister of simplification, who claimed in an interview with the iTele TV channel that a shortage in "decent" mosques was partially causing Islamic radicalization.

Turkey Just Made A New National Anthem, And It Is Dedicated To The Antichrist

President Recep Tayyip Erdoğan never ceases to shock, as Nero, an archetype of Antichrist wanted a new Rome, Erdoğan's new anthem hails Erdogan himself as the reviver of a "New Turkey". Erdoğan's restless Antichrist spirit yesterday dedicates the anthem all with an Ottoman style performance as if reviving a wounded beast.

"The struggle for New Turkey is our Red Apple," Erdoğan said in reference to the lyrics in his speech. What "Red Apple" and what "New Turkey," the lyrics says it all: "We're in the race to be a global power Red apple New Turkey";

Obama backs ban on 'conversion' therapy for gay, transgender youth

Published April 09, 2015 - Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Barack Obama is calling for an end to psychiatric therapy treatments aimed at changing the sexual orientation or gender identity of gay, lesbian and transgender youth.

The move comes in response to an online petition posted on the White House website following the death of 17-year-old Leelah Alcorn. The transgender teen committed suicide in December and left behind writings mentioning religious therapy.

In a statement late Wednesday, White House senior adviser Valerie Jarrett said the administration supports banning so-called conversion therapy treatments for minors.

"We share your concern about its potentially devastating effects on the lives of transgender as well as gay, lesbian, bisexual and queer youth," Jarrett said. "The overwhelming scientific evidence demonstrates that conversion therapy, especially when it is practiced on young people, is neither medically nor ethically appropriate and can cause substantial harm."

The White House has opened its first gender-neutral restroom in what is seen as a symbolic step by President Barack Obama to protect the rights of the lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender (LGBT) community in the workplace.

White House spokesman Jeff Tiller said the "all-gender restroom" is in the Eisenhower Executive Office Building where many employees have meetings and offices and is next door to the West Wing which houses the president's offices.

The initiative is the latest in a series of actions by Obama to support the LGBT community. On Wednesday, the president issued an executive order barring companies that do business with the federal government from discriminating against LGBT staff.

"The White House allows staff and guests to use restrooms consistent with their gender identity, which is in keeping with the Administration's existing legal guidance on this issue," Tiller said in a statement.

No group seemed to play a bigger role in convincing Indiana lawmakers to alter their religious freedom law to ensure it wasn't used to discriminate against gays and lesbians than the business leaders who went public with their feelings.

Between Apple CEO Tim Cook's op-ed decrying the law in the Washington Post and the Indianapolis-based Angie's List putting a $40 million expansion on hold, the swift and stern reaction of the business community grabbed the attention of lawmakers.

Demonstrators gather in Indiana to protest the Religious Freedom Restoration Act. (Reuters)

How can the religious community live in peace and harmony with the LGBT community? New York Times columnist Frank Bruni has the solution. Just rewrite the Bible.

In his April 3rd column, "Bigotry, the Bible and the Lessons of Indiana," Bruni, himself gay, recognizes that Christian beliefs are not necessarily grounded in hatred. The problem, he claims, is that, "beliefs ossified over centuries aren't easily shaken."

Bruni, for his part, wants to shake us free from our fossilized faith.

According to Bruni, who evidences little or no understanding of how believers view the Scriptures (namely, as God's inspired Word), if we hold to the view that homosexual practice is sinful, this is our "decision" and "choice."

So, ironically, whereas homosexuality was once considered a choice, now what we believe about homosexuality is a choice.
