اكرر اننا لا نحدد مواعيد بل فقط نشجع بعضنا بعضا بقرب مجيء المسيح

وأیضا أوضح أنه يوجد نبوات لم نراها بعد مثل ابن الهلاك وهرمجدون

ولكن ایضا علامات كثيرة من التي قال عنها الكتاب انها في الزمان الاخير بدأت تحدث بوضوح

ويجب أن ننتبه اليها. ونذكر بعضنا باننا نحتاج ان نستعد. والاستعداد ليس فقط قبل مجيء

المسيح بل ایضا قبل الظلمة التي ستسبق مجيؤه ليكون عندنا زيت في مصابيحنا يكفي ان نعبر

هذه الظلمة وتكون مصابيحنا مضيئة وقت مجيؤه. بمعنى نحتاج من الان ان نستعد بقوة بأيمان

عامل وبتنقية القلب وان نثمر بالخدمة أي نجمع زيت في مصابيحنا لان الظلمة والضيقة اقتربت

جدا ومن لن يستعد لها بزيت كافي من الان لن يجد زيت في الضيقة لان وقتها تجميع زيت

سيكون صعب جدا بل أستطيع ان أقول من مثل العذارى انه لن يكون هناك زيت الا ما جمعه

سابقا. أفضل ان اقول لنفسي ولكم استعدوا الان لأنه اقترب فنكون مستعدين سواء جاء او نحن ان سلمنا وديعتنا عن أنى لا اقول انه اقترب لكيلا يقال عني كاذب وانشتر اشاعات ولكنه يأتي بسرعة بغته. لا اعتقد اي أحد ندم لانه كان مستعد ومنتظر مجيء المسيح ولم يأتي المسيح في زمنه ولكنه انتقل وهو مستعد ولكن كثيرين جدا ندموا على عدم الاستعداد عندما انتقلوا

المسيح قال بعض العلامات مثل

21: 10 ثم قال لهم تقوم امة على امة ومملكة على مملكة

21: 11 وتكون زلازل عظيمة في اماكن ومجاعات واوبئة وتكون مخاوف وعلامات عظيمة من

21: 25 وتكون علامات في الشمس والقمر والنجوم وعلى الارض كرب امم بحيرة البحر والامواج

تضج

21: 26 والناس يغطى عليهم من خوف وانتظار ما يأتي على المسكونة لان قوات السماوات

تزعزع

21: 27 وحينئذ يبصرون ابن الانسان اتيا في سحابة بقوة و مجد كثير

سفر اعمال الرسل 2

2: 19 واعطي عجائب في السماء من فوق وآيات على الارض من أسفل دما ونارا وبخار دخان

2: 20 تتحول الشمس الى ظلمة والقمر الى دم قبل ان يجيء يوم الرب العظيم الشهير

2: 21 ويكون كل من يدعو باسم الرب يخلص

لماذا قال المسيح بعض العلامات؟

انجيل متى 24

مت 24: 6 وسوف تسمعون بحروب واخبار حروب لا ترتاعوا لأنه لا بد ان تكون هذه

كلها ولكن ليس المنتهى بعد

إنجيل يوحنا 14: 29

وَقُلْتُ لَكُمْ الْآنَ قَبْلَ أَنْ يَكُونَ، حَتَّى مَتَى كَأَن تُوْمِنُونَ.

انجيل لوقا 21

28 وَمَتَى ابْتَدَأَتْ هَذِهِ تَكُونُ، فَاَنْتَصِبُوا وَاَرْفَعُوا رُؤُوسَكُمْ لِأَنَّ نَجَاتَكُمْ تَقْتَرِبُ».

13 dead after tornado strikes border city in Mexico – the most powerful tornado witnessed in 100 years

Posted on May 27, 2015

May 2015 – MEXICO – In six seconds, a tornado ripped through the border city of Ciudad Acuña, Mexico, with a ferocity that officials said hasn't been witnessed in more than 100 years. At least 13 people were killed, including three children, Acuña Mayor Evaristo Lenin Perez said. Another 200 were injured. Photos from the scene, which sits right across the border from Del Rio, Texas, showed cars blown upright, front bumper on the ground and leaning against homes. The twister flipped over school buses and damaged about 400 homes. Officials said records don't show such a powerful tornado hitting the city in more than a century.

The storm system that spawned the deadly tornado is the same one whose rains have caused flooding in Central Texas. Neighbors from across the international bridge in Del Rio. Acuña is a historic border city that people outside of Mexico know as the setting for Robert Rodriguez's films "El Mariachi" and "Desperado," and George Strait's song, "Blame it on Mexico." Mexican President Enrique Peña Nieto announced that he will visit Acuña, about 155 miles west of San Antonio, Texas, to survey the damage. —CNN

Heavy rainfall, floods and tornadoes have devastated southern-central US, killing several people, washing away houses and forcing thousands to flee. Rivers rose so fast that entire communities woke on Sunday surrounded by water.

At least one person was killed in Texas – a man, whose body was recovered from a flooded area along the Blanco River, the authorities said, adding that the river rose 7.9 meters (26ft) in just one hour.

About 1,200 residents in Hays County are now homeless after the Blanco River flooding.

More than 500 people killed as heat wave bakes parts of India

Twitter Facebook LinkedIn Google+ Email

NEW DELHI, May 25 (Thomson Reuters Foundation) - Soaring temperatures have gripped parts of southern and northern India in an extreme heat wave which has killed more than 500 people and looks set to continue this week, officials said on Monday.

The hottest place in India was Allahabad, a city in the northern state of Uttar Pradesh, which saw mercury rise to 47.7 degrees Celsius (117.8 Fahrenheit) on Sunday, while the capital Delhi recorded a high of 43.5C (110.3F).

Most of the 539 recorded deaths have been of construction workers, the elderly or the homeless in the southern states of Andhra Pradesh and Telangana, said officials, but some deaths have also occurred in Uttar Pradesh, Odisha and West Bengal.

The Indian Meteorological Department has issued a red warning to affected regions saying that the heat wave conditions are likely to continue over coming days.

Director of Andhra Pradesh's Disaster Management Department

K. Dhananjaya Reddy said 325 people had died of sunstroke or dehydration in the state in the last three days.

"We are advising people not to go to work between 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.," said Reddy. "We have also opened centres in different places specially in urban areas for the distribution of water and butter milk."

Death toll in India's intense and deadly heat wave soars to over 1,100

Posted on May 27, 2015

May 2015 – INDIA – India's heat wave has now claimed over 1,100 lives, with spiking temperatures melting roads in the capital, New Delhi, as the country awaits the arrival of the annual monsoon rains. More than 850 people have succumbed in the southeastern Indian state of Andhra Pradesh, where extreme temperatures claimed more than 200 lives in one district alone. In neighboring Telangana state, at least 266 people have died, officials say. Deaths have also been reported in the eastern states of Odisha and West Bengal, and in Gujarat on the country's western coast. With temperatures in parts of the country nearing 122° F (50°C), most of the deaths have been reported over the past week.

In New Delhi, where temperatures have been hovering around the 113°F (45°C) mark, the local Hindustan Times newspaper carried a picture on its front page on Tuesday of the disfigured white stripes of a pedestrian crossing as the asphalt on a city road melted in the extreme heat. Twitter users posted similar images. Most of the victims of the heat wave sweeping across the country were elderly, homeless or construction workers forced to work outside even as temperatures climbed, the paper said. Annual monsoon rains that are expected to hit southern India in the coming days will bring some relief — although it will take some time for the rains to reach northern India, Agence France-Presse reports. Even as the rains are forecast to arrive in the Hospitals in India are struggling to cope with an influx of victims of a blistering heat wave that has claimed nearly 1,800 lives in just over a week. Hundreds of people – mainly from the poorest sections of society – die at the height of summer every year in India but this year's figures are unusually high. In southern Andhra Pradesh – by far the worst-hit state – 1020 people have died since May 18, more than double the number of heat-related deaths for the whole of last year. In neighboring Telangana, where temperatures hit 48 degrees Celsius over the weekend, 340 people have died from the heat recently compared to 31 in the whole of last year. "Heat wave conditions in 2015 so far have been of a shorter duration, yet with a higher death toll," said the Centre for Science and Environment's Arjuna Srinidhi on Thursday.

A devastating heatwave has left more than 1,100 people dead over the past month in India, and photos also show the toll on the country's infrastructure.

Temperatures in the southeastern states of Andhra Pradesh and Telengana have reached 113 degrees in the past two days, The Associated Press reported. More than 1,100 people have reportedly died in the past month from heat-related causes in those two states, with at least 852 dead in Andhra Pradesh.

Over 430 hospitalized in Japan over heat wave

Posted on May 27, 2015

May 2015 – TOKYO, Japan – More than 430 people in Japan have been admitted to hospitals nationwide in a current heat wave in several regions of the country, Japan's Fire and Disaster Management Agency (FDMA) said Tuesday. FDMA, in charge of ambulance services, cites data between May 18 and 24. Cases of hospitalization because of heat were reported in Tokyo and Kyoto, as well as in the Saitama, Aichi, Fukushima and Fukuoka prefectures, among others. The temperature in some regions of Japan is predicted to rise above 30 degrees Celsius [86 Fahrenheit] on Tuesday, according to Japan Meteorological Agency. Experts warn about the dangers of outside overexposure and urge people to refrain from outdoor physical activity.

In May and June, a high probability of above-normal temperatures (above 40 degrees Celsius) on the islands of Okinawa and Amami is forecast. In April, an extraordinary warm air mass moved across parts of East Asia, bringing severe high temperatures to Japan. The temperatures in some of the country's prefectures were reported to be record-breaking. During May 11-17 period, two people died and 480 were hospitalized in Japan for heat exhaustion, according to FDMA. Japanese authorities have expressed concern that high heat could affect scheduled 2020 Summer Olympics and Paralympics in Tokyo. The officials are considering introducing measures to deal with high temperatures, including stadium air conditioning and green space promotion.

Alaska Experiences Warmest Temperatures in May Since Records Kept in 1890's

For those of you wondering where the infamous Texas Heat is, it appears it is in Alaska. Parts of Alaska have already climbed into the 90s this year. The warmest so far in Dallas-Fort Worth has been 88 °F. The high of 91 °F in Eagle, Alaska is the hottest ever recorded in the state of Alaska for so early in the season since temperature records began in the 1890s. This is over 30 degrees above normal for them and is the tenth record high they have had this month!

Third earthquake in one week hits Japan, no tsunami warning or reports of damage

Updated about an hour ago

Another earthquake, with a magnitude of 6.4 and a depth of 13.4 kilometres, has hit off the Izu Islands in Japan this morning following Saturday's 7.8 earthquake, according to United States Geological Survey (USGS).

There was no immediate tsunami warning following the quake.

Saturday's earthquake which struck off the Japanese coast, geologists said, shook buildings in Tokyo and set off car alarms.

Despite the huge power of the quake, there was no risk of a tsunami as the earthquake was located too deep inside the earth. The Pacific Tsunami Warning Centre reported.

Residential buildings swayed for around a minute as the quake built in intensity around 8:30pm (9:30pm AEST).

There were no immediate reports of injuries or damage.

The epicentre was 676 kilometres below the Earth's surface and was centred on a remote spot in the Pacific Ocean around 870 kilometres south of Tokyo, the USGS said.

Yoshiyuki Sasamoto, who runs a traditional guest house on Chichijima, one of the closest inhabited places to the epicentre, said the shaking had been violent.

"Initially a weaker quake hit and it stopped. Then the big one came. It was so strong that I couldn't stand still and couldn't walk," he said.

Japan Warned to Stay Vigilant for 'Big One' After Powerful Earthquake

Seismologists today warned Japan to stay vigilant for the next "Big One" after a powerful 7.8-magnitude earthquake hit off the coast of the quake-prone nation, injuring a dozen people. Buildings swayed for around a minute in Tokyo and its vicinity Saturday night as the quake struck at a remote spot in the Pacific Ocean around 874 kilometres (542 miles) south of the capital, the US Geological Survey said.

7.0 magnitude quake strikes offshore Alaska: USGS

Twitter Facebook LinkedIn Reddit Google+ Email

An earthquake with a magnitude of 7.0 struck off the southwest coast of Alaska late on Thursday, the U.S. Geological Survey reported.

The USGS said the quake's epicenter was 104 km (64 miles) south-southeast of Ugashik and 61.7 km deep. The agency upgraded the temblor to a 7.0 after initially stating it was slightly weaker.

The Pacific Tsunami Warning Center said that based on its available data, no tsunami was expected.

The USGS said the quake was unlikely to cause casualties and notable damage, and there were no immediate reports of such.

The area near the quake, centered some 400 miles (643 km) southwest of Anchorage, is lightly populated, according to the USGS.

May 2015 – INDONESIA – Monitoring officials have warned residents to remain alert as Mount Sinabung in North Sumatra continues with intense volcanic activity. A local chief reported that ongoing eruptions had taken a mental toll on residents, with two people being sent to mental institutions. The volcano erupted twice early on Wednesday, at 1:21 a.m. and 3:30 a.m., and sent hot clouds southward. The Sinabung observation station recorded at least 87 tectonic quakes and lava flow from 12 a.m. to 12 p.m. Observation station staff member Deri Alhidayat said the volcanic intensity over the past few days had shown a significant increase, evident from the tectonic quakes occurring thus far. "Tectonic shock waves have been detected almost every day. As many as 20 tectonic and volcanic quakes have taken place today alone," said Deri on Wednesday. He added the eruptions were expected to continue for a long time.

He urged residents living around the mountain to raise their awareness until the government issued an official announcement on the volcano's status. Residents in Karo regency, especially those living around the volcano, are said to be depressed as the volcano has continued to erupt for almost five years with no sign of stopping. Pelin Sembiring, the chief of Guru Kinayan village, which is also affected by the eruption, said many residents had suffered from depression from the impacts of the eruptions. Two of his residents had to be treated at the Simalingkar mental hospital in Medan, North Sumatra, for severe depression as all their belongings had been destroyed and their farms, which they relied upon as a source of income, had been damaged by volcanic ash and pyroclastic flows. "Many residents are mentally depressed because they couldn't stand facing the impacts of the eruption disaster which prevails up until now," said Pelin.

Telica volcano shaken by explosive eruption – ejects ash cloud 3 km high

Posted on May 28, 2015

May 2015 – NICARAGUA – After a week of calm, a new phase of explosive activity occurred yesterday at the volcano, beginning with a moderately large explosion at 12:02 local time. An ash plume rose approx. 3 km above the summit. Several smaller explosions and phases of calm ash venting followed this event. Ash falls were noted in up to 15 km distance to the SW, in areas of the villages Posolega and Quezalguaque.

So far it is unclear whether the explosions are the result of phreatic or hydrothermal activity, i.e. caused by pressurized fluids in the shallow hydrothermal system, or whether they are result of new magma reaching the surface.

For now, INETER has not found evidence of fresh magmatic material in the deposits of the explosions – all ash and blocks are fragmented older rocks from near the surface – and the accompanying seismicity has been very shallow. This would favor the first scenario. –Volcano Discovery

By Cole Epley / World-Herald staff writer

Nebraska agriculture officials on Friday confirmed the third case of avian flu in the state, again in

Dixon County, and Nebraska Department of Agriculture director Greg Ibach told The World-Herald that it could take three months or more before producers there can begin rebuilding their flocks.

The most recent case involves 500,000 young hens. Those birds are within a mile of the first site where state and federal officials confirmed the first case on May 11.

Dead fish half loss of nearly 10 million

May 24 at noon, the reporter went to the big Wangcun, Lee ponds area of about 30,000 acres of dead fish floating in the water with shining white, exudes stench.

Lee said he fish for almost 10 years, has just spent 80,000 yuan last year, will expand ponds and put 5500 carp, tilapia and other fish. May 18 this year began, fish ponds are often out of the water, another death, to 22 days, more than half of the dead, the loss of nearly 10 million.

Why fish will die? Lee doubt related with the same village. Originally, the ponds are converted from farming, water from a ditch into the pond, because there is leakage drains, along flooded many vegetable. For this reason, often blocked or broken drains gap with the villagers, change the flow.

It is understood that the past year, Li and fellow villagers repeatedly coordinate the matter, the two sides to each other, has failed to resolve the contradiction. Instead of little things large, the two sides had two conflicts.

A second case of bird flu was announced Tuesday in central Iowa, with an egg-laying operation in Adair County, housing 975,000 hens, believed to be infected, the Iowa Department of Agriculture said.

The first outbreak in central Iowa was at Rose Acre Farms, a Winterset commercial egg-laying facility with 1.5 million chickens that was infected earlier this month.

An egg-laying operation with 160,000 hens in Webster County also is likely infected, the state agency said Tuesday. The new cases pushes the number of birds killed by or destroyed to contain the disease to 26.7 million. The estimate has changed as officials determine how many birds are infected.

The news comes as southwest Iowa residents voice concerns about a private landfill's decision to accept some of the millions of birds stricken with H5N2.

Experts: No one cause of 'alarming' North Coast whale deaths

POINT REYES STATION — Another dead whale washed ashore in Northern California, the 12th carcass that has appeared in the past few months and marks a higher-than-normal number of deaths but not a record.

The dozen whales have been found along nearly 300 miles of coastline and are of different species and various ages. In a typical year, one or two gray whales wash ashore, said Frances Gulland, the senior scientist for the Marine Mammal Center.

The most recent animal appeared Tuesday on a beach along the Point Reyes National Seashore, officials said. It's badly decomposed and headless, making identifying the species and its age difficult, said Mary Jane Schramm, spokeswoman for the Gulf of the Farallones National Marine Sanctuary.

"(The condition) suggests it could be a killer whale attack," she said.

Mysterious mass shellfish death near Whangarei, NZ

A horrible stench set off an investigation into a mysterious mass shellfish death at Ngunguru Sandspit in Northland. Aaron Franklin, who was visiting his parents in the area, alerted authorities to the deaths on Thursday May 21. The engineer estimates there were well over a million dead cockles, tuatua and pipi on the seaward beach and near the mouth of the estuary, with more on the seabed. Franklin returned to the area the next day where representatives from Northland Regional Council were gathering samples. He says the area "reeked of rotting shellfish".

Ghana's veterinary officers have culled over 35,000 birds as they handle the suspected case of bird flu at Kpone in the Greater Accra region.

Hundreds of birds have already been culled at poultry farms at Achimota and McCarthy Hill.

Veterinary officers are also restricting movements to the affected farms as they await confirmation of laboratory results from Italy.

Head of Public Health and Food Safety at the Veterinary Service, Dr. Boi Kiki-Moto told host of Morning Starr Kafui Dey Thursday that the farmers and veterinary officers are on high alert to contain the outbreak.

Expert blames domestic sewage, while MPCB says reason can be ascertained after tests; summer causes water level to drop, leading to higher concentration of waste.

Certain sections of the Indrayani river bank at Alandi floated a woeful sight to visitors. An entire shoal of fish was found dead and activists said this was not the first time. Instead, some went on to say that the frequency of spotting dead fish has been ever-increasing and is worrisome.

While the Mula-Mutha remains rather well-known for being the most polluted of the rivers, the pollution level of Pavana and Indrayani has been increasing too. Activists told Mirror that there are more cases than the ones which get reported. Shallow efforts to make the situation any better have irked activists, one of whom even is mulling independent investigation.

Officials from the Maharashtra Pollution Control Board (MPCB), who reached the spot on Wednesday, indicated it was too early to come up with a reason. Devidas Koparkar, subregional officer, MPCB, told Mirror, "We have collected a water sample and will be sending it for analysis. We can only know the reasons when reports arrive."

HARTFORD – Connecticut's Department of Energy and Environmental Protection why thousands of fish died in the past week in the state's coastal waters.

Multiple natural fish kills were reported during the past week. The kills were reported in several locations on the Thames River between Norwich and the U.S. Naval Submarine Base in Groton, in the lower Connecticut River, in Clinton Harbor and on the Quinnipiac River.

Thousands of Atlantic menhaden, and smaller numbers of other species were found dead at each location. The population of Atlantic menhaden has grown in local waters for the past two years, most likely due to limits placed on menhaden harvest along the Atlantic coast.

Questions over mass fish kill after wild west coast weather

By Michael Atkin

Updated 21 May 2015, 9:36pm

Hundreds of tonnes of farmed salmon worth millions of dollars have been killed by storm surges on Tasmania's west coast.

It is believed to be the state's biggest single fish kill and has raised questions about the industry's plans for expansion in Macquarie Harbour.

The Greens are calling for greater scrutiny of the aquaculture industry after confirmation that 270 tonnes of salmon perished at Petuna's operation.

The company has attributed the deaths to a big storm earlier this month which it said was the most severe of its kind in almost a decade.

An influx of seawater into the harbour caused a rapid change in oxygen levels and the fish suffocated in their pens.

After the incident, which Petuna described as minor stock loss, the fish were buried at a nearby landfill site.

In a statement it said fish welfare was paramount and it had a record of low stocking densities.

The incident has been seized upon by critics of the salmon industry's plans to double in size by 2030.

Greens senator Peter Whish-Wilson wants more independent research into the environmental impacts of the industry.

Local residents collected carcasses of more than 30 kites near Maralur village in Tumakuru

The incident has left forest officials, bird watchers and conservationists in Bengaluru and Tumakuru shocked

Is it an outbreak of a rare disease or spread of an unknown virus? Mysterious death of more than 80 kites in Tumakuru city (70 kilometers from Bengaluru), has set off alarm bells in both the forest department and animal husbandry department of the state. According to locals, in the last four-days more than 80 kites have mysteriously died and they suspect it to be either due to poisoning or the outbreak of a rare disease.

The incident has left forest officials, bird watchers and conservationists in Bengaluru and Tumakuru shocked. According to sources in the forest department, the incident came to light on Friday afternoon with locals collecting carcasses of more than 30 kites near Maralur village on Tumakuru's outskirts.

Talking to BM, TVN Murthy, Honorary Wildlife Warden, founder advisor Wildlife Aware Nature Club, Tumakuru said, "The incident is indeed shocking. Nowhere in Karnataka have we seen such large number of kites dying mysteriously. Previously, the site was used as landfill but later it was cleared and shifted to the outskirts. Yet, the local slaughterhouse owners dispose of carcasses here. It could be because of poisoning or

The seventh whale of this year washed ashore on California's Sonoma Coast – 28-foot whale found dead in Portuguese beach

Posted on May 25, 2015

May 2015 – CALIFORNIA – Yet another carcass of a gray whale has washed up on a beach in the Bay area over the weekend, making it the 7th dead whale to have been found in the last 5 weeks. The cause of death of this 28-foot whale found in Sonoma County's Portuguese Beach has not been determined yet and according to park officials the whale has been dead for quite a while as the remains had already been decomposing when it had been discovered. A California State Parks Ranger, Damien Jones has said that the whale carcass doesn't show any injuries of being hit by a ship. A tissue sample has been sent to the Marine Mammal Centre for investigating the reason behind the animal's death. Jones has said they are planning on leaving the carcass waiting for the tide to take it back into the ocean. "Generally we leave dead and sick animals where they are and let nature take its course," said Jones.

Last couple of months there had been other such case of dead whales washing up. On April 18th a dead killer whale had been discovered near Fort Bragg in Mendocino County. On April 24th two dead whales also washed up on a beach in Santa Cruz County; one being a full-grown 40-foot gray whale, while the other a 23-foot yearling displaying injuries from a killer whale attack. The locals in Pacifica have come across the remains of two whales at two different times. On April 14th they found a 48 foot sperm whale and on May 4th, a 42-foot female humpback had been found in the area.

Hormel says bird flu will affect turkey sales until 2018

As a virulent avian influenza outbreak continues to spread across the Midwestern United States, some egg-dependent companies are contemplating drastic steps - importing eggs from overseas or looking to egg alternatives.

A spokeswoman for Archer Daniels Midland said that as egg supplies tighten and prices rise, the food processing and commodities company has received numerous inquiries from manufacturers about the plant-based egg substitutes it makes.

Bird flu death toll climbs to 42 million hens and turkeys in United States

A staggering 42 million poultry have been destroyed in the worst outbreak of bird flu in America's history.

That is nearly three times larger than the last worst outbreak in 1983.

It is taking an emotional toll on farmers and staff and a team of forensics are conducting a CSI-style investigation on how it is continuing to spread unchecked.

It is the highly pathogenic avian influenza strain of H5 N2 (HPAI H5N2), which poses only a low risk to human health.

The Centre for Disease Control in the US said the virus is destroyed with proper handling and cooking of poultry and eggs, to an internal temperature of 165 degrees.

But the risk to birds is extreme.

Even farms with first class biosecurity still got hit, said David Inall, vice-president of the United Egg Producers.

"The poultry industry is now in uncharted waters, with the worst ever outbreak of bird flu, on 187 premises," Mr Inall said.

"There are 25 egg layer farms affected. Some of those farms are extremely large, with three to four million hens, with a total layer population of 35 million hens included in that number."

Plague of the giant jellyfish: Tens of thousands of 5ft stingers mass off south-west coast of Britain

- The huge barrel jellyfish were spotted off the Dorset coast by conservationist Steve Trehella and his grandson
- He saw thousands of the colourful creatures which are 5ft long and can sting humans - and even swam among them
- Unprecedented invasion could be due to overfishing which leaves fewer predators to eat them when they are young

Tens of thousands of giant jellyfish are swarming off one of Britain's most popular stretch of coastline this Bank Holiday.

Record numbers of the 5ft long monsters - which weigh five stone each - were spotted off the Dorset coast. The unprecedented invasion of barrel jellyfish may be due to overfishing which leaves fewer predators to eat them when they are young and smaller.

The jellyfish, which are more than three feet wide, may also have overwintered in the depths of UK waters.

Mysterious disease threatens Australian turtle with extinction – hundreds of turtles dead, scientists puzzled on disease

Posted on May 27, 2015

May 2015 – AUSTRALIA – Just three months – that's all it took to wipe almost every member of a species of turtles off the map. It all started in mid-February when canoeists paddling down the Bellinger River in New South Wales, Australia, came across several dead and dying turtles. Since then more than 400 dead turtles have shown up. Dozens more sick turtles were also recovered, each of which was lethargic, emaciated and covered in infected lesions in their eyes, skin and even internal organs. None of the infected turtles survived. The 60-kilometer river is the only home to the Bellinger River snapping turtle (Elsaya georgesi), a rare but little-studied species that has already been on the decline for years due to pollution and predation by invasive foxes. Scientists now fear that this mysterious, as-yet-unidentified disease has reached 90 percent of the turtle's habitat and could cause the species' imminent extinction.

Is there hope? So far 17 apparently healthy turtles have been captured and brought into safety. University of Western Sydney zoologist Ricky Spencer says the 10 males and seven females—all that could be located by a multiagency team of wildlife experts—will spend up to the next eight months in quarantine where they will be monitored daily for signs of the disease. If they stay healthy, they could later form the core of a captive-breeding program that could, in theory, save the species from extinction even if it completely disappears in the wild. Along with starting a captive-breeding program, the other big challenge is to identify the disease and determine how to stop it. The process could take years. Although other diseases and certain bacteria have been known to affect turtles—especially their fragile eyes—Spencer says there are no other known turtle diseases that produce such extensive lesions “throughout internal and external organs.”

After many thousands of years roaming much of central Asia, the saiga antelope has had a terrible couple of decades—and a devastating few weeks. A mysterious illness that causes severe diarrhea and breathing difficulties has wiped out what could be up to half of the remaining population of the species, New Scientist reports.

Officials in Kazakhstan say the disease has killed 85,000 of an estimated world population of 257,000 since about May 10, but experts say they've heard unofficial estimates closer to 120,000.

The deadly bird flu virus is only two or three mutations away from being infectious between humans, an expert warned yesterday.

Such a virus would have a 'devastating' impact on the world's population, similar to the 1918 Spanish Flu pandemic which killed around 50million people.

In its current form, avian flu can only be transmitted between birds and from birds to humans.

South Korea has had two more MERS-CoV cases among contacts with its first MERS case—now five cases total—and Saudi Arabia reported four new infections in as many days.

Meanwhile, the World Health Organization (WHO) issued statements recently on the first three Korean MERS-CoV (Middle East respiratory syndrome coronavirus) cases, recent cases in Qatar and the United Arab Emirates (UAE), and 16 recent Saudi cases.

Korean health worker infected

The two new cases in South Korea involve the daughter of the third Korean MERS patient and a healthcare worker (HCW) involved in MERS care, according to separate reports today from the Korea Herald.

The daughter, however, likely did not contract the disease from her 76-year-old father, who shared a hospital room with South Korea's first MERS-CoV case-patient, a 68-year-old who had traveled to the Middle East, the Herald reported. Officials believe she contracted MERS from the 68-year-old man while visiting her father in the hospital.

She was quarantined as one of the 64 contacts of the first patient, the story said. She tested positive for MERS-CoV at a state-designated hospital after she developed a fever higher than 100°F. She is in stable condition, according to officials.

Vietnam says reports of China artillery reclaimed land bad sign | Reuters

SINGAPORE Vietnam's deputy defense minister said on Saturday that reports China had placed mobile artillery weapons on a reclaimed island in the disputed South China Sea were, if true, a very worrying development.

"If it has actually happened it is a very bad sign for what is already a very complicated situation in the South China Sea," General Nguyen Chi Vinh told Reuters in an interview on the sidelines of a security forum in Singapore.

The United States said on Friday that China had placed mobile artillery weapons on a reclaimed island in the disputed South China Sea. Analysts said the artillery could pose a threat to nearby Vietnamese bases, also on disputed territory.

The development was described by the Pentagon as one that creates more "uncertainty" in a situation that has grown increasingly tense over the past six months after satellite images showed significant land reclamation activities by China. The U.S. says the

Russian aircraft head off U.S. destroyer in Black Sea: RIA

REUTERS May 30, 2015 12:08 PM

MOSCOW (Reuters) - Russian military aircraft were scrambled to head off a U.S. warship that was acting "aggressively" in the Black Sea, state news agency RIA reported on Saturday, citing an anonymous source in Russia's armed forces in Crimea.

The source was quoted as saying that the U.S. destroyer Ross was moving along the edge of Russia's territorial waters and heading in their direction.

Iraq lost 2,300 Humvee armoured vehicles to the Islamic State in Mosul

MAY 31, 2015 8:48 PM BY ROBERT SPENCER

33 COMMENTS

Every learned analyst knows that the Islamic State is losing, but it sure camouflages it well.

"Iraq lost 2,300 Humvee armoured vehicles in Mosul: PM," AFP, May 31, 2015:

"Iraqi security forces lost 2,300 Humvee armoured vehicles when the Islamic State jihadist group overran the northern city of Mosul, Prime Minister Haider al-Abadi said on Sunday.

"In the collapse of Mosul, we lost a lot of weapons," Abadi said in an interview with Iraqiya state TV. "We lost 2,300 Humvees in Mosul alone."

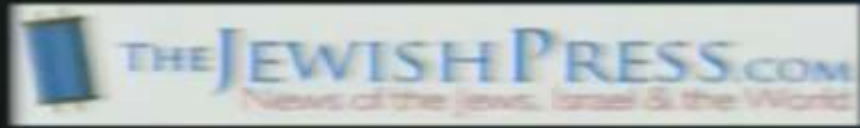

While the exact price of the vehicles varies depending on how they are armoured and equipped, it is clearly a hugely expensive loss that has boosted IS' capabilities.

Last year, the State Department approved a possible sale to Iraq of 1,000 Humvees with increased armour, machineguns, grenade launchers, other gear and support that was estimated to cost $579 million.

Clashes began in Mosul, Iraq's second city, late on June 9, 2014, and Iraqi forces lost it the following day to IS, which spearheaded an offensive that overran much of the country's Sunni Arab heartland.

The militants gained ample arms, ammunition and other equipment when multiple Iraqi divisions fell apart in the country's north, abandoning gear and shedding uniforms in their haste to flee.

ENGINEERS are developing the first ATM in China with facial recognition technology to identify users of bank cards.

THE official Xinhua news agency reports Beijing's Tsinghua University and Hangzhou-based security company Tzekwan Technology developed the prototype.

The new technology will help reduce crimes committed using ATMs, Tzekwan Technology CEO Gu Zikun says.

Chinese ATMs had until now depended entirely on foreign technology but will now have access to an exclusively domestic system, Gu says.

The new ATM technology is being unveiled in the same month that the government launched the "Made in China" campaign to promote domestic innovation.

Companies in several countries, including the United States, have tested ATMs that use fingerprints and facial recognition technology to identify users, but questions have been raised about the viability of such systems.

EMERGENCY POWERS GIVE BARACK OBAMA AUTHORITY OVER JUST ABOUT EVERYTHING DURING A MAJOR NATIONAL CRISIS

Barack Obama is the most powerful president in all of U.S. history

by MICHAEL SNYDER | MAY 28, 2015

Presidents have always exercised emergency powers, but now thanks to dozens of new laws, regulations, court decisions and executive orders, Barack Obama is the most powerful president in all of U.S. history. Of course the U.S. Constitution does not actually give the president any special powers during a time of national emergency, but over time presidents have decided that they should be able to exercise such powers and the courts have generally agreed with them.

During World War II and prior to that, these emergency powers were largely uncodified and were primarily used during times of war. But since World War II things have completely changed, and this has particularly been true since 9/11. Over the past decade or so, a whole host of extraordinary powers have specifically been given to the office of the president, and all that it takes to exercise them is a major "national emergency". So if we do have a full-blown economic collapse, a historic natural disaster, a significant war or a massive pandemic, Barack Obama could use the emergency powers that he has been given to essentially take authority over everything.

Americans are well familiar, from events and court rulings over recent years, with the diatribes against Christians and Christianity – they are told they legally can't refuse to promote "gay marriage," for example.

Also, Christian holiday events are forced to be "winter festivals," Christian symbols are banned from many displays and any statement of biblical belief, such as support for biblical marriage, becomes the latest "phobia," almost certainly "violating" someone's rights. In fact, the U.S. Supreme Court now is considering whether to make that very belief a federal offense.

But now an international conference speaker has warned that Christians "are the most persecuted religious group on a global level, even in countries where they constitute a majority."

Marine court-martialed for refusing to remove Bible verse

A United States Marine was convicted at a court-martial for refusing to remove a Bible verse on her computer – a verse of Scripture the military determined “could easily be seen as contrary to good order and discipline.”

The plight of Lance Corporal Monifa Sterling seems unbelievable – a member of the Armed Forces criminally prosecuted for displaying a slightly altered passage of Scripture from the Old Testament: “No weapon formed against me shall prosper.”

Sterling, who represented herself at trial, was

Chrislam Infiltrates Westminster Abbey

Westminster Abbey has been accused of "denial of the Lordship of Jesus Christ" after the prophet Muhammad was described as "the chosen one" in a prayer at a First World War service.

The Abbey, which is a Royal Peculiar under the personal jurisdiction of the Queen and outside the Church of England's diocesan structures, included a Turkish prayer in the recent service of commemoration and thanksgiving marking the centenary of the Gallipoli campaign.

The Archbishop Cranmer noted that God was thanked in the Abbey, and referred to as Allah, and there was no problem with that because Allah is simply Arabic for 'The God'.

"We may quibble over conflicting doctrines and cavil over contradictory revelations, but if St Paul can address a meeting of the Areopagus and exhort the incipient virtue in the ignorance of Athenian religiosity, whether you call the Creator of the universe 'God', 'Jehovah', 'YHWH', 'I Am' or 'Allah', you are acknowledging (in mirrors darkly) the One who does not live in temples built by human hands, and the One who gives everyone life and breath and everything else," he wrote.

But Cranmer said there was a problem with the prayer the congregation heard, which began "Bizleri yaratan" and included the phrase: "Muhammed Mustafa".

He wrote: "It's hard to be offended by something one cannot understand. And there can be no offence at all caused by any exhortation of God in Turkish, for God is not an Englishman."

The problem came in the translated succession of prophets which he described as "a comprehensible assertion of Islamic theology".

The succession of prophets "from Adam, Noah and Abraham to Moses, Jesus and Mohammed Mustafa" is chronological, with the first four common to Judaism, Christianity and Islam.

Jesus as a prophet is common to Christianity and Islam and Mohammed is a prophet of Islam alone.

The Obama administration is preparing to force every charitable organization receiving federal grants to end prohibitions on hiring people based on sexual orientation or gender identity.

In its latest "Friday Fax," the Center for Family and Human Rights, or C-Fam, cites an unnamed but well-placed administration source, who says the administration is definitely headed in that direction.

Gay marriage: Australia's businesses take out full-page ad backing same-sex partnerships

Updated 28 May 2015, 7:45pm

Some of Australia's biggest businesses have thrown their weight behind the push for gay marriage, with a full-page newspaper advertisement today.

Corporations including Google, Qantas, Optus and the ANZ and Commonwealth banks have put their names to a list of Australian businesses backing marriage equality.

Others supporters include law firms Slater and Gordon and Gilbert and Tobin, and the Football Federation of Australia.

Australian Marriage Equality national director Rodney Croome said the corporations approached the organisation send the message that Australia's business community was behind marriage equality.

"It was about corporate saying it's not just about us individually supporting this, we want to do it collectively and send the strongest possible message," Mr Croome said.

He said corporations understood the importance of respect for diversity in the workplace and equality for staff and customers.

"They're also very sensitive of course to Australia's international reputation ... that is at risk of suffering if we don't catch up to countries that are most like us — New Zealand, the UK, the US, Canada and now, Ireland," he said.

The same-sex marriage debate has gained momentum this week on the back of Ireland's hugely successful referendum at the weekend.

WHEN ANYONE SAYS THAT BARACK HUSSEIN OBAMA DOESN'T KNOW WHAT HE'S DOING, THEY JUST DON'T UNDERSTAND THE AGENDA. HE BELONGS TO THE PROGRESSIVE LEFT AND IS THE PUPPET OF GEORGE SOROS.

He played it just as he was told during his first term. He even upheld traditional marriage back then, but do you see that was the plan? He couldn't show his cards. He was on his first term, and had much to accomplish during his second. Oh, he knew that he would win. You can take that to the bank.

Do you remember that Romney was about 9 points ahead two weeks before the election? It was rigged. The Dems have no morals nor do they have ethics. Whatever it takes to get the job done. Saul Alinsky mapped it all out for them in "Rules for Radicals."

In a few weeks Eli and Ron will celebrate their relationship with a wedding to be held at the Israel Museum in Jerusalem. There will be food, friends, music and a ceremony. But as far as the state of Israel is concerned, no marriage will have taken place, because the state does not recognize gay marriage. However, gay couples married outside Israel are registered as married on their return.

So shortly after their wedding, the newlyweds will fly to Denmark in order to hold a second wedding, one that can be registered officially upon their return to Israel.

Denmark is the ideal country for LGBT (Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, and Transgender) couples to get married in, Eli Kaplan-Wildmann, told The Media Line. Not only does the Scandinavian country have some of the most progressive recognition of the rights of same-sex people to marry, it also doesn't have a residency requirement.

LONDON — The Church of England is considering adding a ceremony to its services for "transgender" persons who seek to be re-baptized in their new gender identity and under their new name.

According to reports, Chris Newlands, the vicar of Lancaster Priory, recently proposed the addition to the General Synod after being approached by a girl who identifies as a boy who wished to be baptized again under her male name.

"I said, 'Once you've been baptized, you're baptized,'" Newlands recalled to the Guardian. "[But] he said, 'But I was baptized as a girl, under a different name.'"

"I said, 'Let me have a think about it.' So we did, and then we created a service, which was an affirmation of baptismal vows where we could introduce him to God with his new name and his new identity," he said.

Newlands soon submitted a motion for the issue to be considered by the denomination as a whole.

"That this Synod, recognizing the need for transgender people to be welcomed and affirmed in their parish church, call on the House of Bishops to consider whether some nationally commended liturgical materials might be prepared to mark a person's gender transition," it read.

The motion was approved by the parochial church council, the Deanery Synod and the Blackburn Diocese, and is set to next be debated by the General Synod. However, it may be some time before the matter is discussed as it is among a queue of other topics up for consideration.

PRACTICING HOMOSEXUALITY DOES NOT CONTRADICT CHRISTIAN DOCTRINE, UNITED METHODISTS CLAIM

The United Methodist Church took one step closer to apostasy this week.

At Nashville meetings, Methodist leadership voted to submit what is aptly called a "compromise" legislative proposal to its 2016 General Conference that removes "prohibitive" language from The United Methodist Book of Discipline concerning homosexuality.

Specifically, the proposal would allow United Methodist pastors to perform same-sex marriages in United Methodist churches. As if that's not defiant enough to God's Word, this same proposal would also remove the blatant practice of homosexuality and the performance of same-sex weddings from the list of chargeable offenses.

Viral 'Charlie Charlie' Social Media Challenge Has Kids Trying to Summon Demon With Ancient Ritual

Deuteronomy 18:10-14 – There shall not be found among you anyone who makes his son or his daughter pass through the fire, or one who practices witchcraft, or a soothsayer, or one who interprets omens, or a sorcerer, or one who conjures spells, or a medium, or a spiritist, or one who calls up the dead. For all who do these things are an abomination to the Lord.

It's dubbed the "Charlie Charlie Challenge" — and it has individuals everywhere attempting to summon a Mexican demon named Charlie through the performance of a paranormal ritual. Individuals are instructed to form a cross with two pencils on a piece of paper. Inside the four boxes created by the pencils, one is supposed to write either "yes" or "no" and then ask if "Charlie" is present.
