اكرر اننا لا نحدد مواعيد بل فقط نشجع بعضنا بعضا بقرب مجيء المسيح

وأيضاً أوضح أنه يوجد نبوات لم نراها بعد مثل ابن الهلاك وهرمجدون

ولكن أيضاً علامات كثيرة من التي قال عنها الكتاب انها في الزمان الاخير بدأت تحدث بوضوح

ويجب أن ننتبه اليها. ونذكر بعضنا باننا نحتاج ان نستعد. والاستعداد ليس فقط قبل مجيء

المسيح بل أيضاً قبل الظلمة التي ستسبق مجيئه ليكون عندنا زيت في مصابيحنا يكفي ان نعبر

هذه الظلمة وتكون مصابيحنا مضيئة وقت مجيئه. بمعنى نحتاج من الان ان نستعد بقوة بأيمان

عامل وبتنقية القلب وان نثمر بالخدمة أي نجمع زيت في مصابيحنا لان الظلمة والضيقه اقتربت

جدا ومن لن يستعد لها بزيت كافي من الان لن يجد زيت في الضيقه لان وقتها تجميع زيت

سيكون صعب جدا بل أستطيع ان أقول من مثل العذارى انه لن يكون هناك زيت الا ما جمعه

سابقا. أفضل ان اقول لنفسي ولكم استعدوا الان لأنه اقترب فنكون مستعدين سواء جاء او نحن ان سلمنا وديعتنا عن أنى لا اقول انه اقترب لكيلا يقال عني كاذب وانشتر اشاعات ولكنه يأتي بسرعة بغته. لا اعتقد اي أحد ندم لانه كان مستعد ومنتظر مجيء المسيح ولم ياتي المسيح في زمنه ولكنه انتقل وهو مستعد ولكن كثيرين جدا ندموا على عدم الاستعداد عندما انتقلوا

المسيح قال بعض العلامات مثل

انجيل لوقا 21

21: 10 ثم قال لهم تقوم امة على امة ومملكة على مملكة

21: 11 وتكون زلازل عظيمة في اماكن ومجاعات واوبئة وتكون مخاوف وعلامات عظيمة من

21: 25 وتكون علامات في الشمس والقمر والنجوم وعلى الارض كرب امم بحيرة البحر والامواج

تضج

21: 26 والناس يغطى عليهم من خوف وانتظار ما يأتي على المسكونة لان قوات السماوات

تزعزع

21: 27 وحينئذ يبصرون ابن الانسان اتيا في سحابة بقوة و مجد كثير

سفر اعمال الرسل 2

2: 19 واعطي عجائب في السماء من فوق وآيات على الارض من أسفل دما ونارا وبخار دخان

2: 20 تتحول الشمس الى ظلمة والقمر الى دم قبل ان يجيء يوم الرب العظيم الشهير

2: 21 ويكون كل من يدعو باسم الرب يخلص

لماذا قال المسيح بعض العلامات؟

أولا لكيلا نرتاع

انجيل متى 24

مت 24: 6 وسوف تسمعون بحروب واخبار حروب لا ترتاعوا لأنه لا بد ان تكون هذه

كلها ولكن ليس المنتهى بعد

إنجيل يوحنا 14: 29

وَقُلْتُ لَكُمْ الْآنَ قَبْلَ أَنْ يَكُونَ، حَتَّى مَتَى كَأَن تُوْمِنُونَ.

ثالثا لننتبه ونستعد

28 وَمَتَى ابْتَدَأَتْ هَذِهِ تَكُونُ، فَاَنْتَصِبُوا وَاَرْفَعُوا رُؤُوسَكُمْ لِأَنَّ نَجَاتَكُمْ تَقْتَرِبُ».

PERSEID FIREBALLS: Earth is entering a stream of debris from Comet Swift-Tuttle, source of the annual Perseid meteor shower. Peak rates of 100+ meteors per hour are expected next week when Earth approaches the heart of the debris stream. The display, however, is already underway. "Our network of meteor cameras has picked up more than 78 Perseid fireballs since July 27th," reports Bill Cooke of NASA's Meteoroid Environment Office. He prepared this solar system diagram showing the orbits of all the fireballs so far:

The green ellipses trace the orbits of Perseid meteoroids. They are a good match to the orbit of the parent comet, shown in purple.

"Comet debris particles a few cm wide are hitting the atmosphere with an average speed of 59.6 km/s (133,350 mph)," continues Cooke. "The average magnitude of the resulting fireballs is -3.7, about as bright as Venus."

Cooke and colleagues have been monitoring fireball activity for years, and they have found that the Perseids produce more fireballs than any other annual shower. Check out their data.

The Perseids Arrive This Week!

How to View the Perseid meteor shower

The best opportunity to see the Perseid meteor shower is during the dark, pre-dawn hours of August 13. The Perseids streak across the sky from many directions. For optimal viewing, find an open skyline, where you can view the horizon without obstructions, such as buildings or trees. Try to view the Perseids as far away from artificial lights as possible. The darker the sky, the better viewing experience you can have. Lie on the ground and look straight up. Remember, your eyes can take up to 30 minutes to adjust to the darkness, so allow plenty of time for your eyes to adjust.

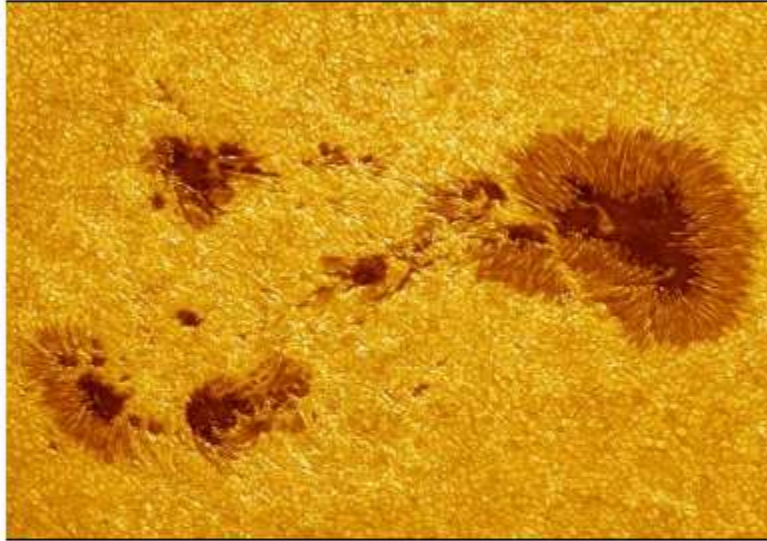

About the Perseids

The Perseids have been observed for at least 2,000 years and are associated with the comet Swift-Tuttle, which orbits the sun once every 133 years. Every August, the Earth passes through a cloud of the comet's debris. This debris field consists of bits of ice and dust — most over 1,000 years old — and burns up in Earth's atmosphere to create one of the best meteor showers of the year. The Perseids can be seen all over the sky, but the best viewing opportunities will be across the northern hemisphere. Those with sharp eyes will see that the meteors radiate from the direction of the constellation.

The Earth's most powerful storm of 2015 — Super Typhoon Soudelor — is now roaring through the western Pacific Ocean with winds of 178 mph, the equivalent of a Category 5 hurricane, the Joint Typhoon Warning Center said Monday.

The storm already ripped into Saipan, one of the Northern Mariana Islands, a 48,000-population U.S. commonwealth in the Western Pacific. Acting Gov. Ralph D.L.G. Torres declared "a state of disaster and significant emergency" there on Monday.

Soudelor (SOW-de-lore) is the strongest storm anywhere on the planet so far this year. Typhoons are the Western Pacific's version of hurricanes.

The typhoon is taking aim at Taiwan and China by Friday and Saturday, though it is expected to weaken to a Category 3 or 4 storm by then, the typhoon warning center said.

The storm slammed into Saipan late Sunday into early Monday, flooding the island's power plant, ripping off roofs and toppling power poles, the Pacific Daily News in Guam reported. Hundreds of Saipan residents are in shelters. Some roads remain impassable, and power and water service are out.

"I've seen multiple primary power poles down. I've seen cars flipped over the road. I've seen lots of torn roofs," said John Hirsh, executive director of the American Red Cross in Saipan.

He said an initial assessment shows extensive damage across the island. Hirsch said it felt as if the island took a direct hit from the typhoon's full force between 11 p.m. Sunday to 1 a.m. Monday, local time.

Super Typhoon Soudelor Becomes Earth's Strongest Cyclone of 2015; Moving Toward China, Taiwan, Japan

Published Aug 3 2015 10:28 PM EDT | weather.com

Super Typhoon Soudelor Targets China, Taiwan, Japan
Hurricane Specialist Michael Lowry shares the details of super typhoon Soudelor.

Highlights:

- Super Typhoon Soudelor underwent rapid intensification Monday and has become the strongest tropical cyclone on Earth so far in 2015.
- Soudelor is expected to continue to track to the west-northwest the next several days over open waters of the western Pacific Ocean.
- This track may bring it near Japan's far southwest Ryukyu Islands,

Nine swept away by flash flood in China; 8 bodies recovered

Posted on August 4, 2015

August 2015 – BEIJING (AP) — A flash flood has struck a scenic area outside the city of Xi'an in central China, sweeping away nine Chinese tourists, state media reported Tuesday. Eight bodies have been recovered. The flood struck Xiaoyuhacun Valley on Monday afternoon amid the heaviest rains recorded in the area in 30 years, the reports said. A team of about 200 police officers, firefighters and paramilitary troops searched the area overnight, recovering eight bodies by Tuesday morning, the Xinhua News Agency said.

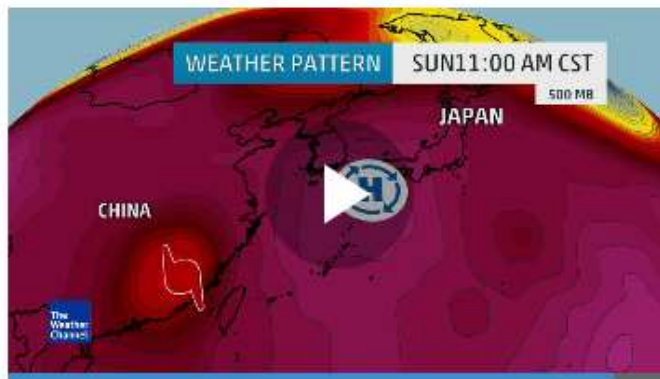

A former imperial Chinese capital, Xi'an lies in a greenbelt along the ancient Silk Road surrounded by the mountainous, mostly arid, province of Shaanxi. Many Chinese scenic sites suffer from chronic mismanagement, poor crowd control and other safety issues. Emergency services in Xi'an either did not answer calls or said they had no information about missing people or an investigation into the incident. —Big Story

Japan Heat Wave Intensifies; Death Toll Surges to 55

By Nick Wiltgen | Published Aug 5 2015 01:41 PM EDT | weather.com

Will Typhoon Extinguish Heat Wave?

Meteorologist Ari Sarsalari talks about the possibility of a typhoon helping with the Japanese heatwave

The toll from Japan's ongoing heat wave accelerated last week, boosting the year's tally to 55 heat-related deaths and sending more than 11,000 to the hospital according to new government figures released Tuesday.

According to Japan's Fire and Disaster Management Agency, 25 people died from heat stroke and other heat-related illnesses nationwide during the week of July 27 through Aug. 2. It was by far the deadliest week so far this year in Japan, nearly equaling the death toll of 30 in the preceding three months combined.

Catastrophic flooding claims 46 lives in Myanmar – thousands displaced

Posted on August 4, 2015

August 2015 – MYANMAR – The death toll from flooding in Myanmar has climbed to 46, with more than 200,000 people affected, the Ministry of Social Welfare, Relief and Resettlement said Monday. The flooding has affected residents in 11 of Myanmar's 14 states and divisions, the ministry said. In addition to the damage to housing and farmland, infrastructure has been badly hit, with roads and rail lines cut in many areas and telecommunication links broken. Myanmar has suffered heavy rains, winds and flooding since Cyclone Komen made landfall in Bangladesh on 30 July, causing landslides and damage in different parts of the country, according to United Nations agencies. "The floods are hitting children and families who are already very vulnerable, including those living in camps in Rakhine state," said Shalini Bahuguna, from the UN Children's Fund (UNICEF).

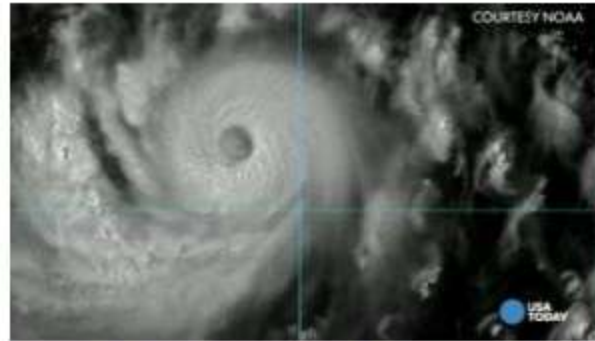

There are 140,000 displaced children and families in Rakhine alone. "Beyond the immediate impact, the floods will have a longer term impact on the livelihoods of these families," she warned. According to the Myanmar Government, 39 people have died and over 200,000 people across the country are in need of lifesaving assistance. Twelve out of Myanmar's 14 states and regions have been affected by the rains. On 31 July, President U Thein Sein issued a statement declaring natural disaster zones in four regions, including Rakhine, where access is limited due to flooding, road blockages and landslides.

"Initial reports indicate that there is extensive damage to shelters and other infrastructure in camps around Sittwe [Rakhine's capital], where some 100,000 displaced people are staying," stressed the UN Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs (OCHA) in an update from 30 July. Limited information is available this stage on the situation in Magway region and Chin state. In one township alone in Magway, around 70 villages are reported to be affected by floods and people in the area being relocated to schools,

Typhoon Soudelor impacts: at least 17 killed; Grade-IV emergency issued for hard-hit areas in China

Posted on August 9, 2015

August 2015 – TAIWAN – Typhoon Soudelor battered Taiwan and China on Saturday, killing at least 17, leaving nine missing and causing millions of dollars in damage. Five people were killed while the storm besieged Taiwan, including a mother and daughter swept out to sea, two men killed by falling debris in separate incidents and another man pulled from a mudslide. At least twelve died when the storm caused mudslides and flooding in China. Officials issued a grade-IV emergency, the lowest emergency level, for areas hard-hit by Soudelor in China, Xinhua News Agency reported. Two teams were dispatched to Zhejiang and Fujian provinces to aid those affected by the storm.

Agricultural damage in Taiwan is estimated to cost around $18.9 million, says the Taipei Times. Damage in China has been calculated at $617 million, according to Xinhua News Agency. Taiwan's Ministry of Education reported academic institutional damage reached $4 million nationwide, Taiwan News reported. At least 812 schools were damaged. At one point during the storm, over 4 million Taipower customers were rendered powerless, a record number of outages previously held by Typhoon Herb, which left 2.79 million powerless in 1996, according to the utility.

Ocean conditions in the Pacific Ocean are increasingly suggestive of a potent El Niño event later this year. While that might seem like good news to the water-starved regions of the United States, the resulting torrential rains could be exceptionally hazardous.

Back in March of this year, scientists declared that El Niño conditions had emerged in the Pacific Ocean. Initially, it was thought that the event was too weak and too late to be of any significance, but conditions have changed over the past several months. According to NASA and other agencies, surface waters are getting warmer in the central and eastern Pacific, while conditions to the west are getting drier and cooler. What's more, these conditions bear a striking resemblance to the substantial El Niño event of 1997-98.

A government spokesman says that a 5.6 magnitude earthquake shook eastern Congo early Friday, causing the death of at least two children.

Lambert Mende says the epicenter of the earthquake was located close to Lake Tanganyika near Bukavu, the capital of the South Kivu province. He says a house collapsed in Katana, near the airport in Bukavu, causing the death of the children. He said the earthquake also caused some cracks in buildings.

Mende said the earthquake could also be felt in Goma, the capital of the North Kivu province which is about 217 kilometers (135 miles) by land on the north end of Lake Kivu.

Eastern Congo has been mired in violence since the aftermath of the 1994 genocide in neighboring Rwanda.

The timebomb under Yellowstone: Experts warn of 90,000 immediate deaths and a 'nuclear winter' across the US if supervolcano erupts

- It could release 1 ft layer of molten ash 1,000 miles from the National Park
- It would be 1,000 times as powerful as the 1980 Mount St Helens eruption
- A haze would drap over the United States, causing temperatures to drop
- Experts say there is a 1 in 700,000 annual chance of a eruption at the site

A supervolcano in the heart of America's northwest has the potential to blanket the US in a 'nuclear winter'.

If it were to erupt, the Yellowstone supervolcano would be one thousand times as powerful as the 1980 Mount St Helens eruption, experts claim.

While it has lain dormant for more than 70,000 years, scientists say that we can't rule out the possibility eruption this may some day take place - although they say the chances are extremely slim.

NORTHEAST MIAMI-DADE, Fla. (WSVN) — Something's fishy for residents of a Northeast Miami-Dade neighborhood, and the stinky situation has literally ended up near their doorsteps.

According to residents of the Highland Lakes community near Aventura, dozens of dead fish showed up in the water in Sunswept Isles Lake, off Northeast 214th Street, beginning Friday. "I woke up to a stench, and then I look out toward the lake, to my left-hand side, and there were all these white things floating in the distance," said a woman.

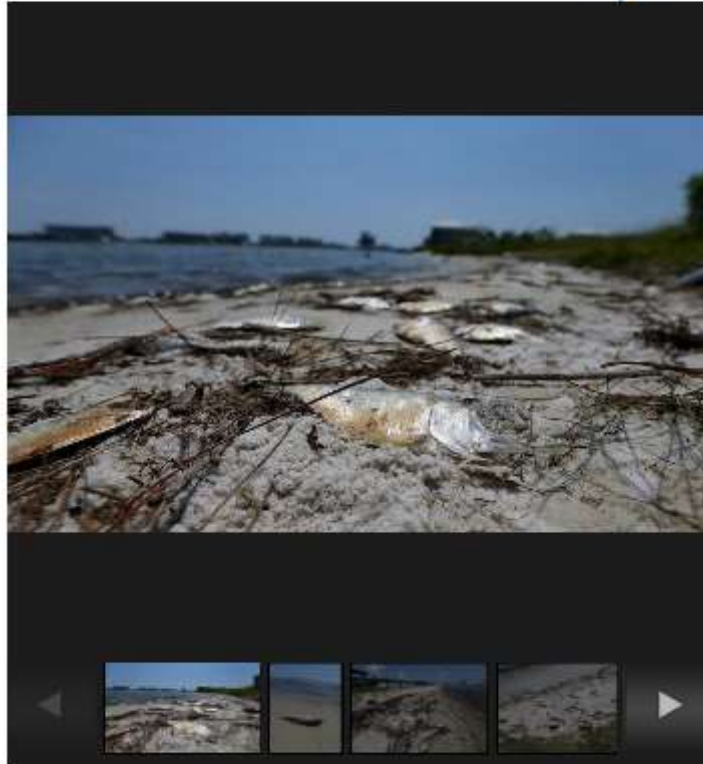

Dr. Martin Karp, who lives in Highland Lakes, said what was most striking, other than the smell, was the sheer quantity. "It's shocking,

Summer 2015 is again seeing numbers of dead dolphins washing up on the shore of Bulgaria's Black Sea coastline, with violence suspected as the cause of death in some cases, but as in all previous years, there is no clarity on what causes the phenomenon.

In some cases in previous years, there have been allegations of dolphins being shot or otherwise killed by fishermen protecting their nets.

None of these allegations has been proven and no one has been arrested in connection with the killing of a dolphin

Sixteen pilot whales beached on a shore near Judique, Cape Breton, Tuesday morning, sparking a rescue effort involving about 20 people.

Andrew Reid with the Marine Animal Response Society said 10 of the whales were pushed into deeper water and survived. Six others died.

Local resident Maggie MacIntyre said people gathered at the beach early in the morning for the rescue effort.

"There were between one and four people surrounding each whale," she said.

"For as many whales as we could, people were just trying to keep them upright and trying to nudge them out to deeper water."

Bird Death Reports Are Up In Homer, Food Sources Possibly To Blame

The Alaska Maritime National Wildlife Refuge is receiving multiple reports indicating a significant increase in dead and dying birds found on beaches in the Homer area over the last two weeks. The reports are coming from beach walkers and local citizen scientists dedicated to surveying sea bird populations. Leslie Slater is the Gulf of Alaska Unit Biologist for the Alaska Maritime National Wildlife Refuge. She says the number of birds reported is in the dozens.

"So it's hard to give a real exact number of the normal number. I would say on a given stretch of beach we normally don't find more than one within a couple of miles stretch."

Slater says there are a lot of potential reasons for the increase in fatalities but the prevailing cause is likely tied to the birds' food sources.

LAKE ELSINORE FISH DIE-OFF

Tuesday, Aug. 4: 600 pounds removed, mostly shad and carp.

Wednesday, Aug. 5: 400 pounds removed, including larger fish such as bass and catfish

Fish continued to perish in Lake Elsinore for a second day Wednesday, Aug. 5, as a heat wave is exacerbating deteriorating water quality.

City workers scooped out about 400 pounds of carcasses Wednesday, bringing the two-day total to about 1,000 pounds, said Management Analyst Nicole Dailey, who is orchestrating a multi-agency response plan called Lake Watch 2015.

Whereas observers spotted mostly dead or dying carp and threadfin shad minnows on the lake Tuesday, other bigger kinds surfaced the following day, indicating a worsening of the environment.

"We are seeing a variety of species -- bass, carp, shad, bluegill and catfish," Dailey said. "There's definitely been some big catfish, big bass and shad that are Gandhinagar: The Gujarat government on Wednesday said that at least 72 persons have died and over 81,000 cattle have perished in the flood followed by heavy rains in north region of the state last month.

State health minister and government's spokesperson Nitin Patel said government property worth Rs 2,000 crore has been either washed away or completely damaged.

The government will seek assistance from the Centre after conducting survey of loss, he told reporters in Gandhinagar.

"72 persons have lost their lives in different parts of state due to heavy rain followed by flood, particularly in north Gujarat region. Among these, 40 deaths were reported in Banaskantha district alone, while 6 deaths were reported in Patan district and 4 in Kutch district. The remaining deaths were reported in other parts of the state," the minister said.

Patel said that heavy rain followed by flood have caused maximum damage in Banaskantha, Patan and Kutch districts, where over 81,000 cattle have been killed.

"In these three districts, 81,609 cattle have perished. Either they have drowned or were swept away, or they were killed due to severe cold or due to some disease.

"Out of these, 42,609 were large cattle like cows and buffaloes, while 38,871 were small cattle, such as goats and sheeps," the minister added.

Hundreds of dead fish removed from ditch Culemborg

CULEMBORG - From a ditch on the Weithusen in Culemborg in recent days fished hundreds of dead fish. Because there is too little oxygen in the ditch.

How this is possible is not yet known Rivierenland water. Normal water contains too little oxygen because it is too hot, or because too many plants there are in the water.

Wednesday evening a passerby spotted dead fish in the water. Then the water board decided to remove the fish from the water and fresh water to add to the ditch. So the problem must be solved.

May take several days

Thursday there were already dozens of fish caught in a big fishing net. Today there were hundreds of fish out of the water. The water board expects to be busy for several days and continues as long as it is needed.

The expectation is that there are hundreds of dead fish to come. The fresh water comes from the Linge, but it takes half a day before the water from the Linge in the ditch.

Not dangerous

The water is not contaminated with botulism. It is also trying to prevent the water board. It is therefore also not dangerous to come into contact with the water of the 2 km long ditch. In addition, everyone can swim in the lake 'De Meent', which is not connected with the ditch.

The climate engineers have an endless array of weather scenarios to create havoc, destruction, and death. Completely engineered protracted droughts are one form of climate engineering assault as we currently see in California, Brazil, the Caribbean, the Philippines, Australia, Africa, Russia, and other regions around the globe. Deluge and flooding are also a weapons of the climate engineers. But there is another form of weather warfare that is less recognized and understood (even by many that are aware of the geoengineering issue), chemically ice nucleated winter storms. Though many think engineering snow storms is impossible, it is, in fact, a primary tool of the climate engineers. The Chinese openly announced their engineered snow storms until they did over a billion dollars worth of damage to Beijing. On October 4th, 2013, a completely freak "winter storm" killed nearly 100,000 cattle in South Dakota. This event was truly astounding given the very warm temperatures that surrounded South Dakota at the time. I took screen shots of the temperature maps at the time and penned an article of the event. Take a good look at the maps below, the scenario they show is shocking. Cattle are very cold tolerant animals, how could they possibly freeze to death at temperatures that were present on the October 4th event of 2013? There were far above freezing temperatures in South Dakota at the time, why was it snowing at all? There were temperatures of 85 degrees and rain in Chicago, what really killed the South Dakota cattle?

NOAA researchers pour a sample of sea water containing a brownish toxic algae into a jar aboard a research vessel off the Washington Coast.

SEATTLE — A vast bloom of toxic algae off the West Coast is denser, more widespread and deeper than scientists feared even weeks ago, according to surveyors aboard a National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration research vessel.

This coastal ribbon of microscopic algae, up to 64 kilometres wide and 200 metres deep in places, is flourishing amid unusually warm Pacific Ocean temperatures. It now stretches from at least California to Alaska and has shut down lucrative fisheries. Shellfish managers on Tuesday doubled the area off Washington's coast that is closed to Dungeness crab

Japanese scientists are dumbfounded by the new discovery after conducting an autopsy on a large group of dolphins that were discovered washed up on a beach close to the Fukushima disaster site.

Each dolphin's lungs were white, which is according to scientists, an indication of loss of blood to the organs - a symptom of radiation poisoning.

(NaturalNews) Heavy rains from Typhoon Nangka caused radioactive water and soil to flow from the crippled Fukushima Daiichi nuclear power plant and into the Pacific Ocean, plant operator Tokyo Electric Power Company (TEPCO) has admitted.

The Fukushima plant has been shuttered since three of its reactors melted down following a March 2011 earthquake and tsunami. Since then, TEPCO has struggled to contain the constant flow of rainwater into the plant's flooded basements, where the water comes in contact with the reactor cores and becomes radioactive. The company has tried everything from pumping

'Dead Zone' in Gulf of Mexico Large Enough to Fit Connecticut, Rhode Island Combined

Published Aug 5 2015 05:08 PM EDT | weather.com

Dead Zone in Gulf of Mexico is Larger This Year
The dead zone in the Gulf is larger this year. Meteorologist Alex Wilson has the details.

Measuring in at 6,474 miles, the annual Gulf of Mexico "dead zone" covers an area roughly the size of Connecticut and Rhode Island combined.

This region in the water is defined by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) as an area of low to no oxygen that can kill fish and marine life, thus affecting commercial and recreational fishing.

These areas are also referred to as hypoxia areas and occur when there is nutrient runoff, largely due to the fertilizer used in fields near the water. This accelerates algae growth, which compromises the oxygen levels in the water when they decompose.

MORE ON HEALTH & DISEASE

Aug 6 (Reuters) - The number of deaths from an outbreak of Legionnaires' disease in New York has risen to eight and 97 people were reported sick with it, according to statistics released by Mayor Bill de Blasio's office.

More than half of the 92 people hospitalized were treated and released, the mayor's office said on Wednesday.

De Blasio said earlier this week the outbreak triggered an effort to mandate city-wide inspections and cleanings of air conditioning cooling towers.

Since July 10, the outbreak has been concentrated in the South Bronx neighborhood, which is one of the poorest in the United States. All the people who died of the disease were all older adults with underlying medical problems.

The disease, a severe kind of pneumonia, is contracted by breathing in mist from cooling towers infected with the bacteria Legionella. The incubation period for Legionnaires' disease is 10 days.

Of the 17 cooling towers that city health officials have inspected for Legionella, five tested positive. Remediation was completed at each of the locations, all in the South Bronx.

DANVILLE, Ky. (WTVQ) — A Boyle County hospital's emergency room was on lockdown Saturday, after doctors were evaluating a patient for a potential public health risk.

Ephraim McDowell Regional Medical Center in Danville says a patient tested positive for two strains of adult chicken pox, which prompted the lockdown. According to a statement from the hospital, it was necessary for the patient to be in isolation. Other patients and visitors were contained until additional testing could be completed.

Reuters

Investigators say they believe the same Russian hackers that carried out attacks on the White House and State Department last year and the attempted penetration of the Pentagon last month were responsible for a major cyberattack that shut down the Joint Chiefs of Staff email for the past 11 days, The Daily Beast has learned.

In all of the attacks, hackers broke into unclassified email networks by sending legitimate-looking emails that turned out to be malware or “spear phishing” attempts. In April, President Obama’s unclassified emails were among those compromised, along with the State Department.

Ten days before the July 27 hacking of the Joint Staff system, the Pentagon sent an email warning “at least five” DOD computer users had been targeted, which was first reported by The Daily Beast. The notice linked those attacks to penetrations of unclassified networks at the White House and State Department that began last year. The Joint Chiefs then suffered what one defense official called the “most sophisticated” attack on its unclassified network, one that has shut down communications ever since for the 4,000 employees on the Joint Staff unclassified

Reports Thursday said that China had agreed to sell Iran advanced J-10 war planes – planes that many analysts believe contain Israeli-designed components. International news agencies said that the deal was worth some $40 million.

The deal was first reported by the Debka File web site last week. While the deal has not been independently confirmed by any of the governments, a Chinese newspaper said Thursday that a deal to sell Iran 20 J-10 planes had been struck. In return, Iran will provide not cash, but crude oil, which will be released over the next 20 years.

The Debka File report had put the number of planes to be sold at 150. The Chinese report was widely circulated in Israeli media Thursday.

According to analysts, the Chengdu J-10 combat plane, which China introduced in 2005, "bears strong resemblance" to Israel's Lavi. The Lavi was an Israeli-originated fighter plane developed in the 1980s that was eventually shelved, with the Israel Air Force canceling its contract with Israel Aerospace Industries and instead buying American-made F-15 planes.

New satellite images of a contested Iranian military facility suggest officials may be scrubbing down the site to remove signs of nuclear activity.

Images released by the Institute for Science and International Security reveal a number of new crates, vehicles and oil spills at the Parchin military facility, which could indicate that Iran is trying to clean up the site before international inspectors arrive.

"This renewed activity occurring after the signing of the [Iran nuclear agreement] raises obvious concerns that Iran is conducting further sanitization efforts to defeat [International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA)] verification," the think tank said in a statement.

"Although it is difficult to fathom Iran's motivations for its recent actions at Parchin, this renewed activity may be a last ditch effort to try to ensure that no incriminating evidence will be found."

US President Barack Obama speaks about the Iran deal

Reuters

US President Barack Obama delivered a live address to the American public Wednesday, urging them to support the recently-signed deal with Iran over its nuclear program - and to lobby their members of Congress to vote for it at an upcoming vote.

Obama began and ended citing former President John F. Kennedy, noting his role in facing down the Soviet Union during the Cold War.

"Less than 20 years after the end of World War Two, the prospect of nuclear war was all too real. With all the threats we face today it's hard to appreciate how dangerous the world was.

"Strength, in his view, included powerful armed forces and a willingness to stand up for our values around the world, but he rejected the prevailing opinion among many security experts which claimed security relied on a constant war footing."

America, he noted, "won the Cold War without firing a shot at the Soviets."

That, he said, is his policy vis-a-vis Iran.

"The agreement now reached between the international community and the Islamic Republic of Iran builds on this principle of strong diplomacy."

Netanyahu: Iran Nuke Deal 'Will Bring War'

Says Islamic Republic will have nuclear weapon within 10 to 15 years

Israel Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu rallied more than 10,000 Jewish leaders and activists to reject a recently inked nuclear accord with Iran that the Israeli leader believes "will bring war" to the region and provide the Islamic Republic with a nuclear weapon within 10 to 15 years.

Netanyahu, who spoke Tuesday afternoon on a conference call organized by the Jewish Federation of North America (JFNA), urged those on the call to do all they can to defeat the deal and stop the Obama administration from enacting it.

"This deal will bring war," Netanyahu warned. "It will spark a nuclear arms race in the region. And it would feed Iran's terrorism and aggression that would make war, perhaps the most horrific war of all, far more likely."

"Oppose this dangerous deal," Netanyahu urged the audience as he outlined what were described as fatal flaws in the agreement, which will provide Iran with billions of dollars in sanctions relief while temporarily halting its nuclear enrichment program.

Netanyahu also sought to "dispel some of the misinformation" and "disinformation about the deal and Israel's position."

His comments appeared to be a veiled reference to an aggressive campaign by the White House and senior Obama administration officials to discredit the deal's opponents, particularly American-Jewish and Israeli leaders.

In recent weeks, the White House has been criticized for referring to opponents of the deal as shady money men and lobbyists associated with the Iraq war.

Netanyahu explained that rather than inhibit and constrain Iran's nuclear program, the deal provides Iran with two plausible

While President Barack Obama aimed to sell Congress on the Iran agreement, Iranian Supreme Leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei was working on his own domestic front, releasing a book detailing his plan to eliminate the "cancerous tumor" Israel.

Journalist Amir Taheri obtained a copy of the 416-page book entitled "Palestine," published last week in Tehran, in which Khamenei also denied the Holocaust, an event he described as "a propaganda ploy."

"If there was such a thing ... we don't know why it happened and how," Khamenei wrote, according to Taheri who posted translated excerpts in the New York Post and the Gatestone Institute website.

US Secretary of State John Kerry has claimed the nuclear deal signed with Iran is "as pro-Israel as it gets," and claims he "doesn't know" if the Iranian leadership is serious about destroying the State of Israel.

The comments were made in an in-depth interview with The Atlantic's Jeffrey Goldberg, which was published Wednesday following intense lobbying for and against the deal as it heads to a fateful vote in Congress.

Kerry warned Goldberg that if Congress voted down the agreement it would "be the ultimate screwing" of Iranian Supreme Leader Ayatollah Khamenei.

"The ayatollah constantly believed that we are untrustworthy, that you can't negotiate with us, that we will screw them. This will be the ultimate screwing," said Kerry. "He will not come back to negotiate. Out of dignity, out of a suspicion that you can't trust America. America is not going to negotiate in good faith. It didn't negotiate in good faith now, would be his point."

Kerry also claimed such an eventuality would lead to "moderate" Iranian leaders like President Hassan Rouhani being in "big trouble" for failing to secure a deal. The Obama administration regularly refers to Rouhani as a "moderate," despite the fact that under his watch support for regional terrorism has increased, and the number of executions of political prisoners has skyrocketed to record levels.

Iran Rejects Joint Operations with US against ISIL

TEHRAN (FNA)- Iranian Deputy Foreign Minister for Arab and African Affairs Hossein Amir Abdollahian dismissed any plans for joint anti-ISIL operations with the US military in the region.

"We have been among the first and foremost countries to help Iraq, Syria and other countries which are facing the ISIL attacks to fight terrorism and the ISIL in the region (but) we don't have any plans for joint cooperation with the US against the ISIL and will continue our assistance and consultations in fighting against the ISIL based on the Iraqi and Syrian governments' demands," Amir Abdollahian told the Iran-based Arabic-language al-Alam news channel on Monday.

Noting that the US is still pursuing a double-standard policy in campaign against terrorism, he said, "We don't have any contacts, talks and joint cooperation with the US in the fight against ISIL."

Amir Abdollahian underlined Tehran's resolve to continue its policy of rendering support and help only to those regional nations that encountering the threat of terrorism.

Tehran has repeatedly stressed that its recent nuclear agreement with the world powers will no way change its regional policies, including its campaign against terrorism and support for the regional nations and allies.

Iran plans missile tests to flaunt defiance of Vienna deal and UNSC resolution

Iran's long-range ballistic Shahab-3

Shortly before US Secretary of State John Kerry was due in Qatar Monday, Aug. 3, Iran's highest authorities led by supreme leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei Sunday launched a public campaign to support Tehran's noncompliance with the Vienna nuclear accord and UN Security Council Resolution 2231 of July 20, on its ballistic missile program. The campaign was designed by a team from Khamenei's office, high-ranking ayatollahs and the top echelons of the Revolutionary Guards, including its chief, Gen. Ali Jafari.

It was kicked off with a batch of petitions fired off by the students of nine Tehran universities and Qom religious seminaries to Iran's chief of staff Maj Gen. Hassan Firouzabadi, demanding immediate tests of long-range ballistic missiles to prove that the missile ban was invalid.

It was essential, said one student letter, "...to underline the necessity for protecting the country's defense capabilities and ensuring continued development of Iran's ballistic missile capability."

The students, whose influence on public opinion is substantial, went on to argue: "Firing the ballistic missiles in military drills would discourage the US Congress, the Israeli Knesset and their regional Takfiri mercenaries (a reference to the Islamic State) from future strikes against the Islamic Republic."

The Security Council Resolution, which unanimously endorsed the Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action (Vienna nuclear accord) signed by Iran's Foreign Minister Mohammed Javad Zarif, called on Iran "not to undertake any activity related to ballistic missiles designed to be capable of delivering nuclear weapons, including launches using such ballistic technology until the date eight years after the JCPOA Adoption Day."

Tehran retorted that none of its ballistic missiles were designed to deliver nuclear weapons, and so this provision was void. Shortly after its passage, the foreign ministry in Tehran issued an assurance that "...the country's ballistic missile program and capability is untouched and unrestricted by Resolution 2231."

On July 30, Ali Akbar Velayati, Khamenei's senior adviser on international affairs and member of the Expediency Council, told reporters, "The recent UNSC Resolution on Iran's defensive capabilities, specially (sic) its missiles, is unacceptable to Iran."

Iran Warns of 'Third World War'

A senior Iranian official on Wednesday warned of an impending "third world war" that will be sparked by terrorists, according to regional reports.

Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani, the chairman of Iran's powerful Expediency Council, warned in comments that the "outbreak of World War III" is coming in the near future, according to a report by Iran's Fars News Agency.

"The threat of the outbreak of the third world war by the terrorists is serious," Rafsanjani was quoted as saying in a meeting with Italian Foreign Minister Paolo Gentiloni, who was in Tehran this week for a meeting with Iranian officials.

Rafsanjani blamed the United States and NATO for fostering the conditions that will lead to World War III.

"The U.S. and the NATO had invaded Afghanistan to uproot terrorism and narcotics, but we saw that terrorism expanded in the form of the ISIL, Boko Haram and Al-Nusra Front to remote parts of the world from Al-Qaeda and Taliban in Pakistan and Afghanistan," he was quoted as saying.

Rafsanjani went on to demand that the United States and other Western countries "stop their support for the terrorist groups" in the region.

Iran and the United States are on opposite sides of multiple ethnic wars in the region, including in Syria and Yemen. However, the United States and Iran have found themselves allies in the war to defeat the Islamic State in Iraq.

Italy's Gentiloni welcomed Rafsanjani's comments, according to Fars.

"In my meetings with Iranian and Italian officials I will mention this and I hope that your proposal will be a starting point in inflicting a historical defeat on the terrorists in different human societies," he was quoted as saying.

Mimousini said that "ISIS executed 19 women in the city of Mosul during the past two days," claiming that, "the penalty decision came on the background of the refusal to participate in the practice of sexual jihad."

He added that the last period has seen splits in the ranks of ISIS in Mosul and internal conflicts because of the money and distribution of women.

Mimousini also pointed out to the killing of 2 Kurdish militants in the city of Mosul.

Are we all going to die next Wednesday?

Two nightmare scenarios, two ends of the world. In the first, there is little warning. For maybe a month there would be no sign that life was about to come to an abrupt and nasty end for all living things on Earth.

Then, earthquakes would start unexpectedly, alerting geologists that something terrible, unimaginable, was amiss.

After a few days, these seismic disturbances would reach catastrophic proportions.

Cities would be levelled, the oceans would rise and wash in a series of mega-tsunamis that would attack the world's coasts, killing millions.

FACEBOOK MONITORS YOUR PRIVATE MESSAGES AND PHOTOS FOR CRIMINAL ACTIVITY, REPORTS THEM TO POLICE

The scanning program looks for certain phrases

by KRISTAN T. HARRIS | THE RUNDOWN LIVE | AUGUST 8, 2015

Facebook has a new little known software that monitors your profile chat and pictures for criminal activity. The software will proceed to alert an employee at the company who will then decide whether to call authorities or not.

The software will monitor individuals who have a 'loose' relationship on social media networks, according to an interview with Facebook Chief Security Officer Joe Sullivan.

Reuters interview with the security officer explains, Facebook's software focuses on conversations between members who have a loose relationship on the social network. For example, if two users aren't friends, only recently became friends, have no mutual friends, interact with each other very little, have a significant age difference, and/or are located far from each other, the tool pays particular attention.

The scanning program looks for certain phrases found in previously obtained chat records from criminals, including sexual predators (because of the Reuters story, we know of at least one alleged child predator who is being brought before the courts as a direct result of Facebook's chat scanning). The relationship analysis and phrase material have to add up before a Facebook employee actually looks at communications and makes the final decision of whether to ping the authorities.

(NEWSER) – An archaeological dig now in its 20th year has uncovered the entrance gate to Gath, the ancient Biblical city of the Philistines and onetime home of the giant Goliath. Before the king of Damascus destroyed it in 830 BCE, Gath was the largest city in the land for hundreds of years, reports the Jerusalem Post. The Bible refers to the massive city gate itself, in the story of David's escape from King Saul to the king of Gath. In addition to the city gate, scientists have also unearthed an "impressive fortification wall," several buildings that include a temple and iron production facility, and what the Post calls the earliest "decipherable" Philistine inscription ever found—which contains two names similar to "Goliath."

"After finding a huge fortification, it's clearly the most important city of the 10th and ninth centuries," says the archaeologist in charge of the dig, per i24. What's happening in the oil market right now is 'unprecedented'

BUSINESS INSIDER By Myles Udland
August 9, 2015 6:04 AM

(FRED)
The price of oil has collapsed again.

And now the oil market is looking at a future that is "unprecedented."

In a note to clients this week, analysts at Goldman Sachs took a look at the market and the supply glut that has been blamed for the collapse in oil prices over the last year.

And as Goldman sees it, quite simply, the rules of the market have changed. "The market structure of the New Oil Order is unprecedented," the firm writes, adding that the balance of power

The Dow Has Already Fallen Nearly 900 Points From The Peak Of The Market

By Michael Snyder, on August 6th, 2015

In an eerie repeat of what we witnessed in 2008, U.S. stocks are steadily sliding throughout the summer as we head toward the month of September. From August 1st, 2008 to September 1st, 2008 the Dow fell by nearly 700 points. And of course we all remember what happened the following month. Right now, we are watching a similar thing happen. The Dow has plummeted nearly 700 points since July 16th, and it is down nearly 900 points from the peak of the market back in May. At this point the Dow has now fallen for six days in a row and eleven of the last thirteen. Of course most of the talking heads on television are still insisting that everything is going to be just fine and that a repeat of 2008 is not possible. So what do you think? Should we trust them?

Personally, I find that I put a lot more faith in cold, hard numbers than in what the talking heads on television have to say. And at this moment, the cold, hard numbers are telling us that another financial crisis is imminent.

This is one of the reasons why I am such a fan of Zero Hedge. Nobody stays on top of the hard financial numbers like Zero Hedge does. And according to Zero Hedge, market internals are absolutely screaming that a U.S. stock market crash is right around the corner...

China approves usage of ruble instead of US dollar for border city

China's central bank has put the Russian ruble into circulation in Suifenhe City, Heilongjiang Province, launching a pilot two-currency (ruble and yuan) program. The ruble is being introduced in place of the US dollar.

The announcement was made on Saturday by Jin Mei, deputy secretary for monetary policy at the opening ceremony of a trade exposition in Suifenhe, reported state-run Xinhua news agency.

The newly-adopted initiative is to promote bilateral trade relations and boost tourism, enabling Russians traveling to the Chinese region to pay for their expenses directly in rubles.

Puerto Rico defaults on its debt

Puerto Rico just went into default for the first time in its history.

The commonwealth paid a mere $628,000 toward a $58 million debt bill due Monday to creditors of its Public Finance Corporation. This will hurt the island's residents, not Wall Street. The debt is owned by ordinary Puerto Ricans through credit unions.

Canada is on the verge of a recession

 10k

By Nick Cunningham of Oilprice.com @CN

The latest economic data from Canada shows that it is inching toward recession, after its economy posted its fifth straight month of contraction.

Statistics Canada revealed on July 31 that the Canadian economy shrank by 0.2% on an annualized basis in May, perhaps pushing the country over the edge into recessionary territory for the first half of 2015.

Gerald Celente Is Predicting That A Stock Market Crash Will Happen By The End Of 2015

By Michael Snyder, on August 9th, 2015

Gerald Celente of the Trends Research Institute has just gone on the record with a prediction that there will be a stock market crash by the end of this calendar year. If you are not familiar with Gerald Celente, he is one of the most highly respected trends forecasters in the entire world. He has been featured on CNN, The Oprah Winfrey Show, The Today Show, Good Morning America, CBS Morning News, NBC Nightly News and Coast to Coast AM. Personally, I have a lot of respect for him. While it is true that not every single one of his forecasts about the future came to pass over the years, he does have a very solid track record that goes back for decades. He correctly predicted the 1987 stock market crash, the bursting of the dotcom bubble and the financial panic of 2008. Just a couple of days ago, he told Eric King the following: "I'm now predicting that we are going to see a global stock market crash before the end of the year." Celente says that it won't just be U.S. stocks either. He believes that crashes are also coming to "the DAX, the FTSE, the CAC, Shanghai, and the Nikkei". In other words, it is going to be a truly global financial crisis and he says that there is "going to be panic on the streets from Wall Street to Shanghai and from the UK down to Brazil".

The massacre took place last Monday, but the news was released only yesterday because the area of Lake Chad is devoid of any type of telephone; survivors had to reach Maiduguri, the capital of Borno state, to raise the alarm.

Nepali Christians fear that proposed amendments to Nepal's new constitution, likely to come into effect on Monday (Aug. 10) after seven years of parliamentary discussions, could eventually render all Christian activity illegal.

Attempting to convert someone to another religion is already prohibited in Nepal, but the proposed amendments would mean that anything perceived as "evangelistic" could be punishable by law.

Article 31(3) states that "any act to convert another person from one religion to another, or any act or behavior to undermine or jeopardize the religion of another [will be] punishable by law."

Houston Gov't Subpoenaed Pastors' Sermons. Now, They're Fighting Back.

Just days after the Texas Supreme Court ruled that a contentious equal rights ordinance in Houston, Texas, must either be repealed by August 24, or placed on the November ballot, a group of four pastors and a preachers' council at the center of the dispute are reportedly set to file a lawsuit against Mayor Annise Parker.

The pastors, whose sermons were initially subpoenaed last year in the midst of intense debate over the ordinance, will claim in the complaint — set to be filed on Monday — that their religious freedoms were "trampled" in the process, KTRK-TV reported.

The lawsuit, which includes the Houston Pastors' Council, seeks damages that plaintiffs say will go toward paying their legal fees, pending they win; the complaint will also take aim at the claim that local voters were denied the opportunity to vote on the controversial ordinance, which treats gays and lesbians as a protected class.

TV Sports Analyst Who Opposes Homosexuality Claims Network Fired Him Over His Bible-Based Views — and Now He's Suing

An ex-NFL player and college football analyst is suing Fox Sports over the claim that he was unfairly targeted and fired from an on-air position due to his Christian viewpoints on homosexuality.

Craig James, who played for the New England Patriots in the 1980s and who went on to become a successful sportscaster, charges that he was fired in September 2013 from a TV analyst position with Fox Sports over past comments that he had made in opposition to same-sex relations.

James filed a lawsuit in Dallas County Court on Monday against his former employer over the claim that he was terminated "for one reason only – his religious beliefs about marriage," according to a press release from the Liberty Institute, the conservative legal firm that represents him.

"This case is much bigger than me. It affects every person who holds religious beliefs. I will not let Fox Sports trample my religious liberty. Today, many people have lost their jobs because of their faith," James said in a statement. "Sadly, countless are afraid to let their bosses know they even have a faith. This is America and I intend to make sure Fox Sports knows they aren't above the law."

As TheBlaze previously reported, James was fired just days after joining Fox Sports Southwest back in August 2013.

"This case is not about whom a person may marry under Kentucky law. "Same-sex 'marriage' licenses are readily available across Kentucky in over 130 offices, including in counties neighboring Rowan. (CNN)—Attention Target shoppers: Say goodbye to "girls' building sets" and "boys' bedding."

The big box retailer announced Friday that it will start phasing out gender-based signage in some departments. The shift comes in response to customer feedback that distinguishing between products for girls and boys is unnecessary and maybe even harmful.

Parents and gender equality advocates welcomed the news as a significant step with potential to inspire other retailers.

"This change is a step towards removing gender limitations in childhood, but when one of the world's largest retailers does this, the ripple effect will be significant," author Melissa Atkins Wardy said in her blog, Pigtail Pals & Ballcap Buddies, which promotes gender-neutral toys, apparel and other products for children.

Jakes, who joined HuffPost Live on Monday, opened up to host Marc Lamont-Hill about his thoughts on the relationship between these communities.

"I think that it's going to diverse from church to church every church has a different opinion on the issue and every gay person is different," Jakes said.

Opposing gay marriage could be considered 'hate speech' under new laws – MP

Vocal Christians who oppose gay marriage could face charges for 'hate speech' under new banning orders introduced by the Conservatives to crackdown on propagandists and extremists, one MP has warned.

Conservative MP Mark Spencer said teachers with more traditional views on marriage voicing their opinions in classrooms could be prosecuted under new hate speech laws.

In a letter to a constituent seen by the Telegraph, Spencer said the Extremism Disruption Orders (EDOs), which will be used to target hate preachers suspected of radicalizing vulnerable young people, could see teachers prosecuted.

"Teachers will still be free to express their understanding of the term 'marriage,' and their moral opposition to its use in some situations without breaking the new laws," he wrote.

"The EDOs, in this case, would apply to a situation where a teacher was specifically teaching that gay marriage is wrong."

Deputy Director of the Christian Institute Simon Calvert, however, said Christian teachers would be "branded extremists for teaching that marriage is between a man and a woman."
