اكرر اننا لا نحدد مواعيد بل فقط نشجع بعضنا بعضا بقرب مجيء المسيح

وأیضا أوضح أنه يوجد نبوات لم نراها بعد مثل ابن الهلاك وهرمجدون

ولكن ایضا علامات كثيرة من التي قال عنها الكتاب انها في الزمان الاخير بدأت تحدث بوضوح

ويجب أن ننتبه اليها. ونذكر بعضنا باننا نحتاج ان نستعد. والاستعداد ليس فقط قبل مجيء

المسيح بل ایضا قبل الظلمة التي ستسبق مجيؤه ليكون عندنا زيت في مصابيحنا يكفي ان نعبر

هذه الظلمة وتكون مصابيحنا مضيئة وقت مجيؤه. بمعنى نحتاج من الان ان نستعد بقوة بأيمان

عامل وبتنقية القلب وان نثمر بالخدمة أي نجمع زيت في مصابيحنا لان الظلمة والضيقة اقتربت

جدا ومن لن يستعد لها بزيت كافي من الان لن يجد زيت في الضيقة لان وقتها تجميع زيت

سيكون صعب جدا بل أستطيع ان أقول من مثل العذارى انه لن يكون هناك زيت الا ما جمعه

سابقا. أفضل ان اقول لنفسي ولكم استعدوا الان لأنه اقترب فنكون مستعدين سواء جاء او نحن ان سلمنا وديعتنا عن أنى لا اقول انه اقترب لكيلا يقال عني كاذب وانشر اشاعات ولكنه يأتي بسرعة بغته. لا اعتقد اي أحد ندم لانه كان مستعد ومنتظر مجيء المسيح ولم ياتي المسيح في زمنه ولكنه انتقل وهو مستعد ولكن كثيرين جدا ندموا على عدم الاستعداد عندما انتقلوا

المسيح قال بعض العلامات مثل

انجيل لوقا 21

21: 10 ثم قال لهم تقوم امة على امة ومملكة على مملكة

21: 11 وتكون زلازل عظيمة في اماكن ومجاعات واوبئة وتكون مخاوف وعلامات عظيمة من

السماء

21: 25 وتكون علامات في الشمس والقمر والنجوم وعلى الارض كرب امم بحيرة البحر والامواج

تضج

21: 26 والناس يغطى عليهم من خوف وانتظار ما يأتي على المسكونة لان قوات السماوات

تتزعزع

21: 27 وحينئذ يبصرون ابن الانسان اتيا في سحابة بقوة و مجد كثير

سفر اعمال الرسل 2

2: 19 واعطي عجائب في السماء من فوق وآيات على الارض من أسفل دما ونارا وبخار دخان

2: 20 تتحول الشمس الى ظلمة والقمر الى دم قبل ان يجيء يوم الرب العظيم الشهير

2: 21 ويكون كل من يدعو باسم الرب يخلص

لماذا قال المسيح بعض العلامات؟

أولا لكيلا نرتاع

انجيل متى 24

مت 24: 6 وسوف تسمعون بحروب واخبار حروب لا ترتاعوا لأنه لا بد ان تكون هذه

كلها ولكن ليس المنتهى بعد

ثانيا لنؤمن

إنجيل يوحنا 14: 29

وَقُلْتُ لَكُمْ الْآنَ قَبْلَ أَنْ يَكُونَ، حَتَّى مَتَى كَانَتْ تُؤْمِنُونَ.

ثالثا لننتبه ونستعد

انجيل لوقا 21

28 وَمَتَى ابْتَدَأَتْ هَذِهِ تَكُونُ، فَاَنْتَصِبُوا وَاَرْفَعُوا رُؤُوسَكُمْ لِأَنَّ نَجَاتَكُمْ تَقْتَرِبُ.»

An asteroid designated 2015 TB145 will pass by the Earth at around 1.3 lunar distances (approximately 310,000 miles or about 499,000 km) on October 31 this year. Estimated to be anywhere between 280 to 620 m (918 to 2,034 ft) in diameter and traveling in excess of 126,000 km/h (78,293 mph), the asteroid was discovered less than two weeks ago using the Pan-STARRS array in Hawaii and is the largest object to so closely approach our planet in recent times.

Before you start panicking, NASA says that the object is expected to safely pass by the Earth and is following an eccentric and high-inclination orbit, which may

How to watch tonight's stunning meteor shower created by Halley's Comet

BUSINESS INSIDER By Jessica Orwig October 21, 2015 4:48 PM

The Orionids meteor shower, which is generated by the famous Halley's Comet, is happening this week.

Halley's Comet is only visible from Earth once every 75 years, but residual chunks from its tail generate two annual meteor showers: the Eta Aquarids in May and the Orionids in October.

Mysterious Chunk Of Space Trash Is On A Collision Course With Earth

24 OCTOBER, 2015

A rogue chunk of debris that orbited Earth far beyond the Moon is making a homecoming on November 13th, astronomers have concluded. WT1190F is one to two meters in length and probably hollow, but beyond that, we have no idea WTF the aptly-named space garbage is. Much, if not all of WT1190F will burn up in orbit around 06:19 GMT on November 13th.

WT1190F's atmospheric re-entry is a rare opportunity for scientists to study how incoming objects interact with our atmosphere. Earth is in grave danger of being hit by a catastrophic comet shower triggered by the sun, warn scientists

- The study found that we wrongly thought we were in a 'safe zone'
- Scientists discovered a correlation between extinction events on Earth to the path our solar system takes through crowded areas of the Milky Way
- The galactic disk of the Milky Way contains dense clumps of dark matter
- Researchers claim the dark matter can throw comets into planet's path

Earth may be in great danger as the sun's path through the galaxy sends comet flying towards our planet, scientists have warned.

Researchers have identified a 26 million-year cycle of meteor impacts that coincides with the timing of mass extinctions over the past 260 million years.

The doomsday events are linked to the motion of the sun and its family of planets through the dense mid-plane of the Milky Way.

Well Above-Normal Temperatures to Envelop Western Canada

Western Canada residents should expect another winter with above- to well above-normal temperatures, as a prevailing westerly flow delivers milder Pacific air across the region.

Compared to last winter, there will be more snow across the coastal mountains of western British Columbia, which includes the Whistler Blackcomb ski resort, host of the 2010 Winter Olympics.

Hurricane Patricia became the strongest hurricane ever known to make landfall on the Pacific coast of Mexico after the center of its eye crossed the coast of Jalisco state early Friday evening. Its winds are rapidly losing strength as its center of circulation slices into the interior of southwest Mexico overnight.

Earlier Friday, Patricia became the most powerful tropical cyclone ever measured in the Western Hemisphere as its maximum sustained winds reached an unprecedented 200 mph (320 kph) and its central pressure fell to 879 millibars (25.96 inches of mercury).

Tectonic Summary

The October 26, 2015 M 7.5 earthquake near the Hindu Kush region of Afghanistan (SW of Jarm) occurred as the result of reverse faulting at intermediate depths, approximately 210 km below the Hindu Kush Range in northeastern Afghanistan. Focal mechanisms indicate rupture occurred on either a near-vertical reverse fault or a shallowly dipping thrust fault. At the latitude of the earthquake, the India subcontinent moves northward and collides with Eurasia at a velocity of about 37 mm/yr.

10/21/2015 – BREAKTHROUGH: EARTHQUAKES PROGRESS ACROSS WHOLE NORTH AMERICAN PLATE IN 1 WEEKS TIME

OCTOBER 21, 2015 MICHAEL JANITCH LEAVE A COMMENT

This is what I consider to be a breakthrough finding that professionals need to make note of immediately.

Earthquakes are now progressing across the North American plate, literally traversing the edge of the craton from the West Coast (Pacific Northwest) to the East Coast / Southeast Canada.

A picture speaks a thousand words, this graphic below shows the past 7 days of M2.5+ earthquakes across North America (as recorded by the USGS). The progression of earthquakes is obvious in its path along the edge of the North American Craton.

EARTHQUAKES PROGRESS FROM WEST COAST TO EAST COAST
ACROSS WHOLE PLATE IN JUST 1 WEEKS' TIME

October 20, 2015 - Past 7 days of M2.5 and greater earthquakes shows a progression of events reaching along the edge of the North American Craton, from the Southeast United States (Washington State) reaching northeast to the tracking operations of Colorado, Oklahoma, Texas, then reaching Eastward across the New England Seismic Zone (New Brunswick) - finally terminating with a release in localized Quebec Canada along the East coast / New York State border.

Unusual Earthquake Swarm South Of Bend, OR

25 OCTOBER, 2015

Any change in seismic activity increases our vigilance should the change develop into something threatening. This ongoing earthquake swarm southwest of Bend, Oregon, is just the sort of thing to trigger such vigilance. Because of the proximity of young volcanic vents in the area the Cascade Volcano Observatory is also taking an interest and as of today is installing an additional seismic station near the swarm. Currently the nearest station, (SWNB) is 33 km away so both our detection threshold and our location accuracies (particularly for depth) is degraded.

Donate To Colel Chabad

Your Donation Helps Israel's Poor. Make A Difference. Donate Today!

As of noon on Oct 25 there have been 36 events located in this swarm (and several more small events—too small to be located—can be seen on the nearest sensitive seismic station). Here is a map of the event locations with some background geography for reference. Note that the event locations are elongated in the north-south direction by about 10 km. Because of the similarity of seismic waveforms from these events we do not think that this pattern is real but is rather an artifact of the poor station coverage and weak signals for many of the events. The reported depths of these events range from very shallow (~1 km) to fairly deep (14 km). Again this variability is probably not real but rather an artifact of not having good depth control because no station is closer than 33 km. Based on signal character we think these earthquakes are fairly shallow; perhaps around 5 km depth or less. The installation of a nearby station should help resolve this issue (assuming the swarm continues). FULL REPORT

October 2015 – INDONESIA – A small explosive eruption with ash emissions was reported from the volcano this morning. It seems to have occurred from the Baru Jari cone inside the caldera lake (and the site of all recent eruptions of the volcano) at around 10:45 local time.

Hikers from and near the camp at the lake were evacuated and all trekking routes through the Rinjani National Park were closed, including those through Sembulan and Timbanuh, East Lombok, and Senaru and North Lombok. No significant seismic activity seems to have accompanied the explosion. The ash emission was too small to be detected on satellite data. The aviation alert level of the volcano was raised to Orange (VAAC Darwin). –Volcano Discovery

DOZENS OF CATTLE DEAD AT LUBHUKU

LUBHUKU – Scores of cattle have reportedly died at Lubhuku and surrounding areas since July as a result of the severe drought that has hit the country.

Lubhuku is a rural community situated near Mpaka, which is under the authority of Chief Ndlondlo Tsabedze. According to livestock farmers in the area, the number of cattle that have died could be more following reports that some cattle died in the forests and were never discovered.

The situation, livestock farmers said, has been exacerbated by the extremely hot weather conditions that were experienced in the country in the past two weeks.

“Just last week alone, about 10 cattle died here,” said a livestock farmer from Lubhuku.

“The cows are weak because there is no grass and enough water so they cannot withstand the extreme weather conditions,” he said.

This reporter was shown around the banks of Lubhuku dam where already decomposed carcasses of cattle are mostly found.

Some residents were spotted near the dam carrying the meat of a cow that had died the previous day.

“The cow died on its own and we are now taking the meat home,” Mpendulo Siwela said.

Kachemak sea otter deaths under investigation; Authorities seek public's help

Scientists continue to see large numbers of dead or sick sea otters turning up in the Kachemak Bay region.

Officials with the U.S Fish and Wildlife Service say the agency has received about 200 reports of sick or dead otters over the past couple of months.

They've teamed up with the Alaska SeaLife Center in Seward and they're running tests to try to find out the cause. In the meantime, they're asking for the public's help.

It's Friday night and Marc Webber, with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in Homer, has already had two calls for sick otters.

"Well I just was out on the spit having dinner with my family and a call came in as I was coming into the station of two otters ashore on mariner this evening," he said.

Webber is part of a group trained to respond to sick and injured marine mammals. He's Deputy Refuge Manager for the Alaska Maritime National Wildlife Refuge which runs the Alaska Islands and Ocean Visitors center in Homer.

"And so I was able to get to one of them down below the rock wall along the spit road and that individual is in very bad shape," Webber said. "It is in a somewhat depleted condition, but demonstrating something we've also seen a little bit of which is a set of neurological conditions where it was twitching."

Webber and trained volunteers try to keep people away from sick otters and get a vet to euthanize them when necessary.

"We're finding otters all over the Homer area," he said. "They're found from outer Bishop's Beach all the way around the spit on both sides and around the shores of Mud Bay, so pretty wide spread."

Mass fish death due to low oxygen

October 15th, 2015 Author: Administrator Filed Under: News

By Kelly Doran

Editor

Visitors to Harsha Lake in East Fork State Park recently may be surprised by a large number of dead fish on the shores of the lake.

The fish died during a process called "turnover," which is not typical, but is a naturally occurring process, said Debra Walters, fish management supervisor for the Division of Wildlife District 5 Southwest Ohio.

"Conditions were just perfect, unfortunately, for a fish kill," Walters said.

The fish died because of low oxygen levels in the lake. The low levels were caused by strong winds, cloudy overcast conditions and the inflow of cooler water making the shallower water mix with the deeper, oxygen-deficient water, Walters said in an email.

In addition, dying and dead plants use oxygen, and when Walters and her team were on the lake on Sept. 28, Walters noticed the water was a tea-stained color rather than the typical green casted color.

When the U.S. Army Corp of Engineers took a dissolved oxygen profile on Sept. 27, they found that the oxygen level on the surface was 2.9 milligrams per liter. Fish need 4 mg./l or greater or the fish will start showing signs of stress that could kill them, Walters said.

On Sept. 28, Walters and her team also took an oxygen profile and found that the oxygen levels were not too bad in the first few feet but dropped drastically beyond that to less than 2 mg./l, indicating to Walters that turnover would occur soon.

Dead fish lay along the shores of Harsha Lake in East Fork State Park on Oct. 8, 2015 after low oxygen levels in the lake resulted in the deaths of a large number of fish.

PANAMA CITY-- Stan Jones, the Director of the Panama City Marina, says he's seen a lot of dead fish in St. Andrews Bay lately. That is, everything from small Pinfish to huge Flounder, Red Fish, and Mullet as a result of red tide.

"It can affect marine life," Bekah Nelson, on behalf of the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission (FWC), said. "You know, there's obviously fish kills that can happen from the neurotoxins."

While symptoms for us are usually minor, red tide can still be a nuisance.

Drought kills 160 cattle in Cochabamba

Saturday, October 17, 2015 - 16:41

160 heads of cattle dead and over a thousand hectares of corn and beans is lost due to severe drought in the municipalities of Omereque and Pasorapa in the southern cone of Cochabamba, said Colonel Ramiro Mercado, head of the Civil Defense Department.

"In Pasorapa three substations and 16 communities are affected, and two substations Omereque eight communities. The villagers are demanding agricultural inputs such as seeds, and veterinarians. Also they ask for a water truck. The Governor attended some of these orders, "the authority said.

Mercado said the situation could worsen with the arrival of El Niño. He said the region's rivers were completely dry as seen above. He warned that this situation will bring heavy losses to farming families in both municipalities.

TAIPEI, Taiwan – Officials in Changhua steeled themselves to cull 20,060 chickens on a farm where the highly pathogenic H5N2 avian flu virus was found, yesterday, according to the Bureau of Animal and Plant Health Inspection and Quarantine (BAPHIQ, 動物防疫檢疫局).

The infection was confirmed on Saturday from lab tests conducted by the Animal Health Research Institute (AHRI, 畜衛所) following an urgent report about unusual bird deaths on a poultry farm in Dacheng (大城鄉), Changhua County.

The owner of the farm observed 495 chickens die in less than a week, from Oct. 11 to Oct. 16.

Epidemic prevention measures were then set in motion by the Chunghua County Animal Disease Control Center (ADCC, 動物防疫所), yesterday, according to the bureau.

The head of the Chunghua County ADCC, Tung Meng-chih (董孟治), said the H5N2 resurgence might be due to viruses that survived after a previous outbreak. The farm was exposed to a bird flu virus early this year, determined by disease specialists on Jan. 26. Restrictions on movement were lifted on July 4, and the farm resumed poultry farming in September, said Tung.

S. Korea confirms new bird flu case

2015/10/22 17:04

SEOUL, Oct. 22 (Yonhap) -- South Korea confirmed a new case of bird flu on Thursday, bringing the total to eight over the last one-month period.

The Ministry for Agriculture, Food and Rural Affairs said ducks at a poultry farm in Yeongam, 384 kilometers south of Seoul, tested positive for the H5N8 strain of avian influenza (AI).

All 27,000 ducks were culled on Monday as a precautionary measure, after some birds showed signs of being sick before they were to be shipped out, it said.

"The farm has been under quarantine ever since with the area being decontaminated to prevent the virulent virus from spreading," a ministry official said.

He said officials at the site are following set operating procedures to restrict movement of traffic, taking all necessary steps to create a firewall and track the movement of potential risks in efforts to control the spread of AI.

"As of today, 81,520 birds have been culled since the middle of September," he said.

The latest outbreak is viewed as a continuation of the outbreak that hit the country from Sept. 24, 2014, through to June 10 of this year.

Birds at two duck farms in South Jeolla Province first tested positive for AI on Sept. 18, followed by two traditional markets, a holding facility and an eatery that serves poultry. There was another duck farm that was infected late last month.

For now, all confirmed outbreaks have been contained in the southwestern part of the country.

Russian Ships Near Data Cables Are Too Close for U.S. Comfort

By DAVID E. SANGER and ERIC SCHMITT OCT. 25, 2015

WASHINGTON — Russian submarines and spy ships are aggressively operating near the vital undersea cables that carry almost all global Internet communications, raising concerns among some American military and intelligence officials that the Russians might be planning to attack those lines in times of tension or conflict.

The issue goes beyond old worries during the Cold War that the Russians would tap into the cables — a task American intelligence agencies also mastered decades ago. The alarm today is deeper: The ultimate Russian hack on the United States could involve severing the fiber-optic cables at some of their hardest-to-access locations to halt the instant communications on which the West's governments, economies and citizens have grown dependent.

While there is no evidence yet of any cable cutting, the concern is part of a growing wariness among senior American and allied military and intelligence officials over the accelerated activity by Russian armed forces around the globe. At the same time, the internal debate in Washington illustrates how the United States is increasingly viewing every Russian move through a lens of deep distrust, reminiscent of relations during the Cold War.

Russia To Test Its Most Advanced Smart Bomb In Syria

19 OCTOBER, 2015

Russia is preparing to test its newest precision-guided munition, the KAB-250, in Syria in the near future, reports said Sunday. There are two versions of the state-of-the-art bomb, a satellite-guided one and a laser-guided one. The 10.5-foot-long, 565-pound weapon can be adjusted with different speeds and trajectories, and can withstand any weather conditions at any time of day, according to the reports. They added that the previous version, the KAB-500 PGM, is already being used to bomb US-trained rebels. DEBKA

US Rejected Israeli Request For Hardware To Raid Iranian Nuclear Facility

24 OCTOBER, 2015

Israel wanted to send commandos to break into the Fordo nuclear facility in Iran and sabotage it from the inside, WSJ reports. The US considered it a suicide mission and refused to sell Israel military hardware that could be used in such a raid. The episode, dating back to 2012, is part of a developing crisis of confidence that Israel and the US plunged into under Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu and President Barack Obama. The Wall Street Journal says relations started deteriorating in 2009, when Netanyahu met Obama in the White House and started briefing reporters immediately without coordinating with the Americans.

Argentinian President Claims Obama Is Trying To Send Nuke Material To Iran

North Korea is preparing for a new nuclear test, South Korea's spy agency said Tuesday, according to the Yonhap news agency.

The North is getting ready to conduct the test because of what it says are confrontational policies of the United States and its allies, according to South Korea's National Intelligence Service, Yonhap reported. The spy agency said the test was not imminent. It did not elaborate on the type of test that would be held.

North Korea last conducted a nuclear test in 2013. It also held tests in 2006 and 2009, drawing United Nations sanctions.

President Obama failed to take out Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu but now he's going after Canada's Conservative Party Prime Minister Stephen Harper, a big supporter of Israel and opponent of Russian President Vladimir Putin.

It's a story the U.S. media won't cover. But Judi McLeod of the Canada Free Press has been documenting how Obama is planning the "fundamental transformation" of Canada by taking down Harper's government and bringing to power a progressive majority assembled from Canada's Liberal Party and New Democratic Party (NDP), an affiliate of the Socialist International.

In a dispatch earlier this year, McLeod provided the facts about the interference of Obama campaign operatives in the Canadian elections scheduled for October 19. "In Canada, Obama's campaign team is guiding the election campaigns of both the Liberals and the NDP," she wrote. She urged the Harper government to investigate.

She explained why Obama is targeting Canada: "To the U.S., Canada is the country next door, to Obama it's home of the architects of the maligned Keystone XL Pipeline and home to the world's Number One elected defender of Israel Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu."

Cave of the Patriarchs In Hebron

Flash 90

UNESCO (the United Nations Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Organization) passed a resolution Wednesday listing the Cave of the Patriarchs in Hebron and Rachel's Tomb in Bethlehem as Muslim sites.

The resolution - which passed with 28 in favor, six voted against, and 25 abstentions - condemned Israel for archaeological excavations in the Old City of Jerusalem and particularly near the Temple Mount.

An initial draft of the resolution had also called for the Kotel (Western Wall) to be listed as an Islamic site - or more specifically as an "extension of the Al Aqsa Mosque" - but that detail was hastily withdrawn after widespread condemnation, including from UNESCO's own Director-General.

The revised draft also toned-down some of the more blatant anti-Israel language in the original, including referring to Jerusalem as the "occupied capital of Palestine."

Nevertheless, the resolution accepted Wednesday does co-opt two other ancient Jewish holy sites: the Cave of the Patriarchs and Rachel's Tomb, which contain the remains of the Jewish patriarchs and matriarchs and are regular sites of pilgrimage for Jewish worshipers.

UNESCO Will Vote on Plan To Declare Western Wall a Muslim Site

Palestinian effort to have a United Nations agency declare Judaism's holiest site a Muslim holy site is "an attempt to distort history," Israel said.

UNESCO, the U.N.'s cultural body, is scheduled to vote Tuesday on the proposal concerning the Western Wall in Jerusalem.

In a statement Monday, Israel's Foreign Ministry called the proposal "an attempt to distort history and blur the connection between the Jewish people and its holiest place and to create a false reality," the Times of Israel reported.

Six Muslim Arab countries submitted the UNESCO proposal on behalf of the Palestinians. The proposal refers to Jerusalem as "the occupied capital of Palestine," according to Ynet.

The proposal is believed to have a good chance of passing because the majority of UNESCO's members have historically supported Palestinian bids.

Israel's deputy foreign minister, Tzipi Hotovely, condemned the proposal, saying, "This shameful and deceitful Palestinian attempt to rewrite history will fail the test of reality."

The Wall, known in Hebrew as the Kotel, is believed to be one of the few remnants of the retaining wall of the ancient Temple, which the Romans destroyed nearly 2,000 years ago. A venue for Jewish prayer services and individual Jewish prayer, the Wall is a stop on most tours of Israel.

Baroness Cox, a member of Britain's House of Lords, warned Friday that British recognition of Shariah-guided arbitration panels is leading to discrimination against Muslim women, calling the phenomenon "religiously sanctioned gender discrimination."

Cox, a longtime critic of radical Islam, warned that as a result of the acceptance of Islamic law panels, some Muslim men in the U.K. have been able to practice polygamy.

"My Muslim friends tell me that in some communities with high polygamy and divorce rates, men may have up to 20 children each," she said.

Britain's Daily Telegraph reported that Cox would like to close a legal loophole which she believes allows Shariah courts to discriminate against women.

In her address to the House of Lords, Cox said one Muslim woman told her, "I feel betrayed by Britain. I came here to get away from this and the situation is worse here than in the country I escaped from."

Under the 1996 Arbitration Act, Muslims in the U.K. are permitted to turn to arbitration panels to resolve disputes according to Shariah law.

"The rights of Muslim women and the rule of law in our land must be upheld," Baroness Cox said.

Her proposed bill called the Arbitration and Mediation Services (Equality) Bill "will strengthen the position of vulnerable women who need protection from exploitation," she said.

(Todd Starnes) Back when I was in school our English teacher would give us vocabulary words, things like “conundrum” or “extraordinary.” Well—the vocabulary list at High Mount School in Illinois is causing a bit of a controversy. Their list included words like “jihad, Islam, Muhammad,” and “Koran,” according to the reporting of the Bellville News-Democrat. One mom told the newspaper she flipped out, shocked that her 12-year-old daughter’s public school history class was teaching Islam 101.

It was bad men that did that.” Well, I hate to break it to the superintendent, but the radical Islamic Sweden, proudly dubbed the “Great Humanitarian Power” by its ex-prime minister, Fredrik Reinfeldt, is on the verge of collapse.

“The final consequence of the West and, above all, Sweden’s immigration policy is that the economy will collapse — because who is going to pay for it all? And economic breakdowns, once they happen, always happen very fast,” warns Danish historian Lars Hedegaard.

Increasing taxes on wage earners in Sweden to pay for the influx of illegal immigrants is not enough. In August Finance Minister Magdalena Andersson said the government is looking at borrowing large sums of money from the European Investment Bank to pay for illegal immigration.

Gene editing could pave way for pig organ transplants: U.S. study

CHICAGO

U.S. researchers have used a new gene editing technique to trim away potentially harmful virus genes that have impeded the use of pig organs for transplants in humans.

The study, published in the journal Science, expands on capabilities of the genome editing tool known as CRISPR-Cas9, which works as a type of molecular scissors that can selectively trim away unwanted parts of the genome.

Previous efforts with the technology have only managed to cut away six areas of the genome at one go. In the latest study led by Dr. George Church, a geneticist from Harvard Medical School, researchers simultaneously snipped away genetic material in 62 specific locations in the pig genome.

While Church's team has shown that it is feasible to drastically edit the genome of pigs to remove native pig viruses from pig cells, it has not shown that such organs would be safe to use in people.

Still, Church said in a statement he believes the technology will one day make it possible for pig organs to be used as a substitute for human organs for patients in need of a transplant and for whom there are no suitable donor organs.

Church first revealed his team's feat at an Oct. 5 workshop at the National Academy of Sciences, which is studying the potential risks and ethical concerns of human genome editing.

Genetically-engineered, extra-muscular dogs created by Chinese scientists

Researchers hope to go on to create dogs that have human diseases, like Parkinson's and muscular dystrophy

Chinese scientists have created genetically-engineered, extra-muscular dogs, after editing the genes of the animals for the first time.

The scientists create beagles that have double the amount of muscle mass by deleting a certain gene, reports the MIT Technology Review. The mutant dogs have “more muscles and are expected to have stronger running ability, which is good for hunting, police (military) applications”, Liangxue Lai, one of the researchers on the project, told the magazine.

Now the team hope to go on to create other modified dogs, including those that are engineered to have human diseases like muscular dystrophy or Parkinson’s. Since dogs’ anatomy is similar to those of humans’, intentionally creating dogs with certain human genetic traits could allow scientists to further understand how they occur.

To create the dogs, researchers edit out the myostatin gene. If that is inhibited, animals can gain significantly more muscle mass and become much stronger than usual.

Recent developments in genome editing allow scientists to edit out or change genes relatively easily. The scientists said that the muscular dogs were mostly a proof of concept, and that they hope to go on to create more edited dogs.

Horrific genetic engineering of animals must stop - Greens

Green Party | October 23, 2015, 11:57 am

The Green Party is calling for AgResearch to stop its programme of genetic engineering experiments on animals at its Ruakura facility after a report revealing horrific birth defects and animal suffering was released this morning.

The report 'GE Animals in New Zealand' outlines the appalling genetic engineering experimentation on thousands of sheep, cattle and goats in New Zealand, that has resulted in chronically ill animals, deformities, and huge rates of miscarriage and still birth.

"Successive experiments have failed at huge taxpayer and animal welfare cost," said Green Party GE spokesperson Steffan Browning:

"They raise serious questions about ethics of methods used on these animals. Cows have been implanted with embryos that contain human genetic materials, resulting in terrible deformities, still births and suffering.

"Photographs of deformities have been suppressed by AgResearch in case they jeopardise public and commercial investment in genetic modification.

Report: 'Human DNA' found in small percentage of tested hot dogs

A company that uses genomic analysis technology to derive the contents of food has found a disturbing "additive" in a very small percentage of hot dogs - human DNA.

Clear Food chalks up the find in 2 percent of the 345 hot dogs and sausages tested to hygienic issues.

Overall, the company said it found that 14.4 percent of hot dogs were problematic in some way.

Other major problems found were substitutions or unexpected ingredients such as meats not found on the labels, an absence of ingredients advertised or, in some cases, meat in vegetarian products.

Despite the disturbing finds, the company said that it found that several brands both large and small scored well on the tests. These included both national and specialty or regional brands - the list for which can be found here.

An interesting take-away the company had from the test was that there was no correlation between the company's score and the price of the hot dog.

Read more about the results and the testing here.

When it comes to “prepping”, many among the elite take things to an entirely different level. As you will see below, the elite are willing to pay big money for cutting edge home security measures, luxury bomb shelters and superyacht getaway submarines. Some of the things that the elite are demanding for their own protection go beyond even what we would see in a James Bond film, and serving the prepping needs of the elite has become a multi-billion dollar business. Meanwhile, the media outlets that the elite own continue to mock the rest of us for getting prepared.

Goodbye Middle Class: 51 Percent Of All American Workers Make Less Than 30,000 Dollars A Year

By Michael Snyder, on October 20th, 2015

We just got more evidence that the middle class in America is dying. According to brand new numbers that were just released by the Social Security Administration, 51 percent of all workers in the United States make less than $30,000 a year. Let that number sink in for a moment. You can't support a middle class family in America today on just $2,500 a month – especially after taxes are taken out. And yet more than half of all workers in this country make less than that each month. In order to have a thriving middle class, you have got to have an economy that produces lots of middle class jobs, and that simply is not happening in America today.

You can find the report that the Social Security Administration just released right here. The following are some of the numbers that really stood out for me...

- 38 percent of all American workers made less than $20,000 last year.
- 51 percent of all American workers made less than $30,000 last year.
- 62 percent of all American workers made less than $40,000 last year.

America has a perpetual population of food-stamp beneficiaries greater than the number of Canadian citizens.

New data released by the Department of Agriculture Oct. 9 shows the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program, or SNAP, with enrollment exceeding 45 million for 51 straight months. The population of Canada: 34,834,841.

"Between 2007 and 2011, new eligibility rules by themselves added 3.4 million people to SNAP enrollment and naturally tended to increase SNAP spending. At the same time, SNAP began to pay more generous benefits to people who enrolled," Casey Mulligan, an economics professor at the University of Chicago, told the Washington Free

According to Lepouttre, while the Federal Reserve has worked feverishly to prevent a widespread destabilization of the system, their machinations will soon be revealed as an abject failure.

Whereas many of his colleagues suggest the possibility of inflation is an unlikely scenario, Lepouttre says that we will see it begin to manifest in the near-term in the form of higher prices for essential resources. In his latest interview he explains why we're Cable network Adult Swim recently premiered Season 2 of controversial late night TV show "Black Jesus." The new season has been met with backlash for the show's depiction of a so-called modern day Jesus, who wears a hood, smokes marijuana and loves to spew the F-word. At least one advertiser has withdrawn its commercials for the show in response to the outrage.

Christian critics have blasted the show, as well as a stream of others hitting U.S. television networks for what they call a blatant anti-Christian sentiment. Shows such as "Impastor", "Lucifer", "Scream Queens" have angered some for their controversial portrayal of Christians and faith as well as their promotion and glamorization of evil and wickedness.

Gerald 'Slink' Johnson plays 'Pops' in the late-night TV show 'Black Jesus.'

Adult Swim's "Black Jesus" is a supposed satirical comedy drama about the life of a modern day Jesus called "Pops", who is portrayed by a black man who curses, and does drugs.

One group that has expressed outrage at the show's return is OneMillionMoms, which is a division of the American Family Association. It has gone on the offensive to slam Turner Broadcasting and its parent company, Time Warner, which own Adult Swim.

If there are two edicts I try to follow whenever I'm writing, they are, first, write what is true and, second, avoid cliché at all costs. I bring that up only as a preface before saying the following: the UK is walking down an Orwellian path. It's nearly the cliché of clichés to say something like this, and yet it happens that the cliché is true.

While there is most certainly a real thing known as a threat from Islamic terrorism, there is also such a thing as overreaction. What started as the British government's attempt to ban extremist thought from social media and television (under the notion that some thoughts are too dangerous to enjoy the freedom that other thoughts deserve) then devolved into the conscripting of teachers that were to be on the lookout for children that might become radicalized. To assist them with this, the government helpfully provided spy-software to use against students. Spy-software which itself was found to be exploitable in the most laughably easy of ways. This employed two of the most horrifying

*Oprah's sudden river of religious talk is not based on some newfound appreciation for Christianity. It's marketing spin for her new series, Belief, which the media pioneer describes as a "groundbreaking" television event exploring humanity's ongoing search to connect with something greater than ourselves. For the past several weeks, Oprah Winfrey has been sharing her heart about how of the Bible has impacted her life and how God gives her great joy. The only problem is, we aren't really sure which god she is glorifying but she's leaving Jesus out of the equation (or at least putting other gods on the same pedestal next to Him).

Let's be clear. Oprah's sudden river of religious talk is not based on some newfound appreciation for Christianity. It's marketing spin for her new series, Belief, which the media pioneer describes as a "groundbreaking" television event exploring humanity's ongoing search to connect with something

A senator in Ireland said "gay" cousins should be allowed to marry.

A senator in Ireland has taken the culture war to a new level, saying to fellow politicians they ought to let "gay" cousins marry since they can't have kids, anyway.

Currently, Irish law prevents first cousins from marrying. But Sen. David Norris said an exemption should be written for homosexuals.

New research from the Parents Television Council shows that the over 4 million children ages 2-11 who watched ABC's The Muppets were exposed to adult-themed content every three minutes and 38 seconds during the first four episodes. The iconic stars of the show, Kermit and Miss Piggy, have delivered nearly half of all sexual innuendos and references on the show. Additionally, one bar scene in the 4th episode was long enough to consume almost one-quarter of the show's screen time, during which Muppet characters were shown drinking and becoming drunk from beer, wine and hard liquor.

PROSPER, Texas — A Texas principal has agreed to no longer speak at future "See You at the Pole" school prayer events in his capacity as a public official following the demands of a prominent atheist activist organization.

According to reports, for the past 21 years, Dr. Greg Wright, the principal of Prosper High School has been leading prayers and delivering sermons at the annual youth prayer event. But recently, parent Janie Oyakawa contacted the Wisconsin-based Freedom from Religion Foundation (FFRF) about Wright's practice, as well as his

More States Considering Legally Assisted Suicide

21 OCTOBER, 2015

Suicide for terminally ill patients is now legal in the state of California. California governor Jerry Brown signed his state's first assisted-suicide law earlier this month, (AB2X-15), which allows doctors to prescribe drugs that will enable such 'eligible' patients to take their own lives. The law becomes effective as of next spring, delivering a victory to the "Right to Die" and similarly-minded groups. In a statement that appeared calculated to attempt a delicate balancing act with stakeholders on opposite sides, while delivering a decisive conclusion, Governor Brown concluded: "...I was left to reflect on what I would want in the face of my own death.

I do not know what I would do if I were dying in prolonged agony and excruciating pain. I am certain, however, that it would be a comfort to be able to consider the options afforded by this bill. And I wouldn't deny that right to others." California now joins three other states which have enacted laws allowing for physician-assisted suicide. Those include Vermont, Washington and Oregon. The reaction to the new law was swift and strong. Opponents' primary concerns were well voiced by Americans United for Life President and CEO Dr. Charmaine Yoest and many

Students and parents need to know their rights to privacy in sex-specific showers and changing areas and the rights of the school district to maintain policies keeping opposite sex students, including transgender students, out of those areas. (Flickr/Creative Commons)

Attorneys from the Thomas More Society and Alliance Defending Freedom have sent a letter to the School Board and Superintendent Daniel Cates of School District 211, articulating the rights of students and parents to privacy in sex-specific showers and changing areas and the rights of the school district to maintain policies keeping opposite sex students, including transgender students, out of those areas. The Obama administration's Office of Civil Rights has demanded that the school district reverse the policy.

"A school should not force students to share a shower and changing room with students of the opposite sex," said Peter Breen, Thomas More Society Special Counsel. "If a high school student who is biologically male is allowed to use the female showers and changing room, this would jeopardize the privacy of all the young women using their designated locker room. Instead, the privacy rights of all children must be

It's not easy for many Christian ministries to provide desperately needed services and outreaches to their communities and still manage to pay the bills every month.

Many faith-based charities are busy helping the poor, orphans, homeless, hungry and drug-addicted individuals and supporting outreach missions abroad.

That's why it's a blessing when Microsoft offers donated products such as Windows 10, Office 365 Nonprofit and other training and resources to nonprofit charity organizations as part of its Microsoft Corporate Citizenship Charity Sales program, which donates $2 million in software every day to
