اكرر اننا لا نحدد مواعيد بل فقط نشجع بعضنا بعضا بقرب مجيء المسيح

وأیضا أوضح أنه يوجد نبوات لم نراها بعد مثل ابن الهلاك وهرمجدون

ولكن ایضا علامات كثيرة من التي قال عنها الكتاب انها في الزمان الاخير بدأت تحدث بوضوح

ويجب أن ننتبه اليها. ونذكر بعضنا باننا نحتاج ان نستعد. والاستعداد ليس فقط قبل مجيء

المسيح بل ایضا قبل الظلمة التي ستسبق مجيؤه ليكون عندنا زيت في مصابيحنا يكفي ان نعبر

هذه الظلمة وتكون مصابيحنا مضيئة وقت مجيؤه. بمعنى نحتاج من الان ان نستعد بقوة بأيمان

عامل وبتنقية القلب وان نثمر بالخدمة أي نجمع زيت في مصابيحنا لان الظلمة والضيقة اقتربت

جدا ومن لن يستعد لها بزيت كافي من الان لن يجد زيت في الضيقة لان وقتها تجميع زيت

سيكون صعب جدا بل أستطيع ان أقول من مثل العذارى انه لن يكون هناك زيت الا ما جمعه

سابقا. أفضل ان اقول لنفسي ولكم استعدوا الان لأنه اقترب فنكون مستعدين سواء جاء او نحن ان سلمنا وديعتنا عن أنى لا اقول انه اقترب لكيلا يقال عني كاذب وانشر اشاعات ولكنه يأتي بسرعة بغته. لا اعتقد اي أحد ندم لانه كان مستعد ومنتظر مجيء المسيح ولم ياتي المسيح في زمنه ولكنه انتقل وهو مستعد ولكن كثيرين جدا ندموا على عدم الاستعداد عندما انتقلوا

المسيح قال بعض العلامات مثل

انجيل لوقا 21

21: 10 ثم قال لهم تقوم امة على امة ومملكة على مملكة

21: 11 وتكون زلازل عظيمة في اماكن ومجاعات واوبئة وتكون مخاوف وعلامات عظيمة من

21: 25 وتكون علامات في الشمس والقمر والنجوم وعلى الارض كرب امم بحيرة البحر والامواج

تضج

21: 26 والناس يغطى عليهم من خوف وانتظار ما يأتي على المسكونة لان قوات السماوات

تتزعزع

21: 27 وحينئذ يبصرون ابن الانسان اتيا في سحابة بقوة و مجد كثير

سفر اعمال الرسل 2

2: 19 واعطي عجائب في السماء من فوق وآيات على الارض من أسفل دما ونارا وبخار دخان

2: 20 تتحول الشمس الى ظلمة والقمر الى دم قبل ان يجيء يوم الرب العظيم الشهير

2: 21 ويكون كل من يدعو باسم الرب يخلص

لماذا قال المسيح بعض العلامات؟

أولا لكيلا نرتاع

انجيل متى 24

مت 24: 6 وسوف تسمعون بحروب واخبار حروب لا ترتاعوا لأنه لا بد ان تكون هذه

كلها ولكن ليس المنتهى بعد

إنجيل يوحنا 14: 29

وَقُلْتُ لَكُمْ الْآنَ قَبْلَ أَنْ يَكُونَ، حَتَّى مَتَى كَانَتْ تُؤْمِنُونَ.

ثالثا لننتبه ونستعد

انجيل لوقا 21

28 وَمَتَى ابْتَدَأَتْ هَذِهِ تَكُونُ، فَانْتَصِبُوا وَارْفَعُوا رُؤُوسَكُمْ لِأَنَّ نَجَاتَكُمْ تَقْتَرِبُ.»

By studying a nearby sun-like star, astronomers have concluded that the Sun is capable of releasing solar flares a thousand times greater than anything previously recorded. Scientists say the chances of this are quite slim, but warn that such an event would threaten life on Earth.

Astronomers have documented superflares before, but never in our own Solar System. The new study, conducted by researchers at the University of Warwick,

Record December snowfall for Reykjavik

Residents of Icelandic capital Reykjavik woke up to 42 cm (16.5 inches) of snow this morning - the highest depth of snow in December since records began.

According to the Icelandic Met Office, the previous record was set back in 2011, when snow lay 33 cm (13 inches) deep in Reykjavik on 29 December that year.

The highest ever depth of snow recorded in in Reykjavik was 55 cm (21.5 inches) back in January 1937, and if snows continues to fall on the city, this record might also be broken - and soon.

Now at 42 cm, snow levels in Reykjavik were 32 cm just four days ago on Saturday.

50 small earthquakes have rattled northwest in the last week

Posted on December 6, 2015

December 2015 – STANWOOD, Wash. – The U.S. Geological Survey says our region has seen more than 50 small earthquakes in just the last seven days, including a magnitude 3.0 quake in Stanwood on Monday morning. “I did not feel the one today,” said Farmer’s Caf server Kylie Johnson. But, she said just the news of the small quake is still a bit unsettling. “It’s true that there’s been more activity than usual this week,” said seismologist John Vidale with the Pacific Northwest Seismic Network at the University of Washington. In fact, Vidale said there’s been more recent activity at Glacier Peak since they’ve been monitoring seismic activity in that area over for the past fifty years. Recently, there was a 3.1 then a 3.5 an hour later and then aftershocks.

“We’re not considering it alarming, we’re certainly watching it more carefully in fact we look very carefully at that area and we could find ten little aftershocks,” said Vidale. Many of the earthquakes in the region have no relation to each other and sit on different fault lines. Scientists tell us all this activity really has no effect on the big earthquake that experts say is due anytime. “So if we were hoping to let up the pressure that magnitude six would release, we’d need a thousand magnitude threes,” said Vidale. Despite the fact that locally it’s been a busy week, geologically speaking, it gives geologists no insight into what’s next.

Alert Level 1 issued for four restive volcanoes in the Philippines

Posted on December 2, 2015

December 2015 – PHILIPPINES – Four volcanoes in the country –Taal, Kanlaon, Mayon, Bulusan –remain under Alert 1, the Philippine Institute of Volcanology and Seismology (Phivolcs) said on Monday. Kanlaon Volcano in Negros Island, in a state of unrest and in an abnormal condition following a minor steam explosion last week, was recorded having 11 volcanic earthquakes since Sunday. Weak to moderate emission of white steam plumes that rose up to 50-meter high above the summit crater has been monitored.

PHIVOLCS has strictly enforced the 4-kilometer radius Permanent Danger Zone (PDZ) in areas around and near the four volcanoes due to further possibilities of sudden and hazardous steam-driven or phreatic eruptions. Civil aviation authorities were also asked to advise pilots to avoid flying close to the volcanoes' summit as airborne ash from a sudden eruption can be hazardous. Mayon Volcano in Albay Province, meanwhile, had one volcanic earthquake recorded since Sunday with moderate emission of white steam plumes was also observed.

Santiaguito, an active dome of the Santa Maria volcano in Guatemala produced a large explosion on the morning (local time) of December 1, 2015, following a period of heightened activity. An active volcano watch and the necessary precautions for air traffic in the area have been recommended.

A period of increased activity of Santiaguito volcano since November 29 resulted in a strong explosion in the early hours of December 1. The explosion produced a plume of ash between 2 and 3 km (6 562 and 9 843 feet) high most likely accompanied by a small pyroclastic flow, Volcano Discovery reported.

A powerful explosion occurred at 07:07 am (local time) and a pyroclastic flow traveled about 15 km (9.3 miles) west-southwest. The ashes have been reported to fall near the St. Marcos Palajunoj, Finca La Florida and other adjacent villages, according to INSIVUMEH.

MOUNT MERAPI, Indonesia - Deafening explosions of hot gas rattled evacuees miles from a volcano Tuesday, the latest eruption in a deadly week. Increased rumblings were reported at 21 other active volcanoes in Indonesia, raising questions about what's causing the uptick along some of the world's most volatile fault lines.

No casualties were reported in Mount Merapi's new blast, which came as Indonesia struggles to respond to an earthquake-generated tsunami that devastated a remote chain of islands. The

Killer French virus wipes out 95% of western Algarve's oysters

Created: 29 November 2015

Oyster producers in the western Algarve are up in arms over a government plan that they now must pay 60 cents a kilo to have their devastated stock incinerated.

The Portuguese Association of Aquaculture has demanded an "urgent response" over the question of what happens next to the tons of dead oysters at the Alvor Estuary and Sagres oyster farms after a killer virus from France swept through the nurseries in October.

"We urgently need to know what to do with the tons of shells that are still in nurseries," stated the general secretary of the Portuguese Aquaculture Association, Fernando Gonçalves.

Nine businesses in the Ria de Alvor and 'off-shore' near Sagres, were affected by a virus and a bacterium identified by the Portuguese Institute of the Sea and Atmosphere (IPMA) as 'herpes virus' and 'vibrio', respectively, which has killed 95% of oyster production valued at about €3 million.

The representative of the Association said "we are waiting for clarification from the various bodies that oversee the industry about the fate of the shells, since they are a Category 2 by-product, which would mean incineration. However, we consider that the shells without anything left inside should not be classified as such."

In Fernando Gonçalves' opinion, "the shells pose no danger of contamination and can be used, for example, as hardcore for roads or sent to landfill. Incineration would result in higher costs for producers at around 60 cents per kilogramme."

Rui Ferreira, head of the largest producer of oysters in the Algarve, OstraSelect, said he lost "about 95% of production, €1 million, and that incineration would result in an additional outlay of approximately €150,000."

Ferreira already has had to lay off two members of staff, "We will not invest again without knowing what happened. We will have to work differently, with permanent monitoring plans to have any certainty in the future."

The death of the Algarve's oysters was due to the diseases being transmitted from infected juvenile oysters imported from France.

Bird flu outbreak hits Dordogne

December 02, 2015

THOUSANDS of birds have been slaughtered in the Dordogne after two fresh outbreaks of bird flu were detected there earlier this week, bringing the total in the department to three in the past fortnight.

The council ordered the killing of 1,000 geese in Domme and 14,000 ducks in Saint-Paul-la-Roche where the two latest outbreaks occurred. The first outbreak happened in Biras, near Périgueux, last week.

All three sites are now under strict quarantine orders, with about 70 agricultural businesses affected.

The prefect of the department Christophe Bay said the birds had been infected with a "highly pathogenic" H5 virus that has a high chance of causing disease. Scientists are studying it to work out how it is passed on and the Ministry of Agriculture will send experts on epidemics to help.

Scientists have been intrigued by the H5 virus's apparent lack of lethality suggested by the low death rate of birds on the infected farms, said Dr Frédéric Piron, departmental director of sanitation.

Professor François Bricaire of the Pitié Salpêtrière hospital in Paris said: "The farmers must take precautions but everything has been anticipated."

BILOXI, MS (WLOX) - An abundance of algae in the Mississippi Sound may be the cause of hundreds of small dead fish washing ashore in Biloxi. However, after testing the waters, the Mississippi Department of Marine Resources and Department of Environmental Quality say their results are inconclusive.

According to MDEQ, the fish kill happened offshore and the tide brought in the menhaden, anchovy, hard-head catfish and crab. The majority of the dead fish are spread along the beach from Treasure Bay Casino east to Kuhn Street.

Over the past three days, MDEQ and MDMR agents have taken samples to determine what's killing the fish. Their samples are not meeting the threshold to confirm it was an algae bloom.

Mortality of sea turtles in the northern Adriatic (PHOTO GALLERY)

Cetacean Foundation: other specimens found dead along the coast of the Emilia Romagna and Marche
[30 November 2015]

The Cetacean Foundation launches a new warning about what is happening along the coast of the northern Adriatic: "The series of black weekend finds turtles stranded dead. The last weekend saw the recovery of 'the other forty dead specimens between the coasts of Emilia Romagna and Marche, plus a dolphin in Miramare di Rimini. Storms highlight the large number of deaths of these animals in our waters. Even our past "patient" was found dead Achilles, released after treatment in June 2013".

The foundation Cetacea November 24 had denied what was written in the Comiere di Romagna in an article on the stranding of sea turtles in previous days: "The specimens beached this weekend did not die due to low temperatures but they were long dead, in fact, They are stranded in a state of decomposition because of the storm. The causes of their death are then other."

The weekend of 23 and 24 November 3 was called "Another" black weekend "sea turtles" from the Cetacean Foundation which had revealed that "The big storm brought ashore almost fifty carcasses of turtles; specimens that had died off and were washed ashore by the waves. Rare Giant 33ft Squid Caught Off Coast Of Spain 'Like Something Out Of A Sci-Fi Film'

28 NOVEMBER, 2015

The intimidating beast which weighed in at 330 lbs was caught by shocked fisherman. You'd be forgiven for thinking these images have come straight from a Sci-Fi film. But these are pictures of a real giant squid, caught by fisherman off the coast of Spain. The beast measured 33 foot and weighed in at a staggering 330 lbs. Believed to be a female, the squid was caught in the nets the fishermen were trawling at a depth of almost 500m.

Hong Kong's dolphins at risk of disappearing

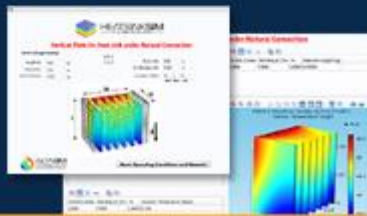

November 29, 2015 by Aaron Tam

The Chinese white dolphin—popularly known as the pink dolphin due to its pale pink colouring—draws scores of tourists daily to the waters north of Hong Kong's Lantau island

As Hong Kong seeks to expand its international airport and with a major new bridge project under way, campaigners warn that the dwindling number of much-loved pink dolphins in surrounding waters may disappear altogether.

Conservationists say their repeated concerns have fallen on deaf ears, with what they describe as a "rapid" decline of the mammal in the past few decades.

Scientists Warn Climate Change Will Trigger Rise In Terrifying Illness

Think twice before ordering the snapper.

🕒 1 day ago

As if rising sea levels, extreme weather and a host of other drastic environmental impacts weren't enough, scientists are now predicting that global climate change will lead to an increase in ciguatera -- a nasty and incurable foodborne illness.

Ciguatera is caused by eating tropical reef fish (such as grouper, snapper and barracuda) that have been contaminated with toxins from marine microalgae. It can result in nausea, vomiting and even some neurologic symptoms, including tingling fingers or toes and a reversed sense of hot and cold temperatures.

In a new study published in the journal Ecological Modeling, researchers with the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration found that expected increases in ocean temperatures in the Gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean through 2099 will likely lead to far more abundant and more diverse neurotoxins associated with ciguatera fish poisoning.

HAWAII OFFICIALS ASK PUBLIC TO HELP STOP DENGUE FEVER SPREAD

BY CATHY BUSSEWITZ
ASSOCIATED PRESS

HONOLULU (AP) -- The number of people in Hawaii infected by dengue fever continued to rise, and officials asked the public to help limit the spread of the virus.

The state Department of Health reported Monday that 112 people have been infected on Hawaii's Big Island since Sept. 11, including 14 visitors to the Aloha State.

There have been no cases of dengue fever so far on Oahu, Maui or Kauai, said Virginia Pressler, director of the state Department of Health.

"Although there is no dengue on Oahu, Kauai and Maui, we all feel for our brothers and sisters," Pressler said. "My family all lives on Hawaii Island. We are doing everything we can collectively."

Officials asked people throughout the state to remove standing water where mosquitoes breed and dump excess water out of potted plants or toys in the yard. Taking these precautions could help reduce the chances of the virus spreading to other islands, they said.

Three cases of Legionellosis illness in people who had stayed at the Best Western on the River Hotel in Hannibal is reportedly what prompted the state to have tests for Legionella bacteria conducted last month at one of the hotel's two buildings. Positive results for the bacteria in the tested structure led to its temporary closure.

According to Ryan Hobart, director of communications for the Missouri Department of Health & Senior Services (DHSS), the DHSS was advised of three cases of Legionellosis illness — also known as Legionnaires' Disease — in people who had stayed at the hotel for at least one night

Russian Su-34 bombers, additionally equipped with air-to-air missiles, have set out on their first mission in Syria, said Igor Klimov, spokesman for the Russian Air Force.

LIVE UPDATES: Russia-Turkey relations sour after Su-24 downed at Syria border

"Today, Russian Su-34 fighter-bombers have made their first sortie equipped not only with high explosive aviation bombs and hollow charge bombs, but also with short- and medium-range air-to-air missiles," Klimov said.

"The planes are equipped with missiles for defensive purposes," he added.

The missiles have target-seeking devices and are "capable of hitting air targets within a 60km radius," he said.

Turkey Sends Two Submarines to Shadow Russian Missile Cruiser in Mediterranean

Two Turkish Navy submarines have appeared near the Russian missile cruiser "Moskva" in the Mediterranean, off the coast of Syria. to provide missile protection of ongoing Russian aircraft over Syria. The S-300 system is among the finest in the world and has the range to reach aircraft in Turkey.

After the shoot down of the Russian military jet, Turkey claimed the Russian jet had violated Turkish airspace and was shot down, killing one of its pilots. The second pilot was rescued and upon arrival to safety, firmly denied the plane had ever crossed into Turkish airspace, even for one second, and was shot down without warning.

This incident has caused a massive military rift between Turkey and Russia, with Russian President Vladimir Putin characterizing the shoot-down as a "stab in the back to Russia" committed by "accomplices to Terrorism."

The Russian missile ship Moskva was ordered to move closer to the coast of Syria so as to use its "Fort" missile system to protect ongoing Russian air operations over Syria. Today, it is reported by the Russian news agency INTERFAX, that the Turkish Submarines "Dolunaj" and "Burakreis" are shadowing the Moskva. Russia has thus warned publicly that "any threat to Russian armed forces will be destroyed."

The Russian Navy transport ship Yauza was met by a Turkish Navy submarine while passing through the Dardanelles on Monday, Russia's RT reports, citing Turkey's Hurriyet Daily News.

The Russian ship, which was passing from the Aegean Sea into the Sea of Marmara, is believed to have been on its way to the Black Sea. The video accompanying the news report was reportedly filmed in the city of Canakkale, on the southern coast of the Dardanelles, at their narrowest point.

The Turkish sub is said to have been accompanying a Turkish coast guard vessel.

World War III Draws Closer As Russia Accuses Turkey Of Being 'Secret Allies' With ISIS

By Michael Snyder, on November 30th, 2015

Are Russia and Turkey on the verge of going to war? In remarks that were almost entirely ignored by the western media, Russian Foreign Minister Sergey Lavrov accused the Turkish government of being "secret allies" with ISIS on Friday. And on Monday, the Russians announced that they would be attempting to seal the border between Syria and Turkey, and we also learned that the Russians have been rushing heavy artillery units into Syria. As tensions between Russia and Turkey continue to escalate, could we be in danger of seeing World War III erupt in the Middle East?

The Russians have clearly become convinced that Turkey is at the core of the problems in Syria, and that is why the Russians now plan to completely seal Syria's border with Turkey. Lavrov seems to think that this will represent a giant step toward defeating terror groups such as ISIS...

Russia speeds tons of heavy artillery and MRLs to Syria for expanded ground combat

Tags: Russian forces in Syria, artillery,

After several incidents, in which 130mm shells fired by Syrian rebel groups, particularly the Al-Nusra Front, reached the center of the Russian Khmeimin military enclave outside Latakia, the general staff in Moscow decided to rush heavy artillery reinforcements to Syria. DEBKAfile's military sources report that Russia has transferred two types of heavy weapons systems by sea and by air to the front near Latakia during the past few days.

First, a body of three battalions of 2S19 Msta-S self-propelled howitzers was deployed at Khmeimin and has already started pounding rebel lines and command centers in the area. This heavy artillery system, capable of firing 152mm bombs at a rapid pace, is a veteran of Russia's former campaigns against Islamic terrorist groups, especially in the Russian war against Islamic rebels in Chechnya in the 1990s.

The 2S19 Msta-S has a modified chassis of a T-80 tank and a diesel motor of a T-72. It is effective against fortifications as well as military and terrorist targets in wooded mountain areas, exactly the kind of geographical environment in which the rebels around Latakia area are operating.

Numerous reports claim that Russia has dropped deadly white phosphorus on civilians in northwest Syria, as its intensive bombing campaign against ISIS continues.

The chemical weapon is banned under the Geneva Convention, because it is highly toxic and can burn through flesh and bone.

White phosphorus, an incendiary also known as WP, is used by armies to illuminate targets during the night or as a smokescreen during the day.

Shocking images posted to Twitter show the sky allegedly filled with the potentially deadly weapon, as it rains down on the de-facto capital of ISIS, Raqqa.

Russia Reveals Secret Nuclear-Armed Drone Sub

High-speed harbor buster shown on TV

BY: Bill Gertz Follow @BillGertz

November 11, 2015 5:28 pm

A Russian document shown on state-run television confirmed that Moscow is developing a high-speed drone submarine capable of delivering a nuclear warhead.

The secret weapon was shown on a document during several Tuesday Russian television broadcasts of President Vladimir Putin announcing plans for new strike weapons capable of defeating missile defenses.

Disclosure of the nuclear-tipped, torpedo-shaped weapon was first reported by the Washington Free Beacon and has been dubbed Kanyon by the Pentagon.

A Kremlin spokesman confirmed Wednesday that the weapon, which Moscow is calling the Status-6 system, was inadvertently disclosed.

"Some secret information did indeed end up in front of the camera lenses, so it was later deleted," Russian spokesman Dmitri Peskov was quoted by Interfax as saying. "We hope this won't happen again."

The document, first reported by the military blog Russian Forces, reveals that the drone submarine is in development.

"I don't yet know about any measures, but in future we will, naturally, take preventative measures so that this doesn't happen again," Peskov said when asked whether action would be taken in response to the unauthorized disclosure.

The document revealed that the Kanyon project is called "Ocean Multipurpose System 'Status-6'" and the developer was identified as the TsKB MT Rubin design bureau, which has built all current submarines in service with the Russian navy.

Russia Flight Tests Anti-Satellite Missile

Moscow joins China in space warfare buildup

Russia carried out the first successful flight test of a new anti-satellite missile this month, marking a new phase in the global militarization of space.

The flight test of Russia's direct ascent anti-satellite missile, known as Nudol, took place Nov. 18, according to defense officials familiar with reports of the test.

It was the first successful test in three attempts, said officials who spoke on condition of anonymity.

With the successful anti-satellite missile test, Russia has joined China in arming its forces with strategic space warfare weapons.

Twenty days earlier China conducted a flight test of its anti-satellite missile. The Dong Neng-3 direct ascent missile was tested on Oct. 30 in western China.

A Pentagon spokesman had no immediate comment on the Russian missile test.

Air Force Space Command commander Gen. John Hyten warned this month that both Russia and China are developing space warfare capabilities that threaten critical U.S. satellites.

"They are developing capabilities that concern us," Hyten said, according to a report in the Colorado Springs Gazette published a day before the test.

Little information is available on the secretive Russian program. However, as with China, the Russian direct ascent missile appears linked to its missile defense programs.

Obama's ISIS Oil Scandal Deepens As Russia Produces Stunning Photographic Evidence

By Michael Snyder, on December 2nd, 2015

How is Barack Obama going to get out of this one? On Tuesday, the Russian military produced an impressive array of evidence that clearly shows that ISIS oil is being smuggled into Turkey on an industrial scale. The evidence included photographs taken by satellite and during aerial reconnaissance missions. What the Russians have shown the world is extremely compelling, and it raises some very disturbing questions. First of all, how involved is the Turkish government in all of this? There is no way in the world that an endless parade of trucks carrying ISIS oil could have marched through Turkish border checkpoints without the cooperation of the central government. Secondly, what did Obama know and when did he know it? The U.S. military has far better surveillance capabilities than the Russians do, and so it seems absolutely absurd to suggest that Obama didn't know what was going on.

This new Russian evidence was presented to the world by Deputy Defense Minister Anatoly Antonov, and he says that "thousands of oil trucks" have been going back and forth over the Turkish border...

The Islamic State is training to fly planes in its stronghold in the northern coastal city of Sirte, an Arab newspaper reported on Wednesday. The terrorist group is using at least one flight simulator, which may have been seized from the country's airports, according to Libyan military sources quoted in the Asharq al-Awsat report. "It's a modern simulator, which may have arrived from abroad," other sources stated.

And experts are convinced a cell from this massive group of extremist Islamists are poised to launch a Paris-style attack in London, Birmingham, Manchester, Glasgow, or any number of vulnerable British cities.

Around 750 UK-born extremists have fled to Syria to join ISIS savages fighting in Iraq and Syria. But around half of those are believed to have returned to these shores.

The Home Office has disclosed to Express.co.uk that more than 375 Britons allied to the evil extremist group - also known as Daesh - are now back in the UK.

No Christians: All 132 Syrian Refugees Admitted to U.S. Since Paris Attacks Are Sunni Muslims

By Patrick Goodenough | November 30, 2015 | 7:45 PM EST

(CNSNews.com) – Since the Paris terror attacks on November 13, the State Department has admitted 132 Syrian refugees into the United States, and all 132 are Sunni Muslims.

No Christian, Druze, Shi'ite, Alawite, or member of any other religious minority in Syria has been admitted over that period, according to data from the State Department Refugee Processing Center.

The majority of the 132 Syrian refugees permitted to resettle in the U.S. since November 13 (72) are male, the minority female (60). Of the 132 total, 39 (29.5 percent) have been men between the ages of 14 and 50.

Another 53 (40 percent) are children aged under 14, of whom 30 are males and 23 females.

The Paris terror attacks, which killed 130 people and were claimed by Islamic State of Iraq and Syria (ISIS/ISIL), brought fresh scrutiny onto the issue of refugees from the Syrian conflict, amid concerns the terrorist group was seeking to infiltrate Western countries through refugee settlement programs.

More than 179,000 illegal immigrants convicted of committing crimes, including violent ones, continue to roam free across the United States, with reports indicating that these illegal immigrants commit new crimes "every day," according to lawmakers and the director of the Immigration and Customs Enforcement agency, also known as ICE.

Sarah Saldana, ICE's director, disclosed to Congress on Wednesday that the agency is apprehending and removing fewer illegal immigrants than in past years.

Somewhere around 179,029 "undocumented criminals with final orders of removal" from the United States currently remain at large across the country and are essentially untraceable, according to Sen. Chuck Grassley (R., Iowa), chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, who disclosed these numbers during a Wednesday hearing.

The total number of criminal illegal aliens in the United States is in the millions.

Illegal immigrant criminals are known to be committing new crimes "every day," according to Sen. Jeff Sessions (R., Ala.), another member of the committee.

Focus on the threat of criminal illegal aliens comes amid a wider national debate on immigration to the United States and the threat posed by potential terrorists and other criminals.

The Washington Free Beacon disclosed in August that the Obama administration had been keeping secret the release of violent criminal illegal immigrants and only began notifying local law enforcement agencies about this within the last several months.

Manifesto reveals agenda to create Muslim "no go zones" in western cities as bases to launch more attacks

Paul Joseph Watson - DECEMBER 2, 2015 230 Comments

A newly uncovered 99-page manifesto produced by the Islamic State brags about how the terror organization has exploited the refugee program to send jihadist sleeper cells to Europe since 2012, with the goal of creating Muslim "no go zones" in western cities that can be used as a base from which to launch further Paris-style attacks.

The manifesto, entitled Black Flags from Rome, serves as a shocking reminder of the danger posed by allowing potentially millions of Muslim migrants to enter Europe and America via the "refugee" red 11:44 p.m.

The Southern California county where a pair of shooters killed 14 people and wounded 17 others will close most of its offices the rest of the week.

James Ramos, chairman of the San Bernardino County Board of Supervisors, said Wednesday that only the most essential services will remain open Thursday and Friday.

Terror, or 'workplace-related' violence? Baffled Obama says San Bernardino massacre motive is a mystery - then uses it to push for gun control

President Obama lamented it is 'just too easy' for mass shootings to occur in America as he called for a new push on gun control in the wake of the San Bernardino attack.

The White House acknowledges it is too early to confirm a motive for the mass killing that left 14 dead and 21 wounded but insists it underlines the need for reform.

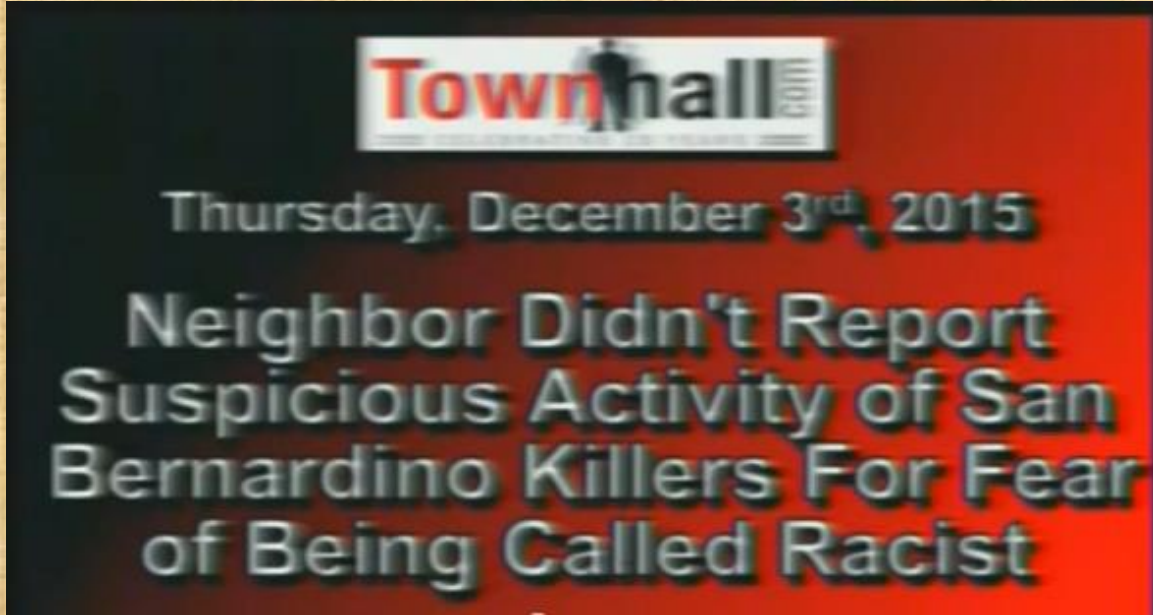

'It is possible that this is terrorist-related, but we don't know, it's also possible that this was workplace-related,' Obama told reporters on Thursday in the Oval Office.

'We do know the two individuals who were killed were equipped with weapons and appeared to have access to additional weaponry at their homes.

'But we don't know why they did it. We don't know, at this point, the extend of their plans, we do not know their motivations.'

A radical foreign policy adviser fired by President Obama years ago for meeting with the Palestinian terrorist group Hamas is back as the administration's new czar in charge of countering the Islamic State of Iraq and Greater Syria (ISIS).

The White House downplayed the new appointment by burying it deep in a press briefing delivered at a Paris hotel during the recent climate summit. "The President recently elevated Rob Malley, the NSC [National Security Council] Coordinator for the Middle East and North Africa, to serve now as the Senior Advisor to the President for the Counter-ISIL Campaign in Iraq and Syria," White House Press Secretary Josh Earnest said during the briefing at the Marriott Rive Gauche Hotel and Conference Center. 2015 - When Your Television Is Now Watching YOU!

29 NOVEMBER, 2015

While much has been made recently about “smart” devices, a new television set may just have crossed the line from smart into snooping. Smart phones have been around for years. To the average user the term indicates a phone that does more than make and receive phone calls and can access and surf the internet. With the increase in broadband usage more and more devices began to be connected to the internet. For example, in a typical home it is not uncommon for the computer, DVD player and wireless phones all to be using a home network to access the internet.

As Intellihub’s Shepard Ambellas writes, one-hundred and fifty heads of government, a.k.a. the elite, are gathering over the course of the next few weeks for a massive climate summit that’s anticipated to attract and indoctrinate over 40,000 visitors from around the globe. The summit, dubbed COP21, is sponsored by the United Nations (UN) and will reportedly focus on combating climate change. However it’s doubtful that geoengineering, which ironically is mostly to blame for current climate patterns, will even be a topic of interest to scheduled speakers. To boot any chance of that information making it out to the general public is limited as 24 activists have already been placed under house arrest.”

Editor's note: This story has been updated throughout.

Texas has gone to federal court in its efforts to keep Syrian refugees out of the state, filing suit against the federal government and a refugee resettlement nonprofit.

In a lawsuit filed Wednesday afternoon in U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Texas, Attorney General Ken Paxton claims the federal government and the International Rescue Committee — one of about 20 private nonprofits that have a state contract to resettle refugees in Texas — are violating federal law by moving forward with the planned resettlement of two Syrian families. One such family is expected to arrive in Texas as soon as Friday.

The lawsuit argues that the federal government and resettlement group have not fulfilled their contractual obligations to consult with, and provide information to, state officials.

It argues that federal officials violated the Refugee Act of 1980, which requires that the federal government “shall consult regularly” with the state regarding the placement of refugees. Texas also alleges that the International Rescue Committee violated a separate provision of the act requiring the nonprofit work “in close cooperation and advance consultation” with the state.

Archaeologists discovered the impression of a seal that bears the name of King Hezekiah and was found during recent excavations by Jerusalem.

"[It's] the closest as ever that we can get to something that was most likely held by King Hezekiah himself," said Eilat Mazar, the leader of the excavation project, during a press conference at Mount Scopus campus, the Times of Israel reported. "[The find] strengthens what we know already from the Bible about [Hezekiah]."

Mystery Boom Shakes Michigan Neighborhood, Prompts Authorities To Investigate Possible Explosion

2 DECEMBER, 2015

A loud boom heard by many in Deerwood Thursday prompted firefighters and sheriff's deputies to search for a possible explosion. Shortly before 1 p.m. Thanksgiving day, a caller reported the boom and described that it sounded as if something had exploded.

Quest to drill into Earth's mantle restarts

Indian Ocean expedition resumes a six-decade campaign to bore right through the planet's crust.

Crews lower huge drills down from specially equipped ships to penetrate the sea floor.

Jules Verne would have dug this plan: drill into the sea floor, through kilometres of the planet's rocky crust to penetrate the denser underlying mantle. It is one of geology's classic quests, conceived almost 60 years ago, at the peak of the plate-tectonics revolution. Since then, many have attempted it and failed. But an expedition starting this month is taking up the challenge once again.

China's Renminbi Is Approved by I.M.F. as a Main World Currency

HONG KONG — The Chinese renminbi was anointed as one of the world's elite currencies on Monday, a milestone decision by the International Monetary Fund that underscores the country's rising financial and economic heft.

The move will help pave the way for broader use of the renminbi in trade and finance, securing China's standing as a global economic power. Just four other currencies — the dollar, the euro, the pound and the yen — have the I.M.F. designation.

But the path to the I.M.F. decision, a bumpy process that stretches back years, also introduced new uncertainty into China's economy and financial system.

Global Crisis: Goldman Sachs Says That Brazil Has Plunged Into 'An Outright Depression'

By Michael Snyder, on December 1st, 2015

One of the most important banks in the western world says that the 7th largest economy on the entire planet has entered a full-blown economic depression. Brazil's economy has now contracted for three quarters in a row, and many analysts believe that things are going to get far worse before they have a chance to get any better. Earlier this year, I warned about "the South American financial crisis of 2015", and now it is in full swing. The surging U.S. dollar is absolutely crushing emerging markets such as Brazil, and if the Fed raises interest rates this month that is going to make the pain even worse. The global financial system is more interconnected than ever before, and the decisions made by the Federal Reserve truly do have global consequences. So much of the "hot money" that was created by the Fed poured into emerging markets such as Brazil during the good times, but now the process is starting to reverse itself. At this point, it is hard to see how much of South America is going to avoid a complete and total economic disaster.

Alarm Bells Go Off As 11 Critical Indicators Scream The Global Economic Crisis Is Getting Deeper

By Michael Snyder, on December 2nd, 2015

Economic activity is slowing down all over the planet, and a whole host of signs are indicating that we are essentially exactly where we were just prior to the great stock market crash of 2008. Yesterday, I explained that the economies of Japan, Brazil, Canada and Russia are all in recession. Today, I am mainly going to focus on the United States. We are seeing so many things happen right now that we have not seen since 2008 and 2009. In so many ways, it is almost as if we are watching an eerie replay of what happened the last time around, and yet most of the "experts" still appear to be oblivious to what is going on. If you were to make up a checklist of all of the things that you would expect to see just before a major stock market crash, virtually all of them are happening right now. The following are 11 critical indicators that are absolutely screaming that the global economic crisis is getting deeper...

#1 On Tuesday, the price of oil closed below 40 dollars a barrel. Back in 2008, the price of oil crashed below 40 dollars a barrel just before the stock market collapsed, and now it has happened again.

#2 The price of copper has plunged all the way down to $2.04. The last time it was this low was just before the stock market crash of 2008.

Question: When is a Christmas tree not a Christmas tree?

Answer: When bureaucratic school officials deem the word "Christmas" offensive, and order it scrubbed from publication.

That's what happened to John Fletcher, the commander of the American Legion in Marlborough, New Hampshire, when he tried to distribute a flyer to students advertising the "Annual Christmas Tree Lighting" event his organization sponsors.

The newspaper's front page contained a headline in huge font that read, in all caps: "GOD ISN'T FIXING THIS." Above, it read: "14 dead in California mass shooting." Beneath, it read: "As latest batch of innocent Americans are left lying in pools of blood, cowards who could truly end gun scourge continue to hide behind meaningless platitudes."

And what were those "meaningless platitudes?"

In a high-level meeting on religious persecution in Brussels, the President of the European Parliament (EP) said that Europe cannot afford to continue ignoring the fate of Christians, who are “clearly the most persecuted group” in the world.

In Wednesday's meeting, EP President Martin Schulz said that the persecution of Christians is “undervalued” and does not receive enough attention, which has also meant

A 60-year-old Ohio mob enforcer-turned-pastor married his teenage bride and got her pregnant, all with the blessing of the other lady in his life — his 44-year-old wife.

"The whole situation works for all three of us," Thom Miller told Barcroft Media. "I am the only one who is allowed to have more than one partner — and both of my wives understand and appreciate that."

Miller is now building a bigger home so he can split his time between his two ladies, whom he calls sister wives.

Gay rights activists celebrate degree of gains in India as they march in New Delhi parade

Published November 29, 2015 · Associated Press

NEW DELHI – Hundreds of gay rights activists danced to drum beats and held colorful balloons as they marched in a parade in New Delhi on Sunday, celebrating what they call the diversity of gender and sexuality.

Organizers said that while the gay pride parade celebrated the gains India's LGBT community has made in recent years, they also wanted to highlight the continuing discrimination it faces.

The Delhi Queer Pride Committee also demanded the repeal of Section 377 of the Indian Penal Code, which criminalizes homosexual acts.

Over the past decade, homosexuals have gained a degree of acceptance in parts of deeply conservative India, especially in big cities. Many bars have gay nights, and some high-profile Bollywood films have dealt with gay issues.

Still, being gay is seen as shameful in most of the country, and many homosexuals remain closeted.

Believers in traditional marriage and biblical guidelines on sexuality are worried about the erosion of religious freedom because of a new threat they now are facing in the state of Indiana.

One hundred fifty businesses have joined forces to lobby the state for a law guaranteeing LGBT workers new protections.

"Indiana Competes" claims it wants "legislation that guarantees all individuals receive fair treatment in the workplace, in housing, and in businesses and government services throughout the state of Indiana."

However, pro-family activists say changes to Indiana's Religious Freedom Restoration Act (RFRA) that were forced through in April after intensive lobbying by pro-homosexual activists already prohibit small business owners from using religious beliefs as a way to avoid providing services to a homosexual wedding or similar event.
