اكرر اننا لا نحدد مواعيد بل فقط نشجع بعضنا بعضا بقرب مجيء المسيح

وأيضاً أوضح أنه يوجد نبوات لم نراها بعد مثل ابن الهلاك وهرمجدون

ولكن أيضاً علامات كثيرة من التي قال عنها الكتاب انها في الزمان الاخير بدأت تحدث بوضوح

ويجب أن ننتبه اليها. ونذكر بعضنا باننا نحتاج ان نستعد. والاستعداد ليس فقط قبل مجيء

المسيح بل أيضاً قبل الظلمة التي ستسبق مجيؤه ليكون عندنا زيت في مصابيحنا يكفي ان نعبر

هذه الظلمة وتكون مصابيحنا مضيئة وقت مجيؤه. بمعنى نحتاج من الان ان نستعد بقوة بأيمان

عامل وبتنقية القلب وان نثمر بالخدمة أي نجمع زيت في مصابيحنا لان الظلمة والضيق اقتربت

جدا ومن لن يستعد لها بزيت كافي من الان لن يجد زيت في الضيقة لان وقتها تجميع زيت

سيكون صعب جدا بل أستطيع ان أقول من مثل العذارى انه لن يكون هناك زيت الا ما جمعه

سابقا. أفضل ان اقول لنفسي ولكم استعدوا الان لأنه اقترب فنكون مستعدين سواء جاء او نحن ان سلمنا وديعتنا عن أنى لا اقول انه اقترب لكيلا يقال عني كاذب وانشتر اشاعات ولكنه يأتي بسرعة بغته. لا اعتقد اي أحد ندم لانه كان مستعد ومنتظر مجيء المسيح ولم يأتي المسيح في زمنه ولكنه انتقل وهو مستعد ولكن كثيرين جدا ندموا على عدم الاستعداد عندما انتقلوا

21: 10 ثم قال لهم تقوم امة على امة ومملكة على مملكة

21: 11 وتكون زلازل عظيمة في اماكن ومجاعات واوبئة وتكون مخاوف وعلامات عظيمة من

21: 25 وتكون علامات في الشمس والقمر والنجوم وعلى الارض كرب امم بحيرة البحر والامواج

تضج

21: 26 والناس يغطى عليهم من خوف وانتظار ما يأتي على المسكونة لان قوات السماوات

تتزعزع

21: 27 وحينئذ يبصرون ابن الانسان اتيا في سحابة بقوة و مجد كثير

سفر اعمال الرسل 2

2: 19 واعطي عجائب في السماء من فوق وآيات على الارض من أسفل دما ونارا وبخار دخان

2: 20 تتحول الشمس الى ظلمة والقمر الى دم قبل ان يجيء يوم الرب العظيم الشهير

2: 21 ويكون كل من يدعو باسم الرب يخلص

لماذا قال المسيح بعض العلامات؟

انجيل متى 24

مت 24: 6 وسوف تسمعون بحروب واخبار حروب لا ترتاعوا لأنه لا بد ان تكون هذه

كلها ولكن ليس المنتهى بعد

إنجيل يوحنا 14: 29

وَقُلْتُ لَكُمْ الْآنَ قَبْلَ أَنْ يَكُونَ، حَتَّى مَتَى كَأَن تُوْمِنُونَ.

انجيل لوقا 21

28 وَمَتَى ابْتَدَأَتْ هَذِهِ تَكُونُ، فَأَنْتَصِبُوا وَارْفَعُوا رُؤُوسَكُمْ لِأَنَّ نَجَاتَكُمْ تَقْتَرِبُ.»

Climate-change advocacy turns to psychological warfare

🕒 Wednesday, January 20, 2016 | Chris Woodward (OneNewsNow.com)

There's a push to include psychology as a way of combating what some people are calling man-made climate change, but one climatologist believes it will flop.

According to Carolyn Gregoire, senior health and science writer for the Huffington Post, climate change is not just a political, social or economic issue. Gregoire says it is also a deeply psychological one, and behavioral scientists are using psychology to better understand the "complex relationship between people and nature." The idea, she says, is that "by understanding emotional barriers to action, we may be able to devise better guidelines for communication, advocacy and policy."

The "Historic" Winter Blizzard Was Just Upgraded To A "Potentially Epic Winter Blockbuster"

Submitted by Tyler Darden on 01/20/2016 23:02 -0500

Yesterday some readers were offended when we dubbed the upcoming winter storm set to slam the Northeastern United States and impact up to 50 million people, in roughly 48 hours as "potentially historic" - a phrase created not by us, but by the WaPo's meteorologists.

Still, what's the big deal, the purists will say, pointing out that snow in January is not exactly a shocking event. We fully agree, however we would like to remind readers that "snow in the winter", especially when coupled with, gasp, cold weather, is precisely what the US Bureau of Economic Analysis used as justification to arbitrarily push Q1 GDP in both 2014 and 2015 higher by nearly 1% as a result of "incremental" seasonal adjustments after the fact, the explanation being that the cold weather and the snow resulting from a handful of blizzards ended up crushing the US economy.

Of course, as we explained on numerous occasions in the past, the dramatic slowdown of the US economy in 2014 and 2015 had nothing to do with the weather and everything to do with the bursting of the Chinese housing bubble first in late 2013 and then of its shadow banking bubble in late 2014, two events whose reverberation around the globe slammed the US economy into an acute, if brief, contraction.

As such the only reason why any weather events are notable, is to observe whether the BEA once again uses the weather as a scapegoat for the third year in a row, to justify a collapse in GDP to zero, or negative even though just one month ago retailers were complaining about their lack of revenue growth and collapse in profits as a result of warm weather.

Which brings us back to the upcoming winter storm where the hyperbole factor just went up a notch, this time courtesy the Weather Underground's Bob Henson, who has decided that merely "historic" is too cut and dry, and has instead dubbed the imminent climatic phenomenon not only "potentially epic" but a "winter blockbuster" to boot.

Which is just the soundbite cover the US BEA needs to whip out triple seasonal adjustments and "calculate" that Q1 GDP did not really contract but when you melt the snow on a pro forma, "non-GAAP" basis, GDP likely grew by some $50 billion more.

Here is what, according to yet another weather forecaster, is in store for the Northeast courtesy of The Wunderground:

Mid-Atlantic Braces for Potentially Epic Blizzard

For an event still several days out, computer models were in remarkable agreement late Tuesday on what could be one of the greatest snowstorms in decades for the region around Washington, D.C. It's difficult to convey what the models are projecting without appearing to sensationalize the event, but here goes: there is every indication that snow totals on the order of two feet are quite possible across parts of the greater D.C./Baltimore area, with the potential for almost as much in Philadelphia and perhaps a foot toward New York City. Anything over 20" at Washington National Airport would be the greatest snowfall for D.C.'s official reporting station in almost a century (see below).

Israel is still recovering from the major sandstorm that hit on Monday, bringing with it dust particulates and air pollution for at least two days, but now the country is facing a new storm replete with snow, thunder, howling winds and all the rest of the bells and whistles.

The storm is to start building on Saturday morning, with local rain anticipated from the north of the country to the northern Negev, even as temperatures drop. Thunderstorms are predicted, and there are flood warnings in the Judean Desert and Dead Sea region, with a possibility of snow on Mount Hermon, Israel's only ski site.

Then on Sunday things will take a turn for the worse, as gale-force winds of 60 kilometers per hour (37 mph) with bursts of 90 kilometers per hour (56 mph) beat down on Israel, and the sea will roil in waves up to eight meters (26 feet) in height.

Alaska's 7.1 earthquake largest of its kind ever recorded in Cook Inlet

Chris Klint | Alaska Dispatch News | January 24, 2016

Email

Sunday morning's

magnitude-7.1 earthquake is the strongest of its kind ever recorded in the Cook Inlet area, according to Alaska-based seismologists.

Sara Meyer, a research technician with the Alaska Earthquake Center at the University of Alaska Fairbanks Geophysical Institute, said Sunday morning an initial magnitude of 6.8 was revised upward shortly after the 1:30 a.m. temblor to the figure reported by the U.S. Geological Survey. Numerous aftershocks were still being recorded Sunday morning.

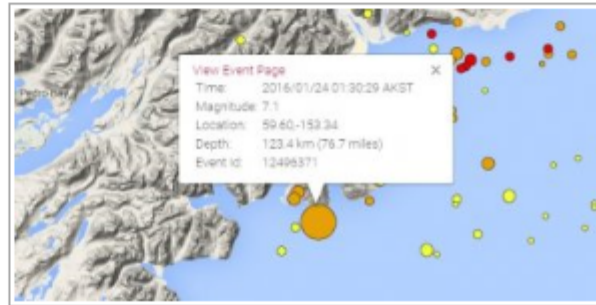

"Our official magnitude that we're reporting is 7.1, and that's in agreement with USGS and the National Tsunami Warning Center," Meyer said.

Meyer said the tectonic cause of the quake, recorded at a depth of 76 miles, was the Pacific Plate of the Earth's crust sliding beneath the North American Plate.

"This is actually the largest intermediate-depth earthquake in the Cook Inlet that we've seen since we set up equipment in the 1960s," Meyer said.

The Alaska Volcano Observatory didn't report any volcanic activity in connection with the quake Sunday, according to a message on Twitter.

More than 1,200 people today remain evacuated from a 1.9-mile containment zone around Mount Egon in Kupang, eastern Indonesia, after toxic gas and volcanic ash erupted yesterday.

It was before officials in Russia had to cancel flights near the Zhupanovsky volcano on Russia's eastern coast after it spewed lava FIVE MILES into the air, also yesterday.

Although the two volcanoes are separated by around 3,000 miles, they are on interconnected tectonic plates – sparking fears of a major seismic shift, more volcanic activity and even earthquakes and tsunamis, due to recent activity.

The Colima volcano in western Mexico experienced three new explosions and a series of minor expulsions just days after earlier volcanic rumblings which led to the initial evacuation warnings.

It is the second Mexican volcano to be placed under an evacuation warning after the Popocatépetl Volcano, both near Mexico City and Puebla, sent a mile-high plume of ash and smoke into the air during an unexpected eruption.

Animal health officials responding to a bird flu outbreak in southwest Indiana say crews have finished killing more than 400,000 birds ordered euthanized at the 10 affected commercial poultry farms.

The state issued a statement Wednesday evening saying all of the birds have been killed.

Indiana State Board of Animal Health spokeswoman Denise Derrer says the H7N8 virus has not been found in any other flocks since Saturday.

The H7N8 strain is different than the H5N2 virus that led to the deaths of 48 million birds last summer.

Crews began euthanizing more than 245,000 turkeys in Indiana's Dubois County last week to prevent the virus' spread. Another 156,000 chickens at one of 10 farms also were killed because they were at high risk of contracting the virus.

Turkey in Panic Mode After Spotting Russian Engineers on Syrian Border

MIDDLE EAST 22:20 22.01.2016 (updated 04:25 23.01.2016) Get short URL 66 21915 163 3

Amid rising tensions between Ankara and Moscow, Turkish President Erdogan has expressed concern over the alleged presence of Russian engineers near the country's Syrian border.

The Turkish government has expressed alarm over Russia's air campaign in Syria since it began last September. Along its Syrian border zone, Turkey has dug defense trenches and increased security forces, despite the fact that Moscow has repeatedly stated its goal is to combat terrorist groups in Syria.

Turkey is "closely watching" Russian troop movements in Syria near its border, a government source in Ankara said on Friday, after reports that Russian servicemen had deployed in the Syrian border town of Qamishli.

Britain-based monitor the Syrian Observatory for Human Rights had said that Russia had sent a number of engineers to Qamishli to strengthen the runway and increase the capacity of an airport just south of the town.

Russia's reported move into Qamishli comes as Ankara and Moscow are experiencing their biggest crisis in years over the shooting down of a Russian war plane by Turkey on November 24.

"Implementation Day" Sanctions Relief Provided to Iran by UN, US, and EU

White & Case LLPWHITE & CASE*European Union, Iran, USA | January 17 2016

On January 16, 2016, the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) verified that Iran has met its nuclear-related commitments under the Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action (JCPOA). On this day, known as "Implementation Day," the United Nations (UN), United States (US) and European Union (EU) implemented certain Iran sanctions relief pursuant to their JCPOA commitments.

On Implementation Day, the IAEA verified that Iran had implemented certain agreed-upon nuclear-related measures under the terms of the July 14, 2015 JCPOA. In a joint statement issued by EU High Representative Federica Mogherini and Iranian Foreign Minister Javad Zarif, it was confirmed that "Implementation Day" under the JCPOA was reached.¹ US Secretary of State John Kerry also confirmed that the IAEA verified Iran had implemented its commitments.²

Accordingly, as of January 16, 2016, the UN, US, and EU have lifted certain nuclear-related sanctions that were previously imposed on Iran in connection with its nuclear activity. A detailed summary of the UN, US, and EU sanctions relief under the JCPOA and the related timeline for full JCPOA implementation is available in a previous alert.

Op-Ed: Obama is now going after Israel

It is one thing after another ever since the nuclear deal was finalized.

Published: Friday, January 22, 2016 12:10 PM

After finalizing the implementation of the controversial nuclear deal with Iran, the Obama administration is apparently looking for a new foreign policy challenge by going after Israel.

Earlier this week the U.S. ambassador to Israel, Dan Shapiro, launched a blistering attack against Israel's policies regarding the Palestinians. Shapiro told a local conference on security-related issues the Obama administration is "concerned and perplexed by Israel's strategy on settlements."

Shapiro claimed Israel's settlement policies frustrate the process that should lead to the forming of a Palestinian state and claimed "too many attacks on Palestinians lack a vigorous investigation or response" by Israeli authorities.

Shapiro made this comment on the day Palestinian Arabs murdered a Jewish mother of six and tried to attack a synagogue full of worshippers in Jerusalem. The timing was one of the reasons his statement drew the ire of Israeli politicians.

Shapiro's attack on the Israeli government during one of the most important conferences in the Jewish State was not the first indication the Obama administration is tightening the screws on Israel over the stalemate that aims to establish a Palestinian state in the so-called 'West Bank' (Judea and Samaria) and Gaza.

Meanwhile, there is more evidence that the sheer number of migrants is overwhelming authorities. The Daily Mail reported that the German government admits it can't account for 600,000 of its 1.1 million asylum-seekers from the Middle East and Africa, and many are thought to be using multiple identities to travel across Europe.

WND first reported on Germany's "missing" migrants back in late October.

The admission by the German government comes as police in Munsterland in North Rhine-Westphalia today carried out a series of raids as part of the ongoing investigation into the Cologne New Year sex attacks.

Officers say they have so far recorded 821 complaints of criminal incidents including hundreds of sexual assaults.

The raids targeted two refugee centers, seizing 150 asylum seekers for questioning.

They found that many claimed to be from Syria but were mostly from North Africa, confirming the suspicions of government critics who have been silenced by German police. But they also found that every second person had been registered at least twice on Germany's EASY processing system.

Christian refugees from Syria claim they saw a former Islamic State member living in Frankfurt, and that this is not an isolated case. Police investigated but refused to file charges because the alleged terrorist has done nothing criminal in Germany.

On his last visit to the Saarland region of Germany, on the border with France, RT's Peter Oliver met with a group of Assyrian Christians who had been held hostage by Islamic State fighters.

Hundreds of women were attacked by gangs of migrant men in cities across Germany and other parts of Europe on New Year's Eve, with more than 520 sexual assaults, including three rapes, taking place in the city of Cologne.

Imam Sami Abu-Yusuf of the Al Tawheed mosque in Cologne defended the assailants and preached Salafism (an ultra-conservative form of Sunni Islam) in an interview on Russian TV, according to Breitbart.

Sami Abu-Yusuf said that he was not surprised the girls were sexually assaulted, groped and raped, because of the way they dressed.

Billionaire financier George Soros has warned that the European Union is on the "verge of collapse" over the migrant crisis and is in "danger of kicking the ball further up the hill" in its management of the issue which has seen more than a million migrants and refugees arrive in the region in 2015.

In an interview with the New York Review of Books, Soros added that the German Chancellor Angela Merkel is key to solving the crisis.

Wealthy Buying Up Luxury Doomsday Bunkers As World Becomes More Insane

Recently, Tyler Allen, an Orlando, Florida-based sports bar and nightclub owner, handed over $3 million in cash for a luxury condo near Concordia, Kansas; it wasn't the indoor swimming pool, hydroponic vegetable garden or 17-seat movie theater that impressed and attracted him. The main selling point, according to a report by The Wall Street Journal, was not the 1,820-square-foot apartment at all, in fact. It was the underground, decommissioned missile silo buried 174 feet below — a silo capable of withstanding even a nuclear attack.

Hungary Launches Biometric eIDs

Posted on January 15, 2016

The government of Hungary has launched a new electronic identification card for citizens.

In addition to the biographic information common to government-issued ID cards, the new eID cards also feature optional biometric fingerprint and electronic signature data.

Speaking to the press, Interior Ministry state secretary László Tasnádi called it a "one-stop card" that could "open the doorway to digital public administration." Those comments suggest that the Hungarian government could ultimately be aiming at a utility similar to that of India's biometric Aadhaar cards, which are used for a variety of purposes ranging from workplace time and attendance tracking to the administration of healthcare services.

Of course, Hungary would have a long way to go in such a project. While a little over 39,000 people signed up for the new eID card in the first five days after its launch, that's in a country of almost 10 million, and for now the card is optional for citizens. Still, while most countries are at best experimenting with biometric electronic passports, Hungary is ahead of the curve in pursuing a technologically advanced identity solution for its citizens.

These days, flying means having your travel documents in order and carrying multiple forms of identification. American fliers could potentially even have to carry a passport on domestic flights if their state does not stick to the government's Real ID timeline.

In the future, however, this kind of ID hassle could go away altogether. Fliers could leave all their IDs at home and breeze through ticketing and security. This might sound like a pipe dream, but the technology is, apparently, already available. A Dutch man actually put the ID-free idea to the test at Stockholm's Arlanda Airport.

Obama and GOP Unleash “Community Schools” to Replace Parents

Written by Alex Newman

Tweet Share Like 2.4k

font size Print Email

Parents, beware — Big Brother is coming for your kids. Buried deep inside the mammoth “bipartisan” so-called “education” legislation approved last month, dubbed the “Every Student Succeeds Act” (ESSA), is a radical expansion of what the statute refers to as “full-service community schools.” The controversial institutions, more accurately described as parental replacement centers, seek to oversee every aspect of your child’s life, ranging from their “mental health” and “well being” to nutrition and even dentistry. You are in the crosshairs, too, as the Obama administration defines parents as “equal partners” in child rearing. And those are just some of the many unconstitutional provisions in the bill and beyond that aim to turn government schools into parents, and parents into pariahs.

In short, an increasingly out-of-control Uncle Sam — with support from the leadership of both major political parties — wants to raise your child. And with the support of virtually every education-related special interest group you can think of, the latest federal education statute, passed by the GOP Congress and cheerfully signed as a “miracle” by Obama last month, is among the primary means by which the feds plan to further undermine and attack your role as parents. The implications of the accelerating assaults on families, parental rights, constitutionally limited government, the future of America’s children, and the future of the nation itself cannot be overstated.

A series of fossil discoveries have revealed giant dinosaurs that, head to tail, extended a third of a football field and weighed as much as a dozen elephants or the largest humpback whale.

And a Pittsburgh paleontologist was on one team to study newly discovered fossils of two such titanosaurs - gigantic creatures that likely shook the ground with each step in what is now modern-day Argentina. Those behemoths were 82 to 92 feet and up to 66 tons - 132,000 pounds.

"You'd definitely feel vibrations when lots of them were moving, just like a herd of buffalo shakes the ground," said

A group of 71 British physicians have begun to exert pressure on the World Medical Association (WMA) to revoke the membership of the Israel Medical Association (IMA), it was revealed in a Knesset meeting on Wednesday.

IMA representative Dr. Ze'ev Feldman announced the disturbing new step during a Knesset Science and Technology Committee meeting on the subject of boycotts against Israeli academic institutions.

"The sword of the boycott has been raised against the scientific medical community in Israel," he declared, warning that Israel's medical doctors are "in grave danger."

"The professional British journals have adopted the idea of letters to the editor that libel Israel doctors," he added. "They claim our doctors perform medical torture on Palestinian patients."

Committee chairman MK Uri Maklev (United Torah Judaism) blasted the efforts of the anti-Israel British doctors, noting that "the phenomenon of academic boycotts is spreading and is connected to the economic and consumer boycotts against Israel."

Have scientists found a CURE for Type 1 diabetes? Experts halt the disease by implanting cells that help produce insulin

A cure for Type 1 diabetes is a step closer after scientists managed to halt the condition for at least six months thanks to insulin-producing cells.

Experts from US hospitals and institutions including Harvard University managed to transplant cells into mice, which immediately began producing insulin.

The team was also able to show they could prevent the cells being rendered useless by the body's own immune system, which was effectively 'switched off' thanks to scientific work.

2016 Market Meltdown: We Have Never Seen A Year Start Quite Like This...

By Michael Snyder, on January 21st, 2016

We are about three weeks into 2016, and we are witnessing things that we have never seen before. There were two emergency market shutdowns in China within the first four trading days of this year, the Dow Jones Industrial Average has never lost this many points within the first three weeks, and just yesterday we learned that global stocks had officially entered bear market territory. Overall, more than 15 trillion dollars of global stock market wealth has been wiped out since last June. And of course the markets are simply playing catch up with global economic reality. The Baltic Dry Index just hit another new all-time record low today, Wal-Mart has announced that they are shutting down 269 stores, and initial jobless claims in the U.S. just surged to their highest level in six months. So if things are this bad already, what will the rest of 2016 bring?

The Dow was up just a little bit on Thursday thankfully, but even with that gain we are still in unprecedented territory. According to CNBC, we have never seen a tougher start to the year for the Dow than we have in 2016...

In Canada, the 8-Dollar Cauliflower Shows the Pain of Falling Oil Prices

OTTAWA — Steamed, sautéed or stir-fried, cauliflower is standard fare on many dinner tables. In Canada, it is a luxury.

A head of cauliflower there now goes for around 8 Canadian dollars, a tripling in price, the strange foodie fallout from the low price of oil and other commodities.

The recipe for high-priced cauliflower starts with the currency.

A Run On The Banks Begins In Italy As Italian Banking Stocks Collapse

By Michael Snyder, on January 20th, 2016

The Italian financial meltdown that we have been waiting for has finally arrived. For quite a long time I have been warning my readers to watch Italy, and now people are starting to understand why. Italian banking stocks continued their collapse for a fifth consecutive day on Wednesday, and nervous Italians are beginning to quietly pull large amounts of money out of the banks. In particular, Monte dei Paschi is a complete and utter basket case at this point. A staggering one-third of their loans are "non-performing", and the stock price has fallen a staggering 57 percent since 2016 began. Monte dei Paschi is going to need a major bailout, and the same thing could be said about almost all of the largest Italian banks. But where is the money going to come from?

This Led To A Recession The Last 16 Times It Happened

21 JANUARY, 2016

(Michael Snyder) Something has just happened that has signaled a recession every single time that it has occurred since World War I. Sixteen times since 1919 there have been at least eight month-over-month declines in industrial production during the preceding 12-month period, and in each of those 16 instances, the U.S. economy has plunged into recession.

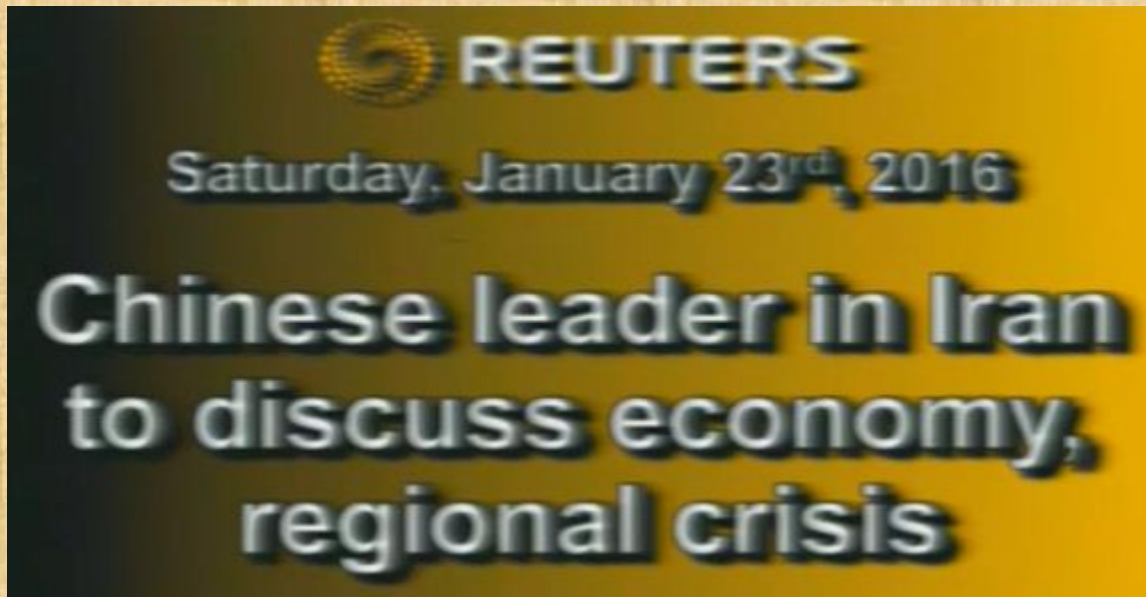

Now that it has happened again, will the U.S. economy beat the odds and avoid a major economic downturn? I certainly wouldn't count on it. As I have written about repeatedly, there are a whole host of other numbers that are screaming that a new recession is here, and global financial markets are crumbling. It would take a miracle of epic proportions to pull us out of this tailspin, and yet there are many people out there that are absolutely convinced that it will happen. John

Will Global Elites Push For New Financial Order?

22 JANUARY, 2016

Did you know that the top 1% has more wealth than the rest of the planet combined? And just 62 ultra-wealthy members of the elite have as much money as the poorest 3.5 billion people on the entire planet. These brand new numbers come from a shocking report that was just put out by Oxfam, and they show that income inequality continues to grow at a very rapid pace all over the world. As you will see below, the total wealth of the poorest half of the global population has plunged by 41 percent since 2010 while the wealth of the elite has continued to surge upward.

The debt-based financial system that now has the entire planet in its grip funnels wealth to the very top, and the global elite are more than happy to hoard as much of it as they possibly can. In our world, money is power, and the elite are continually becoming more powerful. The following comes from the Independent, and I think that these numbers truly speak for themselves & Wealth inequality has grown to the stage where 62 of the worlds richest people own as much as the

ISIS Destroys Oldest Christian Monastery In Iraq

The Islamic State terror group's destruction of the oldest Christian monastery in Iraq represents "a battle of savagery against decency," U.S. Col. Steve Warren told Fox News from Baghdad. Satellite photos obtained exclusively by The Associated Press confirm the worst fears of church authorities and preservationists — St. Elijah's Monastery of Mosul has been completely wiped out.

Ofsted chief confirms Sunday schools need to register under extremism proposals

15 JANUARY 2016

The head of Ofsted has confirmed churches will be required to register Sunday schools under new proposals to be debated in Parliament on Wednesday.

Despite reassurances that government proposals were not targeting Sunday schools, Sir Michael Wilshaw confirmed on London radio station LBC that where a young person attends a 'religious setting', it would have to register with the State and be subject to inspection.

Challenged on the practicality of this, the chief of education inspectors said that while the majority won't see his officers on a Sunday morning, all sessions must be registered so that the government "knows they're there".

He went on: "The government want Sunday schools, madrasas and after-school clubs to be registered. That won't take a lot of time.

"We won't inspect every one of them, but we will know they exist.

"If there are concerns – if whistle blowers tell us there's an issue – then we will go in."

Despite assurances by officials in the Department for Education that these new proposals aren't intended to monitor the content taught to children by churches, the proposals provide for the

BLASPHEMY: Second Coming Will Reveal A Female Savior, Insists Author

22 JANUARY, 2016

(Jeniffer Leclaire) Jesus Christ is not a woman, yet for some reason secularists like to position Him as female, transgender or anything but the Son of God. The latest example of a blasphemous approach to Christ comes from a Sam Jane Brown novel called Forgotten Word. The popular book mixes a murder mystery with the Second Coming of Christ and admittedly “makes the unusual assertion that the Second Coming will feature a Savior who is a woman.”

Polls Reveal Churches Are Increasingly Losing Their Saltiness

20 JANUARY, 2016

(Jack Minor) Recent polls and studies seem to indicate that America may be on track to become like England and the rest of Europe who have long since abandoned their glorious Christian heritage in favor of secularism that is now openly hostile to Christianity. A recent Gallup poll reveals that 20 percent of American adults are now claiming no formal religious identification, a five-point increase since 2008.

The number is significant since it is not uncommon for people who seldom attend church to still identify with the specific denomination they grew up with. I have frequently encountered people on visitation who will tell me "Oh, Im a Methodist, Presbyterian, Catholic" or some other denomination. Yet when asked which church they attend they are unable to name it because it has been too long since they have been there. The Gallup poll validates a similar survey by the

A Large Satanic Cross Is on Display Outside of a City Hall in Florida — and Here's How That's Going Over

Passerby will notice a curious display outside of the Hallandale Beach City Hall in Florida this week: a giant upside-down cross — a satanic symbol that is expected to be on the premises through Friday.

The cross was erected by Chaz Stevens, a local atheist, who posted it along with the message, "In Chaz We Trust, All Others Pay Cash," as the Sun-Sentinel reported.

Stevens was reportedly able to get clearance for the satanic cross after arguing that a Christmas tree, nativity and menorah were all allowed to be put on the property during the holiday season.

His placement of the cross is also reportedly a protest of sorts against the mayor's idea of placing an "In God We Trust" banner at city hall.

22 JANUARY, 2016

If Tim Tebow's NFL career has been put on hold because of his Christian faith, country singer Blake Shelton has something to say about it. Shelton took to his Twitter to engage with fans in a conversation about why no NFL team has signed the 28-year-old devout Christian athlete. "Just saw the 2011 playoff game with Steelers vs. Broncos. Can someone please give me a good reason [why] Tim Tebow isn't playing in the NFL," Shelton asked. "I mean are you telling me that there's NOT a team that needs him out there? An atheist organization is vowing to file an appeal after a court ruled in favor of the state of Florida and two faith-based halfway houses over a dispute surrounding private, religiously affiliated rehab programs.

The Center for Inquiry released a statement on Monday calling the ruling by the Second Judicial Circuit in Leon County, Florida, a "stark contrast to any reasonable understanding of the Florida Constitution," and announcing the atheist organization's intent to continue fighting the programs, which operate to assist ex-convicts.

"[The Center for Inquiry], an organization that promotes science, reason, and secular humanism, plans to appeal this decision, characterizing the ruling as legally flawed and, at its core, illogical," the statement read.

The Episcopal Church's first openly gay bishop says, now that more faith groups are accepting same-sex marriage, the next step is to reach out to transgender individuals.

Former New Hampshire Bishop Gene Robinson says his message to American clergy is, "(Transgender) people are coming to a theater very near you, maybe just around your corner, and you best get ready."

He appeared at a Washington forum with the Rev. Allyson Robinson — no relation — who is a transgender Baptist pastor.

A transgender student was granted access to an Illinois public school's female locker room Friday after reaching an agreement with the school.

The agreement with the Department of Education's Office for Civil Rights states that "Student A" will change behind curtains installed by the district in the girls' locker room. The school has since upgraded to stalls for increased privacy for students.

The Department of Education clarified in a letter that the agreement provisions regarding access to the girls' locker room apply only to "Student A."

Township High School District 211 Community Relations Director Thomas Petersen confirmed to The Daily Signal via email that the school has complied.

The resolution was reached after the Department of Education launched an investigation into a civil rights complaint by the transgender student's family.

The school was found in violation of Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 for discriminating "against a transgender high school student on the basis of sex" by denying the student access to the girls' locker room and instead offering "only separate facilities to change clothes."

Fox's 'Lucifer' TV Show: Satanic Deception Goes Primetime

September 17, 2015 By Beginning and End

Fox Television's new show casts Satan as a hero seeking redemption.

Woe unto them that call evil good, and good evil; that put darkness for light, and light for darkness; that put bitter for sweet, and sweet for bitter! – Isaiah 5:20.

Just when it seemed that primetime television could not get any more satanic – Fox television (the “conservative” network) is set to make a show that celebrates Satan himself. Lucifer, a new drama series from Fox, follows the life of Satan as he lives in Los Angeles attempting to solve a murder and use his powers to start helping people. The fact that a show like this could even be made much less air on a major network is another sign of just how far society has turned from God and the Bible. And certainly how easy the hearts and minds of many people are open to satanic deception.
