Holy_bible_1

سلمنا وديعتنا عن أنى لا اقول انه اقترب لكيلا يقال عني كاذب وانشر اشاعات ولكنه يأتي بسرعة
بغته. لا اعتقد اي أحد ندم لأنه كان مستعد ومنتظر مجيء المسيح ولم يأتي المسيح في زمنه
ولكنه انتقل وهو مستعد ولكن كثيرين جدا ندموا على عدم الاستعداد عندما انتقلوا

المسيح قال بعض العلامات مثل

انجيل لوقا 21

21: 10 ثم قال لهم تقوم امة على امة ومملكة على مملكة

21: 11 وتكون زلازل عظيمة في اماكن ومجاعات واوبئة وتكون مخاوف وعلامات عظيمة من

تضج

سفر اعمال الرسل 2

2: 19 واعطي عجائب في السماء من فوق وآيات على الارض من أسفل دما ونارا وبخار دخان

2: 21 ويكون كل من يدعو باسم الرب يخلص

لماذا قال المسيح بعض العلامات؟

انجيل متى 24

كلها ولكن ليس المنتهى بعد

إنجيل يوحنا 14: 29

28 وَمَتَى ابْتَدَأَتْ هَذِهِ تَكُونُ، فَاَنْتَصِبُوا وَاَرْفَعُوا رُؤُوسَكُمْ لِأَنَّ نَجَاتَكُمْ تَقْتَرِبُ».

Is Earth being contacted by ALIENS? Mystery radio signals coming from a sun-like star baffle scientists

- The signals seem to be coming from a sun-like star known as HD 164595
- The star is 95 light years away and may have undiscovered planets in orbit
- Scientists say signals may simply be the result of a natural phenomenon
- One possibility is 'microlensing' in which the star's gravity focuses signals coming from farther away

A spike in radio signals coming from the direction of a sun-like star has excited astronomers.

The signals seem to be originating from a star known as HD 164595 in the constellation Hercules, around 95 light years away.

Scientists suggest they are likely to be the result of a natural phenomenon, such as 'microlensing', in which the star's gravity strengthens and focuses signals from elsewhere.

But astronomers have also asked Seti (Search for Extraterrestrial Intelligence) to take a closer look at whether they could be a message from ET.

The newfound asteroid 2016 QA2 zoomed within 50,000 miles (80,000 kilometers) or so of the planet Sunday. For perspective, the moon orbits Earth at an average distance of 239,000 miles (384,600 km).

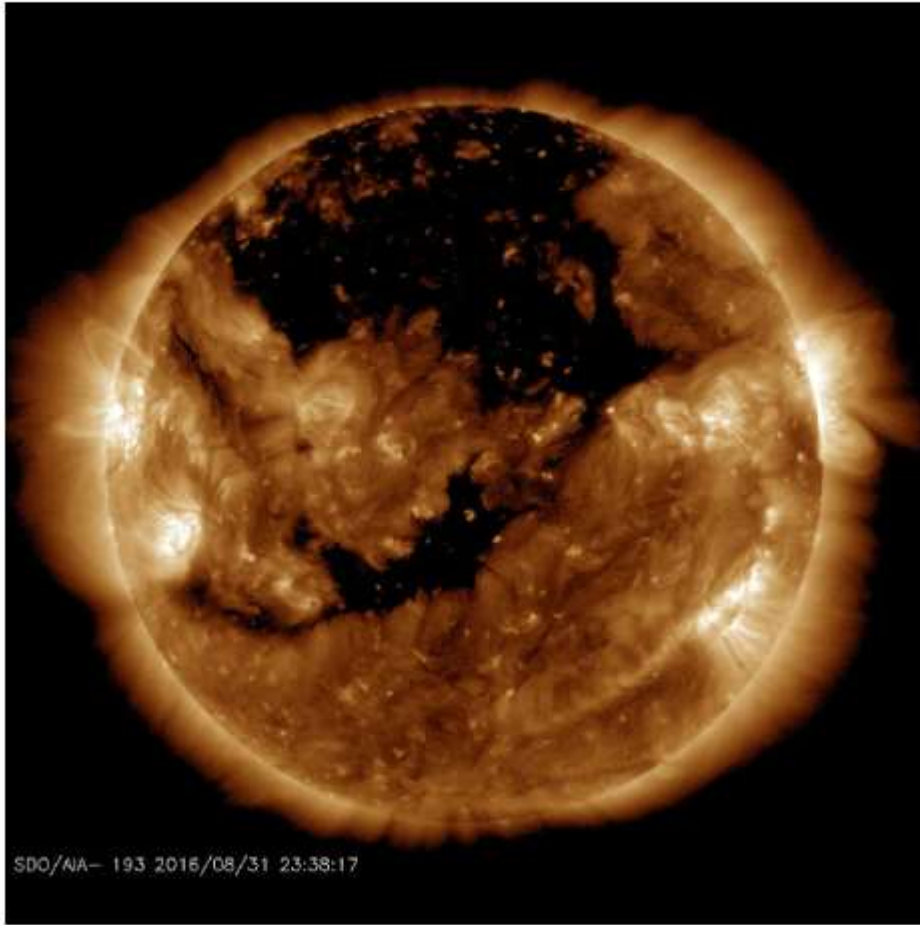

Astronomers think 2016 QA2 is between 80 and 180 feet (25 to 55 meters) wide. That means the space rock is slightly bigger than the object that exploded over the Russian city of Chelyabinsk in February 2013, injuring more than 1,200 people.

Typhoon Hits Northern Japan, Threatening to Bring Floods

A typhoon slammed into northern Japan on Tuesday evening, threatening to bring floods to an area still recovering from the 2011 tsunami.

Typhoon Lionrock made landfall near the city of Ofunato, about 500 kilometers (310 miles) northeast of Tokyo. It's the first time a typhoon has made landfall in the northern region since 1951, when the Japan Meteorological Agency started keeping records.

Even before it made landfall, the storm had already paralyzed traffic, caused blackouts and prompted officials to urge residents to evacuate. It was packing winds up to 126 kilometers (78 miles) per hour Tuesday evening.

More than 170,000 people were subject to evacuation, including 38,000 in Ofunato, according to the Fire and Disaster Management Agency. More than 10,000 homes in the northern region were without electricity, with power lines damaged from the winds.

The March 2011 earthquake and tsunami left more than 18,000 people dead in the wide swaths of Japan's northern coast, including 340 in Ofunato.

As of Tuesday evening, Typhoon Lionrock had brought 15 centimeters (6 inches) of rainfall to the region over the past 24 hours, and was expected to dump up to 8 centimeters (3 inches) of rain per hour in some areas, the meteorological agency said, urging residents to use caution and stay away from the coastline.

Major airlines canceled more than 100 flights to and from the northern region. Bullet train services in the Tohoku and Hokkaido regions were suspended.

At the Fukushima nuclear power plant, decimated by the 2011 disaster, some outdoor decommissioning work was suspended as a precaution.

Hawaii could be in for some rough times this week because according to a report from the National Weather Service, Hurricane Madeline could come dangerously close to the Big Island by Wednesday and may have impacts worse than Tropical Storm Iselle in 2014. "This looks like potentially the strongest tropical cyclone, which includes hurricanes and tropical storms, to approach very close to the coast in the past several years," said meteorologist Chris Brenchley with the Central Pacific Hurricane Center.

The average temperature of Earth is rising at a pace "unprecedented in 1,000 years," which could put at stake the international effort to reduce global warming set out in the landmark 2015 Paris climate accord, a top NASA climatologist has warned.

"In the last 30 years we've really moved into exceptional territory," Gavin Schmidt, director of the NASA Goddard Institute for Space Studies, told the Guardian. "It's unprecedented in 1,000 years. There's no period that has the trend seen in the 20th century in terms of the inclination [of temperatures]."

This year, the average temperature around the world reached 1.38C above levels observed in the 19th century, which is dangerously close to the 1.5C standard set

New Zealand earthquake: Scores of aftershocks after 7.1 magnitude quake off East Cape

Posted on September 2, 2016

September 2016 – NEW ZEALAND – A swarm of 100 aftershocks has continued to plague the North Island's East Cape since a severe earthquake struck early on Friday morning. The quake – 7.1 in magnitude, 130km north-east of Te Araroa at a depth of 55km at 4.37am – was felt from Northland to Wellington in the North Island, and in the top of the South Island. Severe reports were felt in Gisborne and the Bay of Plenty.

The earthquake prompted a tsunami warning, which was rescinded after waves of 30 cm were measured off Gisborne's coast. The ground continues to shake the East Cape region, and it's likely to continue for some time, according to GNS. The Transport Agency says that is bringing with it a risk of rock-falls and slips on the roads, and it's urging drivers to be wary.

The aftershocks were bringing increased risk at SH2 Waioeka Gorge, SH2 Maraenui, SH35 Motu Bluffs and SH35 Hawai to Te Kaha. The region to the northeast of New Zealand where the Australia plate meets the Pacific plate has a history of generating large magnitude quakes and tsunami. GeoNet received more than 5,000 felt reports in the 20 minutes after the 7.1 earthquake. GNS Science duty seismologist Caroline Holden said there was a flurry of aftershocks, including one M6.2 aftershock at 5.14 am and a 6.0 at 8.06 am. There have been more than 100 aftershocks since the initial 7.1 tremor.

Oklahoma's 5.6 magnitude earthquake felt as far away as Gilbert, AZ

By The Associated Press

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) - Oklahoma's 5.6 magnitude earthquake Saturday was felt as far away as Gilbert, AZ, the Associated Press reported.

It also rattled the Midwest from Nebraska to North Texas and likely will bring fresh attention to the practice of disposing oil and gas field wastewater deep underground.

(Source: USGS)

The United States Geological Survey said a 5.6 magnitude earthquake happened at 7:02 a.m. Saturday in north-central Oklahoma, on the fringe of an area where regulators had stepped in to limit wastewater disposal. That temblor matches a November 2011 quake in the same region.

An increase in magnitude 3.0 or greater earthquakes in Oklahoma has been linked to underground disposal of wastewater from oil and natural gas production.

RELATED: [Record-tying Oklahoma earthquake felt as far away as Arizona]

The Oklahoma Corporation Commission, which since 2013 has asked wastewater-well owners to reduce disposal volumes in parts of the state, directed about 35 wells within an approximately 500-square-mile area around the epicenter to shut down within seven to 10 days because of previous connections between the injection of wastewater and earthquakes.

"All of our actions have been based on the link that researchers have drawn between the Arbuckle disposal well operations and earthquakes in Oklahoma," spokesman Matt Skinner said Saturday. "We're trying to do this as quickly as possible, but we have to follow the recommendations of the seismologists, who tell us everything going off at

Iceland's Met Office: 2 Earthquakes Rock Large Volcano

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS -

Gunnar Gudmundsson, a geophysicist, said authorities are monitoring the situation at the volcano in southern Iceland and described it as "a little bit unusual." The quakes measured magnitude 4.2 and magnitude 4.5 and were followed by some 20 aftershocks.

"People have been waiting for an eruption for 50 years," Gudmundsson said of Katla. "But there is no sign of an eruption."

Katla, named after an evil troll, is in southern Iceland about 140 kilometers (87 miles) from the capital, Reykjavik.

Iceland, an island nation in the remote North Atlantic, is a volcanic hotspot often hit by seismic activity. Its volcanos attracted international attention in April 2010, when ash from an eruption of its Eyjafjallajokull volcano grounded flights across Europe for days, disrupting travel for millions.

In the past, Katla has erupted in tandem with Eyjafjallajokull. Katla's last major eruption took place in 1918, and another has been expected since the 1960s.

Plane passengers have been warned to prepare for chaos over fears that an Icelandic volcano could erupt and send an ash cloud towards Britain.

The Icelandic Met Office has issued an alert after finding earthquake activity within the caldera of the ice-covered Katla volcano was at four times higher than normal.

Meteorologists in the country said they had noticed heightened earthquake activity at Katla since mid-June, although this appeared to be in decline - until Monday.

HUNTINGTON, N.Y. — Authorities say thousands of dead bunker fish have washed up on shore on Long Island.

Huntington Town officials tell Newsday some 11,000 bunker fish entered Mill Pond in Centerport last week and became trapped after the tide went out.

He says it's the largest fish kill in the town since a mass die-off in Cold Spring Harbor 30 years ago.

A Department of Environmental Conservation says the exact cause of the die-off is unclear. But he says such events occur in warmer months when oxygen levels are low and the energy used by fish increases.

Last week, thousands of dead mussels came ashore in Jamesport, Long Island, probably due to this summer's high temperatures.

Biologist: High temperatures may have caused mussel die-off

What caused thousands of blue mussels to appear along the shoreline in the Jamesport area this week hasn't officially been determined. However, a local biologist believes the culprit may be rising water temperatures in the Long Island Sound.

"They've been hit with these consecutive heat waves that are just too hot for them," said Christopher Gobler, the associate dean and researcher with the School of Marine and Atmospheric Sciences at Stony Brook.

State Department of Environmental Conservation officials concurred.

"It is likely that high water temperatures due to the prolonged hot temperatures we have experienced this summer is the cause," DEC spokesperson Aphrodite Montalvo said.

The mussel die-off appeared Wednesday morning just east of Iron Pier beach and west of the oil terminal. Jamesport homeowner David Gruner said he and his wife noticed a rotting smell that morning and walked along the private beach to find thousands of mussels.

The Directorate of the State Commission for Protection Against Health Risks reported that carried out the tasks of sampling of water from the main drain, which have appeared thousands of dead fish this week, but said that the tasks of caring for the environment environment is concerned the Department of Environmental Control.

And is that long this department, also including the Commission of Aldermen of the Environment, have not been dedicated to put interest in the issues converging them in the last 24 months.

Oscar García, head of the Unit of Evidence and Management of Health Risks in COEPRIS said Friday they already conducted water monitoring and the results sent Ciudad Victoria, at the latest on Monday.

However it was very emphatic in saying that this is a problem that totally is competition Environmental Control and other instances, they are only verifying that these dead fish are not marketed because they are harmful to health and can cause serious damages, and said that if a citizen sees that someone is subtracting the channel for personal consumption or marketing, which immediately give notice to the authorities.

Malambo, Tam.- The task of reviewing what is killing the fish is problem of Environmental Control.

Low oxygen levels blamed for fish kill

KUWAIT: The Kuwait Institute for Scientific Research (KISR) said yesterday its scientists gathered samples of dead fish along with samples from deep and offshore waters at the Kuwait Bay area and the northern area. In a press statement, KISR stated that the researchers have gathered the data from those two areas to calculate oxygen ratio in the waters and in the marine sediments where they also identified the current environmental status and its future effect on the Marine life.

The statement added that all collected data is shared with the Environment Public Authority (EPA) after conducting full survey in cooperation of the Public Authority of Agriculture Affairs and Fish Resources (PAAAFR).

The results showed a decrease of oxygen concentration in the seawaters with less than four milligrams in one liter in coherence with the increase of the water temperature and high humidity, in addition to the increase of Salinity which affected the oxygen in water, the statement said.

Conclusions of the recent survey and researches showed that the oxygen was below 1mg for each liter and the marine sediments in the southern area had a notable increase in the marine organisms in the area which increased the consumption of oxygen and decreased its condensation in the waters.

The bay witnessed occurrences fish death, latest of which was in June 2015 and September 2014, where the oxygen concentration was below average with four mg in the liter, the statement concluded. — KUNA

A large-scale environmental disaster has occurred in the Sverdlovsk region of Russia, URA.Ru reports.

An unprecedented amount of dead fish have washed up on Chernolstochinsk lake in Nizhny Tagil on August 27 and 28.

The lake is the main source of drinking water for residents of the city of Nizhny Tagil. The locals complained of putrid odor and unpleasant taste of water in the middle of the outgoing summer. As it turned out, the water did not meet organoleptic standards.

The city administration requested financial assistance for the region. According to preliminary calculations, the region needs 11 billion rubles to ensure supplies of drinking water to local residents.

According to URA.Ru, the prime suspect for the disaster is LLC Vodokanal-NT (Water Channel Nizhny Tagil). A week earlier, an administrative investigation was launched against the company into violations of water use rules for wastewater discharge into water bodies. The company has also repeatedly exceeded concentrations of chloride ions, suspended solids and aluminum in the water.

Update on MHS mystery illness, over

By Kenia Mills | Posted: Thu 8:40 PM, Sep 01, 2016 | Updated: Fri 2:45 PM, Sep 02, 2016

MANHATTAN, Kan. (WIBW) -- Manhattan High School and the Riley County Health Department need parents help getting conclusive information on the mystery illness that's affected over 100 students.

Eighteen students were sent home Thursday and another fourteen on Friday for having stomach flu-like symptoms, the total is now roughly over 100.

According to Manhattan High School principal Greg Hoyt, the faculty and staff at the school are taking every precaution to ensure the illness doesn't spread.

"We are very hypersensitive to this so any student showing up in the nurse's office complaining of an upset stomach, any type of nausea; in circumstances where we might feed them a saltine cracker and try to keep them in school, we're immediately sending them home," said Hoyt.

Winds Of War: Is Russia Conducting A Massive Mobilization Of Troops For An Invasion Of Ukraine?

By Michael Snyder, on August 30th, 2016

The drumbeats of war are growing louder. Fighting in eastern Ukraine between separatists and pro-government forces has risen to an intensity not seen in well over a year, and the Russians claim that they recently foiled a "Ukrainian plot" to conduct terror attacks in Crimea. As tensions in the region have increased, the Russians have used the cover of "military drills" to move massive amounts of troops and military equipment up to the border with Ukraine. This is something that I wrote about a couple of weeks ago, but things have intensified since then, and a huge military exercise is planned for September. Needless to say, the Ukrainians are quite alarmed by this, and Ukrainian President Petro Poroshenko is warning that a full scale mobilization of the Ukrainian military may be needed. If something is going to happen, it is likely to happen soon. As you will see below, once we get into October it will become much less likely that we would see a Russian invasion of Ukraine.

We aren't hearing much about this conflict in the U.S. media, but over in Europe this is a very big deal. Just consider the following excerpt from an article in the Independent entitled "Russia is teetering on the brink of 'all out war' with Ukraine"....

Ukraine is holding a major military parade in Kiev today to mark its 25th anniversary as an independent state. But, at a time that should otherwise be a moment of national celebration, a serious crisis with Moscow is flaring up. So serious, in fact, that on Tuesday the Russian President Vladimir Putin, German Chancellor Angela Merkel and French President Francois Hollande were forced to hold a three-way phone call to try to de-escalate the situation.

Tokyo delivered a humiliating public protest to Beijing for the intrusion of a vast Chinese “fishing fleet” escorted by more than a dozen coast guard and other law-enforcement vessels in or near waters of the disputed Senkaku islands.

Such protests are common in the ongoing cat and mouse game in the East and South China Seas, but they are usually delivered in private. In this case, Tokyo decided to turn its protest into political theater.

Last week, Iran's Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps (IRGC) sent four vessels to "harass" a U.S. warship near the Strait of Hormuz. A prim schoolmarm of a U.S. official called the Iranian action "unsafe and unprofessional."

In reality, there was nothing "unprofessional" about it. The incident wasn't about seafaring conduct -- it was a clear act of war.

The Iranian vessels harassed the USS Nitze, a destroyer, by "conducting a high speed intercept and closing within a short distance of Nitze, despite repeated warnings," said the official. "The Iranian high rate of closure ... created a dangerous, harassing situation that could have led to

Turkey Wants To 'Cleanser' Strip Of Territory On Syrian Border

Posted on September 1, 2016 by Staff in Middle East, News, Videos, War & Conflict // 0 Comments

The Turkish military is seeking to clear the Islamic State from a stretch of territory in northern Syria along the border between the two nations, according to a Turkish official stated on Wednesday, just a week after it initially launched its incursion into the Syrian country.

Turkey's military operation known as "Euphrates Shield", in which Turkish troops and tanks entered Syria, started with the capture of the northern Syrian town of Jarablus, which had been under the firm control of the Islamic State, has since moved further south into the Kurdish-backed territory.

Turkish presidential spokesman Ibrahim Kalin stated, Starting from Jarablus, the cleansing of this region is our priority," Kalin told a news briefing. "We have already cleansed 400 square km successfully."

ISIS supporters have said the terror group has sleeper cells all across Europe.

And most frighteningly of all - terror experts have backed up the chilling claims.

During the migrant crisis it was feared jihadists could sneak through the European Union's porous borders as thousands arrived into the continent daily from war-torn nations.

This included in July, Mohammad Daleel, a 27-year-old failed asylum seeker, who blew himself up outside a party in Ansbach, Germany.

The number of regular soldiers in Britain's army has fallen below 80,000, the lowest it has been for over 200 years, the latest manning figures show.

The Army was slashed by the government from 102,000 to a target of 82,000 during the 2010 defence review – reducing it to the smallest British force since the Napoleonic Wars – driven by the austerity budget introduced by the coalition government. Reservists were (CNN) — George Washington University has hired a former Islamic extremist to work at its center on homeland security -- a man who once denounced the United States and made threats against the creators of the TV series "South Park" for depicting the Prophet Muhammad in a bear suit.

While reformed extremists have worked at universities in Europe to help fight terrorism, this is believed to be a first in the United States.

Thousands Of Bodies Found In 72 Mass Graves Reveal Industrial-Scale Murder At The Hands Of The Islamic State

Posted on August 30, 2016 by Staff in Middle East, News, War & Conflict // 0 Comments

Satellite photographic images show the spot where more than six hundred male prisoners were systematically lined up and then gunned down inside of northern Iraq, as thousands of bodies have now been discovered in seventy-two different mass graves that reveal the industrial-scale murder of thousands of Iraqis at the hands of the Islamic State terrorist organization.

Within the country of Syria, the Associated Press obtained seventeen different locations of mass graves, including one with the bodies of hundreds of members of the same Syrian tribe that were slaughtered when the Islamic State of Iraq and Syria swept through the region.

An American Muslim convert allegedly bought illegal grenades from an undercover FBI agent and was stockpiling ammunition in an underground container, according to federal court records unsealed Monday in Detroit.

Interviews found in court records portray Sebastian Gregerson, aka Abdurrahman Bin Mikaayl, as a "homegrown violent extremist" who amassed an "arsenal" to carry out an attack while cheering mass killings in Paris and Orlando, the Detroit News reported.

Both the FBI and the Detroit newspaper used the language of the Obama administration, referring repeatedly to Gregerson as a "home-

Driverless minibuses will begin taking passengers in the eastern French city of Lyon at the weekend in a year-long experiment that officials are calling a "world first".

The two electric vehicles, fitted with high-tech equipment including laser sensors, stereo vision and GPS, can ferry around 15 passengers at a top speed of 20 kilometres an hour (12 mph).

The initial route in the heart of the city will last 10 minutes and include five stops.

Manufactured by the French firm Navya and costing €200,000 ($225,000) apiece, a prototype was tested in 2013.

The minibuses have already been tested in other French cities as well as in Sion, Switzerland, but without carrying passengers.

An Internet Giveaway to the U.N.

When the Obama administration announced its plan to give up U.S. protection of the internet, it promised the United Nations would never take control. But because of the administration's naiveté or arrogance, U.N. control is the likely result if the U.S. gives up internet stewardship as planned at midnight on Sept. 30.

SC school bans American flag from football games

TRAVELERS REST, S.C. – School officials' decision to ban students from displaying the American Flag at a recent football game is creating controversy in a South Carolina school district.

On Friday, Travelers Rest High School principal Lou Lavelly banned students from carrying American flags into a football game against Berega High School, because a lot of students at Berega are Hispanic. Lavelly contends the American flag could have been used to taunt those students, WNCN reports.

"Some events at last evening's football game have resulted in concerns being raised in our community. I am writing to assure that any decisions made regarding American flags being permitted into the game were made in the best interests of all attending the game and in the spirit of patriotism and respect for our flag," Lavelly wrote in response to Facebook backlash about the ban, which turned away several students who came to the game with American flags.

"Any decision to not allow the American flag to be used in an improper 'taunting,' unsportsmanlike manner is first and foremost in the interests of promoting the safety and well-being of all in attendance at school events. This decision would be made anytime that the American flag, or any other symbol, sign, cheer, or action on the part of our fans would potentially compromise the safety of all in attendance at a school event."

Lavelly's prepared statement assured community members that officials "have the utmost respect for our flag and strive to display the highest levels of patriotism," and the school supports veterans, but the potential for taunting was too much to allow the American flag inside of the stadium.

Mexico issues transit visas to surge of African migrants

AP August 30, 2016

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexican immigration authorities say 424 migrants from African countries arrived at the southern state of Chiapas over two days last week.

The National Immigration Institute said Tuesday that it has issued them 20-day transit visas that will allow the migrants to reach the U.S.-Mexico border, where they plan to request asylum.

Officials call it an unusual surge and say most of the migrants first went to Brazil or Ecuador to start their journey through Latin America.

Most of the Africans presented themselves voluntarily to immigration officials in the Chiapas town of Tapachula. They did not specify their nationalities.

Immigration support staff in Tijuana has been aiding migrants from the Congo, Somalia and Ghana to arrive at the U.S. port of entry at San Isidro.

A cashless society? Some retailers turn noses up a currency

USA TODAY NETWORK Susan Tompor, Detroit Free Press 8:45 a.m. EDT September 5, 2016

Cash may be king, but for those who play their cards right, it can be better to buy with credit.

Stroll into the airy Kit and Ace store on Woodward Avenue in Detroit and you're struck by the minimalist style that highlights the brand's comfortable, street-smart clothing line.

But if you wanted to buy a scarf, maybe one that's on sale for about $50, don't bother paying with cash. The store won't take your Benjamins — or Hamiltons, Jacksons or Grants.

It's nothing personal. It's a no-cash policy that has been adopted at other Kit and Ace stores, too.

I don't imagine anyone who favors don't-look-like-you're-trying-too-hard fashion is going to care too much if they can't spend actual cash. But the oddity of a no-cash policy does make you think. How much closer, really, are we to a cashless society? Are we looking at the beginning of a more minimalist approach to money?

Government Workers Now Outnumber Manufacturing Workers by 9,932,000

By Terence P. Jeffrey | September 2, 2016 | 9:01 AM EDT

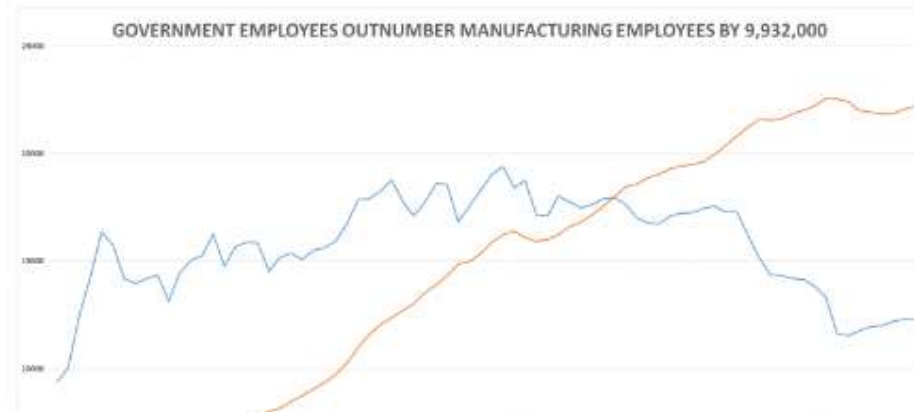

(CNSNews.com) - Government employees in the United States outnumber manufacturing employees by 9,932,000, according to data released today by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Federal, state and local government employed 22,213,000 people in August, while the manufacturing sector employed 12,281,000.

The BLS has published seasonally-adjusted month-by-month employment data for both government and manufacturing going back to 1939. For half a century—from January 1939 through July 1989—manufacturing employment always exceeded government employment in the United States, according to these numbers.

Jack Ma has a warning for those who see globalization as a problem: When trade stops, wars can follow.

"We should keep on going along the path of globalization," Ma said Friday in Hangzhou, China. "Globalization is good... when trade stops, war comes."

The executive chairman of Alibaba (BABA, Tech30) said he hopes the anti-globalization fervor that currently grips much of the world will ease after U.S. elections in November. China, in particular, has been a target of heated rhetoric.

Global growth is weak, and will be eroded further by Brexit. Oil prices are low, and likely to plunge further. The world has excess capacity and a wage-depressing labor surplus. Corporate profits are shaky. And deflation is laying bare the impotence of central banks. So where would you logically expect financial markets to be going, given that economic, financial and political environment?

You'd expect to see increased demand for safe-haven U.S. Treasuries, a soaring dollar, falling commodity prices, and increasing investor aversion to junk bonds, emerging market debt and equities and other low-quality securities. But that's not the case.

The 10-year Treasury yield has been flat for months, as has the dollar against the euro. Commodity prices in general and oil in particular have risen this year. Money has poured into emerging market bonds as well as junk bonds, depressing their yields. How can current security prices be justified in

31 AUGUST, 2016

(By Michael Snyder) Things have not been this bad for the Canadian economy since the last global recession. During the second quarter of 2016, Canada's GDP contracted at a 1.6 percent annualized rate. That was the worst number in seven years, and it was even worse than most analysts were projecting. This comes at a time when bad news is pouring in from all corners of the global economy. While things in the United States are still relatively stable for the moment, the same cannot be said for much of the rest of the planet.

"Tremendous Ripple Effects" - Retailers Demand Bailout After Hanjin Collapse Paralyzes Trade

by Tyler Durden
Sep 2, 2016 10:41 PM

When we first reported about the imminent paralysis of an unknown number of global supply chains and a potential shock in worldwide trade as a result of the historic bankruptcy of Hanjin Shipping, one of the world's largest container shipping companies which handles 8% of Trans-Pacific trade volume for the US market, we concluded that "the global implications from the bankruptcy are unknown: if, as expected, the company's ships remain "frozen" and inaccessible for weeks if not months, the impact on global supply chains will be devastating, potentially resulting in a cascading waterfall effect, whose impact on global economies could be severe as a result of the worldwide logistics chaos. The good news is that both economists and corporations around the globe, both those impacted and others, will now have yet another excuse on which to blame the "unexpected" slowdown in both profits and economic growth in the third quarter."

However, not even this extreme forecast captured what would happen just 48 hours later, when as the WSJ reported overnight, retailers have gone far beyond simply blaming the Hanjin bankruptcy for their upcoming woes: they are petitioning for a government bailout, or as the WSJ put it, they are "bracing for a blow as they stock up for the crucial holiday sales season, asked the government to step in and help resolve a growing crisis."

Or, as America's banks would call it, "get bailed out." And, in taking a page right out of the 2008 bank bailout, the doom and gloom scenarios emerge:

"While the situation is still developing, the prospect of harm is significant and apparent." Sandra Kennedy, president of the Retail Industry Leaders Association, wrote in a letter to the Department of Commerce and the Federal Maritime Commission, Hanjin's recent bankruptcy filing "presents an enormous challenge to U.S. shippers," she said, and "could have a substantial impact on consumers and the economy at large."

The trade group is urging the U.S. to work with ports, cargo handlers and the South Korean government to resolve the widespread disruption in freight shipments caused by the Hanjin bankruptcy filing. Furthermore, the spokesman for the Retail Industry Leaders Association said they're hoping the South Korean government could help provide clarity and speed to the bankruptcy proceedings, which are being considered by courts there.

Elementary School Bible Club Ceases Following Complaint From Atheist Activist Group

2 SEPTEMBER, 2016

A Bible club at an elementary school in California is no more following a complaint from a prominent professing atheist group that seeks to combat what it believes are violations of the "separation of Church and State." Earlier this year, the Wisconsin-based Freedom From Religion Foundation (FFRF) sent a letter to the Brea Olinda Unified School District after it was contacted by a parent who expressed concern that their son might feel pressure to join.

Five Iranian Christians were arrested on Friday Aug. 26 during a trip to the Alborz Mountains north-east of Tehran, the latest in a recent spate of arrests. Their wives and families have expressed concern for their safety.

One of them, Afshar Naderi, had been arrested before, on Dec. 26, 2014. Also arrested that day was Pastor Victor Bet-Tamraz, whose son, Ramil, was part of the group arrested on Aug. 26.

Victor Bet-Tamraz led the Tehran Pentecostal Assyrian Church before it was shut down by Iran's Ministry of Interior in March 2009. He and Naderi—a convert to Christianity—were arrested alongside another convert while celebrating Christmas at the pastor's house. All three were charged with conducting illegal evangelism and kept mostly in solitary confinement in Evin prison, before being

Another Government Gives The Boot To Missionaries

1 SEPTEMBER, 2016

Daniel Ortega's Sandinista government is at it again. This time, the Nicaraguan president should replace the welcome sign at Managua Airport with one that reads, "Missionaries Keep Out!" Ortega's government has imposed new restrictions on foreign missionaries entering the country to serve the people. They must submit in detail the purpose of entry before the government will decide if the missionary should be allowed in.

Atheists Target Children In New Evolution-Promoting Book

5 SEPTEMBER, 2016

An evolution-propagandizing illustrated children's book is drawing praise from the secular community and currently ranks as a best seller on Amazon.com. "Annabelle & Aiden: The Story Of Life" is a 26-page children's book that was published last month. Advertised as an "inspirational storybook" that will help kids "gain a basic understanding of evolution," the book walks readers through the history of life according to Charles Darwin.

Chicago Man Who Identifies As Woman Sues Over City's Ban On Toplessness In Bars

29 AUGUST, 2016

Here's a dose of weird for you on this Monday morning! A Chicago man who identifies as a woman has filed a federal lawsuit over the city's ban on toplessness in bars, asserting that it is discriminatory against women. The 23-year-old man, who goes by Bea Sullivan-Knoff, was filed Wednesday and is the next step after city council members refused calls to relax Chicago's nudity laws as they pertain to bars and strip clubs.

'Gay traffic lights' leave pedestrians in Trafalgar Square BAFFLED

Sets of traffic lights near Trafalgar Square had their "walk" and "green man" images replaced

Day-trippers and tourists complained they don't know which way to turn while crossing streets in central London after being confronted by a series of arrows pointing in different directions.

Around 50 sets of traffic lights near busy Trafalgar Square had their "walk" and "green man" images replaced with the new designs in June to coincide with an annual Gay Pride Festival.

Officials said the seven different same-sex symbols were designed to show Transport for London's "support for lesbian, gay, bisexual and trans diversity" in the capital.

Eight Carolinas colleges included on 'Shame List' for LGBT discrimination

Published: Monday, August 29th 2016, 10:23 am MDT

Updated: Monday, August 29th 2016, 10:23 am MDT

In all, the national listing includes 102 campuses that Campus Pride says openly discriminate against LGBTQ youth in policies, programs and practices as documented on the site listing. In nearly every case, the Carolinas colleges included are religious-based.

Among the eight Carolinas colleges are Charlotte Christian and Theological Seminary, which Campus Pride says has applied for an exemption to Title IX in order to discriminate against its students on the bases of sexual orientation, gender identity, marital status, pregnancy or receipt of abortion while still receiving federal funds.

Belmont Abbey College in Gaston County, also qualified for the Shame List because it holds an exemption to Title IX, allowing the college to discriminate against its students on the basis of gender identity while still receiving federal funds, said Campus Pride.

Other Carolinas colleges included: Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary in Wake Forest, N.C.; Bob Jones University in Greenville, S.C.; Anderson University in Anderson, S.C.; Charleston Southern University in Charleston, S.C.; North Greenville University in Tigerville, S.C. and Southern Wesleyan University in Central, S.C.

The full list and reasons colleges were included can be found CampusPride.org/ShameList.

It is being released at the height of an ongoing national debate over North Carolina's House Bill

A woman has left the internet in shock by querying whether there's anything wrong with sleeping naked with her 16-year-old son.

The anonymous poster opened the debate on the question and answer site Quora, saying: 'Is it wrong for me (a mother) to sleep naked with my 16 year old son?'

Her query met with a resounding 'yes' from everyone who replied, with several warning that her actions could be interpreted as child abuse.

DAYS OF LOT: Transgender Propaganda Song Targets Children

2 SEPTEMBER, 2016

(Reported By Sarah Stites) What better way to reach a generation with influence than straight through the music they listen to! Mr. Loops, a New York based children's entertainer, is trying to teach kids about acceptance through current events. In other words, he's singing potty propaganda. In a new, catchy music video, Mr. Loops, his wife and animal puppets dance in front of bathroom stalls, teaching kids that "pee is pee, poo is poo, me is me and you is you." According to LGBTQ Nation contributor Jeff Taylor, the song "explains bathrooms and bigots in

A four-year-old child who identifies as transgender has begun to transition before their first day of kindergarten.

The child, who is unidentified for privacy purposes, is part of the Safe Schools program and hopes to complete the full gender transformation by next year.

But psychologists have questioned whether the preschooler is too young as gender transition among young children skyrockets, according to the Daily Telegraph.

The Education Department would not reveal whether the child was born a boy or girl.
