NASA is visiting Bennu ... before it visits us. Bennu crosses Earth's orbit every six years. In 2135, the asteroid may enter a "keyhole" between the Earth and the Moon where the gravitational pull of our own planet will tweak Bennu's orbit, potentially putting it on course for Earth later that century. Currently, the odds of a collision 150+ years from now are no more than about 1 in 2700--small, but enough to prompt an $800 million space mission.

Arriving in late 2018, OSIRIS-REx will spend more than a year flying in close proximity to Bennu using five instruments to survey the asteroid. The resulting maps will pinpoint a safe sampling site, where the probe can reach out with a mechanical arm and gather material from the asteroid's surface. If all goes as planned, samples will be returned to Earth in the Fall of 2023, when a capsule containing bits of Bennu will land at the Utah Test and Training Range.

Hurricane Maria's first victim: One dead and two missing on Guadeloupe after Category 5 storm roared past the island with 160-mph winds - and Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands are next

- One person is dead and two missing on the island of Guadeloupe after Hurricane Maria passed by the island on Tuesday
- Maria made its first landfall Tuesday morning on the island of Dominica
- Communications have been knocked out but there are reports of 'widespread devastation'
- Meanwhile, residents in the U.S. Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico are bracing for a direct hit
- Forecasters say Maria will make landfall in the early hours of Wednesday on the southwestern tip of St. Croix
- The eye will then hit the southeastern coast of Puerto Rico a few hours later
- 'This is going to be a catastrophic event,' Puerto Rico Gov Ricardo Rossello warned
- Experts say Maria's eye is getting smaller - so it's becoming more powerful
- There have been twice as many storms with twice as much power as usual so far this year
- And there haven't been this many Category 3 and above storms in seven years

Hurricane Maria has claimed its first victim.

Officials say one person died on Guadeloupe after being hit by a falling tree when the Category 5 storm hit the French Caribbean island overnight.

Authorities say the person did not comply with orders to remain indoors on Tuesday morning. They say two other people are reported missing after their boat sank off La Desirade island, just east of Guadeloupe.

About 40 percent of the island is without power. That's 80,000 homes. Flooding has been reported in several communities, especially along the southern coast.

Officials say Les Saintes, Marie-Galant, Petit-Bourg and La Desirade have been the hardest hit. Roads are littered with fallen branches and trees but only limited infrastructure damage has been reported.

At least 56 people have been killed, nearly 200 000 are homeless and more than 11 000 homes have been destroyed by floods since the start of the rainy season in May, country's interior ministry reported Tuesday, September 19, 2017.

The hardest hit is capital Niamey along with Dosso in the south. A humanitarian source told AFP last week that exacerbating the problems were rising River Niger water levels, leading to fears of a repeat of serious flooding in 2012 which left dozens dead and some 500 000 homeless.

Food production will also take a hit, with the flooding killing some 16 000 cattle and about 12 000

A strong new earthquake shook Mexico on Saturday, killing at least two people, toppling already damaged homes and a highway bridge, and causing new alarm in a country reeling from two even more powerful quakes that together have killed more than 400 people.

The U.S. Geological Survey said the new, magnitude 6.1 temblor was centered about 11 miles (18 kilometers) south-southeast of Matias Romero in the state of Oaxaca, which was the region most battered by a magnitude 8.1 quake on Sept. 7.

It was among thousands of aftershocks recorded in the wake of that earlier quake,

Two more earthquakes shook southern Mexico Saturday, further rattling a country still coming to grips with the devastation from stronger temblors earlier this month.

Meanwhile, Californians are anxious about a possible Big One, because of the recent major quakes – all seemingly hitting in the “ring of fire,” where about 90 percent of seismic activity occurs.

A 6.1-magnitude Mexico earthquake Saturday morning was centered in Oaxaca state near Matias Romero, a town about 275 miles southeast of Mexico City, the U.S. Geological Survey said. Roughly speaking, the epicenter was between the centers of this month's two more violent earthquakes – the 7.1 magnitude temblor that hit Tuesday closer to the capital, and the 8.1 magnitude quake that struck Sept. 8 off the southern Pacific coast, near Chiapas state.

Anthrax kills 42 hippos in Tanzania's Ruaha National Park

Xinhuanet App

ARUSHA, Tanzania, Sept. 11 (Xinhua) -- An outbreak of anthrax has killed at least 42 hippopotami in south-central Tanzania's famed Ruaha National Park, authorities said on Monday.

Christopher Timbuka, Ruaha Chief Park Warden said earlier investigation show the wild animals were killed by anthrax, an infection caused by the bacterium Bacillus anthracis.

According to the official, a survey carried between August and early September, this year, shows that death cases were found in three key areas, which are popular for hosting hippos in the sanctuary.

"This is the largest number of hippos to have been killed in the park by the disease," Timbuka said, adding: "We've already sent samples of the dead hippos to the Chief Government Chemist Laboratory Agency for more investigation."

He cited an acute water shortage in Great Ruaha River as one of the factors for an outbreak of the disease in the sanctuary.

Hundreds of dead seabirds have been found washed ashore on sites from islands in the Bering Sea to villages north of the Bering Strait, signs of another large die-off in the warmed-up waters of the North Pacific Ocean.

The dead birds are mostly northern fulmars and short-tailed shearwaters, species that migrate long distances to spend summers in waters off Alaska and other northern regions, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service reported. Also in the mix are some kittiwakes, murres and auklets, the federal agency said.

Winds at over 260 km / h, blown flora and wildlife killed. The record after the passage of Hurricane Irma is heavy. As proof, these hundreds of pink flamingos found dead in the north of Cuba. The emblematic bird of the island, the animal did not survive. A disaster for Cuba, which had the largest colony in the world. The animals of the zoos could have been sheltered before the arrival of Irma, but the wild animals had to fend for themselves. On September 9, the hurricane swept over the island, causing the deaths of ten people, before heading for Florida. It is the first hurricane of such a force whose eye directly affects the island since 1932.

At least 15 dead turtles of the species Pasmala and Amanilla found inhabitants of La Boquita and Masapa on the shores of the beaches of Carazo, which had to bury the immediate, to avoid the bad smell.

According to Carlos Ernesto Gonzalez, owner of a restaurant near the beach of La Boquita, said that the death of these turtles is due to the fishermen in the area are using "trashallos rabaleros" (large fishing net).

"This is not common in the area, what happens is that the fishermen are using a bigger and thicker type of trammel, which causes the turtles to become entangled and these little animals can not remain underwater for a long time, they come out to the surface to take in air and then to submerge again," said Gonzalez.

Luz Elena Parrales said that her father helped to bury the turtles and called on fishermen and the population to care for these endangered species.

"It is painful to see so many dead turtles, my father was buried there on the same coast, fishermen should be aware, because these transplants are only used to remove the larger fish, but the turtles can not escape with that thick trammel," he said, added Parrales.

According to the locals so far no institution has come forward to coordinate any action, for the

Japan deploys missile defence to northern island: minister

by Staff Writers
Tokyo (AFP) Sept 19, 2017

Japan deployed Tuesday an additional missile defence system on its northern island of Hokkaido, days after North Korea launched a missile over the island, sparking emergency warnings to take cover.

"As part of measures to prepare for emergencies, we will today deploy a PAC-3 unit" to a base of the nation's Ground Self-Defense Force in the southern tip of Hokkaido, Defence Minister Itsunori Onodera told reporters.

The Patriot Advanced Capability-3 system arrived at the base later on Tuesday, a local defence official told AFP.

The move came with tensions on the Korean peninsula at fever-pitch after Pyongyang carried out its sixth nuclear test and fired two missiles over Japan in the space of less than a month.

North Korea "may take further provocative actions including launching ballistic missiles that would fly over Japan again in the future", Onodera said, adding that his ministry "would take appropriate measures to protect people's safety".

According to local officials, Japan has already deployed the PAC-3 system to another part of Hokkaido.

Upgraded Lockheed Martin Laser Outguns Threat in Half the Time

by Staff Writers

White Sands Missile Range NM (SPX) Sep 21, 2017

A Lockheed Martin prototype laser weapon system proved that an advanced system of sensors, software and specialized optics can deliver decisive lethality against unmanned aerial vehicle threats.

In tests conducted with the U.S. Army's Space and Missile Defense Command in August, the 30-kilowatt class ATHENA (Advanced Test High Energy Asset) system brought down five 10.8' wingspan Outlaw unmanned aerial systems at the Army's White Sands Missile Range in New Mexico.

ATHENA employed advanced beam control technology and an efficient fiber laser in this latest series of tests of the prototype system. Click here to see a video of the testing.

"The tests at White Sands against aerial targets validated our lethality models and replicated the results we've seen against static targets at our own test range," said Keoki Jackson, Lockheed Martin's Chief Technology Officer.

"As we mature the technology behind laser weapon systems, we're making the entire system more effective and moving closer to a laser weapon that will provide greater protection to our warfighters by taking on more sophisticated threats from a longer range."

Lockheed Martin partnered with Army Space and Missile Defense Command on a cooperative research and development agreement to test ATHENA.

Pyongyang may consider conducting its second hydrogen bomb test, which would be the "most powerful detonation" in the Pacific Ocean, the North Korean foreign minister told the media, commenting on Kim Jong-un's latest response to Donald Trump.

The latest round of war of words between US President Donald Trump and the North Korean leadership risks escalating into yet another show of force by Pyongyang, as it allegedly weighs the option of testing an H-bomb, according to a suggestion made by Foreign Minister Ri Yong-ho on the sidelines of the UN General Assembly in New York on Thursday.

Turkish military starts drill near Iraqi border

by Staff Writers
Ankara (AFP) Sept 18, 2017

Turkey launched a military drill with tanks close to the Iraqi border on Monday, the army said, a week before Iraq's Kurdish region is set to hold an independence referendum.

Despite opposition from Turkey, Iran and the United States, the Kurdistan Regional Government's leaders have said they will hold the non-binding independence vote on September 25.

Ankara has previously warned against the poll, saying it could risk "civil war" and will "have a cost" if it goes ahead.

Despite forging strong ties with the KRG in northern Iraq in recent years, Turkey fears the vote could stoke separatist aspirations among its own sizeable Kurdish minority.

Ankara's national security council will meet on September 22 to discuss the country's official position on the referendum, but President Recep Tayyip Erdogan on Sunday said it was a "mistake".

He was speaking before leaving for the United Nations General Assembly, where he is expected to meet Iraqi Prime Minister Haider al-Abadi -- whose Baghdad government is also fiercely against the KRG's move.

Turkish presidency sources said Abadi and Erdogan agreed during a phone call on Monday that the KRG's "insistence would increase tensions in the region".

And they emphasised the need to protect Iraq's territorial integrity, the sources said.

Jan Kubis, the top UN envoy in Iraq, last week offered international backing for immediate negotiations between the country's federal government and the autonomous region in a bid to get Iraqi Kurdish leader Massud Barzani to drop the plans.

Scientists edit embryos' genes to study early human development

Kate Kelland, Health and Science Correspondent

Reuters September 20, 2017

LONDON, Sept 20 (Reuters) - British scientists have used a genome editing tool known as CRISPR/Cas9 to knock out a gene in embryos just a few days old, testing the technique's ability to decipher key gene functions in early human development.

The researchers said their experiments, using a technology that is the subject of fierce international debate because of fears that it could be used to create babies to order, will deepen understanding of the biology of early human development.

CRISPR/Cas9 can enable scientists to find and modify or replace genetic defects. Many describe it as game-changing.

"One way to find out what a gene does in the developing embryo is to see what happens when it isn't working," said Kathy Niakan, a stem cell scientists who led the research at Britain's Francis Crick Institute.

"Now we have demonstrated an efficient way of doing this, we hope that other scientists will use it to find out the roles of other genes."

She said her hope was for scientists to decipher the roles of all the key genes embryos

Some Orange County residents were stunned Thursday, Sept. 21, when television programming was suddenly interrupted for about a minute with an ominous message predicting the end of the world.

Stacy Laflamme of Lake Forest said she was watching the HGTV channel via Cox Communications about 11:05 a.m. when suddenly an emergency alert flashed across her screen followed by a voice.

"Realize this, extremely violent times will come," a man's voice boomed, according to a video of the alert.

Laflamme said she was alarmed.

"It almost sounded like Hitler talking," she said. "It sounded like a radio broadcast

North Korea latest: World War 3 threat puts stock markets ON EDGE

THE latest war of words between Donald Trump and Kim Jong-un spooked markets, as the threat of nuclear appears to grow.

By LANA CLEMENTS

North Korea has put stock markets on edge again

Global stock indices plunged after the US President upped the pressure on the North Korean dictator with more sanctions and dubbed the leader "rocket man".

Kim Jong-un called Mr Trump "mentally deranged" and threatened testing a hydrogen bomb in the Pacific.

The FTSE 100 was nervy after Asian stocks plunged overnight, and Wall Street losses continued on Friday.

Dr Doom's terrifying warning: Stock market meltdown looming and NO ONE is prepared DEVASTATING economic chaos could be looming, sparked by a stock market crash, according to an expert known as 'Dr Doom'.

By LANA CLEMENTS

Dr Doom has predicted a big market crash

Share prices in the US have posted fresh record highs in recent days as fears over North Korea fade.

But a sharp downturn is coming and will be as bad as the 2008 shock, according to Marc Faber, who has warned investors are too complacent.

He told CNBC: "You don't see, and I don't see. And, nobody sees. That's why people keep buying stocks."

An atheist group has threatened legal action against school districts across the state of Arkansas if they display the National Motto "In God We Trust" in compliance with a new state law.

Arkansas Act 911, enacted in April, requires the display of the National Motto in public schools as a patriotic and historic display "if funds are available."

Benton Public School District has already announced that it intends to

An Indiana school district secretary was forced to remove a Bible citation from her email signature after a Wisconsin-based atheist legal group sent a complaint letter demanding its removal. Sarah Mullins, an executive secretary in the Fayette County School Corporation, was recently instructed to remove a reference to Hebrews 6:19 from her official school email signature. The order comes after Superintendent Scott Collins received a letter last Wednesday from the Freedom From Religion

"Remember ever, and always, that your country was founded by the stern old Puritans whose first act on touching the soil of the new world was to offer on bended knees thanksgiving to Almighty God" (paraphrase of Henry Wilson; 18TH U.S. Vice President).

Unlike today, many early political leaders were not ashamed to admit the true source of America's strength—they were biblically correct, rather than politically correct. They were statesmen, not politicians. A politician thinks of the next election; a statesman thinks of the next generation.

You may say, "Times change." And you are correct, but God's standards do not. The sin that once

A public university in the United Kingdom has refused to allow a researcher to look into cases of people who regretted having gender reassignment surgery and transitioned back to living as their birth sex. The university says such a study “may be detrimental to the reputation of the institution,” according to a report. James Caspian, a psychotherapist, proposed to do the study for a master’s degree in counseling and psychotherapy at Bath Spa University but was refused permission, according to The Sunday Times.

Math and science teacher Chloe Bressack sent the request home in a letter to parents headlined "About Mx. Bressack."

The letter also asks that students use "Mx.," (pronounced 'Mix') when addressing the teacher rather than Mr. or Ms.

In a post written Tuesday night in the Facebook group "Tally Moms Stay Connected," a parent said her child's teacher sent home a "Welcome to my class" note, which included the request.

The parent ended her original post with the question, "What would your reaction be as a parent of 9 & 10 year olds?"
